TEUTONIC FORCES ARE MAKING A GENERAL RETREAT

The Allies Advance On The Western Front

Austro-German Forces Are Retreating On A Ninety Mile Battle Front

Russians Have Taken Several Important Positions Together With the Whole Region of the Main Enemy Winter Positions and Seven Villages in the Vicinity of Stanislau—Eighty-Four Thousand Prisoners Captured—Austrians are in Retreat.

RUSSIANS TAKE HALICZ

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15.—Russian troops have taken the whole region of the main enemy winter positions before Tarnopol and Buczacz. General Brussiloff has captured five more villages on the Stripa and General Letchitzky two more villages south of Stanislau.

A GENERAL RETREAT.

84,000 PRISONERS CAPTURED.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15.—The Russians have now broken the Austro-German centre. Eighty-four thousand prisoners have been captured in the new drive to date. The Teutons are unable to stop the Russians at any point.

ADDITIONAL VILLAGES TAKEN.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15.—The Russians have captured additional villages in Galicia, reaching Mariampol, seven miles south-east of Halicz, and captured a number of fortified positions on the upper Sereth River.

AUSTRIAN RETREAT CONTINUES.

RUSSIANS HAVE TAKEN HALICZ.

TWO HAMILTON PEOPLE KILLED IN COLLISION

Motorcycle and Motor Car Collided on Wet Pavement Early Sunday Morning — Nelson Chambers and Miss Jean Secord Were Victims—Sergt. Thompson Had Both Legs Broken.

HAMILTON, Aug. 15.—As the result of a collision between a taxicab and a motor cycle with sidecar at the junction of King and Main streets about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, Nelson Chambers, motorcycle dealer, 18 Beechwood avenue, and Miss Jean Secord, 110½ King street west, are dead, and Sergeant Thomas Thompson, Hughson street south, a member of the 205th Battalion; William Evans, 29 Cumberland avenue; J. Stevens, 7 Britannia street, and Walter Male, 280 Bold street are injured.

Mr. Chambers was driving a motor cycle, going west on King street, Miss Secord was in the side-car, and Sergeant Thompson was in the rear seat. The taxicab was driven by William Evans, who had as passengers J. Stevens and Walter Male. It was going east and Main street. When the Delta was reached, it is said that Chambers attempted to cross in front of the taxicab, which was travelling fast, and the taxicab struck the motor cycle, throwing the three persons on it about twenty feet. Chambers' head was terribly crushed, and he was badly cut and bruised about the body, and died almost instantly. Both Miss Secord's legs were cut off, and she was otherwise mangled, and died in a few minutes after the collision. Sergeant Thompson is at the City Hospital suffering from two broken legs and other injuries, but there is a fair chance of his recovery. The force or the impact threw Evans through the windshield of the taxicab and he was rendered unconscious. It was first thought he had concussion of the brain, but he regained consciousness not long after, and it was found that he was not seriously hurt. Mr. Stevens is badly cut over the eyes by glass from the windshield, and Mr Male has a severe cut in the back of the head, but neither is seriously injured.

The front of the auto was flattened back to the dashboard, and it was otherwise damaged by the motorcycle, which was not badly broken. Police Sergeant English, who resides near the scene of the accident, heard the crash and hurried there. W. A. Laidlaw, who also resides nearby, arrived about the same time and they found both Chambers and Miss Secord dead. Sergeant Thompson was lying on the street car tracks, and as he was too heavy for them to lift they went to one of the other injured. Meanwhile a street car came along, and Sergeant English signed to the motorman to stop. Owing to the slippery car tracks the car slid to within a short distance of where Thompson was lying, and it was feared for a few moments he would be run over. Coroner Simpson and Dr. Parke were quickly on the scene, and rendered first aid to the injured, after which they were taken to the City Hospital. An inquest will be held next week to ascertain if possible whether there was carelessness on the part of the drivers of the two machines.

French Troops Capture Third German Positons

One Thousand Prisoners Taken Twenty Machine Guns—British Troops Make Important Advance Northwest of Pozieres Extending Their Line Over a Front of Nearly a Mile—A Successful Raid Near Ypres

THREE ATTACKS REPULSED

PARIS, Aug. 15.—French troops, in a brilliant attack yesterday, captured all the third German positions east of Hardecourt on a front of six and one-half kilometres, capturing Maurepas village and lines of slope of Hill 109, taking more than one thousand prisoners and thirty machine guns. The British troops have made an important advance north-west of Pozieres, pushing forward their line 300 or 400 yards over a front of nearly a mile.

Raid Near Ypres.

"South of the Ypres salient we carried out a successful raid without incurring any losses ourselves. There has been further mining activity. We forced an entry into a German gallery at the bluff north of the Ypres-Comiies canal and, after exploration, blew in a considerable length. We captured some of the enemy's mining stores. We also successfully exploded a mine near Cordonnerier."

Small French Captures.

The French announcement follows: "North of the Somme there was a fairly lively cannonade in the region of Maurepas. The night was calm in the other sectors.

"South of the Somme we appreciably enlarged our positions to the south-west of Estrees by capturing several trench elements to the left of the Fay-Deniecourt.

"Between the Oise and the Aisne a violent artillery struggle took place in the sector of Moulin-Sous-Toutvent.

Three Attacks Repulsed.

"A German attempt against our trenches east of Hill 304 was checked by our machine gun fire. On the right bank of the river our grenadiers easily repulsed two attacks made by the enemy against the village of Fleury and against other positions to the south-east of that place.

"There was intermittent cannonading on the remainder of the front."

ITALIANS TAKE NEW POSITIONS ON CARSO

Take Strong Lines of Austrian Entrenchments on Carso Plateau —800 Prisoners Taken

ROME, Aug. 15.—General Cadorna's forces pierced another strong line of Austrian entrenchments east of Nadlogem height, south of Goritz, and are continuing to press the enemy back on the Carso plateau, it was officially announced. East of Hill 212 they pierced strong lines of hostile entrenchments. About 800 prisoners were captured by the Italians.

In the Gorizia area artillery duels took place," the statement says. "The enemy's batteries shelled the town and bridges over the Isonzo.

"On the remainder of the front small, but sharp encounters took place, on the slopes of Forame, at the head of the Costeana valley, on the Boite, and on the slopes of Monte Civaronne, in the Sugana valley. The enemy was repulsed everywhere and left about fifty prisoners in our hands. Hostile batteries bombarded villages in the upper Chiarso and Cordevole valleys. They were silenced by our artillery.

"Last night hostile aircraft dropped bombs on Monfalcone and other places on the lower Isonzo. No damage nor casualties have been reported."

Allison Stripped Of His Title

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.—The Government by order-in-council has removed the name of J. Wesley Allison from the list of honorary colonels. Mr. Allison was appointed an honorary colonel soon after the outbreak of war by General Hughes. His connection with the fuse contract was strongly condemned by the Meredith-Duff commission and this resulted in action being taken by the Government to deprive him of his honorary military title.

In baking cake the eggs are much nicer (in a plain loaf cake) if added to the butter and sugar unbeaten. They seem to add a crisp richness to the cake, which is delicious.

Austria Appeals For German Aid

ROME, Aug. 14.—Austria has made another appeal to Germany for more troops to defend the Galician front, according to a despath from Berne. This is one of the matters said to have been discussed by the German chancellor and Emperor Franz Josef at last week's meeting in Vienna.

TURKS GOING TO EUROPEAN FRONT

London, Aug. 14. — According to the Berliner Tageblatt, wires Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent, the transport of Turkish troops on a great scale to the European war field is proceeding without a hitch. The troops are being taken from Asiatic provinces of Turkey, and also include some Arabs. All the men are newly equipped.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Practicing At Literature

By ALAN HINSDALE

Wilbur Jones had in him a literary fervor that was seeking an outlet. He met Maud Erskine. It was springtime. They were together in the country with nothing to do. Jones was feeling for a literary career. Persons inoculated with the literary fever usually show the symptoms in verse. Jones, mistaking his literary ebullitions for love, veered between letters and poetry, both addressed to Miss Erskine.

Miss Erskine, not being able to throw an X ray upon Jones' heart, naturally supposed these effusions to be genuine lovemaking. Had Jones not felt them to be such himself they would not have been as commendable as they were.

Miss Erskine was not a beauty, but while Jones was writing verses and love letters to her he considered her at least comely. She sang ballads, and to Jones her voice was melodious.

Jones became separated from her for a period of six months. When they met again he was surprised to see a woman very plain of face and figure, and as to voice, hers was like the wind whistling through telegraph wires, though not so musical. He would not have believed that he could have been infatuated had it not been for the letters and verses. She read some of them to him. They were very good as literary productions; they bespoke genuine love. But it seemed to the author that they must have expressed the love of some one else.

Jones decided that what had been evolved must be permitted to die out as gradually as it had come. He went to another city, wrote Miss Erskine commonplace letters further and further apart and finally stopped writing to her altogether.

Jones' literary attainments became known in the place of his sojourn, and he was pointed out as an author. In order to divest himself entirely of Miss Erskine he adopted a nom de plume and a nom de hide in one. He became Alonzo Poindexter. One who is attempting to hide from a sheriff or a woman is always looking out for discovery. Jones was no exception.

When Miss Philomena Andrews heard that Mr. Jones-Poindexter was an author she secured an introduction.

"Mr. Jones," she said, "why do you authors hide under assumed names?"

"How did you know my name is Jones?" he asked, with suspicion.

"A little bird told me."

Jones got away from her as soon as possible and later asked one of his friends, "Who is Philomena Andrews?"

"She's not Philomena Andrews at all; she's Mrs. Susan Eldredge."

Jones trembled. Could it be that Maud Erskine had objected to being left in the lurch and had sent a detective after him?

Then it was that those letters, those verses he had written to Maud came up to strike him with terror. What excellent evidence against him in a breach of promise suit! He was and had been for some time thoroughly conscious that he had been practicing as a literary producer, but what avail would such an excuse be when his effusions were read to twelve good and true (practical) men? Could he say his productions were simply literary bubbles? And if such a statement were believed would he be considered to have the right to practice for authorship on a girl who could not but take the effusions to be genuine expressions of his love for her? Suppose that he attempted to excuse himself on the ground that the literary fervor within him was so strong that he could not distinguish it from love? He would be laughed at.

One day the so called Philomena Andrews tackled him, saying:

"You might as well confess, Mr. Jones, that you are after me in behalf of Mr. Jenkins, who wrote those love letters to me."

"After you?"

"Yes. But I assure you I will not give up the incriminating effusions. He and I are merely excellent friends. When he began to scribble he asked me to play Beatrice to his Dante. Beatrice was a good wife and mother; so am I. His wife in her jealousy has been ridiculous. I made up my mind to disappear for awhile, hoping that she would come to her senses and the matter would be dropped."

"B-b-but," stammered Jones, "is it usual for literary men to gather inspiration by means of a fancied love?"

"It should be. How would artists get on without models?"

"Just so. I never thought of it in that light."

"Do be sensible. I know you have been employed to get evidence against my friend. Go back and say that you have been convinced that I have been simply his literary model."

"I'll do it. I don't know any one to present your case who is better equipped for the purpose than I."

Jones went back and reported satisfactorily, but he did not dare try to dispose of his own affair in the same way. However, on his return he heard that his literary love was engaged to a haberdasher.

This was a great relief to him. He brightened up and straightway resumed an interest in his literary work. But he had made up his mind that if it was safe for Dante to have a Beatrice it is not safe for Jones to have a Maud. But he has made a name by fancying himself in love with a real woman and writing his effusions to an imaginary one.

A Classic Monster.

"Write down all you know about centaurs," said a schoolteacher to a new pupil. The boy returned to his seat and presently handed the teacher the following attempt at composition: "A centaur was ancient cavalry and archery all in one piece. He could not be knocked out of his saddle because he hadn't any, being the same person as his horse. If he needed a tent he did not need a stable, or if he needed a stable he did not need a tent—I do not know which—and if he needed forage he did not need rations, or if he needed rations he did not need forage. Although he was mythical and primitive, this made him very convenient for war."

A Pirate's Model Kingdom.

Pitcairn island is in latitude 25 degrees 3 minutes south and longitude 130 degrees 6 minutes west, or almost exactly south of Vancouver island and just a little south of the tropic of Capricorn. It was first settled in 1790 by nine mutineers from the English ship Bounty and eighteen natives of Tahiti. By the year 1808, when the island was discovered by the English, the population had grown to sixty-six persons, who formed a model community under the patriarchal government of John Adams, the only surviving mutineer, who had saved a Bible from the ship and was ruling with wisdom and justice his little kingdom of slightly over two miles in length. The island is under the British flag and has a couple of hundred inhabitants.—Christian Herald.

BIG LOAVES OF BREAD.

In France They Are Made From Four to Six Feet in Length.

The biggest loaves of bread baked to be eaten are those made in France and Italy. In the case of the pipe bread of the latter country the loaves are between two feet and three feet in length and occasionally even longer, while the French people make their loaves in the shape of very long rolls of bread, ranging from four feet to five feet and in a few instances even to six feet in length.

Bread in Paris is distributed almost exclusively by women. Those go to the various bakehouses at 5:30 a. m. and spend about an hour in brushing the long loaves with special brushes. When their load is cleaned of grit and dust the porteuse de pain goes the round to the customers.

Customers who live in flats have their loaves propped up against the doors of their apartments. Shopkeepers, restaurateurs and other customers who have entrances to their premises in the street find their portions of the staff of life leaning against their front doors when they take down the shutters. The wages of these bread carriers vary from 2 shillings to 2s. 6d. a day, their work being generally over at 10 or 12 o'clock in the morning.—London Tit-Bits.

Weighing Machines.

Weighing machines and scales of some kind were in use 1800 B. C., for it is said that Abraham at that time "weighed out" 400 shekels of silver, current money, with the merchant to Ephron, the Hittite, as payment for a piece of land, including the cave and all the standing timber "in the field and in the fence." This is said to be the earliest transfer of land of which any record survives and in which the payment was made in the presence of witnesses. The original form of the weighing scale was probably a bar suspended from the middle with a board or shell suspended from each end, one to contain the weight, the other to contain the matter to be weighed. The steelyard was probably so called from the material of which it was made and from its former length. It is also known as the Roman balance and is of great antiquity.

He "Asked" For It.

More stories are told about Sir Herbert Tree, who is having so triumphal a tour in the United States, than about almost any other public man. Here is a good one, exemplifying the ready answer for which he is so justly famed.

One day when he was coming out of the Garrick Club a man, whom he did not know from Adam, approached, and, with a sweeping bow, said in a Yankee twang:

"Ex-cuse me, sir, but they tell me some pretty well-known folk belong to this club. Are you anyone of importance?"

Sir Herbert Tree looked the questioner coldly up and down. "I don't really think I can be, or I wouldn't be seen talking to you," he said icily.

Devised New Poster.

Sergeant Dan Gilchrist, of the 12th Brigade, Headquarters Staff at Petawawa, is the originator of a most successful poster to impress those who are remaining at home, how vital a necessity it is that they put into practice the principles of conservation of energy and resources, and in every way give their moral and physical support to the men at the front. Sergt. Gilchrist is the father of the slogan, "The man behind the man behind the gun," which has been widely used in poster work.

Sergt. Gilchrist is a native of Scotland, but has resided in Canada for the past seven years.

CITY OF HELENA PRODUCES GOLD.

Those sturdy Argonauts who discovered Last Chance and Dry Gulches (the present site of Helena) evidently overlooked a big lot of gold, says the Anaconda Standard. They set their sluices first in East Chance, the course of which is marked by Main street, which if you ever happened to notice is a pretty crooked, perhaps better say serpentine, thoroughfare. But that old street, had it remained intact, would as a matter of fact, have been paved with gold; fortunes upon fortunes were taken from that famous gulch in the sixties.

It is recalled that when foundations were excavated for buildings on Main street, in every instance the contractors washed out gold dust from the dirt removed. When the Placer Hotel was built a few years ago, it was said that the dirt taken from the foundation pit yielded handsomely in the precious metal.

Many interesting stories have been written about finds of gold by excavators in many parts of Helena, principally by those whose work was in Last Chance or Dry Gulch.

The latest find is reported from Allen street and Sixth avenue, away over on the east side. It is said that several stringers or veins have just been uncovered, the prospects being good for a strike of gold bearing ore.

When Henry Blake, a pioneer butcher of Helena, built a brick house on Breckenridge street, in Dry Gulch the word was given out (not by himself) that he had taken enough gold out of the excavation to pay for the foundation of his house. That may be so or it may not, but it is historical truth that at that part of the gulch some of the larges "cleanups" of gold dust ever made in the district were the reward of the placer miners of the early days.

It surely pays to dig cellars in Helena.

FROM DEATH UNTO LIFE IN CHRIST JESUS

By Meeting Terms Which God Has Laid Down.

Sons of God Once Dead in Sins Like the Rest of the World—Adam Originally a Son of God—Holy Angels Are Sons of God—Dominion of Sin in Fallen World Gave Opportunity for the Preparation and Testing of a Chosen Class—This Class to Be God's Instruments for the Blessing and Instruction of Others—Jehovah's Plan Wonderful—No Human Being Could Ever Have Conceived It—Spiritual Sons of God, Now Preparing, Soon to Be Glorified—Their Marvelous Exaltation.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 13.—Pastor Russell delivered a very instructive and interesting address here today. His text was, "And you hath He quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins." (Ephesians 2:1.) He said in part:

In these words of our text a great deal is expressed. The Apostle is addressing the Church. These were formerly dead in the sense that they were condemned in Adam, with all the rest of the world. They were under the death sentence, legally dead. From the Divine standpoint all the race of mankind is a dead race. None have life in a legal sense except those who have obtained it from God through His provided channel—Christ Jesus. The Church of Christ have life now by meeting the terms which God has laid down. They "have passed from death unto life."

The world in general are still under condemnation to death. They can gain life only through the great Life-giver whom God has provided. The life He will give to the world in God's due time will be the life purchased for them by the sacrifice of His own human life—the life of the Man Christ Jesus. Adam and his race may receive back all that was lost by Adam's disobedience—whosoever will—through the merit of the sacrifice given at Calvary. It will be a restitution to human perfection in a perfected earth. The Scriptures speak of Adam in his original perfection as a son of God. (Luke 3:38.) He was created in God's image "very good." (Genesis 1:26, 27, 31; 9:6; Ecclesiastes 7:29.) He was a human son.

The holy angels were also sons of God. They are thus spoken of in the Bible. The Lord through the Prophet Job tells us that at the creation of our race, "The morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy." (Job 38: 6,7.) They were united in praising God for His wonderful works of creation. They rejoiced in Him and all His doings. God created all these different orders of beings, angels, and men, through the great Logos, "the First-born [first brought into being] of all creation." (Colossians 1:15.) He was the active Agent of Jehovah in all His creative works. "Without Him was not anything made that was made."—John 1:3.

Sonship Regained on a New Plane.

Through means provided in Christ God has been extending an invitation during the present Age to some from the fallen race of Adam to become His sons, and on a new plane of being—the Divine. This is higher than anything man has ever known, higher than anything the angels have ever known. In bringing forth this New Creation Jehovah God is utilizing the conditions under which sin prevails in the world.

We may suppose that He said to Himself, "This would be an opportunity for making a grand character-test. I will therefore take a class from the fallen family of Adam and make them associates of My Son in the great work which I have for Him to do; for the fact that they will be amongst men and have the same weaknesses of the fallen nature to contend with during the period of their development and preparation will serve only so much the more to test their loyalty and the strength of their character. I wish them to be associated with Myself in My great work of blessing all mankind, of uplifting the human family."

Thus the Father's thought is expressed in the Bible. "This will be an excellent opportunity for Me to take a specially selected class from amongst all peoples, nations, kindreds, and tongues. For when I shall have gathered them out they will be exactly the ones suited to My purpose, to perform My good pleasure in uplifting the world from their sin and imperfections back to perfection. Not only so, but certain great principles will be demonstrated that otherwise would never be known by either angels or men. It will show that I can take the mean things, the ignoble things, and so transform them that they shall be useful on the very highest plane of existence. Then if any of My intelligent creatures on any plane of life should in the future be offered a high position, they would know that they could attain it. If I offered a reward for any service, all would know that it could be gained."

So we see, dear friends, how the Lord has embraced the opportunity to call out and train a very special company for a very special purpose. And the arrangement by which He does this is suggested in our text: "And you who were dead in trespasses and sins hath He quickened"—made alive.

When These Sons Were Quickened.

The Apostle Paul is not speaking here of the complete making alive of this class in the First Resurrection, when they will be perfected as Divine spiritual beings, but of a present condition—"You HATH He quickened." They were quickened, made alive as New Creatures, when, after they had accepted Christ as their Saviour and presented themselves to God in full consecration, they were received and had the merit of Christ's blood imputed to them as sacrifices, and were begotten of God's Holy Spirit (His power) to a new nature. There the new life in Christ had its beginning; and this embryo life is to grow and develop until it is perfected in the resurrection, when they will receive their new spiritual bodies.

Though these spiritual sons are the creation of the Heavenly Father, yet it is His arrangement that their quickening, both in its present stage and in its completion at their resurrection, is not accomplished without the Son. All things are of the Father and by the Son. (I Corinthians 8:6.) It may be asked, Why could God not quicken these without the Son? We answer, Because they were dead in trespasses and sins, and must have a perfect, sinless Redeemer to deliver them from death before God could have any dealings with them.

Moreover, as they must still use their imperfect mortal bodies, it is necessary that the merit of their Redeemer should continually cover them as a robe as long as they remain in the flesh; and because of their daily imperfections they need that this Redeemer be also their Advocate before the Father, that they may continue to be acceptable. It is the Father who quickens these, but it is not without the Son. The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ hath begotten us," says the Apostle. —1 Peter 1:3.

Church's and World's Salvation Different.

So we see that the receiving of life in the case of the Church class is different from the way in which the world in the next Age will receive life. Our life is from the Father, through Christ. The life of the world will be a direct gift from the Son, who alone will deal with the world during the incoming Age. He will be their "Everlasting [Age-lasting] Father." (Isaiah 9:6,7.) He is not the Father of the Church, but their Elder Brother. The world can have no access to the Father until the close of the Millennial Age.

The Church have access to the Father now, through the imputed merit of Jesus. We are being dealt with in a peculiar way and for a specific purpose. What the world are to receive will be something purchased for them directly by Christ. What the Church receives is something far above what was purchased by Christ. This purchased human life they laid down as a joint-sacrifice with Jesus, that they might share in His glory. This higher life and glory they receive as a reward for their sacrifice, just as Jesus Himself received it as a reward for His sacrifice.

The Church are New Creatures in Christ. The New Creature was never condemned. The New Creature was never redeemed. It starts out on a new plane altogether. To the world our Lord Jesus is to give His merit, the merit of His death. To the Church He only imputes it, in order that it may at once be laid down as a sacrifice. The Church, as members of the human family for whom Jesus died, have as much right as the world to receive the restitution provided for them in Jesus' sacrificial death. But these have relinquished their right to the perfect human life that they may attain with their Lord the far higher and grander life—the Divine. They have become dead with Him to the human life, human rights and blessings in order that they may live and reign with Him on His Throne.

Let us represent the matter thus: We will say that a thousand dollars represents the perfect life with all the rights and privileges which would have been ours in common with the world. We still have, as members of the fallen human family, some remains of the original likeness of God in which our first parents were created. This has a certain worth; but as all the race were born under the death penalty, this worth or value could not be used by God in our fallen condition. But God has made an arrangement whereby this value can be made available. Let us say that this value which we have is represented by a hundred dollars. This represents our present life, our present influence.

To us who now offer ourselves to God to be dead with Christ, Jesus says: "I will take what you have and add to it by imputation sufficient of My sacrificial merit to make it perfect in God's sight. In other words, I will impute nine hundred dollars to your one hundred and thus make the full thousand. Thus I can present you to the Father a perfect sacrifice, perfect as was My own." He does this, and the Father accepts the sacrifice. At once it is killed by our great High Priest, Jesus, and at the same moment the Father begets us by His Holy Spirit to the new spiritual nature. Thenceforth we are counted dead as human beings; we are partakers of Jesus' Sacrifice, sharers in it. We are New Creatures in Christ.

Divine Predestination Glorious.

Jehovah's great Plan is being carried out on a wonderful scale! And I am sure that, had we not been instructed as to what is His Plan, we would never have thought of such a nicety of justice and such a marvel of mercy and love as He has demonstrated in His arrangement for the Church and for the world. Such a Plan would never have occurred to us. We see that our God is a wonderful God and His Plan a most wonderful Plan; and the farther into it we see, the more confidence we have in Him, and the more we grow in knowledge, in grace, in His character-likeness and in the likeness of His dear Son our Saviour and Advocate.

God has foreordained, predestinated, that the members of the Body of Christ, the Church shall be conformed to the image of His Son. He has not predestinated, as many once thought, that so many are to go to Heaven and all the remainder—the vast majority—to endless torture. We are greatly enamored of the Lord's predestination; we could not ask for anything better, nor half so good. Surely we should show to Him our great appreciation of His wonderful Calling in Christ to those who "have ears to hear." Jesus says, "No man cometh to the Father but by Me," and "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." So we have come. Does the Father accept of such? Yes; He accepts us and gives us the begetting of His Holy Spirit. That is our start as New Creatures in Christ. "You hath He quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins."

Quickening That Follows Begetting.

There is another sense in which the Bible speaks of us as being quickened. As we have stated, when we consecrated ourselves to God and the merit of Jesus was imputed to us, the sacrifice was killed, legally, and we were begotten as spirit beings. But as we still had to use the human body which was legally killed, it must be made the servant of the New Creature. By the Holy Spirit dwelling in us God quickens, energizes, this body that it may render service to Him. Thenceforth this mortal body is the property of the New Creature. He is to bring it fully into subjection to the new mind.

If we fail to develop and bring forth fruitage in proportion to our talents, our opportunities for service, we cannot ask to be of that great, highly exalted Body of Christ. As soon as the newly begotten child of God comes to the point of activity in the Lord's service, he has been quickened. This quickening, energizing, of the New Creature to labor for God, to lay down his life for the brethren, should follow the begetting of the Holy Spirit in a comparatively short time. Until this time he has not begun to walk in the footsteps of the Master; the embryo new life is yet too feeble to manifest itself. As in a natural begetting the conception takes place some little time before there is a quickening, so it is with the spiritual begetting. But the quickening should follow in a reasonably short time. Otherwise something would be wrong. The Truth requires a little time to impregnate the heart and mind, and then the evidences of quickening begin to manifest themselves.

Jewels in Process of Preparation.

This called-out class the Father denominates His jewels. "They shall be Mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that Day when I make up My Jewels." "Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of Jehovah, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God." (Malachi 3:17; Isaiah 62:3.) Some may be inclined to criticize as they see evidences of imperfection in the mortal flesh of those whom the Lord is preparing now for the Kingdom. But the Lord looks beneath the surface. He knows who have the jewel quality. He knows who have the requisite decision of character, the necessary heart-loyalty to the principles of righteousness, the proper humility. Certain qualifications are absolutely essential on those whom God is now choosing for the highest positions in the Universe next to Himself and His First-begotten Son.

Jewels are scarce; and these jewels that the Lord is now taking out of the world have the right heart-condition, whatever may be the natural blemishes of the mortal body, which they are endeavoring to conquer to the best of their ability. "Blessed are the pure in heart," said the Master. These pure-hearted ones shall be the Lord's in this Day, now present, when He is making up His jewels, His royal diadem. God is to make a glorious exhibition of them to the entire Universe—human and spiritual. He is to have a wondrous diadem of glory and beauty.

Each of these jewels must be cut and polished for his place in the diadem. The various difficulties and trials of life are making us ready for that position. We are to "think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try us as though some strange thing happened unto us," but are to "rejoice that we are counted worthy to suffer with Christ." Thus only can we be glorified with Him. If we submit to the process of the great Heavenly Lapidary, we shall be mounted in gold.

This time of mounting will be when we, as developed New Creatures, shall be given our new spiritual bodies in the First Resurrection. The Lord tells us that He will display this crown, or diadem, in His hand, as His masterpiece, the crowning work of all God's great creation. It will be an entirely new creation upon the very highest plane—a position never offered to any but our Lord Jesus and those who walk in His sacrificial footsteps. Then let us "lay aside every weight, and the sin that doth so easily beset us, and run with patience the race set before us, looking unto Jesus, the Author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set down on the right hand of the Throne of God."—Hebrews 12:2.

RECOVERY OF NEW JERSEY WOMAN

Due To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bridgeton, N.J.—"I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for inflammation and other weaknesses. I was very irregular and would have terrible pains so that I could hardly take a step. Sometimes I would be so miserable that I could not sweep a room. I doctored part of the time but felt no change. I later took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and felt a change for the better after the second day. I took it until I was in a good healthy condition. I recommend the Pinkham remedies to all women as I have used them with good results."—Mrs. MILFORD T. CUMMINGS, 24 New Street, Bridgeton, N. J.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence of the excellence of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the distressing ills of women such as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, backache, painful periods, nervousness and kindred ailments.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON.

The blood must be filtered, otherwise the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid, you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail pid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

A Lost Book.

Among the Somalis of Africa there is a legend that when God first made them, a man and a woman, he wrote down in a book the law they were to follow. They were promised that as long as they carefully preserved this book they should continue great and powerful, but if they lost it their greatness would depart from them. One day the book was carelessly left lying outside a tent, where a bullock found and devoured it. From that fatal day their decadence set in, and to the present time whenever an ox dies of disease or is killed his entrails are religiously examined to see if any trace of the book can be found. If found they believe they should recover their lost power.

A Country of Earthquakes.

Japan is peculiarly the victim of elemental forces. The only satisfaction its people can derive from living in a country which contains fifty-one active volcanoes and has an average of about 500 earthquake shocks yearly is that in all probability Japan would never have existed but for the seismic and volcanic agency which has elevated whole districts above the ocean by means of repeated eruptions.

ANCIENT ANESTHETICS.

Nepenthe and Other Agents Were Used by Old Time Surgeons.

Those who imagine that surgical knowledge began with later generations and that the discovery of chloroform revolutionized the science should read an article published by Dr. J. de Fenton in the South African Journal of Science.

Various anesthetizing media and methods were well known both in antiquity and during the middle ages. Homer mentions the anesthetic effects of nepenthe; Herodotus states that the Scythians obtained similar effects from the vapors of hemp, produced by throwing hemp seed on hot stones. A Chinese physician of the third century, B. C., gave his patients a preparation of hemp to make them insensible during surgical operations.

The most important anesthetic of ancient and medieval times was, however, wine of mandragora, the use of which is mentioned by a great number of early writers and is referred to by Shakespeare. More recently, in the year 1760, the German surgeon, Weiss, better known as Albinus, amputated the foot of Augustus III., king of Poland, while under the influence of mandragora.

Two other anesthetizing agencies were employed in very early times, arterial compression and hypnotism.

Entertaining Himself.

In Clayton Hamilton's "On the Trail of Stevenson" is this quaint passage between the boy and his nurse, Alison Cunningham:

"When little Louis was about five years old he did something naughty, and 'Cummy' stood him up in a corner and told him he would have to stay there for ten minutes; then she left the room. At the end of the allotted period she returned and said, 'Time's up, Master Lou; you may come out now.' But the little boy stood motionless in his penitential corner. 'That's enough; time's up,' repeated Cummy. And then the child mystically raised his hand, and, with a strange light in his eyes, 'Hush,' he said, 'I'm telling myself a story.'"

Balanced Rocks.

In Acushnet, Me., are two rocks peculiarly situated on a ledge and apparently placed there by a glacial action. The larger rock weighs probably several hundred tons, and years ago, it is said, this could be tilted by pushing against it. There are evidences that some time smaller rocks were placed as wedges to keep the great rock motionless.

About Politics.

"Madam," said the tramp, "I was once a member of the legislature."

"And are you sure," she said, inclined to believe him, "that your reformation is complete?"

FINDS QUEER BEETLES.

Strange Insects With Markings That Puzzle Scientists.

Beetles bearing Masonic and other markings that have proved a puzzle to the Carnegie Institute have been found by Fred Steen, of the Steen mine, in the Cornucopia district in Oregon.

The insects are of the general type of the long-horned wood borer, but according to the Carnegie Institute there is an apparent variation from any hitherto known species.

The backs are black and the markings are traced as though in white ink. Some markings form a combination of letters and Arabic numerals. Many have markings "V U 4." Others have the Masonic emblem of the square and compass plainly discernible.

FRENCH GIRLS BY THOUSANDS TAKEN BY HUNS

How 10,000 young women and girls were torn from their homes in French territory by German soldiers and sent away to Germany in circumstances that have left their parents and families distracted with horror and grief is told in two letters received by an official of the Belgian Government in this country, says the New York Telegram. The two letters were smuggled out of the city of Lille, from which 6,000 of the victims were taken, the others being Many are ill from them. Some letters have been received from some young girls among those expelled, from the immediate vicinity.

The charges sustained in the letters are said to be sustained by investigation.

The charges made in the letters were submitted several weeks ago, it is said to United States Ambassador Gerard in Berlin, who brought the matter to the attention of the German authorities. According to information received here the Germans at first denied, but later admitted that the deportations had taken place, but insisted that the number as stated by French authorities had been exaggerated.

The first letter reads:

"We are still suffering under the impression of the unnamable measures exercised in our neighborhood—the forcible expulsion of young men and young girls sent away to no one knows where, and under lamentable conditions, both from a physical and moral point of view. To perform this nice duty regiments of the Imperial Guard came from Cambrai. They surrounded a quarter of the city at three o'clock in the morning and visited all the houses.

"You can judge the extent of the blind terror and grief of the parents whose children were carried away under such conditions. Such measures are like those of Behanzin (formerly King of Dahomey), who are terror stricken and maddened by all that they have seen and learned."

The second letter reads:

"No doubt you know through our daughters that we are in good health, despite the Trappist-like regime to which we are subjected. 'They' try to make us suffer as much as possible in a material way. All this is added to our old miseries that have not disappeared, annoyances at all times.

"I laughed when you saved your daughters, and now I should be happy at having saved mine, for you no doubt know that 10,000 young girls have been carried away from the Lille district under some pretext of using them in agricultural work. They were carried away by force during the night. 'They' are writing everywhere to the country; don't believe anything of it. 'They' are at present trying to minimize the affair. Remember well the figures and the actions, they are exact—Fifty-seven hundred young girls in Lille alone, from fifteen to twenty-five years of age! May the press or the world take note of it. It is a stain from their hands. If the neutrals do not act now they are cowards. Will they understand?

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA.

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Bustard, Maxwell, N.B. "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

SNOW, ICE, MORE BLANKETS.

Lake Louise, Alta., August 12. — While easterners and westerners alike have been dodging heat prostration and sun stroke, Rocky Mountain tourists were wearing sweaters most of the daytime and clamored for more blankets at night. It snowed so frequently on the mountain heights that guides from the upper trails came down to Lake Louise last week to thaw out. Huckleberry bushes about their camps and even in the valleys of the Rockies are only now in blossom. Grizzly bears and silvertips, together with their more plebeian black and brown brethren, will search in vain this fall for huckleberries. It is such a late season the fruit cannot ripen.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ONE PIECE PLAITED SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

There is just as much artistic taste necessary in designing a box plaited skirt as any other style calls for, and in the model illustrated you will readily recognise the good points that make it fitting for wear on any occasion: it is a remarkably fine specimen and will blend well with many of the tempting styles in separate waists.

The width of the lower edge is 3 yards in size 24 inch waist measure. Four box plaits are made in each half of the garment to get the desired effect, and a panel front is an important part of the effect. Either a raised or the regulation waistline may be used.

A very limited amount of energy and 10 cents for the pattern will reproduce the design in any preferred material. Those to be considered are silk, wool voile, gabardine, poplin, taffeta faille, pongee, and, of course, white serge for a dress skirt for summer is always well chosen. For a tub skirt there is a variety of materials, but the lighter weight will be the better selection for a box plaited garment.

The pattern, No. 7,844, is cut in sizes 24 to 32 inches waist measure. To make in size 24 will require 4 yards of 44 inch material.

You may obtain the pattern by sending 10c. coin to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

GERMAN TRENCHES CAPTURED BY THE FRENCH

RUSSIANS ARE DRAWING IN UPON LEMBERG

ENEMY TRENCHES TAKEN BY THE FRENCH TROOPS

French Advance on a Three Hundred Yard Front to a Depth of One Hundred Yards---British Troops Force Their way Into German Trenches Near Mounfuet Farm ---New Austro-German Line Pierced at a New Point--- Russians Make a Rapid Advance.

SUCCESS FOR THE ITALIANS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, Aug. 15.—A French grenade attack on the north-eastern front of Verdun last night resulted in the capture of German trenches on a three hundred yard front to a depth of one hundred yards, it was officially announced to-day. The gain was made in the vicinity of Sainte Fine Chapel, at the intersection of the Fleury and Vaux roads. German counter attacks in this region were immediately checked. The Germans bombarded the French positions at Fleury and on the Vaux Chapitre sector. A German detachment last night penetrated a French salient north-west of Beaulne, in the region north of the Aisne after an intense bombardment. They were later expelled by a French counter attack. French artillery was very active on the Somme front last night, but no important infantry engagements occurred.

RAIDING PARTIES REPULSED.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—British troops forced their way into German trenches near Mounfuet Farm, north-west of Pozieres, last night and returned with eleven prisoners, General Haig reported this afternoon. On the British right two small hostile raiding parties were repulsed with heavy losses.

In local fighting in the last two days the British have captured nearly all the remainder of the trenches taken by the Germans around Pozieres on Saturday.

Italians Have Captured Several Austrian Trenches

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ROME, Aug. 15.—Several sections of Austrian trenches have been captured by the Italians in sharp fighting west of San Grado and Mount Pedinka, it was officially announced to-day. In these operations 1,450 prisoners were taken.

East of Goritz heavy fighting is going on before the Austrian entrenchments. In three encounters 225 prisoners were taken.

The Austrians made unsuccessful demonstrations for the purpose of diverting the Italian troops in the region of Mount Pinta, Forame, Colombra, Monte Cimone, Zluggio and Pasubio.

Italian Battleship Sunk Following Several Explosions

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The Italian battleship Leonardo Da Vinci, 22,340 tons, caught fire, and after several explosions, turned over and sank in the harbour at Taranto, according to a Turin despatch to the Petit Journal to-day. About three hundred of her crew were drowned. Naval experts believe she can be refloated. The Leonardo Da Vinci was constructed late in 1913. Her principal armament consisted of thirteen 12-inch guns. She carried a crew of about 1,000 men.

Retreat Continues Under Heavy Russian Pressure

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15.—The new Austro-German line along the Zelota-Lipa River, to which General Bothmer retreated from the river Stripa, is already going under heavy Russian pressure. Russian forces have crossed the Zlota Lipa at several points in the north and are attacking Bothmer's army. The Austro-Germans are making desperate efforts to throw the Czar's troops back to the east bank. The Russians are now drawing in upon Lemberg on a curving one hundred and fifty mile front. At the nearest point south-west of Brody they are about 45 miles from the Galician capital.

The capture of Czborof, officially announced last night, places another detachment within fifty miles of Lemberg.

RUSSIAN ADVANCE CONTINUES.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15. — The Russians have pierced the new Austro-German line on the Zlota Lipa River at a new point, having crossed to the west bank of the river in a twelve-mile advance from the upper Stripa, it was officially announced to-day. Other Russian forces have crossed to the western bank of the Zlota district, south-west of Stanislau.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—British troops again gained a foothold in the German first line trenches between Trieprval and Pozieres last night, the German War Office admitted this afternoon.

PETERBORO GIRL OBTAINS SEPARATION FROM HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Mabel Bingham Who Was Formerly Miss Mabel Campbell of this City Settles With Hamilton Doctor for $1,300 and Agrees to Separation from her Husband.

MALPRACTICE ALLEGED

WINDSOR, Aug. 15.—By an agreement reached here between Dr. Geo. S. Bingham, a prominent Hamilton physician, and Mrs. Mabel Bingham, aged 28, his daughter-in-law, the latter receives the sum of $1,300 from Dr. Bingham because of injuries alleged to have been received through malpractice. Before her marriage to Sheldon B. Bingham, a son of the Hamilton physician, the young woman was Miss Mabel Campbell, of Peterborough. While employed in a Hamilton store, she met young Bingham, then a student in Toronto University. They were married at Guelph, September 24, 1915, but the wedding was kept secret until the young bridegroom should have finished his University course. Mrs. Bingham declared to her counsel, Frederick C. Kerby, of this city, that Dr. Bingham and his wife declined to recognize her because she was without social standing, although she was permitted to live at the Bingham home in Hamilton.

Early in the present year, Sheldon Bingham took his young wife to Detroit, where he had obtained a position in the office of a civil engineer. Two months ago Bingham left his wife, and, friendless and penniless, she returned to this city and sought legal assistance.

The writ for alleged malpractice was served on Dr. Bingham at Hamilton, June 22 last, but by the terms of settlement announced here, Barrister Kerby, acting for Mrs. Bingham, the complainant accepts the sum of $1,300 and agrees to a separation from her husband, at the same time releasing Dr. Bingham from any further obligation.

Mrs. Bingham, Jr., returned to Hamilton, where she has friends who will nurse her back to health.

Canadians Have Been Transferred

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 15.—It is officially announced by the Militia Department to-day that four Canadian divisions now fighting in France have been transferred from the deadly Ypres salient which they have held through thick and thin for over a year, to the Somme front, where they are engaged in the present advance with the British and Australian troops. Lt.-General Bying is in command of the Canadian troops, with Major Generals Turner, Currie, Lipsett and Watson in command of divisions.

Italy's Boy Scouts Called to Service

MINSTER OF WAR ORDERS THEM OUT UNTIL OPEN- OF THE SCHOOLS.

Rome, August 15.—The boy scouts of Italy are to have their share in the war. The Minister of War has called out all the boys belonging to the organization for service until the opening of the schools in October.

The scouts are to be divided into two classes. The class over fifteen years of age, with the permission of their parents, will do duty in the war zone as guards at railway stations and depots. The class under fifteen years will be enrolled in the territorial hospitals, mobilization centres, munition factories, aeroplane stations and hangars.

ARE AFTER SAM HUGHES

Conservative Delegation Will Demand That the Name of General Sir Sam Hughes as Minister of Militia be Struck from the List of Cabinet Ministers.

EMBARRASSING QUESTION

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.— La Presse of Montreal publishes to-day the following story from Ottawa: "Sir Robert Borden has returned to Ottawa and an embarrassing delegation will wait upon him on Wednesday and Thursday. This delegation will be composed of representatives of Hamilton, Kingston, London and Toronto associations, and will include several Conservative members and representatives of Conservative associations. They will demand from the Prime Minister that the name of General Sir Sam Hughes as Minister of Militia be struck off the list of ministers of the Borden Cabinet. They will insist upon a definite reply from the Premier and will not accept a mere promise to take the question under serious consideration. In case Sir Robert does not satisfy the demands of the delegates these men will express to the Prime Minister their intention of undertaking at once through Conservative organizations of Ontario and the west a propaganda against the administrations which maintains Gen. Hughes as Minister of Militia.

REGATTA CROWD UNUSUAL BIG ONE THROUGH LAKEFIELD

Morning Train Was Packed Even Into the Baggage Room After the Coaches Were Filled—And There Were More Waiting at Auburn Station.

A GOOD NATURED CROWD

The holiday traffic to Stoney Lake on Monday was so heavy that the crowd overflowed all over the baggage car, and some of them would have made the trip on the pilot if they had thought of it. An extra coach or two would have relieved the situation considerably, but as there wasn't an extra around until about noon it wasn't much use to the train that went out earlier in the morning, except to point out what might have been if some one's foresight had got under way a little earlier.

However it was something of a novelty to ride in a baggage car and being a holiday crowd it was entirely good natured. Not only was the train packed to the scuppers at Peterboro, but there were 30 or 40 more at Auburn. Regatta day is always a big day with Peterboro people and it was felt that spare cars should be held here for an emergency crowd.

CORP. GIFFORD OF THE OLD 2ND BATT. IS WOUNDED AGAIN

Writing to Mr. F. Smith, No. 48 Lafayette avenue, Corp. V. Gifford of the 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., states that he has been wounded again. The letter is as follows:

7632 Corp. V. Gifford, No. 1 Co.
2nd Batt. Canadians,
Ward 15, Bed ex A1
1st Eastern General Hospital,
Cambridge.

Dear Friend and Brother— Just a line to let you know where and how I am. You will see that I am in the docks again for repairs. I was wounded a week ago and sent to England, but trust I shall soon be able to get about again. It's a bullet wound in the left foot. I had an operation on it a few days ago, and they cut about quite a bit for it as it was showing signs of being poisoned, but it looks better now. I wrote to Bro. Frick the other day telling him how Bob met his end. Well, I trust this will find you and your family in the best of health. Remember me to the Lodge and Bro. Williams.

Kindest regards to all.

Yours sincerely,
V. GIFFORD.

DEMAND A CLEAR BILL OF HEALTH

Special Cable to The Examiner:

Ottawa, August 15th.—The Dominion immigration authorities have ordered that all children under 16 coming from New York State to Canada, til further notice, must produce a certificate from a family physician stating that for 24 hours before departure they were in good health and not in contact with infantile paralysis.

DESERTERS SENTENCED

Three Soldiers are Committed to Prison With Hard Labour--Eleven Hundred Soldiers Absent From Camp Borden—Reasonable Explanation Will be Accepted.

A WARNING

Camp Borden, August 15.—The sentencing of three soldiers at Barrie to terms of imprisonment with hard labor for being absent without leave, brings to the forefront the fact that 1100 soldiers are absent without leave from Camp Borden. It is stated on authority to-day that the situation is as follows: Many men it is thought have over stayed their pass and hesitated to come back. Every consideration will be given to men who return and give a reasonale explanation tion.

On the other hand, an investigation is being made into all absentees, and deserters are to be rigorously dealt with.

LINDSAY AUTOIST CONTRIBUTES $50

Before Mr. Henry Rush, J. P., at this morning's Police Court, a Lindsay man pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a car whilst in a drunken condition. The prisoner had been driving around the city on the holiday and had met a friend with a bottle. Result—Both become somewhat intoxicated, and steered their gasoline craft straight into the arms of the local police. The sequel of it all was that a fifty dollar contribution was made to the local judicial coffers by the Lindsayite this morning.

FIRE CALLS QUITE PLENTIFUL

The fire department has been on the "qui vive" since yesterday, and have had several runs in the absence of Fire Chief Howard. Yesterday they had a run down to the Queen City Oil House on Perry Street, but no damage of any importance is recorded.

This morning a call was sent from McDonald's Mill, a blaze having originated along the Rink Street yards and threatened to spread further. The speedy application of some "aqua" set the spectators at rest, however.

Late this afternoon a blaze was reported from Hilliard Street, but it could not be ascertained whether it was of any extent or not.

Boy Witness in Abduction Case Revealed Fact That An Incident Related in Preliminery Hearing Was a Fabrication.

MR. GORDON TAKES GIRL

It was a crestfallen James Sampson that tiptoed from the County Court this morning when the evidence clearly indicated that Willis Bigman who appeared before Judge Huycke on a charge of abducting Lillian Martin from Sampson's home in Dummer on Sunday July 9th would be discharged. He didn't even wait for certain fees which were due him, and when the Court was over County Constable Moore searched the Court House corridors, and finally went outside looking for him, but Sampson had disappeared.

He apparently made up his mind to depart when Lillian Martin's brother Roy, whom Sampson had also adopted, presented none of the story he had told so smoothly in the preliminary hearing before Magistrate Langley last week. The little chap, about eleven years old, broke down on the witnes stand when he was urged to tell nothing but the truth on this occasion, no matter what he had previously stated about an offer of money that Bigham was alleged to have made to accompany him to Campbellford on that July Sunday. Roy repeated that Bigham had given him a cent for Sunday school, but that was the only gift of money that Bigham had made him. The inference of the incident was clearly obvious, and the boy was not questioned about the source of the fabrication he had presented in the county police court.

Bigham Discharged

County Crown Attorney Hatton stated that the evidence the boy had given in the former hearing supplied a little weight to the case which was largely built upon suspicion. Mr. Gordon appearing for the defence offered no evidence. He argued very briefly that there was nothing to support the charge of abduction. There was apparently next to nothing for Mr. Hatton to say and that's all he said. Judge Huycke discharged Bigham remarking that the charge was entirely unsupported.

In the witness box, Roy Martin had sobbed that he was afraid to go back to Sampson's, but Mr. Gordon assured him he wouldn't go back.

Review of Case.

The circumstances of the alleged abduction have been already reported. Bigham and the Martin family are residents of Campbellford. About a year ago Sampson adopted the Martin children. Lillian ran away last December, but returned in June of this year. Bingham had sold a horse to Sampson quite a while ago and had left his buggy there. About the first of July he told Sampson he was coming after it as he had bought a new horse. Accordingly, on July 8th he arrived at Sampson's with a horse and buggy, and on Sunday afternoon, July 9th set out to return to Campbellford with the horse drawing the two buggies.

Along the road about a mile he met the Martin girl, asked her if she would have a ride, and later the girl told him she was going to Campbellford. In court she stated that Mrs. Sampson had so nagged her that she ran out the back door and across the fields when she saw Mrs. Sampson engaged in talking to Bingham, was preparing to depart. Lillian is only fourteen or fifteen years old, and apparently she had her hands full of Sampson's. She stated that Bingham had not suggested that she run away, nor mentioned the subject in any way. She had left with the idea of walking all the way. Bingham took her home where she remained until the recent proceedings were put under way.

Children Will be Cared For.

Thus, the Martin children have become wards of the Children's Aid Society, and they have fallen into good hands. The little girl evidently appealed to Judge Huycke's sympathies for he offered to take her into his home and to see that she was properly educated and cared for, but Mr. G. N. Gordon had already spoken for her. If Willie Bigham had driven past the girl on the road to Campbellford that warm July afternoon the boy would still be with Sampson's and the girl might have been taken back.

EXTRAVAGANCE AND HIGH TAXATION.

A taxation conference is to be held at Niagara Falls on Aug. 19th, to consider the question of taxation and how to meet it. It is evident that the war has enormously increased taxation. The question as to how to meet this burden is a really live one and touches the tenderest part of human concerns, the pocket. The tax reformers may devise various means more or less efficient, but the best way to avoid increased taxation—a solution in advance of the best way to meet it—is for both the people and the government to spend less money foolishly. The people by regulating their expenditures, avoiding foolish expenditure, foregoing luxuries, for the most part not only unnecessary but injurious; Governments by avoiding wasteful expenditure, can obviate to a proportional extent the imposition of taxes the people have to pay. For instance, we in Peterborough and all over the province are paying direct taxation— through our own tax collector. The government spent a million dollars on a wickedly elaborate and expensive residence for the lieut-governor. In this democratic age and country one would think and one is certain, that a residence fit to house a king could have been built for a quarter of a million — $250,000. That would have left three-quarters of a million—$750,000—to be devoted to purposes for which we have to pay direct taxes to-day. For instance again: The parliament buildings at Ottawa were burned, entailing an immense loss. With the necessity of reconstruction facing the government; with an immense expenditure upon the war one would have thought that a government that thought for a moment, would avoid all unnecessary waste and expense. Yet in face of the fact that competent architects reported that the standing walls, valued a two million dollars, were perfectly sound and could be incorporated into the new building at a saving, of course, of two million dollars; down come the walls. Plans for the interior were prepared with reference to using the two million dollar walls. The work of reconstruction was intrusted to a joint committee of both parties to act with the government. But without the knowledge of the joint committee, the Public Works Department, presided over by Hon Robert Rogers, formerly of Manitoba—where he perhaps learned how to waste money on parliament buildings—ordered the destruction of those walls. Elaborate and expensive scaffolding, costing thousands and thousands of dollars, was erected to facilitate the work of destruction. The expense will be all the greater since the contractor, under a foolish and improvident bargain, gets a percentage on all the money spent— whether in construction or destruction.

This wilful waste of two millions of dollars—nearly a quarter of the total assessed value of the city of Peterborough, would be bad enough in times of peace, but words cannot be found to describe the action at a time when Canada is straining every nerve to do her duty in this war, when the people are economizing and making sacrifices to meet their duty; when the people are taxed to the hilt, both municipally and provincially, to help in the war, it would be thought that governments who had half a sense of their responsibility, would refrain from not only extravagant, but from wickedly wasteful, expenditures.

OIL ON STREETS.

A New Brunswick paper contains a letter from a Petersorough citizen bearing testimony to our satisfactory experience with oil of the proper quality applied to our street surfaces.

One of its best qualities is its almost complete suppression of the dust nuisance. The benefit of this does not consist alone in the lessening of discomfort, but it removes a menace to health.

The dust of our streets is probably in many places infested with disease-bearing microbes. This, rising in the air, and borne to our mouths in the streets and in our homes when high winds prevail, cannot have a beneficial effect, apart from the discomfort and untidiness and uncleanliness of our homes.

Now, with oil on the streets, we have practically no dust, and a lady wearing delicate summer fabrics can safely take a seat in a verandah chair without the preliminary employment of a vacuum cleaner, and we are not every hour introducing into our lungs and mixing with our blood the microbic ingredients of street dust.

Great as these benefits are they are from the traffic point of view, less important than the preservative function oil exercises on street surfaces.

It not only lays the dust but prevents its formation. With street surfaces adequately prepared, street oil is another form of asphalt pavement, and in many places where this condition obtains, even ordinary gravel roads have a perceptible asphaltic skin which sheds water and prevents the deteriorating action of moisture from rain. And the effect of the oil is fairly permanent; under the bleaching effect of winter snows, and autumn and spring rains, oiled streets show the presence of oil after all these attacks upon it.

In fact it is one of the greatest assistants to good street surfaces, and the point to be observed and taken to heart is the fact that its effects are the best on the best prepared streets. This is an incentive to the street authorities to concentrate attention upon this matter.

It is a well known fact that after good building in the beginning, maintenance of good conditions is a most important as it is a very simple matter. It is impossile in practical work to build a road surface of uniform quality, material. There are bound be some few spots softer than the rest of the street surface. Here depressions develope and traffic creates holes and unevenness, an impossible condition of comfortable use of the streets for driving or motoring.

The obvious thing to do is to have a continuous supervision of the streets and have these depressions filled properly—not with a barrowful of stones but with well screened gravel. With the foundation provided by previous applications of gravel this will serve the purpose and under traffic the treated spot will soon become uniform with the rest of the street surface.

These small depressions neglected will become large and deep holes. Or some streets there are holes thus created almost as big as a shell crater, which a shovelfull of gravel would have prevented if applied early enough.

What the city has not, is a system of looking after these defects in the beginning. A man with a dump cart and a cheap horse can do splendid work in keeping street surfaces smooth. It would cost a little money of course, but it would be cheaper than neglect, and would provide a perpetual smooth street surface, and give the conditions that solely justify our big expenditure on our streets—comfortable use for driving purposes.

But with these timely and trifling little repairs neglected we have streets rutted to the point of uselessness; then we have to rip up the whole surface and begin over again, whereas attention to little defects and timely treatment would have kept the street in good condition at far less cost than radical repairs—practically re-building—would cost.

A verandah floor kept well painted—a little done every year or so—will last for many years, but neglected it has to be replaced with a new one two or three times during the lifetime of a well cared for floor; the same principle applies to our streets. Make them good, and keep them good is the only proper and economical way.

Seven Ton Safe Moved Down Street

Quite a feat, in which horse power played an important part, was executed on Saturday evening, and was witnessed by a large crowd of loungers on Chambers Street, when the ponderous white marble safe of the Bank of Ottawa was moved from its premises near the corner of Hunter and removed to its new home farther down the street.

The safe weighs some seven tons, and it was a heavy task bringing it by tackle and pulley to the street and loading it upon a wagon fitted up for the occasion.

Keep a Just Proportion Between The Needs of Peace and the Needs of War

Using the argument that the Empire needs fighting men more than it needs crops, Colonel Andrew T. Thompson continues in the Canadian Military Gazette his protest against the harvest furlough granted to men in rural corps. He says that it has furnished a most unpleasant surprise to commanding officers.

They have found that in hundreds of cases profit and not patriotism has been the ruling motive, and that rich farmers have taken advantage of the regulation to save a field of hay at the expense of a soldier's training, and at a time when the Empire's call for men is the most insistent of all. Far be it from us to make a sweeping condemnation. There are many cases of extreme necessity, where the furlough saves the day for some one who has given all he has in manhood to the cause. To assist such is a pleasure indeed, but to be forced to send good men, good as raw material, but still so very raw, to help some man who has a good farm paid for and money out on loan, when to do so in quantity is to break up a whole battalion for three weeks at least is, indeed a hardship. We know of rural corps who have lost more than six hundred men on harvest leave. One can imagine the disorganization resulting. We quite realize that the economics of the situation require the saving of Canada's crop as far as possible, but where the choice must be made between saving the Empire and saving hay, what is to be said.

The point about the Empire needing men more than crops would perhaps be better appreciated. If there were less delay in transporting overseas those who have already enlisted. Take the Seventy-seventh Ottawa regiment as a case in point. That regiment was kept hanging around Ottawa for months after it had completed all the training it could get in this neighborhood. Officers and men, tired of barrack life and anxious to do what they had enlisted for, appealed over and over again to be sent forward—to the finishing camps in England if not to the front.

What seems to us a still more flagrant case is that of the regiment of lumbermen now being organized. These men, as we understand it, are going to England to fell timber; they are already experienced at that work; if they are really lumbermen they should require practically no training at all, even in discipline, because the law of the shanty foreman is pretty exacting. Yet several hundred men are being kept in Ottawa kicking their heels and eating their heads off in a manner that must shock every timber operator in the district. The excuse may be offered that they are waiting here until the regiment is brought up to full strength. But why cannot they go by companies, and, if necessary be attached temporarily to the other regiments who are now felling timber in England?

We are inclined to think that Col. Thompson, with some abuses in mind, carries his argument to the extreme. The great need of the moment is not for men at the fighting front apparently; but for men in training to take the places of those who fall at the front, and it is doubtful if that need is so great as to prohibit Canadian farmers from utilizing for a few weeks the services of their former hired men to help garner their crops. Nor can we quite appreciate why the crops on the farm of a man who "has a good farm paid for and money out on loan" should be allowed to rot in the field.—Ottawa Free Press.

City Managers Commission or Board of Control?

Eighteen American municipalities have adopted the system of control by city managers with most satisfactory results. The first move made towards the adoption of a common sense practical system of civic government was at Galveston in 1901. In consequence of the great and destructive flood of 1914 the Texan State government appointed a commission to manage the city. This worked so well that it was made a permanent institution and now there are about 350 cities in the United States under the control of commissions.

From the commission to the City Manager the one man power in civic affairs was a natural and indeed inevitable evolution. The manager of Springfield, Ohio, has in one year improved and extended the service of the city; reduced its floating debt by $80,000; saved $51,000, or 17 per cent., in operating expenses; cut down the cost of street cleaning by $8,000, or 20 per cent., increased the water revenue by $10,000; reduced the local advertising cost from $10,570 to $548; and reduced the cost of lighting by $5,600.

Under the City Manager system the cities are run very much upon the same principle as a great industrial or transportation organization. It is death on wire pulling, political influence and graft. The willing officials know their lawful lord and brook no interference from anybody else. Of course the success of the management depends largely upon the capacity, energy and honesty of the manager; but no matter how incapable he may be he cannot bungle as much, waste as much or steal as much as the aggregation of popular representatives who normally control civic affairs.

Government by controllers has not been an unqualified success in Montreal. But why? Because the system we have adopted is only a timid, half hearted experiment. The Controllers are not apointed, as the Galveston commissioners were, by the Provincial government, but elected by the popular vote. The City Council, which they ought to have superseded, is a persistent check upon their energies. The system is a compromise, and its fruits are compromise, and nothing more. We are still a long way from the one man power, and it will probably take some overwhelming disaster, like the Galveston flood, to awaken us to a realizing sense of the rottenness of our system of civic administration. The City Manager, the one-man power, is very un-American, very democratic. But where we to try the one-man power in Montreal, the chances are that we would never go back to debating society rules. Granted that a great deal would depend upon the man chosen to manage our city—but he could not possibly be worse than our present system.—Montreal Herald.

Stoney Lake Service on Civic Holiday

Great praise was due yesterday to the Stoney Lake Navigation Company for its successful management in handling the unusually large numbers of excursionists to Stoney Lake and the regatta.

Their two steamers which left at 8 o'clock in the morning, The Empress and the Manita each pulled out with large crowds to go over the lift lock and canal route, and each landed their party safely at Juniper Island, and other points.

The two other steamers of the fleet the Stoney Lake and Islinda gathered in packed loads at Lakefield on the arrival of the morning, noon and evening trains, and these, too, were safely conveyed to their destinations, without accident or delay.

Local manager, Frank Young, was alert and active in seeing that every departure was started right, and took every precaution to provide for the comfort and safety of the excursionists in his power.

It is to be regretted that the Grand Trunk service on the morning train to Lakefield was so inefficient. Only one coach was provided for a crowd of over 200 excursionists which caused a good deal of dissatisfaction for when the train reached Auburn and Nassau another fifty was added. The single coach had only seating capacity for about seventy, so that the other 180 or 200 pasengers had to stand and be packed away in the baggage car and the mail cabouse.

BELL TELEPHONE HEADS IN CITY

Mr. L. B. McFarlane, of Montreal, president of the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, and Mr. K. J. Dunston, of Toronto, divisional manager for Ontario, were in the city to-day on a business trip. They were met by the local manager, Mr. G. O. Cameron, who provided for them a motor trip through the most interesting parts of the city, including the factories, most of the plants of which were once covered. Both gentlemen were much impressed by Peterborough's activity and the evident signs of progress and good civic administration.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE UNDER A GAS ATTACK

Lieutenant Eugene Czatmari, with the Austrian army at the front in Bessarabia, has written a graphic and interesting account of a recent gas attack against the Austrian lines, which is printed in the German newspapers and gives a good description of how it really feels to be immersed in this asphyxiating atmosphere.

"It is a clear starlight night and the sky is a dark velvety blue, now and then marred by the explosion of shells and the lightening flashes from the heavy guns. Since early morning the guns have been roaring and the shells bursting in this wrecked forest where we are entrenched. It is weird beyond description. Rifle bullets are constantly whistling by, and imbedding themselves in the splintered trunks of the trees.

"A rocket is seen speeding high in the air and exploding its multi-colored stars like a gust of rain. Then comes another, and this is followed by a third. The artillery fire increases and shell after shell explodes near us. We know now what it all means. I rush to the telephone, and give the warning 'Gas attack. Prepare.'

"The poisonous wave is coming. We all have donned our masks and await curiously the onslaught of this very strange and uncanny enemy. Wonder how it will feel—this gas? This will be our first experience and each man is anxious.

"My eyes begin to pain me as if a cinder had entered them and I loosen my mask to see what the trouble is. As I do so the pain increases and I quickly adjust the mask again in its place. I realize now that it is the working of the mysterious enemy. The gas is now over us; it overwhelms us. Its hot dragon breath penetrates even through our masks. What a terrible enemy! The guns still roar and the shells strike near to us, but we do not even hear them; we are now fighting a more subtle, mysterious foe.

"I feel an awful weight on my chest. The air I breathe is heavy and as hot as fire, and with every breath I swallow some of it. The mask is like lead upon my head, and the big eye glasses therein pain my eyes so that I can no longer see. I feel as if I had on a heavy diver's suit and was standing on the bottom of the ocean with the entire pressure of the ocean on top of me. I must have air! I loosen my mask, but a stinging pain follows all over my face and body and instinctively I replace the mask at once. With telephone in hand I attempt to give orders though I do not really know what I am saying or doing. Poison and death are in the atmosphere. I move to go to the telescope, and step on something soft—a mouse. The animal had no mask and could not live in the asphyxiating air.

"I cannot stand this much longer. My heart is now pumping like mad, my temples throb as if they would burst, and the blood pulses through my veins with lightning like rapidity. Off with the mask, even if I asphyxiate. I tear it from my head, and God be praised, I breathe again — air — real fresh air. A breeze has sprung from the south and has blown the gas wave away from us. It is all over, and we all sit there and breathe in the invigorating air like famished men gulp down their food."

Liner Safe in Port Fired On 3 U-Boats

THREE AMERICAN PASSENGERS OWE LIVES TO FORCED SPEED AND CANNONADE OF GUNNER UGO.

The Italian steamship Re d'Italia of the Lloyd Sabado Line, which arrived from Genoa, is the first merchant vessel to reach New York belonging to a beligerent nation that has fought off a submarine attack with her guns on the high seas.

Captain Amedeo Pinceti, who is only 34 years old, and who holds the rank of Commander in the Italian Navy, said the lives of the three American passengers on board and the 102 members of the crew were saved solely through the skill with which Andreini Ugo, a seaman gunner, directed the fire of two three-inch quick-firing guns, which are mounted to port and starboard of the Re d'Italia on her upper deck aft.

Fifteen shots were fired altogether at three submarines, which were in sight at 9:45 A.M., on Sunday, July 23, and Captain Pinceti and his officers believe the third shell that was fired struck and sank one of the undersea craft, because they saw a column of black smoke rise from the spot where her two periscopes had been located, and afterward only two submarines were visible.

Captain Pinceti said the two submarines pursued his vessel at a distance of a mile and a half astern until 4:30 in the afternoon, when they gave up the chase, apparently under the impression that the steamship was going to put into the harbor of Minorca, which was in sight on the starboard bow, and that they would get her as she came out.

CHASED LINER SEVEN HOURS.

During the seven hours that their periscopes were in sight from the afterbridge of the Re d'Italia the officers said the submarine never attempted to fire a gun or launch a torpedo, because they had no chance to come to the surface. The two guns which have an effective range of five miles, frightened their commanders. One submarine emerged at 4:30 when she was about a mile away as if about to open fire her guns, but her commander evidently thought better of it and disappeared again.

The speed of the Re d'Italia when she sighted the submarine was eleven knots. Spurred on my four stokers who had been on a torpedoed steamship off the African coast six months ago, the firemen succeeded in getting another knot out of the liner and kept the speed at twelve knots until it was dark. Several times the submarine tried to get to the port and starboard quarters of the steamship in order to launch torpedoes, but they did not succeed, as Captain Pinceti swung each time and their speed could not exceed the liner's because they were practically submerged.

The three Americans in the cabin were L. T. Koster, a vetinary surgeon; Paul Edwards of Jersey City, a horseman, and James Higgins of 903 Hill street, Cincinnati as assistant foreman horseman, who had all gone over on the Re d'Italia from New York to Genoa in charge of a cargo of cavalry remounts consigned to the Italian Government. Higgins said that the excitement was intense all the time the submarines were in sight because the crew knew that the Re d'Italia was hardly fast enough to get away from them.

FRIED TO MANOEUVRE FOR ATTACK.

"I was standing on the starboard side of the upper deck aft about 9 o'clock on Sunday morning when we were 200 miles out from Genoa," Higgins said, "and expected to sight the Balearic Isles before night. Suddenly the officer who was on the lookout for submaries on the after bridge called out to a quartermaster to tell the Captain he could see two submarines about a mile and a half away. I looked through a glass and saw two periscopes, sticks they looked like to me, standing out above the smooth surface of the water astern of us. One was a little on the starboard quarter and the other right in line with the rudder post. Each vessel had a little whitecap wave in front of her, which the first officer told me was the wash caused by their stems cutting the water. At 9:15 the submarines were on each quarter as if trying to get a chance to slap a shell or a torpedo at our craft.

"By this time the excitement on our ship was great and we were nearly as frightened as the Italian crew. I got my life belt and so did Mr. Koster and Mr. Edwards. A number of the crew did the same. The boats were all swung out at the davits from the time we sailed from Genoa on Saturday and were not swung in until after we left Gibraltar and all danger was past.

"At 9:30 o'clock," Higgins continued, "another submarine appeared, so we had two on the starboard and one on the port quarter, following us a fast as they could.

"The two guns were uncovered and the ammunition was ready for firing. Ugo, formerly a seaman gunner in the Italian Navy, was to do the firing, and the loading was done by his two assistants, Diginario and Volka. By this time Captain Dinceti had turned over the command on the bridge to the Chief Officer and had taken up his position on the after bridge to direct the firing. At 9:45 o'clock the three submarines were all together on the starboard quarter, about 2,400 meters away, when Gunner Ugo was ordered to open fire with the starboard gun. The first shot hit the surface near the submarines and sent a thin column of water into the air, and the second shot, from the port gun, did the same.

THIRD SHOT HIT THE MARK.

"The third shot, which was fired from the starboard gnn, struck the exact spot where we had just before seen the periscope of a submarine, and a column of black smoke and water went up into the air. A few seconds later we saw what looked like a patch of oil on the water, and two submarines right astern.

"We never saw the third submarine again and all on board believed that she was sunk. The rest of the shots up to fifteen, fell in the water near the submarines and sent up small columns of water like the first two did. We could see the lighthouse on the island of Minorca when the two submarines gave up the chase.

Captain Pinceti, who was inclined to be taciturn on the chase, said he saw only two submarines from the after bridge ,but his officers who had looked through their glasses were positive there were three.

"It was exciting for my crew, because they were mostly civilians who were not used to war, said he. "I do not know whether the Germans and Austrians have a base in the Balearis Isles for their submarines, but many ships have been attacked between the French coast and these islands, which has given rise to the suspicion. Eac hsubmarine had two periscopes, and I am sure would have caught the Re d'Italia if they could have come to the surface and made their customary eighteen knots.

"If the Re d'Italia had not been armed she would not have reached New York or any other port again.

"I think I hit one submarine with the third shot from the starboard gun," Ugo said in broken English. "because he go down and I see him no more. I made the range on the gun 2,400 meters, about one and a half miles.

Te Re d'Italia is a vessel of 6,237 tons, and prior to the war was in the New York and Italian ports. For the last year she had been engaged in carrying horses and war munitions. brought 1,000 tons of general cargo from Genoa and came direct.

CHOLERA INFANTUM
Cured By Using
DR. FOWLER'S
Extract of Wild Strawberry

Cholera infantum is one of the most common, and at the same time one of the most dangerous summer complaints of infants, and many children have died who could have been saved had the proper remedy been used on the first sign of the trouble.

Cholera Infantum begins with a profuse diarrhoea; the stomach becomes irritated, vomiting and purging set in and the child rapidly loses flesh, and becomes weak, prostrated and languid.

Mrs. B. A. Cirwell, Rossway, N.S., writes: "I can recommend most highly Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. A friend of mine whose little daughter was ill with cholera infantum was given up by the doctors. The little one's mother asked me to come in and see the child. I told her I had a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' and asked her if she would try it. When the bottle was half used the child was well. This cure was a miraculous one for I thought the child was dying at the time."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past seventy years. Any one who has ever used it will not accept a substitute. See that you don't. When you ask for "Dr. Fowler's" be sure that you get it.

VESSEL 174 DAYS ON A VOYAGE

The American four-masted schooner Frederick A. Duggan arrived in port in town of the United States Coast Guard cutter Gresham, having been 174 days on a voyage, which commenced at Fowey Cornwall on February 15, when she left for Philadelphia with 1,600 tons of china clay. When the schooner was sighted on Saturday afternoon off Nantucket by the United States gunboat Marietta she had been leaking badly for several days, and the crew had been existing for a month on a slim diet of three biscuits a day and water. If the fresh water had not held out the crew would probably have all died, as the vessel had drifted out of the track of ships, and did not get any rain that would have helped them out.

After the vessel was anchored off Stapleton Captain Gilmour went ashore to purchase some provisions, and the mate told the story of what he called the "hoodoo" voyage of the Frederick A. Duggan.

About a month ago the provisions were all eaten, and the men had to live on hard tack and water, on which they managed to keep alive, but always felt hungry, the mate said.

On Saturday afternoon, off Nantucket Shoals, the United States gunboat Marietta was sighted, and the crew gave a wild cheer when they saw their signal of distress was answered. By that time they were out of tobacco, as well as food, and were reduced to smoking rope-yarns. The commander of the gunboat sent some provisions on board, and sent a wireless message for assistance. He stood by until Sunday, when the United States Coast Guard Gresham arrived and took the vessel in tow.

Andrew J. Bailey, of 59 Pearl St., the agent for the Frederick A. Duggan, said the owner, Captain S. J. Thompson, will be here to consult with the captain about having the vessel towed to Philadelphia.

EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY
MONEY SAVING EVENT
Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

The list of merchants will be published in later issues, and it will be well to get the participating stores fixed in your mind to save delay when the great day comes. In addition to the splendid values offered the merchants are giving away

$150.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $20.00; the second $15.00; the third $10.00, and so on.

As a guide in estimasting the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

NEW OPERATIONS IN BALKANS POINT TO ALLIED OFFENSIVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The correspondent of The Tribune cabling from London last night says:

Fresh indications that the long awaited Balkan offensive of the Allies is about to begin comes in the news to-day from Vienna that the Italians also have started active operations there. No mention is made of this in the official statements from any Allied source, but the Vienna communique says that there was skirmishing along the Lower Vousa in Albania."

Military experts here attached the greatest importance to this news. The Voyusa, or Viosa, empties into the Adriatic a little north of Valona, where the Italians had an army of around 100,000 men at last accounts. This is, of course, the extreme left of the Allied line across Northern Greece and Southern Albania.

Activity is Extended.

All previous activity along this line has been at the eastern end, near Salonika, where unofficial reports on Aug. 11 said that the Allied forces had gained important positions near Lake Doiran. The important fact in to-day's news is the extension of activity all along the line.

While there is nothing to indicate that a general offensive has been begun, it is apparent that the entire Allied force in the Balkans is feeling out the enemy's positions. It is possible that the operaitons so far reported are similar to the raids which were made by the British along the line in France, to find how greatly the enemy has been weakened by the withdrawal of men to other fronts.

Kicked by Horse Henry Coben of Galway is Dead

Lindsay, August 14.—The death of Henry Coben, treasurer of the township of Galway, and one of the best known residents of the north country, took place at the Ross Memorial Hospital at 11 o'clock on Friday night.

The deceased gentleman was engaged in hitching a team of horses to a binder last Wednesday afternoon, when one of the animals kicked him in the abdomen. After receiving the best medical attention available at his home his injuries were of such a serious character that he was removed to the Ross Hospital on Friday, where he passed away.

The late Mr. Coben, who was in his 63rd year, was born in Galway, and was a son of the late Christopher Coben, and cousin of Reeve C. Coben of Galway. Two months ago he was united in marriage to Katherine Garvin, of Toronto, who was one sister, Mrs. Thomas Petrie of Otonabee township, Peterboro county, is left to mourn his loss.

The deceased was the efficent treasurer of Galway township since 1891, was a Presbyterian in religion, an elder of the Kinmount church, and in politics a Liberal. He was a man of sterling character and was respected and esteemed by the people of the north country for his probity and worth. As a farmer he was one of the most successful in the district, and his death will be deplored on all sides.

Indians Continue Work For Allies

Strenuous Efforts to Assist Toward Final Victory Keep Up —Country is Tranquil

London, August 14.—An official despatch from Simla, India, says:

"Interest in the war grows keener with each success of the allies and strenuous efforts to assist toward final victory continue unabated. The internal condition of the country, save in portions of Bengal, where the Dacoities periodically break out, are highly satisfactory, and the situation is much the same as noted in a previous despatch.

The people of Bengal showed their desire to help in the war by organizing a satisfactory field hospital for service in Mesopotamia. This hospital, with the exception of the officer comanding, was staffed entirely by Bengali medical graduates and the personnel was entirely Bengali. After doing excelelnt work this hospital has now been withdrawn but scope for the national and patriotic aspirations of the Bengalis has been afforded by the raising of a double company of this class. It will be trained on the frontier and when fit for service will be sent to the front for active service. The result of this experiment will be watched with interest. Besides the Bengalis three double companies of Indian Christians recruited from the Punjab have recently been raised.

BALKAN FIGHT SPREADS OVER A 65 MILE FRONT

Intense Bombardment is Opened on Enemy Lines From Monastir in Serbia to the Vardar River—Several Villages Are Captured at the Base of Dorian Hill

NEW YORK, Aug 15.—The offensive of the entente allies in the Balkans began three days ago against the Bulgarians' positions at Lake Doiran in Greek Macedonia, was extended today along the whole Bulgarian-German front, from Monastir, in Serbia, to the Vardar river. This is a distance of sixty-five miles.

Semi-official reports emanating from entente headquarters here state that the allied forces had opened fire with the new heavy artillery on the enemy positions and fortified works. The bombardment is intense. At some points the opposing lines are close enough for exchanging rifle and machine gun fire, which is being carried on.

In the region of Lake Doiran the offensive has been prosecuted with vigor, several villages being captured. The violent bombardment of the enemy's positions along Lake Doiran continues to-day.

Austria Near Collapse, Yet Needed by Germany

Austria has been a handicap, rather than a help to Germany throughout the war, culminating in her present disasters. French critics recall that it has been Austria's fate to be always defeated in war. First came the Turks, who camped before the walls of Vienna, which was saved only by Sobieski. A hundred years later after the partition of Poland, Austria "astonished the world by her ingratitude" and was soundly beaten for it by the Prussians and then by the French. Russia saved her from the Hungarians as Poland had done from the Turks. She was beaten again by the French in Lombardy and by the Prussians in Bohemia.

So far from being "Felix Austria" she has been rather "infelix" and the old saying, that Austria, instead of maintaining herself by arms, preferred weddings—indicating her desire to protect herself by forming alliances between the imperial house and other royal families of Europe—is no longer applicable in the present war. She was first defeated by the Russians, then by the Serbians. Now she is invaded by the Italians on the west and the Russians on the east.

An Austrian, meeting a distinguished acquaintance, bows and says, "I have the honor" the words "to salute you" being understood. It is related that the first time General Boehm-Ermolli met Field Marshal von Mackensen after the recapture of Lemberg he approached him, smiling and said: "I have the honor."

"And I the trouble," replied the German commander.

A MIXTURE OF RACES.

Napoleon said of the Prussians, "That is a bad nation". He could not say it of the Austrians, for there is no such thing as the Austrian nation. From Bohemia to the Balkans and from the Adriatic to the Dniester there is only a collection of peoples who hate each other; some noble, generous and chivalrous, others exploiters and oppressors. Half the dual empire, according to Mr. Joseph Reinach, earnestly hopes for the defeat of the other half. The population is racially divided thus:—Six million Czechs, 700,000 Serbo-Croatian,s 4,000,000 Poles, 3,000,000 Ruthenians, 230,000 Roumanians, 1,000,000 Clovenes, and 730,000 Italians on one side, against 9,000,000 Germans and Magyars—15,000,000 against nine or ten million.

The German-Hungarian minority has been able to maintain its supremacy in the government only because of the backing of Germany. This was the masterpiece of Bismarck's policy. He hated Austria for having humiliated Prussia in the treaty of Olmiitz, which he nevertheless advocated as the only way out of a bad bargain. With the art of a Mephistopheles, he had the ingenuity to associate Austria in his campaign against Denmark and then, to keep the conquered provinces for Germany alone, made war on Austria. The battle of Sadowa confirmed Prussia's supremacy.

Fate still pursued Austria, Rudolph the heir to the throne, who hated Bismark and Germany was the victim of a mysterious tragedy. Austria became the ally of Germany—her vassal, in fact. Bismark then set up Austria to oppose Russia and the nations protecting the Levant—France and England. Austria felt strong with Germany's support. But Germany lacked an outlet to the east ond did not feel strong enough to attack Russia and Western Europe at the same time in order to obtain it. Hence the German-Hungarian alliance in Austria, and the covert war on Czechs, Serbs and Crootes, Germany all the while increasing her power over the Hapsburg government.

Bismarck's successors inherited his Austrian policy, but lacked his finesse and had a mania for the "kolossal' This led to the present war, which Austria did not wish, but which she was forced to provoke. It was necessary for Germany to be able to say that the war was one in defence of Austria-Hungary. The dual empire is absolutely necessary to Germany, in the view of European diplomatists.

The destruction of Austria would be a fatal blow to Germany. Prussia would be reduced to the old limits of Bradenburg. As the eighty million Germans in the Germanic States of Europe cannot be suppressed nor their memory of events blotted out, many diplomatists believe that everything will have been done in vain unless there is set up a State of South west Europe, free from the forests of Bohemio to the Danube and the Carpathians, and constituted on the basis of natural right.

They compare the present situation to that which ended in the Thirty Years' War. Cardinal Richelieu, though a Prince of the Catholic Church established the independence of Protestant Holland and Switzerland, the Lutheran States beyond the Rhine and the little principalities and republics of Italy against the wishes of the Catholic House of Austria. So to-day, it is argued, the Allies should free the Czehs, the Poles, the Slavs, the Italians and Roumanians from the Hapsburg monarchy.

A SICKLY WIFE NO FIT MATE FOR ANY MAN

GIRLS AND WOMEN SHOULD LOOK WELL TO THEIR HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

Never before was physical health and vigor so highly esteemed and so eagerly sought for as to-day.

No man finds happiness in a sickly wife and the woman who wishes to enjoy the pleasures of life should spare no effort to maintain perfect health.

Is your daughter growing up strong and ruddy? Has she strength to drink in greedily all the pleasures that youth so zealously seeks—or is she compelled to use street cars instead of enjoying the delightful exercise of walking—does she after the ball arise refreshed and vigorous or is she exhausted, indifferent and perhaps, irritable

When strength and vigor can be so easily maintained by Ferrozone, when the glow of health is so quickly brought to the cheeks and elasticity to the step, it is plainly a mother's duty to see that Ferrozone is on hand to assist her daughter back to health.

Stop and think what this means for your daughter—certainly a great deal, and it can be accomplished by Ferrozone.

Every growing girl and young woman derives enormous benefit in many ways from this nutritive, vitalising tonic.

It is especially suited for young women and is a guarantee of health and regularity as long as it is used.

Ferrozone is free from alcohol and perfectly safe to use. Prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet, and sold in 50c boxes or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

RUSS TAKE HALF MILLION SINCE FIRST OF JUNE

LONDON, Aug. 14. — The Daily Chronicle says: "A study of the most recent Petrograd communique will make it clear that all or nearly all of the 56,000 prisoners officially announced as taken by Gen. Scherbatchoff between Aug. 4 and the present date have been captured since the beginnig of Gen. Von Bothmer's withdrawal on Saturday.

Gen. Von Bothmer's army probably numbered between 120,000 and 150,000 men, largely Germans. The prisoners taken up to date reached almost half of this force.

To the 56,000 men of this army already accounted for, captives yet uncounted, and stragglers who will be caught as the operations develop have still to be added, as well as losses in killed and injured, which must be very considerable. The prisoners taken by the Russians since the first week in June must now exceed half a million.

"Scherbatchoff's troops are coming into alignment with the armies of Gens. Sakharoff and Letchinsky preparatory to the inevitable and quickly developing swoop upon Lemberg, and there will be but a few survivors of the smashed Austro-German centre available for the defence of the Galician capital."

RUSSIANS ARE NOW CLOSE TO LEMBERG

PETROGRAD, ug. 14. —The last formidable Austro-German barrier to Lemberg has been broken and the Teutonic forces are making a general retreat on a 90-mile front in the direction of the Galician capital.

Compelled to retire from the strong Stripa river positions by the threat that his armies would be surrounded and captured, Peneral Bothmer is falling steadily back on the Zlota Lipa, 18 miles to the west. But Russian forces already have crossed the Zlota Lipa north of Stanislau, and the danger of a blow at his right flank will prevent Bothmer from making a stand there.

On the whole line the Russian mowing machine is reaping a bloody harvest. On the front east and south-east of Lemberg alone, it is estimated that the Austro-Germans have lost 75,000 men, or half their effectiveness. This fact, it is believed, necessitates the continued retreat before the Russians.

The Russians are systematically sending forward their infantry to pound the enemy front, while Cossack cavalry attacks demoralizes the wings. One regiment of Orenburgers alone took 2,000 Austro German prisoners.

THIEVES MAKE $6 A YEAR

Statistics of Kansas Criminals Show Futility of Stealing.

The thieves of Kansas, a fine body of men, have decided that a life of crime in the Sunflower State will never ruin the criminal waist line says the Topeka Despatch. By actual statistics they have learned that it is practically impossible for a burglar, embezzler, a robber (highway or bank), a thief (sneak or brazen or a pickpocket on land or sea to make a decent living out of the Kansas Commonwealth. Six dollars a year is shown to be the height of soft pickings in this terrible climate.

John Durand, a prisoner in the Kansas penitentiary, has estimated the entire matter in black and white and has seven years left to experiment with the sliding scale. After talking with all of the 500 prisoners copped for careless conduct with strangers' money Durand retired to a small room equipped with bars to prevent interruption and developed the fact that the big six before mentioned is what the hard-working criminal gets free and clear before they place him in the conservatory.

The Durand flock of figures shows that the average haul is $39 and that an average of $21 of this is recovered by the owners before the chase is completed. The $18 remaining is all that pays the arrested man for the three-and-a-half years' term that ordinarily awaits him. Counting good behaviour allowance on time, his average income is then $6 a year.

PETERBORO BOY DESCRIBES THE TRIP OF 93rd BATTALION

All Mail Matter Was Censored Until the Battalion Arrived Safely in England—Weather Was Fine During The Trip on the Rolling Billows

Empress of Britain,
Mid-Ocean, Thursday, July 20.

Mr. and Mrs. George Franks,, Peterborough, Ontario:

Dear Father and Mother, —We are just about half way on our journey now in the centre of the ocean. It has been very calm so far up until last night. The fog came on very heavy and it began to get windy and started to rain.

Well mother, I have had a fine trip so far. I could have told you some more news from Halifax only our letters were censured. I wasn't even allowed to put the date in the letter. We received orders on th 11th of July to pack up and be prepared to leave Barriefield on the 12th. I suppose there was some big time in Peterborough on the 12th. If we hadn't got orders to move I would have got permission to go up there for a couple of days. I suppose Ira had a great time on the 12th seeing the circus and watching the Orangemen parade. A great many of the soldiers marched up and down through the camp grounds at noon on excuse that the boat just took a little roll to one side. Say it was awful hot in camp on the 12th. The pack which we had to carry weighed about 75 lbs: and it was no cinch carrying it in the heat. We had to carry all our harness, razors, soap, towels and a change of underwear and small things like that that were necessary. We also had to carry 2 blankets and rubber sheet. There were two trains specially ordered to take the 93rd to Halifax. The first one left at 7.30 on the evening of the 12th and the second one at 8 o'clock. I was on the first train by luck. We left the camp about 6.00 in the evening and when we got to Kingston I don't remember of being as hot before in my life. I had a chance of saying good-bye to a few of my girl friends in Kingston, some girls whom I used to know in Peterborough; they used to go to Normal school.

The Trains.

The trains were all sleeping coaches and a dining car was attached. The dining car was one of the main things. As soon as we gt on the train I was so hot and tired I laid my bed down and went to sleep. I woke up about three o'clock and looked out the window and we were just on the edge of Montreal. We stooped in Montreal to take in ice and water to drink and there was a wheel broken on the train and that had to be repaired. It seemed funny to hear all the fellows working around the large station in Montreal talking the French language. We left Montreal about 4.30 that morning. We had to go into the dining car for breakfast about 8 o'clock and say, the food we got was plain, but it was swell. We had nice Boston baked beans, nice smoked bacon and potatoes, bread, butter and coffee. or dinner aat 12.30 we had a light lunch, bean soup, biscuits, cheese, bread, butter and tea. and then we had a hot supper. Roast beef, eggs, pudding, coffee, bread and butter and fruit. A person wouldn't wish for any better meals. I almost hated to leave the train. There is an awful lot of small junctions and stations all along that line, but the scenery was fine, a great number of small mountains and valleys. I don't believe I saw two fields of hay between Montreal and Nova Scotia. The people are nearly all French and they just grow enough to eat. They handle quite a bit of lumber down through there.

When I woke up on Friday morning we were spinning along through New Brunswick, the largest city in New Brunswick being Moncton. We got in there about 11 o'clock. We all got out at the station and marched up and around the city. I think it is the nicest city I have ever seen. It is all new and a lot of swell buildings. We got back on the train about 12 and started on down through the mountains again. The next city of ay importance was Windsor, the principal business town in Nova Scotia. The officers came through the train just before we got into Windsor and told us we had to pull down all the blinds from there to Halifax. This is so no spies would see the soldiers on the train. It was unpleasant for us sitting in there for 14 miles' ride, blinds all down and no lights turned on.

Reached Halifax.

We reached Halifax about 6 o'clock that evening. The stations in Halifax were all guarded with government military police. About 10 we got the gas turned on, but of course we weren't allowed to leave the trains at all. Halifax is a large city; it is about three times as large as Peterborough. We looked out through one corner of the window and I got my first look at the sea coast. We could see a few ships along the coast.

On Saturday morning another fellow and I were on police duty guarding our trains when the rest of the troops marched up through the city. It was very hot and I wasn't particular about marching through the dust. The bunch returned about 11.30 a.m. We had dinner in the dining car again, and about three o'clock Lieut R. P. A. Crisp came in and told us that we would have to pack up, as we ewere going to embark immediately. We got on the boat about 3.30. We remained in the dock that night and when we woke up about six in the morning the boat was just beginning to move a little, and believe me I was glad. We were only out about six hours until we couldn't see land at all. The meals on this boat are something awful. Everything is cooked in salt water and it is simply rotten. The salt water is swell to bathe in. There is a large shower bath on the boat and it is fine. It makes me feel like a new man when I wash. There are two ships guarding us all the way over.

July 21.—I didn't have much to do this morning so I thought I would write a little more. I have just been up on the deck for a smoke and a walk around. It is very cold and have to wear my heavy sweater coat. I am leaning over the railing watching the sharks and whales. Some great sights to see out here so far, but I have nearly forgot what land and houses look like. Nrman Saxby and myself sleep up on the top deck every night, and I never felt better in my life. There is quite a bit of music on board. The sailors say the water has never been so calm before. It don't seem to be nearly as bad as Lake Ontario.

I suppose Pearl and Lillian will soon be home for their holidays, but I don't suppose I will be able to see them unless they would come over here. The sailors receive wireless messages every day from the front and things look very good. The last report we got all the German second line trenches were captured. The sailors on the boat say there are more soldiers in England than they know what to do with. They say the 93rd are just going for a little trip. Well, it is a nice trip I will admit, so far.

Sunday, July 23.— I have nothing to do this morning. I thought I would drop in a few more lines and let you know we are still on water and have not seen any land at all for seven days. It was just one week ago this morning we left Halifax. I am getting sick of the water now, but believe me it is a very healthy place to be.

You may have an idea how cold it has got, when I had to put on sweater coats, my overcoat and gloves when I go up on the deck. We have all our machine guns mounted on the top deck of the ship, loaded with huge quantities of ammunition. I had to stay awake all last night. While some of us were out on the deck with the guns last night it began to rain about 12 o'clock and I thought we would freeze. We are travelling faster this last couple of days than we have been One of the chief officers on the boat told me last night that we would b in Liverpool, England on Monday night and believe me we can't get there too quick. Just think of it, not seeing land of any description except what is in the flower pots, for seven days. Our meals are simply rotten. That is the easiest way I can explain them. There is a difference of five hours in the time, that is when we are having our dinner on the boat here at 12 it would be just 7 o'clock in the morning in Peterborough; you people would not be up. It seems queer, but the time is changing here the farther we sail towards the Irish coast. We are sailing in thee danger zone now and everybody has got to keep a close watch for torpedoes and submarines. One of the sailors said this morning that we were still 400 miles from the Irish coast.

The last war reports we got yesterday were fine. They receive wireless news every day on the boat and they print them and post them up around the boat for the men to read. We see some peculiar animals in the ocean, such as whale, sharks, porpoises and sea horses. It is a very pretty sight to see a whale come to the top of the water and shoot a stream of water straight in the air about 60 feet. I will be able to explain all this better to you when I go back, if I ever do. I hope so anyway. Well I am getting tired. I think I will stop for to-day. I want to lay down and sleep.

Monday, July 24.—Have just got up and acn see the coast of Ireland. Believe me it looks good. There is a very heavy fog this morning and it is so cold we have to wear our sweate coats and overcoats. We are well protected now. Two submarines met us last night and the boats that came over with us have left. We are going a great deal faster now. We have two destroyers and and I cruiser for protection, so I guess we are pretty safe. Everybody is happy this morning. The coast of Ireland is very rocky and covered with mountains as far as I know. I guess we will land in Liverpool to-night. It will be a good job because I am croaking to get to a hotel to get something that is half decent to eat. This morning we had some boiled steak cooked in salt water, so you could have an idea what that is like, some bread, and, of course we haven't had a taste of butter since we came on the water. We have a compound called margerine but it is a very poor excuse for butter and it is nearly white, just like lard, and doesn't taste no more like butter than lard. It makes me sick when I look at it on the table. I don't think I have seen the water as calm as it is this morning; it looks more like the water in a small river than the ocean. We are in a very dangerous part of the ocean now, but we are well protected. We could reach the coast here quite easy if we did get wrecked, but believe me it wouldn't be very nice to have to get into the water this morning.

I suppose it has been rumoured around Peterborough that this ship had gone down. They said that about the 59th Battalion when they went across, but it was all hot air. Well, I think I will have to go and get my stuff together and have it ready when we land. This is all at present.

Monday, July 24.—Well I have a little more news now. I have just been up on the top deck looking over the mountains and scenery along the Irish coast. We are now sailing in the Irish sea. Looking from my window I can see ducks by the dozen, and away up among the mountains and rocks there are buildings and several swell farms. These mountains are very rocky and some of them run straight up. I wish I had a camera to get some pictures. I wish you and dad were here and see the Irish coast. Believe me it is a pretty scene to see the mountains on both sides of us and the people living on the sides. I don't think I would miss a trip like this for anything. I am sure if Fred was here he would enjoy it. There was a very heavy fog this morning as soon as we entered the Irish sea. It all seemed to disappear very quickly. It is not quite as cold sailing in the Irish sea as it is in the ocean. This is all the news that I have got just at present.

July 26.—We are camped in Ottopool Camp. We came out to the camp from Liverpool on the train to camp. The little small trains there are 8 in each coach, very funny. They go 60 and 70 miles per hour. I have seen some grand sights. I will have to close. No more paper and cannot buy any more until I get to town. Goodbye.

Your loving son,
L. L. Franks.

Foresters Hold Annual Excursion

Large Crowd Took in Popular Excursion

The annual excursion of the Catholic Order of Foresters took place yesterday to Jubilee Point and Harwood per Steamer Rainbow and barge. A large holiday crowd took in the trip down stream and spent the day at the breezy point at the mouth of the river overlooking Rice Lake.

In the afternoon a number of the less timorous ones made the trip from the Point over to Harwood across the four mile stretch of Rice Lake brine. The stormy condition of the Lake made Captain Burnett's ship roll and toss a few points to leeward but did not detract one whit from the enjoyment of the crowd.

Rice Lake Was Stormy Yesterday

Rice Lake was boiling in great old shape yesterday and local steamboat men who were across the lake yesterday and saw it in action, say that they never saw her in a grater turmoil before.

The disturbed condition of the elements, however, did not prevent the Rainbow from crossing over to Harwood with the Forester's excursion on the Geneva from making her regular trip to the landing.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Dear Sir,—In Saturday evening's paper there is a correspodence signed by Jack King, Frank Dunnette and James French, and I wish to pay a tribute to these men in not being ashamed to sign their names. There is one (and a good one it is) written on Noxious Weeds, signed Citizen, which is a puzzler inasmuch as he does not sign his name? It is as good as any. Say, Citizen, why not sign your name?

Now back to the first correspondence. These men have said there were to be three swimming place, The Council have not said so. They are waiting for the petitions to be brought in.

While I have every reason to hope that these three gentlemen did not wish to intentionally injure the swimming place negotiations, they are doing so inasmuch as a great many will think that there is no use signing these petitions.

These petitions must be signed and handed in to the council before anything can be done. The best thing these three gentlemen can do is to call on me for a copy to get signatures on.

Yours truly,
Maurice E. Ketcheson,
At Ketcheson-Farthing Studio.

The Rice Lake Trip On Civic Holiday

Captain Harris of the steamer "Geneva" had a full capacity load on board as he let slip his lines on the morning of Civic Holiday. Both lower and upper decks were everywhere filled with excursionists, who showed a liking for the river and out to Rice Lake in preferenc to any other on the holiday programme. The steamer was well managed—made good time and arrived at Gore's Landing about noon. Many of the party went off here for dinner, some in the groves and others in the hotel. The rest of the excursionists continued the trip to Harwood. General satisfaction was felt with the day's outing as the passengers arrived back safely in Peterborough, refreshed and rested, at about 8 o'clock.

It's awfully nice to dress in a warm room on a cold winter morning. It is the luxury that comes of having a King Boiler and King Radiators to furnish your hot-water heating. You can have your bed-room windows open all night with the air below zero, then step into the next room in the morning to dress and you will find it as warm as toast. "Steady and strong"—that is the style of heating the King Boiler and King Radiators do. The "fire-travel" is so constructed as to give the full heat of the fuel to the circulating water, and no heat gets away without paying toll to the water-way. This saves fuel and saves money. The King Hot Water Boiler has no fear of competition in the matter of quality, heating power, or fuel economy. Besides, the ease of operation makes a King Boiler transcendently superior. You can shake the ashes from either side, standing up; You can use an ash pan full size of pit; You can regulate the drafts accurately on account of tight fitting doors and joints. Flues are easily cleaned, ample combustion space allows complete burning of gases instead of their going free up the chimney. Simple to erect and economical to instal. We have a King Heating Apparatus for every requirement, from a cottage up to an apartment house. We manufacture everything required for heating—steam or hot water—for buildings of all descriptions.

"THE SCAREHEAD" Cartoon from the Baltimore American

The Miracles of War Industry In Old Country

Mr. F. Kellaway, M. P., Parliamentary Secretary to Dr. Addison, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Munitions, speaking at a meeting in Munitions in London the other night, described how in the early days of the war the British army was out-munitioned owing to German's industrial preparation for war, and the activity of the Kaiser, as a "glorified commercial agent for Krupps," and went on to tell how under the direction of the Ministry of Munitions Great Britain had counteracted this initial advantage.

It was little short of miraculous, he said, that with all the material factors overwhelmingly on her side, Germany failed to win right out in 1914. For the first 2 months of the war it was on our side a fight for time.

Thanks to the protection of the Navy, the readiness of Russia to take risks, and the sacrifice by France of her manhood, time had been given to work an industrial miracle in Great Britain.

The following are some of the points mentioned by Mr. Kellaway to illustrate the progress which had been made:

Of the 4,000 controlled firms now producing munitions 95 per cent. had not produced a gun, shell or cartridge before the war. In ten months they produced more shells than all the government arsenals and great armament shops existing at the outbreak of the war; and that was only a very small percentage of the total weekly production of shells in the country.

Ninety arsenals have been built or adapted and all excepting a very few are producing heavy guns, howitzers, big shells, or explosives.

NOT YET AT THE FLOOD.

Our weekly output of .303 cartridges is greater by millions than our annual output before the war, while the output of guns and howitzers has been increased by several hundred per cent.

Our preliminary bombardment of the German trenches exceeded in intensity and effectiveness anything the German gunners have ever accomplished. But wo are not yet at the full flood of our output of guns and shells.

One of our leading armament firms has a factory devoted entirely to the provision of a particular gun for the French government.

Russia has been supplied with a great quantity of grenades, rifle cartridges and guns and explosives, some of which have enabled the Russians to make their great offensive.

The armies of Belgium and Serbia have been re-equipped with many of the most important munitions.

There were 184,000 women engaged in war industries in 1914. To-day there are 660,000. The total number of war workers in 1914 was 1,986,000; now it is 3,500,000.

Women are engaged in 471 different munition processes, including 19 operations in connection with aeroplane production, the manufacture of howitzer bombs, the making of shrapnel bullets, filling bombs with smoke, explosives, gas and other lethal contents 31 processes on the production of machine tools; six processes in connection with marine mines; and 31 processes in ship building. Two-thirds of these operations had never been done by woman previous to 12 month ago.

SCIENTISTS HAVE AIDED.

British scientists, after a few weeks experiments undertaken at the request of the government, discovered many of the formulæ used by the Germans in the production of optical and chemical gas. Within a year after the outbreak of the war the output of optical glass (needed for gun sights, periscopes, etc.), at home, was multiplied 4 1-2 times; now it has increased by 14 times, and by the end of the year the increase will be 20-fold.

In two or three months three Fellows of the Royal Society produced a height finder which gave rapidly and exactly the height of a Zeppelin.

The Ministry of Munitions has built or is building housing accommodation for 60,000 workers, and canteens and mess rooms in munition works now give accommodation for meals for 500,000 workers a day.

The Department is now considering the provision of day nurseries for the children of its married workers.

Alkali In Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Zeppelins Will Punish England Says Despatch

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, via Saville (Wireless), Aug. 15.—German Zeppelins will punish England for her failure to punish the crew of the British steamer Baralong, who killed members of the German submarine crew after they had been made prisoners, it was officially announced here to-day. In future Zeppelins raiding English towns will have no consideration for the lives of civilians.

The British patrol ship Baralong sank a German submarine in August, 1914. The submarine crew was captured, but in a fight aboard the Baralong, the exact details of which are not known, the submariners were killed. According to stories from German sources, they were kicked off the patrol boat into the water or shot. According to a British report, American muleters, who had been rescued by the Baralong, after their ship had been submarined, killed the Germans in revenge. Germany's latest announcement of retaliation does not matter much, however. German Zeppelins have never spared; women, children, or anything else British since the war began.

British Troops Recature 700 Yards of Trenches

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The recapture by the British of about 700 yards of German trenches on the Somme battlefront and a successful French blow at the more important sector of the Verdun battlefront were recorded in official despatches to-day. The German War Office this afternoon admitted the British victory on the Somme front. The line of German trenches carried by the British north and north-west of Pozieres, and subsequently retaken by the Germans, were again conquered in fighting that began Sunday morning and continued last night.

In the fighting north-east of Verdun the French captured German trenches on a 390-yard front to a depth of 100 yards, it was officially announced in Paris.

Berlin's official report of the repulse of attacks south of Lake Doiran indicated a continuation of lively patrol fighting in the Balkans.

Reading Matter Was Appreciated

Capt. E. M. Best Is in a Position to Receive Additional Supplies of Reading Matter

Capt. E. M. Best, of the Y.M.C.A. Service with the Canadian forces lately sent across the sea and now at the training station in England, writes as follows. It will be recollected that Capt. Best was at Peterborough, a short time ago, enroute for Halifax to join the corps about to go on board.

While in the city he ventured the hope that he could secure from his friends reading matter for the use of the men. He was taken to the Public Library, and after consultation with the chairman and members of the board, it was decided that Capt. Best be given the opportunity to take a fairly large number of the books, discarded and worn and such as had ben removed from circulation.

This privilege seemed to fit the situation exactly. Capt. Best, at the time, said it was a real find. Only an instance of what can be had at Peterborough when one digs up the resources. Several large boxes were filled and despatched. In a letter to a friend Capt. Best makes thanks. The letter was written at sea.

Of Great Service

"I wish to thank the Public Library Board for the gift of books and magazines for the use of the soldiers. The books have already been of a great service and are greatly appreciated by both men and officers. We are arranging with the ship's officers to carry some of them as a permanent library, to be used by new drafts and by invalid soldiers on their way back to Canada. The balance we are taking with us to the camps in England, where we will see that they are available for the Peterborough Battalions.

Please thank the papers for the publicity given to my request, and if any further supply has accumulated, and we can have them, if you will be so good as to notify the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. in Toronto, at 13 Toronto street, it would be fine.

We have, while en-route, run off a fairly ambitious programme of sports and games each afternoon, and as well we have supplied to the man the reading matter."

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother

(Modes of To-day)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone.

Ques.: "How much walking time" do you lose?"

Ans.: "Come again, Joe, I don't see it."

Ans.: "Say—it's lunch time, don't keep me."

Ques.: "Wait a minute, this means hundreds of dollars to you. Answer me this one—where is the time recorded in your plant?"

Ans.: "At the factory door, of course."

Ques.: "Then they do take exercise at your expense? Your employees, I mean. They can take a quite a promenade couldn't they, from factory door to department door?"

Ques.: "Why not put a Time Recorder at Each Department door? Then your employees can take all the time they need in the halls or the lavatories or cloak rooms. But they can't get into the bench until they are all ready for work and just then they "punch the clock." How about it?"

Ans.: "Sounds good. Put me next."

Ques.: "Will you write a letter TODAY? Address it to the International Time Recording Co., corner McGill and Notre Dame Street, Montreal, or to their Head Office, Anderson street, Toronto, for latest folders and prices. Remember your strongest competitor may be able to under quote you because he buys the biggest of all raw products, WORKING TIME, closer than you do. Shouldn't delay, should you?"

PTE. W. D. KEARNS WRITES OF THE 93RD JOURNEY

The following letter was received from Private W. D. Kearns of the 93rd Battalion, by his mother, Mrs. W. G. Kearns, 492 Elm street.

(On the Train).

Dear Mother,—Wednesday, July the 12th is the day we departed from Kingston. Was up about 5.40, then we went down to the Khaki Club and had a light breakfast and then back to camp. I got all my goods packed and ready to leave at a moment's notice. After dinner I went up and pulled the captain's tent down, burnt all the rubbish and then we had to clear our own lines.

THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 13

We arrived in Montreal about three o'clock leaving there about six. The journey so far was very pleasant, we had breakfast about 7.30 and now I am waiting until I have something else to write. We are to sail from Halifax an officer told me, and I am very pleased as it will give me a chance to see some of our beautiful Canada. We arrived at a very beautiful place, not near as nice as Peterborough, by the name of Riveire Du Loup a little French place along our route. We arrived at this place about ten minutes to six; had a parade up town a piece headed by our celebrated band; then back to our train at ten past six. It was a grand sight to see the sun setting just back of the town I am waiting to have my supper now Just passed a place by the name of St. Arasene. I was in bed before ten o'clock but you couldn't sleep as the noise from the songs and carrying-on of the boys would keep you awake.

FRIDAY, JULY, 14TH

We arrived at a place by the name Bathurst, at ten to eight, leaving about ten minutes later and now I am going to have breakfast so will write later. We had another march out up the town at Moncton at noon to-day, headed by the Moncton band followed by our band and battalion We left there about a quarter to one and the next place of interest we came to was Amherst, there being some eight hundred Germans quartered there. They were in buildings and in a wire structure, like a hen cage, guarded on all sides by armed guards. I am after having my supper and now are going to have a kit inspection.

SATURDAY, JULY 15TH

Woke up in Halifax at 5.20, and at eleven o'clock we had a march up town, lasting about an hour. We embarked about three o'clock Saturday afternoon, then were taken to our mess room. They had four German prisoners on board who are to be exchanged.

SUNDAY, JULY 16TH

We left the pier at Halifax about ten to seven in the morning and in a couple of hours you could not see any land at all.

MONDAY, JULY 17TH

The weather so far has been lovely. We had dinner about 12 o'clock then we waited until time to fall in for pay, as this was our pay day.

TUESDAY, JULY 18TH.

Was awakened at 4 a.m. by the crew going to wash the decks, so I had to go down stairs to get a little more sleep. The supper we had on this date, would make the hair stand straight on your head. We had fish you could smell from the cook house up to the mess room.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 19TH.

It started to rain last night but it stopped long enough this morning to change guards and have breakfast Had life belt parade about three o'clock and a little while later, a whale was sighted about 200 yards from our ship

THURSDAY, JULY 20TH.

Had breakfast and went on deck when I saw about a dozen flying fish swimming past.

FRIDAY, JULY 21ST.

We had another life belt parade at ten, then nothing to do till after dinner. Tug-of-war between the 93rd and 105th officers. Saturday, July 22nd nice day and a little rain, Sunday, July 23rd, up at 4:30 a.m. got all dressed and ready for the church parade, it was one of the nicest I ever witnessed and the priest preached a very nice sermon.

MONDAY, JULY 24TH.

We reached the coast of Ireland, a grand sight, with nothing but big rocks and on the surface it was all green moss. We passed the Isle of Man, a beautiful summer resort about seventy miles from London they say, and at eight thirty we reached Liverpool, the nicest summer resort I ever saw, and this is the place I am writing from only about 100 yards from shore on our boat as we are going to stay on the boat until morning. Got off the boat and on to our trains, funny little trains, they are too, but great for speed and then we left Liverpool. We arrived at our camp about seven or eight o'clock, Wednesday night and had a little supper but nothing to what I would liked to have had. We had a few old Peterborough boys pay us a visit last night.

We are at a quarantine camp now, but expect to move to Shorncliffe in a day or so, as they say we will only be here to be examined. Well mother I am well and happy and hope you are all in the same state at home. Now don't you do any worrying as I am going to come out all right. Will close now with love to all.

From your loving son,
BILL.

Miss Elizabeth Holland, Sr. Mary Paula.
Miss May McEvoy, Sr. St. Cleta.
Miss May Williams, Sr. St. Alban.
Miss Nellie O'Grady, Sr. Hildegard.
Miss Agnes McCarthy, Sr. Dympna.

The profession of those who were received two years ago and who have spent their two years as novices then took place. The following were professed:

Sr. Mary Alice, Sr. Xavier, Sr. Agnes Marie, Sr. Estelle, Sr. Mary Theresa, Sr. Bertille, Sr. Martha, Sr. Armene, Sr. Appolonia, Sr. Lucia, Sr. Mary, Sr. Nativity, Sr. Irma, Sr. Priscilla. Sr. Mary Elizabeth and Sr. Afra.

A very eloquent sermon on the importance of the occasion and on the sanctity and happiness of the religious life was preached by Rev. Fr. Malone, S. J., of Montreal.

The following clergy were present: His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Rev. Fathers Phelan, McHugh, of the Cathedral, Dean McColl and Scott of Immaculate Conception McAuley of the Sacred Heart, Meagher, of Lakefield, P. J. McGuire of Enismore, Quilty of Douglas, Jones of Griffith, McGeough of Hamilton, Eckart of Minneapolis, Leahy, S.J. of Montreal, J. V. Power of Peterboro.

ARMY OF EAGER HUSBANDS-ELECT BESIEGE "WIDOW"

ROCHESTER, Aug. 8. —Endearing love letters to "Mrs. Muck," and "Mrs. W. Lowere," the mysterious "widow," in the alleged matrimonial swindle continue to pour into Rochester, Detective George W. McKelvey has obtained possession of a bundle of these love epistles, and has turned them over to O. B. Williamson, post-office inspector. The widow, if arrested, will be charged with using the United States mail for purposes of defrauding would-be husbands. Some of the letters are couched in the same affectionate terms used by the Connecticut farmer who brought Captain William H. Whaley's attention to the suspicious silence of the widow.

That there is an army of would-be husbands is evidenced by the numerous queries for photographs of the fascinating "widow," and many of the letters contain sums of money intended for railroad fare to bring the charming woman to the welcoming arms of her admirers. The police have not forsaken the theory that a woman is actually engineering this matrimonial bureau, assisted by a man giving the name of Hatch. So far the widow has eluded the active search instituted by the police. The man, Hatch, however, is under surveillance.

It is not known by the police whether or not the "widow's" picture accompanying the letter sent to a Connecticut farmer in quest of railroad fare from Rochester is genuine. Captain Whaley has the original photograph sent by mail. The widow has not appeard at the boarding-house in South avenue, where rooms were engaged by Hatch for his "wife." It is said that "Mrs. Mack" mentioned in a letter addressed to a house in Harvard street, and "Mrs. W. Lotere" are one and the same person.

Detective McKelvey is authority for the statement the "widow" or whoever was conducting the seductive matrimonial venture was on the road to accumulating a small fortune. One day the love letters delivered to the South avenue and Harvard street addresses given by the widow, contained $300, and there does not seem to be any let up in the chain of "widow seekers."

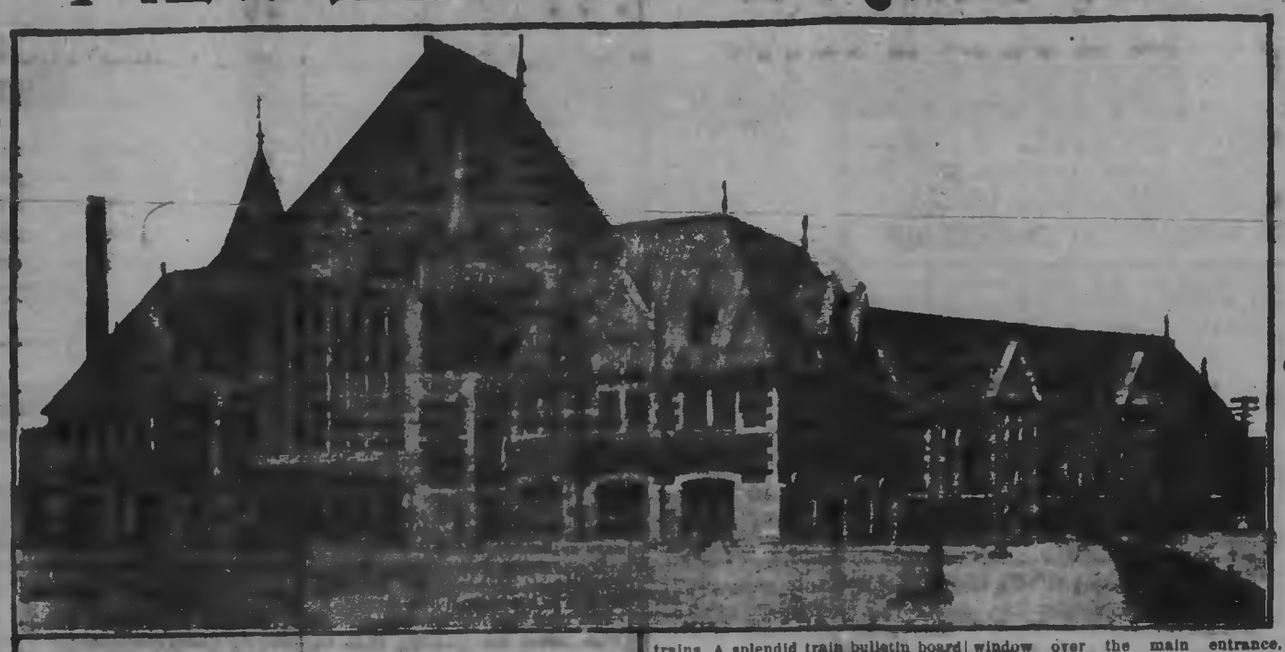
NEW STATION AT QUEBEC



(1) New Station.
(2) Train Platforms.

THE new C.P.R. station at Quebec, which was declared open to-day, Thursday, by the Mayor of Quebec is a triumph of modern railway station construction and is admirably located at the corner of St. Paul and Henderson Street just north of the old station. The latter will be removed to make room for the plaza, 350 ft. x 285 ft., which will form a beautiful fore-ground with a large grass plot planted with shrubs and a sixty-foot roadway, flanked by sidewalks, planting spaces, Lombardy poplars, ornamental lighting standards, and two ornamental flag-poles, transforming a once ugly portion of the city to an attractive beauty spot which will not only be appreciated by the residents of Quebec, but will give the visitor a favorable first impression of the city.

The building, which consists of a central block with two wings, is a modern adaptation of the old French Chateau Style of architecture and admirably harmonises with and helps to perpetuate the quaintness and historic traditions of the city. The exterior is faced with Argenteuil granite, Deschambault limestone and Citadel brick, all local products, with steep, sloping, copper covered roofs. The main facade, which faces the plaza, is dominated by a central motif containing the main entrance which is flanked by two tourelles and protected by a glass and iron marquise the full width of the sidewalk. Over the main entrance is a large window, above which is an illuminated clock with a seventy-two inch dial, which forms one of the principal features of the facade. The pediment over the clock bears the arms of the City of Quebec.

In plan, the building is L shaped, the main block being 142 ft x 65 ft., the concourse wing extending along Henderson Street, 142 ft x 65 ft., and the baggage and express wing parallel to St. Paul Street, 130 ft. x 44 ft. Entering the building through the 24 ft., wide main entrance and vestibule, one is agreeably impressed with the spacious, light, ticket lobby, 45 ft. wide x 65 ft. long, which rises to a height of 60 feet. This lobby is finished with grey tapestry brick walls with Lepunto marble base, faience cornices, cartouches and balustrades and sloping mosaic ceiling with leaded glass ceiling lights, the rich colorings of the faience and leaded glass lending an attractive tone to the decorations. The faience clock dial set in the balustrade at the first floor level with its flanking lion and unicorn is a feature of the room. On the right side of the ticket lobby are the information wicket, four ticket wickets, the entrance to the women's restroom, and the news stand. On the left, are the baggage and parcel checking counters, customs office, public telephone booths and telegraph counter, while the Transfer Company's office opens off the entrance vestibule. Opposite the main entrance is a series of seven doors opening into the concourse.

The concourse, 125 ft. long x 62 ft. wide, and 40 ft. high, is similarly finished with grey brick walls, with faience inserts, marble wainscot, faience cornices and tinted ceiling, while the huge iron trusses, elliptical in form, which support the roof, spring from ornamental faience cartouches. On the left side of the concourse three sets of gates open to the midway and track platforms. On either side of each gateway is a mechanical indicator, which shows the track, number, time and destination of the departing trains. A splendid train bulletin board has been provided on which the time of arrival of all incoming trains will be posted, while glass-covered bulletin boards have been provided for special announcements and posters. On the right hand side of the concourse is an exit to Henderson Street, while at each end is a handsome faience dial clock. Comfortable seats have been provided, as the concourse serves also as the main waiting room of the station. The men's smoking room and lavatories are located at the North or far end of the concourse wing. The women's rest room is attractively furnished with rugs, table, chairs, and couch, and is conveniently located and easily reached from both the ticket and lobby concourse. The smoking room and women's room are wainscotted with wood panelling and the lavatories with marble. A feature of the lavatories are the pay toilets and dressing rooms which are provided with all the accessories necessary for the comfort of the traveller and equipped with coin locks which automatically operate by the insertion of a ten-cent piece.

Ample accommodation is provided for handling the baggage and express in a separate wing which has a covered trucking platform on each side. Everything necessary for the comfort and convenience of the travelling public, as well as the efficient operation of the train service, has been provided. The second floor of the main building, which is reached by a stairway from the main entrance vestibule, is devoted principally to the Company's offices and a museum in which an interesting and instructive exhibit of Canada's natural resources will be open to the public. The office corridors and museum surround the ticket lobby and are separated therefrom by open arches and balustrades which afford a splendid view of the lobby as well as provide an abundance of light and air. Rooms for the conductors and trainmen with stairway direct from the midway are also provided on this floor. The decorative scheme of the interior is simple and artistic. The motifs in the richly-colored faience depict and symbolise emblems of the national life, and the Tudor rose, shamrock, thistle, fleur de lys, dolphin and trident are freely used and intertwined. The ceiling light over the ticket lobby contains the provincial shields and a map of the North American continent showing the Canadian Pacific Railway lines from coast to coast. The large window over the main entrance, which helps to light the ticket lobby contains the arms of the seven great men of Canadian history, viz.:—Montmagny, the first Governor of Canada —1636-1847; DeTracy, Viceroy of Canada—1665; Beauharnois, Governor of Canada — 1726-1747; Montcalm and Wolfe, the famous French and English generals whose names are familiar to all; Frontenac, Governor of Canada—1672; and Talon, the first Intendant of New France—1665-1672.

The building was designed by H. E. Pringle, architect, of Montreal, and erected by the Downing Cook Company of Montreal, under the supervision of D. H. Mapes, Engineer of Buildings of the C.P.R. In the construction of the building, which rests on 430 concrete piles, 400 tons of structural steel, 2,000 yards of reinforced concrete, 400,000 common brick, 75,000 exterior face brick, 125,000 interior face brick, and 10,000 cubic feet of exterior cut-stone, were used. Local labor and materials have been employed wherever possible; the concrete pile foundations were driven by the McArthur Pedestal Pile Company; the structural work was furnished and erected by the Eastern Canada Steel Company; the exterior face brick were made by the Citadel Brick Company; the granite came from the Argenteuil quarries and the limestone from the Deschambault quarries. The interior marble and terrazzo work was done by the Missisquoi Marble Co.; the ornamental iron by the Dominion Architectural Iron Works. The plumbing and heating were installed by Vandry and Matte, the electrical work by the L. K. Comstock Company, and the clocks by the Self Winding Clock Company. The woodwork throughout, of which, however, there is but little, is Canadian birch, the railway company having recently adopted the policy of using Canadian woods exclusively for the finish of its buildings and cars. While the Station is the dominating feature of the improvements made by the Canadian Pacific, notice should be taken of the new freight office building and sheds constructed north of the station last year, the new power house located just west of the station and the re-arrangement of the coach yard, all of which has been done on the same comprehensive scale as, and in keeping with, the station building. Quebec can well be proud of its new station, which a design, finish and appointments is second to none in Canada.

STONEY LAKE REGATTA WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

Mr. J. S. Knapman, Jr., Carried Off Dr. Goldsmith's Shield for Open Sailing for the Third Time in Succession

For the third successive time, J. S. Knapman, Jr., won the shield donated by Dr. Goldsmith for open sailing at the Stony Lake regatta, which was held yesterday at Juniper Island. The yacht "Cygret," owned by Dr. Goldsmith, was used by the successful contestant who, as a result of his triple success, retains possession of the trophy.

The regatta was an unqualified success and drew a large crowd from Peterborough and other points throughout the district. The weather was ideal. The steamers Stoney Lake, Iolinda, Empress and Manita all carried large crowds to the scene of the event.

The Prize Winners.

FRESH MYSTERY IN CHICAGO TRAGEDY

Vancouver Man's Death Provides Worry For Police.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—A new element was present in the mystery surrounding the death at a Michigan avenue hotel last Wednesday, of Morse Davis, a mining engineer of Vancouver, B.C. It was the announcement made late last night that Dr. William D. McNally, coroner's chemist, in a chemical analysis of the contents of the stomach of Mrs. Davis, who was found unconscious at the time of her husband's death, has discovered no poison of the kind believed to have killed Davis.

The chemist said he would make more tests to-day for other poisons and that he would analyze several bottles of medicine found in the Davis apartments.

Mrs. Davis after she regained consciousness, was quoted as saying that a chemical which her husband used must have gotten mixed with salts which she and her husband took for illness. Mrs. Davis is still ill to-day.

SHERIFFS' STRANGE SEIZURES.

Trains Chained to the Line, and Workhouses "Held Up."

On one occasion a workhouse-ambulance, with its horse and driver, was seized by the sheriff at Kilrush, in Ireland. The vehicle had left the institution to call for a patient, when it was pounced on by the sheriff's officer and his merry men, and horse, driver, and all were conveyed to the local pound.

There it was detained until an official from the workhouse arrived on the scene and by payment of £10 released the ambulance, horse, and driver. For this amount a decree had been obtained in the local court, but the unprecedented seizure amazed the whole town.

But even that performance was eclipsed on one occasion at Kenmare, where the sheriff's men actually seized the workhouse itself. A judgment for £89 8s 3d and £13 12s 4d costs had been obtained against the guardians by a Belfast firm of seed merchants.

This not having been satisfied, the sheriff's men entered into possession of the workhouse and the premises thereunto belonging. There they remained until the matter was arranged, the townspeople meanwhile being much amused at the workhouse being in possession of bailiffs.

A chapel has shared the same fate. Some time ago the warrant-officer of the Wandsworth County Court was called on to take possession of such a place in his district. This was at the instance of the London, Chatham, & Dover Railway, to whom a debt was owing.

To satisfy the judgment they carried off the contents of the building, which were sold by auction in due course. Included were the pews, forms, preacher's platform, Bibles, hymn-books, Communion-plate, tea-services used for tea-meetings, and a number of banners bearing more or less interesting pictures.

Then there was the sheriff's officer, who seized a balloon. The owner was much chagrined at this action, for he was relying on the balloon to lift him beyond the reach of the sheriff's officers and court bailiffs.

As the balloon was worth a good deal more than the amount for which it had been seized, the debtor raised enough money among his friends to meet the claim.

There was an amusing sequel to a no less amusing seizure at Wood Green. A bailiff was summoned for detaining a walking-stick under the following circumstances: For several days he had been endeavoring to enter the complainant's house, but found it too well barricaded.

It was during one such incident that the stick was captured, on hearing which the magistrates dismissed the case.

Overcharged Wires Badly Burn Two Ingersoll People

POWER HAS TO BE SHUT OFF ENTIRELY AS TROUBLE IS NOT LOCATED.

Ingersoll, August 10.—Power troubles have been somewhat numerous and in addition to the inconvenience and absolute loss in individual circles, there were several accidents. The trouble occurred early in the morning and with repetitions at intervals as different users attempted to use the power.

At W. R. Bingham's store, Jos. Paul was badly burned when he turned on the 'juice.' Mr. Bingham attempted to turn the switch but found it to be too heavily charged for him. Mr. Paul, believing that he was more accustomed to electricity, turned the switch and his right hand was badly burned. He was unable to release his hold and was pulled away by Mr. Bingham. Four of Mr. Paul's fingers were burned to the bone.

At the home of J. F. Stone, Oxford street, his daughter, Miss Lela Stone, was seriously hurt while operating a vacuum sweeper. When the metal part of the sweeper came in contact with a radiator Miss Stone was so badly shocked that she was rendered unconscious. She was also badly burned about the hands and the body.

At the residence of John Fotheringham a fire occurred as the result of the power trouble. It started in one of the electric fixtures and spread to some articles of clothing spread out on a table for ironing, which were consumed. The trouble was evidently caused by one of the hydro 2,200 voltage wires becoming disengaged and falling across wires of lesser voltage, the result being that all were heavily overcharged. Owing to the accidents and the narrow escapes that had occurred, and the trouble not having been located, the power was turned off at noon.

RABBATS INVIDE THE RURAL EAST WARD

Rabbit hunters will be able this season to find their game right at home. Mr. Alex. Calder, of Concession street, East City, while in the Examiner office on Saturday, said that cotton tails were to be found in large numbers around Lock No. 6 at the lake front near Mr. Chas. Noyes' property.

A field of sweet clover that has grown higher than a man's head, is ful lof runways. The rabbits are eating the garden vegetables, and if they multiply as quickly the next few years as they have the past two, they will be quite a scourge.

Paper that is said to be waterproof, fireproof and odorless has been made from seaweed by an English chemist.

OBITUARY

W. R. G. HIGGINS.

The news of the terribly sudden death on Sunday at noon, of W. G. R. Higgins, proprietor of the Higgins Hardware Store, came as a great shock to everyone, young and old. The deceased was feeling unwell on Saturday evening, but somewhat better when he went home. On Sunday morning he again felt unwell and Dr. Moir was called. Nothing serious, however, was looked for, but while the doctor was in attendance at the home he passed away.

The late Mr. Higgins was one of the city's most prominent young men a prime favourite with everyone and a friend to any one in trouble. He was born in the State of New York and came to Peterborough at an early age. He learned the hardware business in Peterborough, and in due course went into business for himself. At the time of his death he was conducting the Higgins Hardware Store on Hunter street, where he has been in business for some years.

He was a prominent Mason and Oddfellow, and his work and interest in these societies will be greatly missed, and member of the congregation of the George street Methodist church. He was one of the original members of Eko Camp, an organization that owed much of its success to his connection with it. For many years he was connected with the 57th Battalion at the time of his death, holding the rank of captain.

At the outbreak of the war and ever since, it has been his great regret that circumstances were not such as would permit his going overseas. The serious illness of his father demanding his attention night and day. He however, recognized his duty, and if a man has ever "done his bit," it was the late W. R. G. Higgins. No one could be a better son, a truer brother, or a better friend.

The funeral took place to the Little Lake cemetery this afternoon under Masonic auepices and was largely attended by citizens and friends and Masonic brethren— many from outside points.

MRS. MARTHA CLENDENNING.

At 11.45 this morning there passed away an old and respected resident of Mariposa Township, Mrs. Martha Clendenning, widow of John Clendenning. The deceased lady died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. J. A. Fair, 88 Aylmer Street, an employee of the Campbell Flour Mills. The deceased lady was ailing for some time. She has been a resident of this city for ten years. She is survived by three daughters: Mrs. J. A. Fair, of 88 Aylmer Street; Mrs. Newsome, of Owen Sound, and Miss Ida at home. There are two sons, Messrs. E. C., of Lindsay, and William, of Wellwyn, Sask.

The funeral takes place on Thursday morning, interment to take place at Friends' Burying Ground.

WEDDING BELLS

DIXON—DAVIDSON.

At nine o'clock on Wednesday evening, August 9th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dixon, Dorchester Apartments, Winnipeg, the marriage took place of Mr. J. H. Dixon, of Moose Jaw, son of Mrs. James H. Dixon, of Peterboro, to Mabel E., daughter of Mrs. Hugh Davidson, of Aylmer Street, the Rev. J. D. MacRea, of Houan, China, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson left for a trip to the Coast and on their return will reside in Moose Jaw.

The Enemy Continues To Fall Back Before The Russians

THE CZAR'S FORCES HAVE MADE ADDITIONAL GAINS

Austrians and Germans Are Still Falling Back Before Russian Advance

Slav Troops Have Made Additional Gains Along the Sereth and Zlota Lipa River—The Russian Opposition in Galicia is Now Wholly German—Teutonic Forces are in Strength and a Determined Resistance is Being Offered the Russian Advance.

AUSTRIAN OPPOSITION NEGLIGIBLE

PETROGRAD, August 16.—The Austrians and Germans in Galicia are still falling back before the advance of the Russians, who, according to Petrograd, have made additional gains along the Sereth and Zlota Lipa rivers and have captured the strongly fortified town of Tustobaby, northwest of the Dniester.. On the upper Sereth, however, the Teutanic allies at some points of their newly chosen line are holding back the Russians with a vigorous artillery fire.

The Sereth River, along the upper portion of which the Germans are offering a determined resistance to the Russian advance, is a small stream which rises in the mountain country north of Zalozce and flows southward, passing the City of Tarnopol and emptying into the Dniester near the western Bessarabian frontier. This upper portion of the Sereth makes the flank defence of the Germans on the south side of the Brody-Lemberg railway and guards for the time being the line of railroad running northwest from Tarnopol to Grasne. From the upper region of the Sereth River into Lemberg is a distance of about forty-eight miles.

The German position on the upper Sereth is imperilled for the moment by the encircling movement of the Russians as indicated by their present advance to the line of the Zlota Lipa River. This stream parrallels the trend of the Sereth but in a district fully twenty-two miles west of the Sereth. The line of the Zlota Lipa places the Russians astride of the Tarnopol-Rohaytn railroad as far west as Brzezany.

By the capture of Mariampol by Cossacks the Russian extreme advance is five miles west of the Zlota Lipa River. From Mariampol to Halicz is a distance of only eight miles. This latter place lies twelve miles north of Stanislau.

FORCES ARE IN STRENGTH.

The latest reports show these Teutonic forces are in strength both to the eastward and the the southeastward of Lemberg, and every indication points to a determined resistance being offered to the Russian advance before Lemberg is yielded up. Already it would seem that the first dash of the Russians has been checked and that from now on the Russian forward movement must be in the face of German rather than Austrian resistance. As told in these columns, the Russian attack in Galicia was devised before the Russians were really ready and was occasioned by the tremendous assault of the Austrians on the Italian Trentino front. Russia first took advantage of the weakening of the Austrian Galician front and swept all before them. The effect of the too early launching of the Russian attack is perhaps being felt now, but if the Russian line can be held for two months, it is declared, the Tsar's forces will be in shape to carry forward a campaign right up to the beginning of winter.

The great part of the Allies at the present moment, it is said in military circles, is to hold the German forces on the western front and not to permit any massing of overpowering forces in Galicia against the Russians. If this can be effected the Russians, it is believed, will succeed in reaching Lemberg. The Russian opposition in Galicia is now wholly German. Any Austrian opposition is negligible, since Austria has been practically crushed on the southeastern front.

Turkey Cannot Aid Her Allies

Traveler Declares Troops Are Moving Eastward From Adrianople, Not West

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Times publishes an article giving the impressions of a traveller who recently journeyed from Berlin to Constantinople on the Balkan Express. The writer says:

"The train was still lying in the railway yards at Berlin a month after the advertised time for its first journey. The delay was due to the ravages to the permanent way wrought by the Serbians before they left their country. Nearly all the bridges were entirely or partly destroyed."

Describing the trip through Bulgaria the writer says:

"One sees line after line of railway carriages, all with their windows white washed. The Germans and Bulgarians state only the reason for this decorative work. When things were hanging the balance for Bulgaria and she would throw her weight, the windows were all painted over. It was not to prevent the people outside from seeing into the carriages, but to make it impossible for the men in the trains to see which way they were going. Not a Bulgarian soldier knew until some time after he had been dispatched whither he had been sent and where he was supposed to be fighting.

"Along the whole line from Berlin to Constantinople and even down into Syria there are thousands of Belgian railway carts. These are easily recognizable for they still have the Belgian marks on them. To these the imperial cipher and eagle have been added.

"At Adrinople there were signs of great activity. Thence all the troops were evidently moving eastward. That is a significant fact.

"There has been a great deal written about the movement of Turkish troops into Austria, and even to Germany and the western front. All this is quite ridiculous. The Turks could not move any troops to the west for the following reasons, among others:

"First and chief, the Turks cannot spare troops from the defense of their own territories; secondly, transport and commissary, to say nothing of medical stores and equipment, are lacking.

"There are Germans everywhere in Constantinople. There are German soldiers and German sailors. The latter are from the Goeben and the Breslau, which now are lying up inside the basin of the Bosphorus.

"It is evident that the latter has finisher her career. Her stern is all built up with masonry and concrete and this has shaken loose for the optimistic Turks took her to sea and the vibration played havoc with the mortar. The repair looks like the stopping of a gigantic tooth, done very badly and then knocked loose again.

"The distress in the city is terrible, widows and children of the men who have been killed are starving. They receive no aid from the Government. These women received a pittance as long as their men were alive, but when the husbands were killed the pension, if it can be called such, ceased. This is the only official notification that wives get of the loss of their husbands."

Britain's Munition Supply Reaches Huge Proportions

Great Britain is Nearing a Point Where She can Herself Make all Munitions Needed For Herself and Allies—Home Sources Also Supplying All Machine Guns and Rifles Needed—Production of Heavy Shells Increases.

SHELL OUTPUT DOUBLED

LONDON, August 16.—The Government announces that Britain is nearing a point where she can herself make all munitions needed for herself and Allies.

Reviewing the work of the munitions department of the Government in the British House of Commons, Edwin Samuel Montagu, Minister of Munitions, after telling of the immense increase in output of all kinds of guns and munitions by his department, informed the House that all rifles and machine guns for the armies in the field were being supplied entirely from home sources. The quality of the guns and munitions, he said, was equal to the quantity, the artillery having during the recent fighting acquitted itself to the entire satisfaction of the British army, and having as well received the praise of the French Ministry of Munitions. This statement, he added, was particularly true of the heavy guns and hbwitzers.

NAVY'S DEMANDS HEAVY.

Mr. Montagu pointed out that half of the engineering resources of the country were required for the navy, but declared that very shortly Great Britain would have provided for her own requirements and be able to devote herself exclusively to the wants of her allies in regard to machine guns. Already, he said, she was sending large amounts of guns and munitions to her allies and in addition was sending to France one-third of her production of shell steel and transferring to her allies metals necessary for munitions to the amount of £6,000,000 monthly.

SHELL OUTPUT DOUBLED.

The production of heavy shells, said the Minister, was now 94 per cent. greater than it was in 1914. Ther was now being produced in four days, he declared, as much howitzer munition as was produced during the whole of last year, while there were being turned out every month as many heavy guns as were in existence when the Ministry of Munitions was formed, and this number would soon be nearly doubled.

The output of machine guns had increased fourteen-fold, continued the Minister, and there could be turned out in four weeks as many of these implements as existed at the formation of the Ministry. The output of high explosives was 60 times as great as a year ago, but the amount required was 11,000 to 12,000 times as great as at the beginning of the war. The output of heavy ammunition, however, he declared, now covered the expenditure of such ammunition.

SUPPLY IS AMPLE.

Referring to German press reports that the present offensive had made irreparable inroads upon the allies' stocks of ammunition, Mr. Montagu said it was true that last month's expenditure of ammunition was more than double the amount that would have been considered adequate eight months ago, and that in the week preceding the July offensive the amount of ammunition consumed exceeded the first eleven months of the war. It was needless to fear, however, he declared, that the offensive would be brought to a premature conclusion by a shortage of ammunition as long as the workers and the employers continued to play their part nobly, as they were now doing.

2,250,000 WORKERS.

The total number of persons employed in munitions works in June was 2,250,000, of whom 400,000 were women, Mr. Montagu said.

Clearing Prices at Reid's

Out they go! Down go Prices to quicken the speed-away. Little and big things at little cost and at big reductions which, of course, are larger in Apparel, Suits, Outing Suits, Coats, Dresses, Stripe Skirts, etc., because, when things to wear of this sort are most wanted is the time we most want to let them go---and that particular time is right at the height of the vacation season when week-end outings are the favoured recreation of the hot summer days.

$27.50 Silk Suits $14.95

This is a final clean-up of our Silk Suits and although we have 22 suits left, these should not be on Thursday at noon. Some Navy, Black, Green, Copen, etc. The styles are all this seasons and of the smartest styles. They ranged in price from $25.00 to $30 While they last for $14.95

$10.50 Beach Suit $5.50

There are Half-Price and less the former prices being from $10.50 to $13.50. Made of Paramatta Cloth, Palm Beach Cloth and Crash. The styles are mostly plain. A few novelty, sizes from 16 years to size 42. While they last $5.50

New Styles prevail throughout the stock---styles which accurately reflect the vogue as noted at the fashionable summer resorts. The pleasure of a woman's "Week-End" at the shore or mountain, or wherever she chooses to go can be added to most inexpensively, if she will take steps this way early.

B. C. INVENTOR IS DEAD OF POISON

CHEQUE FOR $3,000 WHICH HE HAD IN HIS POSSESSION DISAPPEARS ON WAY TO WINNIPEG.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.— Morris Davis, of Victoria, B.C., is dead, and his wife, Marie, is slowly recovering from the effects of poison which they drank in their apartments at a hotel here to-day. Davis was the inventor of a high explosive shell, which, it is said, he came to Chicago to sell.

According to the hotel physician, Mrs. Davis had recovered sufficiently to-night to make a statement of the poisoning. She said Mr. Davis always carried salts, and a poison which he used in his assaying tests of metals. Tuesday night they had eaten a salad for dinner which disagreed with them, and Wednesday morning she was nauseated and awakened Mr. Davis to procure salts for her. He complained also of nausea, and said he would take some to her. She said Mr. Davis had made a mistake and procured the poison instead of salts.

Mrs. Davis was greatly concerned at the disappearance of $3,000 in travellers' cheques which she had seen in his possession recently, the physican added.

Among the papers of Mr. Morris was found the name of Miss Cordelia Playfair of Mountain avenue, Winnipeg.

Brandon Farmer Has Over Thirty Bushels The Acre

BRANDON, Man., Aug. 16.—Crop experts continue to differ in their estimates of damage from rust, though all admit that the weather has been bad for the past few days. One field of wheat has been cut, and the owner estimates he will have over thirty bushels to the acre off it, of a high grade. Other farmers express the greatest disappointment; but, on the whole, a fair crop is anticipated. Cutting will be general by the middle of next week. There has been neither hail nor any damage except through rust. Rains have somewhat improved conditions. Crops other than wheat are looking fine, and are expected to be good. There should be a record yield of potatoes.

FOR ALL COMPLEXION ILLS

If the skin be colorless, sallow, muddy, over-red, blotchy or freckled, nothing will so surely overcome the condition as ordinary mercolised wax. It literally takes off a bad complexion—absorbs the dead and near-dead particles of surface skin, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence, clear, spotless, delicately soft and beautiful. One ounce of this wax, procurable at any druggtore, will rejuvenate even the worst complexion. It is used like cold cream.

Save arms of old silk gloves for patching worn silk underwear. It is a wise plan to even put a neat patch under arms when garment is new (on the wrong side, of course). This saves wear.

DRESDENER HAS FEARS HIS WIFE HAS ELOPED

Makes Search in Blenheim — Says She Put Children in Chatham Institution.

BLENHEIM, Aug. 16.—A Dresden man, formerly of Dawn Township, was in town in search of his wife, whom, he claims, left him a few days ago, taking with her two children, whom she since placed in the Children's Shelter in Chatham.

According to his story he was away from home working and had left his wife considerable money during the last two months. On his return home he found she and the children gone.

He says he traced them to Chatham where he found that under false statements his wife had given over the children to the Home and left for other fields. His theory is that a Chatham man is in the case and that she may have eloped. He had a clue that she might be found here or in Ridgetown. Failing to find her he intends going to the west.

IRRITATING RASH ON BABY'S CHEEKS

Healed by Cuticura Trial Free

"When my baby was five months old a slight rash appeared on his arms, face and head. After a certain time the rash disappeared from his arms and head, but remained on his cheeks. He would tear them, sometimes causing them to bleed. The trouble irritated and made him restless at night.

"After washing his cheeks with Cuticura Soap and using the Cuticura Ointment I found improvement and soon the rash disappeared and my child was healed in a short time." (Signed) Mrs. A. C. Custeau, Robertsonville, Quebec, January 8, 1916.

THAT FORTY INCH WAIST.

It Means Overeating, Underexercising and Future Poor Health.

"Beware of a forty inch waist line," says a bulletin from the North Carolina state board of health. "Ten to one the man who is five feet eight inches tall and forty inches about the waist will sooner or later have to consult a doctor for gallstones and kidney trouble and most likely for Bright's or some other serious disease.

"Forty inches about the waist is an abnormal size and condition and shows that he who carries such a burden around with him has an appetite of an abnormal size and proportion. It further shows that something is wrong with his diet or that his energy is reduced to naught. His appetite is either several sizes too big or he 'sits tight' on exercising. Most likely he eats excessively of meats, pastries and heavy foods, which means overworked kidneys and faulty elimination.

"There is usually one, and only one, diagnosis to be made of this class—'fat and forty.' Their bulkiness, flabbiness and shortness of breath are symptoms having for their cause overfed and underworked.'"

The bulletin concludes with, "Overfeeding contributes more to disease and premature deaths than under-feeding."

RECORD BID FOR PEARLS.

Remarkable prices were realised at a jewel sale at Christie's in London. A necklace, composed of 193 pearls, was bought by Messrs. Tanburn & Co. for $120,000, and a single-row pearl necklace was sold for $24,000. The $120,000 is a London record. In 1902 the Dudley pearl necklace of 47 round pearls realized $111,000, to be beaten in the following year by the Gordon-Lennox three rows of 287 pearls at $112,500. In 1907 the Lewis-Hill adornment of 229 pearls reached $80,000; the necklace of 46 pearls belonging to the late Lily Duchess of Marlborough, brought $85,000 in 1911, and the Lindsay necklace of 55 pearls, $72,000 in 1913. The necklace now offered as "the property of a lady," was in three rows of 193 pearls of superb Orient with a delicate tinge of pink, the pearls being beautifully matched and cunningly graduated

The Right Side.

Another story that General Birdwood is fond of relating concerns his South African experiences. Birdwood had his horse shot under him, and was himself severely wounded. They carried him to hospital. Next bed to him was a British Tommy looking pretty sick.

"What's the matter, my man?" asked Birdwood.

"Well, sir," was the reply, delivered in all seriousness, "I've got enteric I know, and I rather fancy I've got dysentery, but otherwise I'm all right."

Courteous Princes.

Prince Albert was seen a few days ago coming out of a Regent street shop, and as the girl commissionaire swung open the door for him, he saluted and thanked her. Our Royal sons have been brought up to the highest notions of chivalry towards all women. When Prince John was a tiny boy he always raised his cap to a flower-woman, who had her basket in Buckingham Palace road. It is recorded that the Queen said: "I'm very pleased; I like my boys to respect all women."

Confucius on Kingcraft.

"What is kingcraft?" demanded a disciple.

"Were there no help for it which could be best spared of the three?"

"Troops," said the master.

"And were there no help for it which could be better spared of the other two?"

"Food," said the master. "From of old all men die, but without trust a people cannot stand."

The Turnip.

The turnip is supposed to be a native of Asia and Europe. It has been cultivated for centuries. The wild East Indian turnip is said to be remotely kin to the edible turnip. It is the size of a walnut and first tasted is sweetish, but in a moment the taster's tongue feels as though it were pricked by a hundred hot needles, and he feels like expectorating for hours after. It is the country boy's favorite medium for a joke on the visiting town boy.—London Tatler.

The Mouths of Leaves.

The botanist, the real investigator who has got down to making real explorations for himself, will talk to you about the thousands of minute stomates on the surface of a leaf. These invisible stomates are really the mouths through which the leaves take in carbonic acid. They are most abundant on the upper surface of leaves. Each is an oval opening guarded by a pair of lips which open and close according to requirements. They vary from less than 1,000 to more than 20,000 to the square inch of leaf surface.

THE CHAPLAIN TOMMY'S PAL.

Succouring the Soldier Through Life And in the Hour of Death.

"The bravest of all were the chaplains, who stuck by the side of the Boys even when the fighting was most furious."

The above words were spoken in a London hospital the other day by a wounded soldier who had left an arm behind him, and they no doubt represent the general opinion of our Tommies at the Front at the present moment.

During the "piping times of peace"—now, alas! seemingly so far distant—Army chaplains used to be called "sky-pilots." Since the war broke out he has come to be christened by common consent the "padre," and his true worth is fully recognised by the men to whom he ministers.

They are of all classes and creeds, these brave, quiet men in plain khaki, distinguishable from the combatant officers only by their black shoulder-knots and the cross on their service caps.

The very first padre to be killed in the war was the Roman Catholic chaplain of the Dublin Fusiliers.

Tremendous is the influence for good, by the way, that is wielded by these Roman Catholic priests, comparable only with that exercised by the Presbyterian chaplains of the Highland regiments; for, when all else fails, they need only threaten to "post" a man's name on the chapel or kirk door in his native village in order to induce the most hardened offender to amend his ways.

Threats are seldom needed, however, and still less seldom used, the average chaplain, of whatever denomination, preferring to rely on moral suasion. He is an adept, too, at winning Tommy's confidence, and incidentally his gratitude.

He is frequently quite as good at singing a comic song as he is at intoning a psalm—each, of course, in its proper place. He is the unofficial letter-writer home, and the adviser-in-chief as regards all private and domestic affairs.

In a single week a Church of England chaplain confessed to have penned above three hundred love-letters for men unable, through stress of wounds, work, or worry, to write themselves. Another padre actually wrote in a week six thousand postcards for as many different men!

For the most part, the chaplains do their work outside the limelight, but occasionally they are accorded official recognition of a sort. For instance, there was the case of the Rev. E. G. F. Macpherson, the senior Church of England chaplain, mentioned by name in one of Sir John French's despatches.

He it was who officiated at the obsequies of General Hamilton, the commander of the Third Division, who was killed in action at Ypres. The funeral was at dead of night, the only light being that from the electric flash-lamp used by Mr. Macpherson to read the words of the burial service. Even this, however, was sufficient to draw the fire of the ever-watchful enemy, and rifle-bullets and shrapnel spattered and sputtered all round. Fortunately nobody was hit, and General Smith-Dorrien remarked, as he quitted the graveside: "A true soldier's funeral, padre. We couldn't fire a volley, but the enemy have given him the last salute for us."

Silk Culture in India.

The progress of silk culture in India and Ceylon is the subject of a series of most interesting annual reports issued by Mr. F. Booth Tucker, of the Salvation Army which body has displayed great activity in connection with the development of this important industry. The latest of these reports, that for 1915-16, is just to hand from India. In 1910 Mr. Booth Tucker consulted the Imperial Institute with reference to the silk produced by the Salvation Army silk-weaving school in the Bangalore District. A specimen of the silk was accordingly scientifically examined at the Institute. The results were highly favorable, and were confirmed from the commercial point of view by a leading silk manufacturing firm in this country, to which a sample was submitted. Subsequently the Imperial Institute arranged for spinning and weaving trials of the silk to be made, and as the result of these trials certain defects in the silk were pointed out. Since then the number of Salvation Army silk centres in India and Ceylon has been greatly increased, and in April last there were 28. Nearly all these centres undertake silk-worm rearing and silk-reeling.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

CONSUMPTION.

THIS IS A DISEASE of the lungs caused by a germ known as the bacillus tuberculosis. This germ causes, in addition to tuberculosis of the lungs or consumption, many forms of tuberculous disease, such as tuberculous meningitis, hip-joint disease, white swelling of the knee, tuberculous peritonitis, etc. In fact there is no part of the body which may not become subject to this affection. The disease is contracted by inhaling the droplets of infection coughed out by the person ill of tuberculosis of the lungs or from the inhalation of dried sputum, and generally from close contact with careless victims of the disease who spit about any place. Children frequently contract the disease by drinking milk from tuberculous cows, and in children the disease so acquired may not show active symptoms till between 12 and 20 years of age.

CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION

One of the earliest and most constant symptoms of Consumption is cough. In the growth of tuberculosis of the lungs, as well as elsewhere, little nodules or tubercles are formed. The pressure of these and the irritation caused by the secretion from the bacilli of tuberculosis upon the nerves of the lung is the reason of the cough. One coughs to try and get rid of some irritating particle. At first the cough is dry and hacking without any sputum because at first there is none to bring up. So don't make the mistake of disregarding a cough of this kind because no matter is coughed up.

After a while when the tubercles have caused a little bronchitis a small amount of mucus will be coughed up. At this time a microscopical examination of this may or may not show the bacilli causing the disease. Under the microscope these look like tiny little rods. Later there is a free secretion and the cough seems less annoying because a mouthful of secretion is brought up each time.

As the sputum increases in quantity it is at first white, then yellow, then grayish or greenish in color. As the disease progresses and cavities are formed the amount coughed up in a day may exceed one pint. Generally the patient coughs more when he gets up in the morning, and continues coughing till the lungs are cleared out. Others cough more when they lie down. All consumptive patients, unless they have learned better, cough too much. If one visits the sanitoria at Gravenhurst, London, Ottawa, or elsewhere one hears very little coughing. There are two reasons for this. One is that the patients live in the open air and the other is that they are taught to avoid coughing. The dry, hacking cough does harm to the sick lung, tires the muscles, and uses up the patient's vitality without doing any good. Where there is free secretion it is useful to cough it out, but this is easily accomplished.

Medical Officer of Health. A.C.C., Orillia.

Q.—Why cannot a municipal council dismiss its M.O.H., if the majority of the Council so decide?

A.—Previous to the enactment of Section 37 of the Public Health Act, which provides that a medical officer of health may not be removed from office except for cause and with the consent of the Provincial Board, it had become the custom in many municipalities to pass this office around among the local physicians year after year. Under this system there was no prospect of ever securing an efficient medical officer, and physicians appointed to this office bothered themselves very little about it, and in fact in most cases knew little about the duties of such an officer. By making the M. O. H. a permanent official, independent of local influence and politics, it was hoped to inspire in the appointee some interest in Public Health matters, which certainty of tenure in office was likely to do. For instance, the clerk or the treasurer of a municipality usually holds office indefinitely. Municipal councils have found out that this system has increased the efficiency of such officials; in fact, with the frequent change in the personnel of councils, the new members would be at sea without a clerk or treasurer who knew the routine of municipal affairs. The same is true in respect to sanitary matters, the most important of all municipal questions.

By an amendment (1916) the M. O. H. may, if he neglects his duties, be dismissed by the Provincial Board or by the Council on the recommendation of the Board. The idea of the Legislature was the promotion of efficient service to the municipality. Already its good effects are becoming apparent.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Which the Employees of All Railway Companies Might Follow.

It used to be tennis, or golf, or cricket, or something just for individual and personal pleasure; but that was before the war, and before, too, the extra hour of daylight.

Now we have changed all that, and the pioneers in a great movement, worthy of being followed by the staffs of railway companies all over the kingdom, are the various departments of the Metropolitan Railway, says London Answers.

A certain percentage had to stay at home. Railway trains, even if reduced in number, must be run, or else how could you and I get to and from business? But those who in the different departments were forced to remain, chafed at the actual doing nothing practical to help end the war, and their views reached the ears of the General manager of the "Met," Mr. R. H. Selbie, who formulated a splendid and comprehensive plan.

In making the "War Service Corps" known to every individual associated with the railway, he struck the right note in a personal letter, which said:

"You are aware that many of our men have given their lives in the country's service, and many more are fighting and enduring hardships for her sake, and I am sure there is no Metropolitan man or woman to-day who does not want to be able in years to come, in looking back on the war period, to feel that he or she has rendered some personal help in bringing the war to a successful conclusion."

The seven sections embrace useful work to the taste and capabilities of everyone, including a platoon attached to the Marylebone Volunteers—or some other regular volunteer regiment; munition work at Neasden Government factory, or at other places where suitable work can be obtained, the formation of a detachment of the Red Cross Society, to be attached to the Marylebone Division, for voluntary duty at London hospitals, and other work in connection with the transport of wounded soldiers; the formation of a market-garden at Wembley Park, for growing foodstuffs for distribution to naval and military hospitals; a rifle club; and last, but by no means least, a women's section.

It is the market-garden plan that met with the most hearty response of all.

The call of the fresh air and open country at Wembley Park brought at once from 100 to 150 railway workers to the spot.

The land is all virgin soil, and hard to dig. A man has to stand on his spade to get it well into the earth there, and it is ground that will grow vegetable produce to perfection.

It was on a certain Tuesday that the scheme went through, and by the following Saturday afternoon an acre and a quarter was ready for cultivation. "Spuds," cabbages, peas, beans, spinach, radishes, and, indeed, every kind of vegetable, will be grown there, and the delicious fresh produce goes direct to the naval and military hospitals.

The company gives the land—which is absolutely adjacent to the station—the tools, and the seeds and plants, and, what is more, free teas on Saturday afternoons to the free workers, when lady members of the staff attend and keep the merry urns bubbling to provide countless cheering cups.

Wounds and Infection.

The professional healer, like the professional fighter, has found that many of the things he learnt in South Africa he has had to unlearn in Flanders. Wounds seldom proved troublesome in the Boer War, because the South African veldt was almost virgin; but in Belgium and France, where the land has been cultivated for centuries, the gentle germ is always ready to enter the smallest wound and bring about tetanus and other diseases. At first the surgeons were in despair, fearing that our much-vaunted antiseptics were of no avail.

It required long search and experiment before methods of overcoming new difficulties could be discovered. Then, owing to the lavish use of high-explosive shells, wounds are more complicated and more difficult to keep clean, while the pointed bullet works more harm than the blunt one of the "good old days." Plenty of fresh air is found to work marvels, so there is at least one hospital in which the patients live practically in the open. It has also been found that wounds remain clean if water continually flows over them, so the clever surgeon has constructed little baths which fit over the wound, a supply of warm water impregnated with oxygen continually flowing through.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

What's In A Name?

Sometimes There is a Lot of Trouble

By F. A. MITCHEL

Caspar Knelbiltz's great-great-grandfather was a German. He was not a Prussian nor a warrior, but a Hanoverian and a professor. Indeed, the old fellow was a bookworm, who, if a fly had attacked the tip of his nose, would have been too absorbed in his studies to have defended himself. And if the fly had succeeded in arresting his attention he would not have injured the intruder for the world. He would have opened a window and put it out.

His son, Caspar, was called to the chair of a university in France. Thenceforth the family became French. The men, of course, kept the German surname, but by the time the fourth Caspar Knelbiltz came this was all the German there was about them. Not one of them could speak a word of German, and the third Knelbiltz had given his life for France in the war of 1870.

When Germany advanced into Belgium to seize Paris, Caspar Knelbiltz of the fourth generation, the hero of this story—if the word hero is a proper appellation—was twenty-one years old. He was only deterred from joining the colors by being so desperately in love with Hortense le Verrier that he was unable to tear himself away from her, though it must be admitted that if he had been able to master his own feelings sufficiently to leave her she would not have let him go.

For a Frenchman to have a German name accrued to his disadvantage as soon as the war broke out. Caspar Knelbiltz was at last driven to part with his beloved Hortense on this account. When others had joined the colors and Caspar remained at home it was suspected that the reason he did not go to the war was because of German sympathies. When he came to know of this suspicion he was much pained. He told Hortense that he must not listen to the voice of love any longer and at once began to make preparations to go to the front.

Of course he met with great opposition. Hortense was sure that she would never see him again and that her life would be blighted. He tried to reassure her, but in vain. However, since the suspicions of his countrymen that he was loyal to a country he had never seen and of whose language he did not know a word had been aroused his resolution was taken.

In order to make the separation easier for his sweetheart he promised to write her a letter every day that it would be possible for him to write. Another thing she insisted on which would not likely be possible was that after every battle, if he came out alive, he telegraph her to that effect. Caspar fully realized the crowded conditions of the telegraph lines, especially immediately after a battle, and that they were under control of the government, but he had not the heart to make it known to the girl, thus denying her this crumb of comfort. However, not knowing what possibilities might arise, he drew up a cipher code by which he might add a few endearing words of information concerning himself.

It was decided by the lovers that they would be married before a separation that might last forever. The ceremony was performed privately with few persons present. Within a week after its conclusion Caspar departed for the front.

While Caspar's loyalty to France was not questioned by those who knew him personally, his name at once excited suspicion in strangers. He had scarcely broken away from the clinging Hortense and gained his regiment before he began to be looked upon as a possible German sympathizer, though why he should be in the French army if he was loyal to Germany was not explained. Truth is that many a man loyal to France or England who had German blood in his veins experienced a like suspicion.

Caspar joined the army as a private and would have been promoted had it not been for his German name. Several times he distinguished himself, and officers immediately above him having been killed off, there were vacancies. But when it came to a question of filling them and Caspar was proposed his name caused his rejection.

"What! Lieutenant Caspar Knelbiltz to command Frenchmen? Impossible!"

Of course Caspar knew nothing of this; he only knew that when vacancies occurred he was not promoted. It did not trouble him, for his heart was with his dear Hortense, and all he desired was that the war should be ended and he might return to her.

As luck would have it, Caspar found a friend, an operator in the military telegraph department. One day when he was feeling very homesick Caspar went to the office and asked his friend to send a dispatch for him. No fighting was going on at the time, and the telegraph was not very busy, so the friend told the lover that if he would leave his message with him he would endeavor to smuggle it through between messages for the government. Caspar left his message, which the operator put on file without looking at it and when a convenient time for sending it arrived took it up for the purpose.

He was surprised to see that it was in cipher. Not feeling at liberty to send a cipher message, the operator laid it aside. When Caspar came again to inquired if it had been sent and was told that it was held because it was in cipher Caspar looked so disappointed and begged so hard that it be put over the wires that his friend promised to do so, though he feared trouble would result. Caspar assured him that there was nothing in the dispatch that would be of the slightest injury to France, and this turned the scale.

M. Larrabee, deputed to examine telegrams received in Paris, was sitting at his desk when an operator handed him Caspar's dispatch. The moment he read the name of the person to whom it was addressed and noticed that the message was in cipher his face assumed the expression of one who had unearthed an announcement to German sympathizers that Paris was about to be attacked by a hundred Zeppelins.

"Mille tonerres!" he exclaimed. "Has it come to this? Do the enemy send cipher messages to their spies in Paris over our telegraph lines? To Mme. Kneibilts, 21 Rue Pomponier. Could there be better evidence that this message is intended for one of the horde of German spies in our midst, who are watching our every act?"

Taking up a telephone receiver, he called up the officer in charge of the military telegraph and informed him of the message, stating that he did not doubt that it had been surreptitiously sent in the expectation that it would be delivered by some one in the telegraph department who was working secretly in the German interest. Colonel Bombardier, the officer telephoned, directed that the dispatch be sent to him and, after receiving and examining it, called a council of war to decide what to do in the premises.

When the council assembled experts in interpreting cipher telegrams were introduced and began the work of translating it. This was not easy to do, for it consisted in certain sentences which doubtless had a meaning for the receiver. However, the experts, not daring to acknowledge that they could make nothing of it, gave a possible translation, admitting that they could not vouch for its correctness. The meaning they placed upon it was that it announced a meeting of the German spies in Paris to receive one high in the German secret service.

Meanwhile Hortense was arrested and taken to Colonel Bombardier's office, where she was kept in an ante room awaiting the result of the work of the experts. In time she was called to face a marray of men who looked ready to send her to the gallows.

"Frau Knelbiltz," said the colonel, "do you speak French?"

"I don't speak any other language," was the meek reply.

"Do not try to deceive me. You are German, as your name indicates. A dispatch in cipher addressed to you has been intercepted. It is an announcement that an officer of high rank in the German secret service is coming to Paris to meet the spy corps in Paris."

This was said because if it were the true interpretation of the dispatch the young woman would likely collapse. She did no such thing. She simply looked at her accusers wonderingly.

"Who is Caspar?" asked the colonel severely.

"Monsieur, he is my husband. Has anything happened to him?" she asked, paling.

"You play your part well, but it will not serve."

"Have you a dispatch from him to me? Oh, give it to me!"

After a confession it was decided to read the dispatch aloud to her. The colonel began with the first sentence. "The weather is very fine," and asked her what it meant. She did not need the key to tell him; she knew it by heart.

"I am well," she replied.

The second sentence read was, "Yesterday it was hot."

Hortense, somewhat abashed, replied, "Sweetheart, I love you."

Again, "We are expecting cooler weather tomorrow."

"That means a thousand kisses," replied the bride, dropping her eyes to the floor.

"This climate is trying."

"I shall never see you again till France is victorious."

"The mud is very deep."

"Goodby, sweetheart. I shall love you forever."

Several of the men who had been impressed with Hortense's gentleness, honesty and, above all, that she was essentially French smiled. Colonel Bombardier's countenance assumed a shamefaced expression. He stood with the dispatch in his hand wondering what next to do.

"The case," said the colonel, maintaining an official tone, "will be better examined into by a woman. I shall send Mme. Knelbiltz to Mme. Leblanc, head of our woman's detective bureau, and if she reports favorably the prisoner will be discharged."

Mme. Leblanc, instead of assuming the pomposity of the officers, began by soothing the poor little bride and soon discerned that she was wrapped up in her husband and had no other concern. Hortense produced the cipher code, and Mme. Leblanc saw that every sentence in it was nothing more than a love message. Then she reported to Colonel Bombardier, who pigeonholed the matter.

When Hortense wrote an account of the affair Caspar Knelbiltz applied to his superior to be entered on the army roster as Charles Nightingale.

Ques.: "What does your pay-roll amount to?"

Ans.: "Oh, say $10,000 a month."

Ques.: "Quite a wad. Of course you insure it?"

Ans.: "Insure it? What's the idea Frank?"

Ques.: "Well—you see, you're paying out $120,000 a year. Now you insure your building, equipment, stock, etc., why not insure your pay-roll against loss—to you."

Ans.: "Ask me something easy. What's the point and what's the cost?"

Ques.: "The point is that your pay-roll represents your purchase of the greatest of all raw materials—WORKING TIME. Its subject to loss every day—four times a day—or every time your employees come in and go out of your plant."

Ans.: "Yes, but I employ a time-keeper."

Ques.: "Of course you do. But he's human. Who checks your time-keeper? And who checks the man who checks him? You need a cold-blooded machine for that job—so there will be no favorites or no mistakes."

Ans.: "There isn't any such machine."

Ques.: "Isn't there? Probably your keenest competitor to-day is using it and is just that much ahead of you. And it will cost you perhaps $3 a month to use it. I mean the International Time Recorder. It's the cheapest and best pay-roll insurance you can buy. Gives you printed, unchangeable, records, made under lock and key, that become your weekly pay-sheets. If you want real, inside facts and figures on the system exactly suited to your business write International Time Recording Co., corner McGill and Notre Dame streets, Montreal, or to their Head Office, Anderson Street, Toronto, for latest folders and prices."

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHE JEFFERSON, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice—it will be confidential.

GIVE GIFT OF FLOUR.

Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Patriotic Action.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.— J. A. Maharg, president of Saskatchewan Grain Growers, and J. B. Musselman, secretary, are making a formal presentation of a gift of flour from grain growers to His Royal Highness for the British Government. Arrangements are also being made with the Trade and Commerce Department for ocean transportation of the first shipment of three million two hundred thousand pounds.

OBSTACLES.

Do not let obstacles conquer you. Any one who rides a bicycle or runs a motorcar knows that the way to go straight and avoid obstacles is to look past them down the road. By looking at the obstacles one steers right into them in spite of oneself. So in life, when obstacles are ahead, one should look past them, keep the eye on the right road, and so run past and forward.

Light From Broken Crystals.

It has been noticed that a soft bluish light has occasionally been seen when a scoop was scraped across solidly caked sugar in the bin. Loose sugar does not show this glow, nor does granulated. The cause of the peculiar light is in the fracturing of the sugar crystals. Luminescence of this type accompanies the breaking of crystals of a number of different substances, but in none is more pronounced than in rock candy. To get the best effect place lumps of rock candy between the jaws of nutcrackers or forceps and suddenly crush the crystal to fragments. If the room has previously been darkened the flash of light may be seen at a distance of twenty yards.

A Mistake Somewhere.

"Is it true, Miss Gertie," he said, "that there are just two things a woman will jump at—a conclusion and a mouse?"

"No," she answered; "there is a third, Mr. Philip."

After thinking the matter over a few moments he tremblingly made her an offer, but she didn't jump at it. He was not the right man.

The Waist.

An imaginary line is the waist,
Which seldom stays long where it's placed,
But ambles and skips
'Twixt the shoulders and hips,
According to popular taste.

Holding the Form.

The newspaper humorist went courting. He stayed late, very late, so late that the old man called down to his daughter, "Phyllis, hasn't the morning paper come yet?"

"No, sir," answered the funny man, "we are holding the form for an important decision."

And the old man went back to bed wondering if they would keep house or live with him.

Beautiful Brands.

When lovely woman has her way
We'll see cigars named "new mown hay,"
And plug tobacco, some aver,
Will fairly reek of lavender.

Copper Came From Cyprus.

The word copper is generally admitted to be derived from Cyprus, as it was from that island that the ancient Romans first procured their supplies. In those remote days Cyprus and Rhodes were the great copper producing districts.

Dry Docking a Warship.

One of the operations a naval officer dislikes more than anything else is docking a big warship to undergo repairs. It is one of the most difficult tasks imaginable, and the slightest carelessness may mean damage done to the extent of some thousands of pounds. Before being floated into the dock the vessel is usually lightened of everything that can be easily taken from her, and then she is towed in by tugs. The greatest care has to be taken to get the huge mass to float in exactly its proper position so that, when the water is pumped out of the dock it will come to rest upon the keel blocks in such a way that its great weight is evenly distributed.

These big repairing docks, or graving docks, as they are usually called, are built in a series of steps so that they are much narrower at the bottom than at the top. These steps give support to the balks of timber which keep the vessel upright. A float, called a "marker," is used to show that the battleship is in its right position before the water is drained away. Any miscalculation and the vessel might heel over, and there is no stopping a 25,000-ton ship when it begins doing that.

Eskimo Games.

In the matter of amusements the Eskimo are not badly off. They have a form of the cup-and-ball game played there, the ball being a block of ivory with holes at different angles, into which one of the players strives to insert an ivory peg as the block falls, the position of the hole determining the value of the stroke.

Another game closely resembles dominoes, while, when they can borrow or purchase a pack of cards, the more intelligent of them will play with considerable skill; and they enjoy draughts, having learned these games from the whalers. They also have a game exactly like solitaire, with the exception that ivory pegs take the place of glass balls.

The special amusement of the women is a species of "cat's cradle," which has been brought to such perfection that they develop from the string twenty to thirty different figures in it. Indeed, they are extremely clever in performing tricks with string, winding and twisting a piece in and out among their fingers, and then disentangling it by a single pull on one end.

Like Courting a Junk Dealer.

"She wears too much jewelry."

"Think so?"

"I do. No fun to hold a hand like that. You can get the same sensation by holding a handful of curtain rings and a wrist watch."

Time Changes Some.

"On hay rides, dear, I used to dote,"
Said dainty Daisy Green,
"But now I'd rather have you tote
Me in your limousine."

PATRIOTISM

Patriotism, like Charity, should begin at home. The man who is willing at any time to protect his country against foreign foes should be willing AT ALL TIMES to protect his Family against such common foes as Poverty, Privation and Suffering.

A Life Insurance Company cannot take the place of a Husband.

BUT—

It can preserve the family from want.
It can lighten their load of care.
It can build a barrier against adversity.
It can strengthen the foundation of the home.
It can certify to a man's affectionate regard for his family.
It can place his widow beyond the need of carrying for support.
It can add to a man's years by freeing him from anxiety.
It can enhance the respect and esteem of the public and of his wife and children for him.

Complete and absolute Family protection may be had by your taking a policy in THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA—The LEADING CANADIAN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

HOW TWO MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF PARLIAMENT BUILDIN G WALLS WERE DESTROYED.—This shows the exceedingly elaborate and expensive scaffolding that was constructed that the Ottawa Parliament Buildings Walls might be pulled down. The contractor said the walls were worth two millions, but so that an entirely new building may be erected, these have now been pulled down. Above picture was taken recently when the walls were in an early stage of demolition.

CARE OF CLOTHES.

Never leave your suits or dresses lying on a chair or on the bed rail, but put a hanger in them the minute you take them off. It is simply a matter of habit, and it is just as easy to learn to slip a hanger into your coat and put it in the closet at once as it is to throw it on a chair, to hang up later. Creases and wrinkles wear out the cloth, and the only way to keep your clothes free of wrinkles is to hang them up when you remove them.

Shoes, too, retain their shape much longer if trees are kept in them. You can always tell the shoes which are neglected by their wrinkled, shapeless look. It is a matter of a moment or two to slip shoe trees into your boots when you take them off, and this will prevent the leather from relaxing. Footgear which has no acquaintance with shoe trees usually splits and cracks just twice as quickly as the well cared for variety. If you will rub a little vaseline into your shoes when new it will prevent the damp and wet from splitting the leather.

When your tailored skirts become wet from the rain do not let them stay wrinkled, but press them with a hot iron before they become dry. By the way, it is a real economy to invest in a good, durable raincoat, because it will protect your suits and frocks to a great extent and will actually save you money.

A Foolish Notion.

"The critics say the last act of our play falls flat," remarked the manager.

"Hum," said the "angel," "can't you put in a few of those 'props' I hear you theatrical people talking so much about?"

A Serious Predicament.

"How can he afford to keep an automobile?"

"He can't, but he has to keep one to prevent people from finding out that he is too hard up to afford it."

He Learned the Lesson.

"Tommy, you should not fight with that Jinglets boy."

"I know it, ma."

"That's right."

"But I didn't know it before I hit him."

Not Quite Symmetrical.

"There are invariably two sides to an argument," remarked the parlor philosopher.

"Which is all the more remarkable when you consider that there is only one end," said the mere man.

Needs Prodding.

"It is a great mistake, Mabel, to trifle with the affections of a maid who loves you by encouraging some one else."

"Well, he's a little slow, auntie. I think he needs a pacemaker."

WONDERFUL BILIOUS REMEDY ACTUALLY PREVENTS ATTACKS

There are two great causes of biliousness.—they are constipation and defective liver action.

Quite unlike ordinary medicines, which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the conditions which cause biliousness, and thus permanent cures are effected. No person who occasionally uses Dr. Hamilton's Pills will ever suffer from the headache, bad stomach or bilious complaint. Get a 25c. box today.

ROMANCE OF GOLD.

How Greaves Sought Water and Found Gold.

For thirty years the memory of a piece of gold-studded ore haunted Richard Greaves, a famous West Australian prospector, who has died lately. It was in Western Australia where he arrived in 1885, that "Dick" Greaves allowed the gold fever into his veins. For two years after his arrival he prospected, off and on, for gold before its existence was definitely known in the State. He brought £600 in cash to Western Australia, and the greater part of that money was spent in prospecting work. It was a sample of stone, named Beare's stone, that sent him on his wanderings. He was shown the stone, among others, shortly after his arrival in the State, and he tested it, and thereupon decided to find Beare and locate the place where the stone could be obtained. He never found Beare, nor did he find any more of Beare's stone.

To find gold in any stone, however, Greaves and his companion, Ted Paine, went out on their lonely prospecting trips. Success was denied them on several expeditions, but in October, 1887, they were rewarded, for in that month they discovered the first gold.

The story of the great find is simple, and, told in his own words, is as follows: "As water was getting scarce, and the country very dry, our work on that trip became a quest for water instead of gold. We got to a clay pan, but the water was thick and slimy. We had to set to and pull the dead kangaroos out. We decided to leave the dray and take the horses and test the country round. It was the best bit of country we had seen for prospecting, and so we struck it. Ted Paine struck a floater with a speck of gold in it. To find where it came from was the next move. On October 22nd I came upon the reef, and we took a lot of stone out with gold hanging to it." From that beginning the mining industry sprang into first-rate importance.

The only known copy of the prospectus issued by Robert Burns with a view to obtaining subscriptions for a proposed volume of poems—the now world-famous Kilmarnock edition, published in 1786—was sold recently at Sotheby's for £275 ($1,375).

Many autograph letters and other relics of the Scotch poet were disposed of. The trustees of the Burns cottage purchased for £85 ($490) an autograph letter to John McMurdoch, Chamberlain to the Duke of Queensberry.

Among the other Burns relics were an autograph poem "Sketch," for £88 ($490); an autograph letter to George S. Sutherland, playwright, for £200 ($1,000); the first draft of an "election ballad" for £220 ($1,100), and an autograph letter to "Dr. Moore, London," introducing a Mr. Nelson, for £150 ($750).

A first edition of "The Vicar of Wakefield," by Goldsmith, brought £80 ($400) at the sale. A first edition of "Waverley, or 'Tis Sixty Years Since," by Sir Walter Scott, in three volumes, sold for £150 ($750), and a collection of other first editions of his novels brought £120 ($600).

Slackers!

'Tis leap year and old bachelors
Thrilled with the dread alarms,
But so far none of them has heard
A Cupid's "call to arms."

Candid Impression.

Little Pitchers—I won't let my cat get at you, mister.

Visitor—I'm not afraid of cats, son. Why do you think I am?"

Little Pitchers—I thought you might be, because I heard pa tell ma you had rats.

Fatal.

He kissed her rosy lips,
[illegible] them in a frolic.
Ah, 'twas a dear, dear kiss,
For he died of painter's colic.

Curse of Mongoose on Island.

Jamaica is among the countries which have learned that man cannot with impunity interfere with the balance of nature. To keep down the rats, which did so much mischief in the sugar cane fields, the mongoose was imported in 1872.

He thrived and did what was expected of him with regard to the rats. But he then passed on to the snakes, lizards, small birds, turtle eggs, domestic poultry and their eggs, and ground provisions, until it became at least doubtful whether he had not done more harm than good. And the scale in favor of harm was decidedly tipped by the portentous increase in ticks, which had previously been kept within bounds by some of the creatures which the mongoose set himself to slay.

Two Kitchener Stories.

Lord Kitchener's rule in India was marked by one of his most salient characteristics—the habit of committing as little as possible to paper. To give an order by word of mouth he would wire to a general to travel a two days' journey to see him. When he arrived, ten minutes' conversation, a curt farewell, and the dreaded interview was over. Thus did he successfully circumvent the constant spying around him.

The famous soldier did not encourage autograph seekers. He is said to have made the following reply to one request for his signature: "Young man, make your own autograph worth something; mine's worth nothing."

A Brave Rescue.

The story of a plucky rescue by two Canadian soldiers was told at an inquest recently at Folkestone, Eng. James Andrews and Herbert Graham, both members of a machine gun unit from Hamilton, Ont., were rowing off shore when a boat capsised nearby, throwing its six occupants into the water. At great risk the Canadians took three of the six into their boat, although the craft was very light. A local boat inspector testified that it was wonderful that any of the party reached land and the jury expressed appreciation of the prompt help given by the Canadians.

Exactly.

Wife: "If fashion makes our dresses any shorter I don't know what we'll do!"

Husband: "I do; you'll wear them.

Fat and Thin.

The two women encountered each other at a dance. They had not met for several years.

"How thin you have grown!" exclaimed one.

"How fat you've got to be!" the other cried, and they stood gazing at each other in some dismay.

"Before you come to blows," remarked a mutual friend who stood by, "let's take a vote as to which is worse, to get too fat or to get too thin."—Exchange.

Valuable Advice.

"You are always asking me for advice, but you never seem to take any that I give."

"I know it. You see, I am frequently in doubt before I consult you as to what is the best thing not to do."

Trouble Ahead.

Young Husband (to wife)—Didn't I telegraph to you not to bring your mother with you?

Young Wife—I know. That's what she wants to see you about. She read the telegram.

A Harsh Order.

On the beach near an English town a sign bearing this legend was nailed to a post:

"Notice.—Any person passing beyond this point will be drowned. By order of the magistrate."

Natural Mineral Wax.

Ozocerite is a natural mineral wax, found originally oozing in small quantities from rocks of the coal formation. It has been discovered in Moldavia and Galicia and is used chefly in candle making.

Opposites.

Madge—So you consider it an ideal match? Marjorie—Yes; he has money, and she knows how to spend it.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hinz, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESSING SACQUE AND CAP.

By Anabel Worthington.

Miladi who demands the very latest in a dressing sacque will give this one more than a wink of welcome. It is an ideal style for the woman who prefers the dressing sacque to the negligee. The smart collar gives a variation of the mode and lends distinction with a frill of edging to complete its charm; this trimming is repeated on the roll cuffs. Figured and plain material contrast beautifully in this model; of course the material chosen will decide the richness of the garment. The peplum is the noteworthy feature. The cap is of material that forms the collar and has a ruffled front edge banded with silk and ribbon rosettes to decorate the sides.

To make like the illustration in size 36 will require for sacque and cap 2¼ yards of figured material and 1 yard of plain in 36 inch width; 4 yards edging and 2¼ yards ribbon for cap. Of one kind of material you will need 3 yards in 36 inch width. To obtain the pattern send to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Stupendous Artillery Struggle Being Waged On The Western Front

Allied Armies Direct a Thirty Mile Horseshoe of Solid Artillery Fire---The Curving Line of Fire Extends From The French Positions Before Clery North of the Somme to St. Quentin---Bombardment in the Neighbourhood of Verdun---Russian Forces Advance Despite Stubborn Enemy Resistance.

FORCED A CROSSING

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN THE SOMME, August 16. — A thirtymile horseshoe of solid artillery fire, one of the most terrific shell blastings in the history of the world, is drawing a line of flame along the Somme battle front. The stupendousness of this great artillery struggle is indescribable. The curving line of fire extends from the French positions before Clery, north of the Somme, to St. Quentin, thence south to the region of Peronne and southwest to Barleu, Estrees, and Coyecourt. Shells of all calibres, both shrapnel and high explosives, are bursting at every instant at every point along the entire front with rapidity which defied counting.

Equally impressive as this thirty-mile unbroken semi-circle of artillery fire was the thirty-mile horseshoe of French observation. Sausage balloons were overhanging at a great height along the entire battle front. Their wireless instruments were directing the French fire. At the same time innumerable French aeroplanes darted in and out among the sausages crossing and recrossing the German lines every minute.

Yet, despite this great activity of the French air forces, not a single German aeroplane appeared, either for the purpose of chasing back the French, attacking the French sausages, or for reconnoitring. Likewise not a single German sausage was visible to offset the unbroken thirty-mile semi-circle of twenty-six French sausages, which I was able to count. Nothing could give a more vivid impression of the Allies undisputed mastery and superiority in the air.

Several Minor Attacks Were Dispersed By The French

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, August 16.—(French Official)—German reconnoitring parties were dispersed by the French in the Champagne last night, the War Office announced to-day.

The night was generally calm on the entire front. Northwest of Verdun bombardments occurred on the sectors of Thiaumont, Fiery, Vaux and Chapitre.

German aeroplanes bombarded the fortress town of Belfort, but there were no victims.

Deutschland Has Not Been Heard of Since August 2nd

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, August 16.—The German merchant submarine Deutschland has not been heard from since she cleared the Virginia Capes on the night of August 2, the Times learned from reliable marine sources today. Sixteen days were required for the Deutschland to cross the Atlantic on her trip to Baltimore.

The fact that fourteen days have elapsed and she has not been heard from, indicates that she has been compelled to take a roundabout course to avoid British and French warships, if she has not met with a mishap.

Russian Troops Capture A Number of Positions

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 16.—Despite stubborn enemy resistance at some points the Russians advanced their lines on a seventy-mile front from the Carpathians to a point southwest of Tarnopol in yesterday's fighting, occupying two villages. South of Brzezany another Russian detachment forced a crossing of the Zlota Lipa River.

Austrian Trenches Captured By The Italian Troops

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ROME, August 16.—Italian troops captured Austrian trenches on the slopes of Monte Pecinka, south of Goritz, and in the neighbourhood of Scatina and San Marco, taking three hundred and fifty three prisoners, it was officially announced to-day.

SCOUTS THANKS FOR SOX HE RECEIVED

Under date of July 22nd, 1916, Gunner Robert Brotherstone, writing at the front to Mrs. Thos. McQuillan expresses his gratitude for gift of socks as follows.

Somewhere in Belgium.

I have a little spare time, so I am writing a few lines thanking the ladies of the West End Knitting Club for the socks I received last week. And many thanks for the same.

I remain,
Gr. ROBT BROTHERSTONE

Conditions Have Been Remedied

Special to The Examiner:

CAMP BORDEN, Aug. 16.—Regarding complaints that bread supplied soldiers here was muddy and unfit for use, Gen. Logie has issued a statement that he some time ago looked into such complaints and since that date the bread has been very good.

COMPLETE CHANGE IN LIQUOR REGULATIONS NOW BEING FORECAST

Druggists Will Get Orders From Provincial Board---This is Taken to Mean That Action Will Be Held Up Pending Govt. Decision

IMPORTANT ALTERATION

That the Ontario Government may be contemplating a swepeing alteration in the regulations governing the sale of liquor throughout the province, and that the proposed prohibition law may not become effective on September 16, as originally planned, is the consensus of opinion of hotelmen and druggists in this city.

This opinion, by the druggists, is based on the fact that printed regulations, supposed to have been mailed to all druggists six weeks ago, have not yet arrived. The Ontario College of Pharmacy assumed the responsibility at first of sending the regulations and some weeks ago notified the druggists throughout the province that the printed forms would reach them in a few days. Since that time the Ontario license board has arranged to take over itself the forwarding of circulars to druggists. The report of this action has been confirmed by a letter received to-day by a local druggist from the Ontario College of Pharmacy, stating that the license board would attend to the mailing of circulars, as the matter was out of the college hands.

Taking No Action.

The hotelmen of the city, as far as can be ascertained, are taking no action toward the taking out of "standard" hotel licenses, and the fact that the Ontario Government is not pressing the matter on them in any way looks to them, in the words of one hotel proprietor, "like the preliminaries to a backdown by the Ontario Government on the whole issue."

"Another thing that leads me to believe that at least the Government will compromise on a beer and wine license is the fact that the Government has practically endorsed Norris in the South-West Toronto by-election, and he supports the beer and wine license idea," continued the speaker.

One of the druggists asked for an explanation as to why the Government had not sent out the circulars that were supposed to have been mailed six weeks ago, said: "To me it looks like the Government is facing a dilemma on the issue, and hardly knows what course to finally adopt, but I believe it will yet make a sweeping revision to the regulations and modify them to a great extent."

One hotelman offered to wager $100 that prohibition throughout Ontario would not go into effect on September 16, as announced. He believed some change would take place, but not prohibition.

PORTUGAL WILL SEND SOLDIERS TO PICARDY

Republic on Verge of Larger Co-operation With Entente Allies in Western Europe—Announcement of President Machado

LONDON, August 16.—"Portugal is on the verge of larger cooperation in the world war. She is taking thorough stock of her available military and naval resources with a view of not only further strengthening her ancient alliance with Britain, but with the idea of becoming a considerable factor in the broader arrangements of the Entente.

Dr. Bernardino Machado, President of the Republic of Portugal, made the above announcement of Portugal's future war policy in Lisbon yesterday in an interview.

"In accordance with well-understood conventions between the two Governments," he said, "the military participation of Portugal in the Anglo-Portuguese alliance heretofore has been confined to operations in Anglo-Portuguese East Africa, where at this moment our splendidly-equipped troops are engaged along thinly-held but long and difficult front.. Our help now is asked in the campaign on the western European front. Portugal is ready to undertake whatever measures are necessary to convince the Entente of our sincerity and persistence.

"Our troops will take the field in France at the precise moment the British, French and Portuguese General Staffs decide Portuguese aid is necessary to exert the maximum pressure.

USE OWN MONEY AND RESOURCES.

"Our military efforts in Europe will be made with our own money and our own resources as a nation. Britain has agreed to loan us whatever sums are necessary. Portugal is prepared to wage war in the most modern manner. We are to purchase British-made munitions at current prices, the same as France and Russia have done. We have arranged a compresensive plan of campaign.

"Until Britain requisitioned the German ships taken in our ports, after Germany's declaration of war, their rental was affording Portugal an income of $900,000 monthly. Money borrowed from Britain at current rates of interest will be repaid within two years after peace is signed. This means an indemnity and a foreign loan. Funds borrowed from Britain during the continuance of the war will be expended in allied countries only."

"Does that mean the purchase of war materials from neutral countries will be discontinued?" he was asked.

"Purchase of war materials in neutral countries, such as the United States and Spain, will continue as before," said President Machado.

Letter From Private Sandys

MILITARY NEWS

Mrs. James Head, 282 Aylmer street has received the following interesting letter from her brother Pte. Robert H. Sandys of the 93rd Battalion, C.E.F. The letter in part reads as follows:

My Dear Sister,—This has surely been some trip but we are getting settled down again once more. We had another medical examination here and about ninety men were turned down. We are to have two more, one in France and another one before we go into the trenches. We are doing lots of drilling now including bayonet fighting bomb throwing and trench digging. There are lots of flying machines here and you can hear the boom of the guns on the firing line which is only about ninety miles distant.

We have lots of hard work here If you make a wrong move you are put in the guardhouse. It is all business and they enforce it. Please send me some tobacco. It is awful dear here. Your loving Brother,

17 Applications For New Licenses

License Inspector Joseph Stewart Has Received the Papers From All Local Hotels and Three From the Country—The Long Drought Begins Month from To-day.

AT LEAST IT MAY BE LONG

Seventeen applications for standard license hotels have passed through Inspector Stewart's office to the department. This number comprises the present eleven licensed hotels in the city, three non-license hotels, the Oriental, Montreal House and Maple Leaf, and three rural houses, two at Young's Point and one at Buckhorn.

The application for a standard license for the Palace Hotel, Mr. Fred Blastorah, proptietor, was filed by the owner of the property, Mrs. B. Roach of Toronto.

This is another step toward the liquor license armageddon of September 16th. Another month and the hotels will not even be permitted to give any residue stock away. Then begins the long drought, or what has been heralded as a drought, though some are skeptical of the smooth passage of the water waggon. They assert that it is likely to spring a leak or cast a wheel before it has begun to lose its way in the desert. However uncertain the distant future may be, it is assured that the bars will bloom in whiter array after this day month.

Ottawa Bank Changes Quarters

After occupying their old premises, near the corner of George and Hunter streets, since 1905, the Bank of Ottawa has removed farther down the street, to 336 George street, next to Denne's Feed Store.

The new premises are larger than the older ones and the building itself is of a different and more up-to-date style. The new bank quarters have been outfitted with the most modern fixtures and everything has been done by the local manager, Mr. Arthur F. Knight, to give the new bank quarters their usually attractive appearance. The new marble front, consisting of a varied antique green, gives the Bank a most pleasing appearance and has been favorably commented upon.

Figures For the Month of July Show Steamboat Trade to be Brisk—Over 17,000 Passengers Handled.

FREIGHT SHIPMENTS

The George Street Wharf was a busy spot during the month of July, and figures to hand show that the crowds which left Peterborough behind and which arrived here during the month make up a grand total of 17,350 souls. The number of steamers, including passenger boats, tugs, etc., was 130. Added to this forty-four scows were snubbed up at the new wharf during July.

Freight which made its way into the local wharfingers' hands totalled 150 tons. The live stock consignment consisted of eighty hogs, most of whom made their way up from Harwood per steamer Rainbow and barge. Added to this, 50,000 feet of lumber made its way to and from the new wharf.

The tugs of the various lumbering firms brought to the city 810 cords of wood to be handled and shipped from here.

The new wharf traffic register also contains an item of 2,500 bushels of grain, which includes both what was exported and imported to and from the city.

A Busy Season.

These figures, the compilation of one month of wharf traffic, emphasizes the importance of this city as a navigation centre and the extent of the trade carried on by our steamboats during the navigation season.

FARMERS GET A BIG PRICE FOR CHEESE AT SALE

18½ Cents Paid by Buyers This Morning for 2,222 Boxes---Offering Was Well Divided.

ADJOURN FOR THREE WEEKS

AUG. 16—2,222 BOXES AT 18½c.
Aug. 2—2,808 boxes at 17¾c.
July 19—2,609 boxes at 16½c.
July 5—2,869 boxes at 15⅞c.
June 21—2,772 boxes at 16c.
May 30—2,086 boxes at 16 5/16c.

To-day's supply of cheese was partitioned among the buyers more evenly than at recent sales when individual buyers usually loaded up with the entire offering. Mr. Cook, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Free, and Mr. Gillespie all had a piece of to-day's cheese, and at 18½ cents paid an exceptionally high price. From the above figures it will be noted that not only has the price been steadily increasing, but the production is growing lighter with the advancement of the season.

The factories boarded as follows this morning:

Shearer	160
Keene	75
Warminster	100
Selwyn	105
Villiers	75
Warsaw	145
Westwood	195
Oakdale	90
Missing Link	75
Myrtle	160
Ormonde	100
Young's Point	141
Lang	135
East Emily	110
Treewern	135
Mt. Pleasant	55
Norwood	195
Fleetwood	90
Killarney	91
	2222

The Bidding.

Mr. Gillespie opened at 17 cents; Cook ⅛, Gillespie 3/16, Free ¼, Cook ⅜, Gillespie 7/16, Thompson ½, Cook ⅝, Morton ¾, Gillespie 13-16, Morton ¼, Gillespie 15/16, Free 18c, Gillespie 1/16, Cook ⅛,

Mr. Cook secured Westwood, Villiers, Ormonde, Norwood.

Mr. Cook offered 18 1/16 cents for further, but Mr Thompson jumped in with 18⅛ getting the next call as follows: Warminster, Selwyn, Warsaw, Young's Point, Treewern.

Mr. Free, at the same price, secured Keene, Shearer, Lang, Myrtle, Missing Link, Mount Pleasant.

Mr. Gillespie offered 18⅛ cents for the balance of the Board, buying East Emily, Fleetwood, Killarney, Oakdale.

The Board adjourned for three weeks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Representatives of the four hundred thousand disaffected trainmen to-day formally voted in favour of going to Washington to confer with President Wilson. No other action was taken.

TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH SECURES A SOPRANO SOLOIST

A notable addition to the musical fraternity of Peterborough is brought about my the appointment of Miss Lysla Taylor as soprano soloist of Trinity Methodist Church. Miss Taylor is an accomplished musician and holds the degree of L.T.C.M. She taught for several years in the Regina College Conservatory of Music, and studied under Dr. Hodgson, assistant conductor of the famous Sheffield Choir.

Miss Taylor's singing has already become deservedly appreciated in Trinity Church, and she will open a studio at the J. M. Greene Music Co. on September 1st for vocal and piano teaching. Appointment may be made prior to that date at the Y.M.C.A.

SOUTH END AUXILIARY RED CROSS SOCIETY

1,574 swabs, 1,114 face cloths, 823 many-tailed bandages, 44 ring pillows, 219 pairs of socks, 37 chin bandages, 2,600 compresses, 1,360 mouth wipes, 202 night shirts, 86 pairs of slippers, 845 rolled bandages, 5 doz. towels.

During the year the Society has received:

By donation	$134.22
By box and tea collection	96.71
Total for year	230.93

The work rooms have been closed until Sept. 6, 1916, when the work will be resumed and a full attendance of the members and all others is requested.

Tea will be served at our opening meeting.

UNDERDRAINING SUCCESS.

A farmer of Sidney township, Mr. Jas. Clapper, has a field of fall wheat some stalks of which have reached a height of over fifty inches. He has nineteen acres in to fall wheat and the outlook for a magnificent crop is good. The land is all underdrained, and the benefit of this is very evident this season.

A QUEEN ELECTION.

This is a wonderfully free country. One can think as he likes, do as he likes—within limits—and vote as he likes, especially in the bye-election in South-West Toronto. Here there are four candidates in the field, and not one of them for the government or "agin the government." A good many of the electors have the habit of voting for the government candidate if the government is Tory, but they won't be conformed in the habit by the present election, for there is no government candidate except Mr. Morris, who declares himself against the government on the very issue upon which Premier Hearst welcomes and endorses his candidature. It doesn't look as if the south-east Toronto by-election will settle and influence the fortunes of any great question. Whoever is returned will likey be a supporter of the Hearst government. Even if Mr. Norris, president of Ward Six Conservative Association is elected on the platform of the opposition to prohibition, he will probably meekly fall in line when the division bell rings, if he ever gets in hearing distance of it, and make as useless a representative as the straw members of the other seven constituencies.

NICKEL.

A despatch to-day states that the Hearst government is considering a proposal to increase the taxation upon the nickel industry of Ontario. Such a proposal would have been creditable some time ago, but to-day, when the nickel situation is very much to the fore, it is to be regarded as trifling with a very important national interest. The government should not waste its time by considering petty expedients to make petty additions to the provincial revenue, but should be taking steps leading to giving Ontario the full benefits from the possession of her vast nickel resources. By providing for the refinement of nickel in Ontario, or at least, in Canada, the government would be adding millions to the financial resources of the Province, where, by a little taxation leger-de-main, it is adding hundreds, in the form of increased taxation. Canadian nickel permitted to be exported in a practically crude state, to a foreign country, yields millions of profits to a foreign refining company. Every cent of this profit should be kept in Canada, in the interests of labour and the incidental interests associated with it. This could be done by providing for refining our nickel at home, and preventing its export. It is claimed by those interested in the welfare of the nickel trust that preventing export would deprive the United States munition factories of necessary material for their work which is so important to the allies. This is only an excuse. If we refined the nickel couldn't these plants get the nickel from us? And, besides, a despatch received this morning states the British Government announces that it has about reached the point where Britain can provide all the munitions required by herself and her allies. There may be difficulties in providing for the export of nickel ores. But governments are created to overcome difficulties. If the Provincial and the Dominion governments cooperated wholeheartedly the prohibition could be brought about, and it only needs a little honest effort to procure the refinement of nickel in Canada. The capital seems to be less wanting than the will, and we have assurance that Great Britain will stand behind such an enterprise. Canada for the Canadians, and especially the full benefit, commercial and military, of Canada's possession of a virtual monopoly of nickel resources should be the aim of our governments and people. Heretofore, Canada has, by her attitude to nickel been supplying the Germans, our deadly enemies, and it is easily possible that there are returned Canadian soldiers bearing wounds inflicted by Canadian nickel, in munitions fired by the Germans, and procured through the International Nickel Company, supplied by our supine and complacent governments, with the raw material.

PURSUING SIR SAM.

Sir Sam, Canadian Minister of Militia, and, as he himself claims, commander-in-chief of the Canadian forces here and overseas, is in the old country, and his enemies, as they did last spring, are consentrating their attacks upon him, and he may have to come home hurriedly to defend his menaced portfolio. La Presse of Montreal, has a story that to-day and to-morrow, Sir Robert Borden, who has returned to Ottawa from his holidays, will be waited upon by "embarassing" delegations who will demand Sir Sam's official head. It is stated that this delegation will be composed of the representatives of Hamilton, Kingston, London and Toronto, and representatives of Conservative associations. They will demand Sir Sam's dismissal, and it is reported will demand an answer on the spot, or there will be wigs on the green—they will lead a crusade against the government that keeps Sir Sam as Minister of Militia. This story may be a pipe dream of the silly season, or it may have something in it. Sir Sam has of late been losing prestige. The Ross Rifle has gone back on him and Sir Robert Borden has plucked up the courage during the minister's absence to deplume two notable honourary officers that Sir Sam has delighted to honour—an honourary captain and an honourary colonel, the latter no less than the great Col. Wesley Allison. There is to be construed as a direct blow to the prestige of Sir Sam. Col. Allison was a special pet of his, and it is held to be largely due to Sir Sam's protection that Allison was enabled to put his finger pretty deep into the munitions pie and pull out a plum of $250,000. It seems the courage is lacking to make a frontal attack on Sir Sam, and he is to be weakened indirectly. Sir Sam has complained that he has been the object of attacks by political enemies. While these have not been entirely idle, Sir Sam has had the severest, the most persistent, criticism from the journals of his own party. No "Grit" newspaper, the most rancourous, has said as hard things about him as some good "Tory" journals, and now that his fellow members of Parliament are on his trail, he had better watch out. While these patriotic members seem anxious to protect the interests of Canada by deposing an objectionable Minister of Militia, they might do some greater service if they tried to remove the greatest obstacle to military efficiency in Canada; to army strengthening; the greatest obstruction to recruiting—especially in Quebec—by demanding the removal of the Nationalist influence in the Borden cabinet, an influence that represets the greatest hindrance to recruiting, the greatest hindrance to Canada's most effective contribution to the Canadian resources of war. Sir Sam has borne up against a good deal of hostile criticism, and it remains to be seen, if there is anything in La Presse story, how he will meet the enmity of his own familiar friends, of his parliamentary colleagues and party associates.

PREVENTING FOREST FIRES.

Five years ago there were great forest fires in Northern Ontario, with loss of property and with still more terrible loss of life and suffering.

The air was filled with cries of reform. People said: "This must never happen again. The forest around towns and villages must be cut down so that no settlement could endangered by a forest fire. There must be a better system of fire-ranging. Settlers must be prevented from starting fires."

Now, after a lapse of five years, we have a repetition of the horrors of 1911. In the meantime, has anything been done? Were there any better precautions in 1916 than there were in 1911? Evidently not. Cochrane was burned down a second time, with terrible loss of life and harrowing tales of suffering. This could not have happened if the forest surrounding Cochrane had been cleared.

Has the system of fire-ranging been improved? Are there more experts engaged in the work now than there were five years ago? There is no evidence of it. Patronage is still rampant, and the word of a member of the Legislature counts for more than experience.

The question has not been handled in a masterly way. Fire in Northern Ontario is regarded very much as small-pox used to be regarded long ago—as a sort of visitation of Providence, which it was almost wicked to fight in a vigorous way. We need men who will handle the fire danger in New Ontario as Dr. Hastings handles disease in Toronto—men who will say that such disasters as those of 1911 and 1916 can be prevented and must be prevented.—Toronto Star.

AN IRISH TRAIT.

There is no nation in the world that will respond more warmly than the Irish to an appeal made in terms of generosity and sympathetic confidence; none that the note of suspicion and coercion must more inevitably alienate. Let us remember the great saying of Burke, himself one of Ireland's sons, that "magnanimity in politics is not seldom the truest wisdom."—London Chronicle.

COMMERCIAL SIGNIFICANCE OF CANADIAN TRADE RETURNS

The official statement of Canadian trade for the fiscal year ended March 31st last shows that exports exceeded imports by $234,000,000, the former amounting to $741,610,000, representing exports of Canadian merchandise alone and imports amounting to $507,783,000. Deducting from the $234,000,000 a sum of $187,000,000, representing our annual interest charges payable in Great Britain and the United States, there was a favourable balance of $47,000,000, which is increased by $38,000,000, representing exports of foreign merchandise, thus making the trade balance favourable to the extent of $85,000,000. The exports of Canadian merchandise last year increased 81.1 per cent. and of foreign merchandise, 58 per cent. Imports during the past year decreased 17.9 per cent. when compared with the figures for 1914, but show an increase of 11.5 per cent. compared with the statistics for 1915.

These figures give rise to some apprehension. As pointed out recently by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, it is no longer necessary to import costly tools for the manufacture of munitions of war, as our plants are now well equipped. Of the material that enters into the making of a shell it is not necessary to import more than 5 per cent., and to fill other orders placed in Canada it may be necessary to import raw material on a limited scale, but allowing generously for all requirements that urgency justifies there still remains a large volume of imports that come within the non-essential of undesirable class, a fact which indicates that national economy is not as great as it ought to be.

An examination of the details of our imports lends colour to that view. The Canadian purchases abroad of jewellery, for instance, during the past year, were reduced only from $899,000 to $689,000. Imports of $594,000 to $563,000. Imports of pomades while accounting for but a comperfumery declined only from bled last year. We imported also many articles which were made in this country equally as well as in foreign markets. With all the fresh fruits which Canada grows, preserved and canned fruits were purchased from abroad to the extent of nearly $500,000, togethe: with $6,700,000 worth of green fruits. Despite the fact that our fisheries last year gave an output valued at about $31,000,000, with more in the sea awaiting capital and labour, still we imported fish valued at $1,378,000. Is any great part of the favourable trade balance due to a national movement for economy or is the changing situation due almost entirely to the large war orders placed here and which in time will cease to be received and to the higher value rather than the greater volume of exports?—Monetary Times.

OUTPUT OF ONT. MUNITION PLANTS FALLING BEHIND

Provincial Resources Committee Presents Appeal for Increased and Steady Supply of Shells

"The deliveries of munitions from Ontario are running far behind the quantities promised, and we are seriously apprehensive if the existing conditions cannot be bettered."

Such is the statement of the Imperial Munition Board to the Provincial Organization of Resources Committee, which has been conducting a preliminary investigation into labor conditions in munition plants in Toronto, Hamilton and other Ontario cities.

This shortage in production has been largely due to the fact that there has been a very inadequate supply of labor sufficiently skilled to make deliveries effective. This has hampered factories turning out steel forgings and component parts, which, in turn, have adversely affected operations at the machining and assembling plants. But these, also, have been unable to make deliveries as scheduled, even when they are fully supplied with forgings and component parts, largely owing to the shortage of labor.

The Provincial Committee, therefore, in bringing these facts to the attention to the public, desires:

1. To call the attention of all those engaged in the munitions and allied industries to the importance of their service and the great responsibility resting upon them as individuals to co-operate and do all in their power to secure a steady and increased supply of munitions for our forces at the front.

2. To urge upon all those who are ineligible for overseas service and who are anxious to voluntarily do their best in this great struggle, (especially those now engaged in non-productive work or in the production of commodities which are luxuries more or less,) to consider employment on munitions as their next best service to going overseas.

3. To urge Women's Emergency Corps to register women for munition work or for work which will release men for the munitions industry.

There is no need to emphasize the importance of the highest possible production of munitions. The lives of our boys and the success of their endeavors depend upon it. Statements from the highest authorities in Great Britain and from the front bear no small tribute to the part that munition workers are playing in bringing the war to a successful conclusion.

The Officer Commanding a brigade of Canadian artillery, who returned from the front last week, said: "The Germans will never break through now. Before, they had munitions, guns, equipment—everything but the "nerve". All we had was "nerve". But now we have good guns and plenty of good ammunition. Whereas formerly we were limited to 10 to 15 rounds a gun a day, now we use 500 to 1,000 a gun, and one week lately we kept going all week, night and day. It's all important that the supply of munitions be kept up and increased."

Efforts to use women in munition plants are meeting with good success. In a number of places women have registered, and are waiting to be called to work as soon as necessary arrangements can be made. In Welland, for instance, 65 women responded last week to the call of a factory there which needs 150 to 200 women. Fifty per cent. of those who answered the call had never been in regular employment before.

Wages in munitions plants should be such as to attract a large number of workers. Four to seven, and even ten dollars a day is not uncommon for men employed on the piecework basis.

If you can't be the man feeding the gun,

THE DEMOCRATIC SOLDIER.

The Australian troops in Flanders have a reputation for eccentric military deportment. English comedy probably exaggerates the behaviour of these colonials, affectionately, but the Australians are distinctive or there would be no basis for the comment. Their personal independence is noted even where Canadians have prepared English militarists to look for an individualism not strictly in keeping with military theories.

It is said of the Australians that they obey significant orders as well as any martinet could wish, but that their disregard for the aristocracy of war is complete. It is related that an English colonel complained to Gen. Birdwood of the Australian contingent that a sentry had failed to salute him. The general said it was not uncommon for the men to fail to salute him.

He said he had approached a sentry one day and had been amused to note that the soldier merely stared at him curiously and made no movement to acknowledge his presence. A shell came along and the sentry called out: "Duck, Birdie!" The outraged colonel asked what the general had done. "I ducked," said Birdwood.

England amuses itself with these stories of the Australians. A drawer of comics represented an Australian colonel imploring his men to make a show of discipline and military bearing for an English inspector who was descending upon them. He ended his appeal with: "And for the Lord's sake don't call be Alf!"

Possibly the military qualities of the Australians, which are reputed to be of a high order, are not bettered by the disregard of certain conventions, but the interesting point is that the Australasians are the only people in the British empire who have a system of universal military service.

When the Britisch empire entered the war the Australasians were the only citizens of the empire who had submitted to compulsion. The opponents of conscription, when defeated on other arguments, say that it breaks down a democracy and establishes caste; that it deprives the individual of self-respect and independence.

The parts of the British empire which have conscription produce soldiers whose conduct outrages convention and amazes the militarists of the English free will system.

An army commanding the services of all of the people of a nation reflects the spirit of the nation. An army does not make a national spirit; it merely expresses it. A democratic nation will have a democratic army. Conscription merely makes the military system just and efficient. Conscription in a free people enslaves no one; merely treats everybody fairly.—Chicago Tribune.

TEUTONS AT BAY.

The Earl of Derby states that "for concentrated fury nothing in the war exceeded the fight our troops had with the Brandenburgers on the Somme front." The fact seems to bear out the prediction of some military observers that the last period of the conflict will be marked by the most vicious fighting on record. The enemy is beginning to recognise, it would seem, that his back is to the wall.—Montreal Gazette.

INTERESTING VITAL STATISTICS ON THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT

By James J. Walsh, M. D., Ph. D

In spite of some rather pessimistic prophecies as to the very unfortunate effect which this war was to have upon the population of Europe by depleting it of its best young blood, there are some very interesting vital statistics from practically all the warring countries which contradict many of the worst portents. The facts that have been gathered by various government bureaus serve to show how well human nature reacts favourably even against the most serious physical conditions. The recent report of the English Registrar General for England and Wales is especially significant in this regard, though it only confirms in detail reports of similar character from other countries at war. It illustrates the moral aspects of nature's many compensations for the physical defects and losses of life.

Increase in the Marriage Rate.

Probably the most notable feature of this latest Registrar General's report is a distinct increase in the marriage rate during the last two years. The marriage rate had been going down for years in England, and the first part of 1914 indicated that that decrease was to be maintained for that year also. Then came the war, with a prompt rise in the rate, which continued to be felt till the end of the year, so that the marriage rate was the highest recorded since 1907. There was actually about one more marriage to every thousand of population than the average marriage rate of the decade from 1901-1910. During 1914, as a consequence of this increase, very nearly sixteen persons out of every thousand of population entered the marriage state.

Recent American Experience.

It might well be thought that this notable increase in the marriage rate in Great Britain commencing just after the outbreak of hostilities, making that year the banner marriage year of the twentieth century in England and Wales up to that time, was only the result of troops leaving, causing the anticipation of many marriages which would otherwise have been delayed so as to fall into the subsequent year's statistics. This would be only robbing Peter to pay Paul then, and the subsequent year's statistics might be expected to show a distinct decline even below the constantly decreasing figures of recent years.

Here in the United States as the result of the mobilization of the militia of the various States we have had a similar anticipation of marriages that undoubtedly will add not a little to our marriage rate for this year, though nothing like the same extent as in England and Wales. There the slogan "England expects every able bodied man to do his duty" gradually led to the enlistment of by far the greater portion of the men between the ages of eighteen and forty five, which is especially the period of marriage, and brought off many matches that were hanging fire. In England, as here, doubtless many couples whose thoughts had only been vaguely turned in the direction of matrimony found themselves pressed urgently to it by the impending leaving home of young men who might not have married for several years only for the special conditions created by the war.

War's Continuing Effect.

Mars and Cupid seem to have much more close relationship to each other than merely the enforced rapprochement of the early part of the war, when impending but as yet apparently distant marriages were brought to a head, for the marriage rate of England and Wales has continued high all during the progress of the war. The English Registrar General's formal report for 1915 is not yet available, but he has published the provisional figures, which show a further rise of 3.5 per thousand, that is to say some seven more persons out of every 2,000 of the population got married in 1915 than in 1914, and the total number of marriages was a record for the country.

Fewer Unmarried Women.

The women in Great Britain, as indeed in all the civilized countries, greatly outnumber the men. At the beginning of the war the registrar estimates that out of a total of almost exactly thirty-seven millions of people in England and Wales there were slightly more than nineteen millions of females and somewhat less than eighteen millions of males. There was an actual excess of females of a little more than one million two hundred thousand. The improvements in sanitary affairs in recent years has preserved many more females to the child bearing and marrying age than before. In the last four decades this factor has added one in a hundred to the marriageable females of England, but the number of them actually married has fallen very nearly two per cent. in the same time, from 49.6 per cent. to 47.7 per cent. There used to be about one husband for one out of every two marriageable women, which seems little enough, but even this ratio was falling, until now the war has given a husband to a little more than one out of every two of the women of child bearing age.

The increase in the whole number of marriageable women alive, which has been making itself felt for more than a generation now, without a corresponding increase in the number of marriages, so that the number of old maids was constantly growing and more and more women could not find an available husband, is now at last met by the effect produced in the minds of the men and women of the country by the war.

Psychology of the Increase.

There has been no little discussion as to the reason for the greater frequency of marriages in war time, which has been noted before this present conflict. Some have been flippant and have suggested that more men and women are willing to marry provided they do not have to live together. Others have been sentimental and have suggested that it is the emotional state of mind produced by the war flowing over into other activities that has increased the number of marriages. But generally it is felt that the seriousness of life, as emphasized by the war and its dangers, has reacted to make men and women readier to face the serious side of life and its duties and hence be willing to take on themselves its earnest obligations. Some phases of the marriage question as seen in war time illustrates this suggestion very strikingly.

Marriages of Crippled Soldiers.

Probably the most interesting feature of the marriage situation in England, with its decided increase in the percentage of marriages to the whole number of the population, is the very large number of crippled men who have found wives ready and willing to take them. This fact has also been noted in all the countries at war. Not only have men who went away to the war already engaged to be married found that when they returned even sadly crippled for the future struggle for existence their fiancees were almost without an exception ready to marry them, apparently without a thought of their handicap, but a great many crippled soldiers, nursed back to health and strength of body as far as their injuries would permit, have encountered among their volunteer nurses or among those who were trying to be of assistance to the wounded soldiers noble women who were ready to be of help for all their after life.

The women, and above all is this most noteworthy among the younger women, have felt that the sacrifices made for country and the common good by the soldiers deserved corresponding sacrifices on the part of those who really sympathized with the cause for which the soldiers had been so ready to pay the full measure of devotion. Even the helpless, for whom the outlook of taking any active part in life is distant or out of the question, have often found women ready to bind themselves for life to the task of being helpmates. The blind have been particularly fortunate in this regard and some of those who in addition to the loss of sight have suffered from serious disfiguring wounds of the face, which might have been expected to prove almost surely deterrent and above all preclude all question of matrimony, have sometimes found themselves taken up by affectionate women who hoped to make life easier for them.

The maxim "pity is akin to love" is very old, but it has had abundant exemplification in this latest of wars. The maimed, the halt and the blind and even the sadly disfigured have been consoled by the presence of a pity that they saw grow and deepen into love. The French will have their joke and, daring so nobly and wholeheartedly as they have, it comes with all the better grace from them. Even with regard to their wounded soldiers they have not felt it necessary to preserve an invariably solemn mien. They have spoken of putting legless men on their feet again by teaching them new trades, and they have declared that these half portions of humanity, the cripples, may well prove satisfying marriage dishes for devoted women.

Male Births Predominate.

As is well known, at all times, as if to compensate for the higher death-rate among males because of the dangers of their occupations and their exposure to fatal accidents of many kinds, the male birth-rate is always considerably above that of females. War adds to this always, though it is not quite clear why it should. The influence of the war in this regard was noted at once in England. The total number of births recorded in England in 1914 was 879,096. Of these 447,184 were of males and only 431,912 were of females.

Though there is considerably in excess of a million more females than males in the country every year, there were of late years some fourteen thousand more males than females born each year, and during the first year of the war this proportion in favour of the males rose to be well above fifteen thousand. While there are nearly twenty females to every eighteen males in the population, more than thirty males are now born to every twenty-nine females.

The birth-rate in England has not declined nearly so much from the war as it was feared and prophesied that it would. Birth-rates have for years been highest in Wales, and next to that in Lancashire, Cheshire, Yorkshire and the counties north of them, and much the lowest in the south. Births have been by far most frequent in the country districts and the smaller towns near the farming regions and lowest in the cities and larger towns, especially those of the manufacturing areas of the country. Compared with 1913 there was an actual increase in the birth-rates of the rural districts and in the smaller towns of Wales as well as in the country places and the county boroughs of the north. Unfortunately, however, there has been an increase in the death-rate among infants under one year of age, owing, doubtless, to the disturbing influence of the war because of high prices and the difficulties of nutrition, which has more than counter-balanced this increase. With the increase in the marriage rate this rise in the birth-rate in certain favourable parts of the country has been a source of no little encouragement.

The notably increased birth-rate of Wales since the war, taken in connection with the significant jump in marriage figures, has made many feel that there are compensations in store for the warring nations that will tend to restore equilibrium in the populations and make up even for all the sad losses of young men in the war much better and sooner than many prophets of evil have ventured to declare.

RAPS WHEAT SPECULATION.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The Chicago wheat pit is again made the object of a violent attack in the Daily Express. In a long article the paper says:

"Undeterred by the world war the wheat gamblers of Chicago are sending skywards the prices of grain from which mankind derives its daily bread, amassing their gains with as little compunction as the Bourbons used to gather taxes.

"Once again the provision pits present a discreditable spectacle of frenzied speculation, fleecing those whom they facetiously style their lambs, while in the British House of Commons the Premier is being urged to take what steps he can to arrest the rise in the price of a loaf. That a nation which has been described by its President as too proud to fight in the cause of liberty should comprise a body of so-called business men willing to add to the sum of human suffering in this day of Armageddon, actuated solely by greed of gold, bodes ill for the verdict of the future."

HOW THE MAILS WERE UTILIZED TO ELUDE BLOCKADE

London, August 10.—Since the British censorship officials began to deal faithfully with the American mails, the postman's knock in Germany must have lost some of its thrill. Proof of this is supplied by the Mail Censor's Museum, in the heart of a vast factory like building "Somewhere in London, though probably the smallest."

During the early days of the war one never knew in Germany what the post might bring. Sometimes it was a round of beef by letter post from New York. Sometimes a package that was marked "Photographs only," do not fold," with a real photo inside, and sheets of pure rubber between it and the card; occasionally it was a roll of newspapers with false ends and rice and coffee in the middle. These and many other gifts went from well-wishers in America. Nowadays post time has lost it savor.

The museum contains an extraordinary collection of things that have not been delivered. About half are samples of goods (mostly food and rubber) that were going into Germany, and the other half articles that were being sent out by manufacturers anxious to keep in touch with their old customers. The goods actually seized during their passing through the post would fill a small warehouse. For instance $10,000 worth of violin strings were imported in this way.

Great ingenuity was displayed by many of the smugglers and is still displayed for the business is being continued in the hope that England may be forced suddenly by the pressure of neutrals to forego the examination of American mails.

New dodges are continually being tried. For some time the newspaper mails were worked on a wholesale scale. False ends were manufactured of wood and paper and the hollow rolls were filled with bags like sausage skins stuffed with tea, coffee, rice and so on.

This is no longer a very hopeful field of endeavor. As for sending hams and points of meat through the post it is expensive. There were stamps of the face value of $9 on the wrapper used to cover 12 lbs. of beef. Even the honesty of the post office has not gone the length of putting the joint in cold storage till after the war, so the consignee must go hungry.

One of the tricks revealed by the museum is the nickel smuggling trick. Nickel is cut into thin strips, which are slipped into the corrugations of the sort of paper used for the wrapping of medicine bottles. An innocent picture is placed between two layers of this loaded paped and the whole labelled "Work of Art—With Care."

The difficulties of the censorship are increased by the fact that many of these "letters," the parcel post having been discarded long ago as useless, are sent to addresses in Holland and Sweden, to be forwarded.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N. B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat troubles and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

FAMILY DOCTOR'S GOOD ADVICE

Rocmer, P. Q., Jan. 14th, 1915.

"I suffered for many years with terrible Indigestion and Constipation. I had frequent dizzy spells and became greatly run down. A neighbor advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives". I did so and to the surprise of my doctor, I began to improve, and he advised me to go on with "Fruit-a-tives".

I consider that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives" and I want to say to those who suffer from Indigestion, Constipation or Headaches—'try Fruit-a-tives' and you will get well". CORINE GAUDREAU.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

HICKORY NUT MACAROONS.

One egg, one cupful of granulated sugar, one cup of hickory nut meats, two tablespoonfuls of flour. Beat the egg until it is creamy and then beat in the sugar. Next add the flour, smoothly and carefully, and then the nutmeats chopped coarsely. Grease a big tin or sheet and sprinkle it with flour and drop the macaroon mixture on it from a spoon in tiny piles about two inches from each other. Bake until done, which will be about 20 minutes, in a medium oven. Be careful not to put in any of the nut shell.

Bring Smiles

New Post Toasties were perfected to overcome the defects of old style corn flakes. And the hearty welcome they have received is ample proof that their superiority is recognized.

New Post Toasties have a self developed, inner-flavour—the rich flavour of choice Indian corn. Try a handful dry—they're mighty good that way, and the test will prove that, unlike common flakes, they do not depend on cream and sugar for their palatability.

New Post Toasties do not "chaff" in the package and they don't mush down in cream like other "corn flakes" The New Post Toasties are identified by tiny "bubbles" on each flake—produced by the quick, intense heat of a new process of manufacture, which also developes their wonderful new flavour.

Have your grocer send a package for to-morrow's breakfast.

IT'S COMING!

EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY

MONEY SAVING EVENT

Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads. the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

The list of merchants will be published in later issues, and it will be well to get the participating stores fixed in your mind to save delay when the great day comes. In addition to the splendid values offered the merchants are giving away

$175.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $25.00; the second $20.00; the third $15.00, and so on.

As a guide in estimasting the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

ADVANTAGES OF A CHILDREN'S COURT FOR MARTIN TRIO

County Magistrate Langley Prevented Their Entry to County Police Court and Held Investigation Without Suggestion of a Law Court.

C.A.S. TAKING CHILDREN

Court room environment is an influence from which County Magistrate Langley evidently desires to preserve children whenever he can do so. This morning he stopped the three Martin children at the door of the County Police room. A vagrant had been brought before him, and was receiving a preliminary hearing. The children were recently taken by Mr. C. A. G. Spence, agent of the Children's Aid Society, from the James Sampsons, of Dummer, and this morning Magistrate Langley was to hear any evidence to show that the children should not become wards of the society. It is expressly stated in the Act that children shall be spared the experience of an introduction to the surroundings of a court, and Magistrate Langley insists upon the strict observance of this regulation. Hence, he had the children removed to an adjoining room, which contained nothing suggestive of a law court, and the subsequent investigation assumed the character of a commonplace conference.

Reporters, uniformed police and other familiar figures were non persona grata. The hearing was progressing this afternoon.

Mrs. Sampson was present. She and her husband had adopted the children from their Campbellford home. The absence of parents throughout the recent proceedings was a somewhat conspicuous feature.

Discussing the case this morning, Magistrate Langley stated that he intended to follow the Act to the letter. Children appearing before him will be accorded the advantages of a children's court, though there is no tribunal of this kind in Peterborough yet.

GOLF WHILE DICTATING.

The trials and tribulations of business stenographers in defending themselves from employers who are "mashers" were put in the shade when Miss Gertrude Ford, financial secretary of the Stenographers' Union, told how she had to dodge a mashie while taking dictation, says the Boston Traveller. She was one of the speakers at the opening session of the New England Women Social Workers' Conferences.

Her former employer, she said, was accustomed to smoke and swing a golf club for practice while giving her dictation. What with the choking smoke blowing in her face and the terror of being at any moment clubber over the head by her athletic boss, concentration on her notes was difficult. This was one of the many instances related to prove that the strain on a stenographer's mind was sufficient to justify her working only an eight-hour day.

DOLLAR DAY

Merchants Please Notice

The Examiner has been asked to promote a Dollar Day in August—A large number of stores have signified their willingness to participate but it is too big a job to see everyone in the time remaining. Every store is welcome to be in the list of those giving the prizes, and have their firm's name and business published in the big advertising done free for Dollar Day by the Examiner. All who have not been seen are asked to call up Mr. Callender at the Examiner who is looking after the treasury box for the merchants, or 'phone a message for him to call and full particulars will be given them. The Examiner is anxious to give every store an equal amount of publicity which can only be done if all names are in when the first big announcement is made.

Wild Scenes at a Council Meeting

London "Aldermen," After Bitter Words, Hurl Tumblers—One Has Head Badly Cut—Policeman Will Attend Sessions of the Council in Future

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 16.— A bombardment of glasses, in which Ald. William A. Wilson of Number Two Ward, a paint and oil traveller, sustained scalp lacerations and injuries about the head that required medical treatment, brought Monday night's session of the City Council to a riotous termination.

The battle, which assumed the proportions of a free fight between Ald Wilson and Ald. Adam Palmer, an Ealing grocer, representing Ward Number Three, was provoked during a discussion of the appointment of a successor to City Auditor Frank Jewell, who recently resigned. Ald. Henry B. Ashplant, supported by Ald. Wilson, moved for the appointment of William R. Jex of Winnipeg. Ald. Palmer, who was with the majority, held that applications for the position should be called for. He asserted that it appeared to him that Ald. Ashlant, had tried to "frame things up" to put one over the City Council, and when remonstrated with and told that his language was "impertinent," he agreed that that word designated his statements properly.

Ald. Wilson thereupon arose, charging Ald. Palmer with having made an attack upon him. Pointing at Palmer he declared: "That man is a coward the kind that sticks you in the back. He's the kind of man that went into a foundry to take other men's jobs during a strike. He scabbed it."

Ald. Palmer, jumping to his feet shouted to the Mayor demanding a termination of such discussion, but as he did so Wilson settled in his chair and reiterated, "He's a scab."

As the words left his lips, Palmer wheeled and hurled a heavy glass tumber, with all his force, at the man beside him. Wilson was struck squarely on the side of the head, and reeled momentarily, while blood gushed over the table and chair from an ugly wound.

Regaining his strength, Wilson arose and volleyed tumblers and other missiles after Palmer, who had retreated into an anteroom, while other Councillors and officials sought to prevent a close engagement. Fire Chief Aitken, who was in the line of fire, ducked to escape one of the tumblers, but was struck on the knuckles. The next missed Palmer's head by a hair's breath and buried its fragments half an inch deep in a pine door beside him.

City Engineer Brazier clinched with Wilson, and, with assistance, brought the injured legislator to a halt, after a wild tango through the Board of Control room, in which chairs were upset, and the turmoil was general.

Pte. James Wilson On Wounded List

Joined Crack Montreal 73rd Highlanders With Chum John Smith

Private James Wilson of the 73rd Montreal Highland battalion has been wounded in action and admitted to hospital. This information was received by his friend, Mr. A. W. Archibald, with whom Private Wilson worked as a plumber, and with Campbell and Best. "Jimmy" was a reserved but popular member of the Curling Club. He and his pal, John Smith joined the Montreal Highlanders, a regiment that had been handpicked from a large number of Canadian Scotch. It went from Canada one of the very finest corps of all those this country has sent to help the Mother Country and the two Peterborough boys were worthy representatives in a body of men famous for their stature, and especially for their uniformity of stature.

I expect you have received my field post card all right, stating that had been admitted to hospital. I received two flesh wounds, one on the upper arm and the other in the back, but they were slight compared to what others got.

The one shell got four of us, and two of them were very seriously wounded. I was decidedly fortunate, as we were all standing together. I expect to be back to duty in about a week's time from now. The part of the line we were holding was about 75 yards from the German trenches. A trifle too close, eh!

I haven't seen Bobby (Haddow of the 8th C.M.R.) yet. He is billeted too far away from us. As you would see from the papers some time ago, Bobby's lot unfortunately lost a bit of trench and quite a number of men.

Alex., you have no earthly idea what this is like. The day I got hit (July 15th), I was lying dozing and smoking in a dug-out during the afternoon, as we had been standing to all night previous, when we got the order to stand to again, as a bombardment was about to commence.

For over two hours the Germans sent over all kinds of shells and grenades, then suddenly quieted down. By this time our tea had arrived, so we laid our eatables out on sandbags. We had barely commenced tea when, without a moment's notice a big shell burst a few yards away. The scene that followed was horrible. Two of them were unconscious and badly cut up and the third, a little Glasgow chap, badly wounded on the legs. There is a Peterborough fellow in the hospital here. He is over with one of the western battalions and is slightly wounded, too. His name is Percy Cunningham and his people live on Lock Street. Kind regards to all

"JIMMY".

57TH BATTALION HAS LOST ITS IDENTITY.

The 57th Battalion, in which Peterborough was largely represented, has been wiped out. It was recently absorbed by the 39th Battalion, and has lost its identity as a separate unit. It went overseas last January under Lieut.-Col. Dawson. Capt. Maurice Park was one of the 39th officers.

St. John's Sunday School Picnic

A Trip to Bewdley Has Been Arranged

This picnic has been fixed to take place on Tuesday, Aug. 29th, on which date a steamer will leave the George Street Wharf at 8.30 a.m., calling at the Street Railway Wharf at 9.00 a.m.

A trip will then be made down the River to Bewdley, where sports will be held and it is hoped that the youngsters will have a real good time.

This picnic will be chiefly for the Senior and Junior classes, the treat for the primary classes being a separate function.

It is requested that as many of the officers and teachers of the whole school will be present on this trip, to which they are hereby cordially invited.

The tickets will be distributed on Sunday, Aug. 27, on which day the Sunday School session will be resumed after the summer holiday. The teachers, officers and children will be conveyed free. Each person, however, will be expected to bring their own dinner and tea baskets, and cup, saucer and spoon. A certain quantity of ice cream and tea will be provided gratis to pupils and teachers. The management hope that all will find it a very pleasant, happy outing.

Home about 8 o'clock.

Allies Plan To Cut Off Austria

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The course of events imposed a certain line of strategy on the Entente States. A direct invasion of Germany, if not impossible, has become so costly as undertaking that the alternative course promises more rapid result

Austria is far more vulnerable than Germany, and, defended by an army inferior in every respect to Germany, she can be assailed simultaneously by the Russians in the east, by the Italians in the south, and if the Balkan Confederacy is revived in favour of the Entente a third invasion of Austrian territory becomes feasible from Rumania and Serbia, backed by the French and British forces in Salonika.

Consequently, a general attack on Austria to detach her from the German thrall, energetically executed by converging armies; now becomes the obvious military policy of the Entente. The present strategy of the allies exposes their main armies to a minimum of risk. The main strength of Germany, held fast in northern France, cannot strike decisive blows there or contribute reinforcements to the eastern front.

The success of the general scheme depends on the relentless prosecution by each great State of the Entente without slackening of effort. The pressure must be maintained right along the circumference of the Central Empires, though their satellites, Turkey and Bulgaria, detain strong forces from the main objetcive.

Lieut. R. Picard Wins Silver Medal In Bayonet Contest

Went Overseas With 81st Battalion And is Now in France

Mr. Joseph Picard, Sr., of the firm of H. LeBrun & Co., has received the following letters from his son, Lieut. R. Picard, of the 81st Battalion, C.E.F.:

France, July 25, 1916.

My Dear Parents,—Just a few lines to assure you I am in the best of health. I was greatly pleased to hear from Beatrice that you were able to be out again.

I am sending you a few more snaps which were taken in England. We are not allowed to take any over here, so will have to rely upon more or less indefinite pen pictures. We had a big field day here last Saturday. As you know I never went in for many sports, but I take a chance at almost everything. I came third in a heat in the sack race, and our relay won its heat, so I will be in the finals for both these events to-morrow. I was completely outclassed in the long jumps. Too much beef.

I suppose by this time you have recorded another successful 1st of July picnic and Sacred Heart social. Within our convent walls a picnic scene is depicted continually. The tents and cottages in the woods, the ovens and shelters for cooking present quite a happy scene, and for fireworks you only have to look in the direction of the salient any night to see white, green and red flares.

We were inspected by Major-General Garnet Hughes some time ago. He is probably the youngest and one of the best in the business. I shook hands with him and we had quite a long chat. I hope you will excuse me if I repeat the whole of the conversation.

(As he finished No. 16 platoon.)
D. P.—No. 16 platoon—Shun!
Then saluted very smartly.
Shook hands.
R. P.—Pleased to meet you, sir.
G. H.—Are you from Toronto, too?
R. P.—No Sir—from Peterborough.

I saluted, he saluted, and that's all we said.

I sent you a card sometime ago asking for a sweater coat. That is all I require at present for our kit is limited. Otherwise I would like to order a whole dunnage bag of goods, for I lost mine on the way over from Canada, losing my bath robe, rubber boots, cap, puttees, mat, pillow, woollen scarf, underwear, etc., etc., etc.

France, July 30 1916.

I have again moved north. My note paper serves a double purpose this time for you will notice a programme of our field day on the reverse. Our team won the relay race finishing in this order, Picard, Morrison, Clarke and Foster. Although it was not done purposely, four countries are there represented, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa and England, respectively. We each drew ten francs, but handed it over to the Y.M.C.A. This was the only event I figured in on Wednesday. It was one of the best field days of sports I have ever seen. There were no delays; it was go from the start to finish. The setting was very picturesque. Tents were pitched for the officers and men, and a band was in attendance. Tea was served between four and five o'clock. Belgian priests and nuns with about eighty little Belgian refugees were among the spectators.

Thursday morning we had bayonet fighting competitions, and I know you will be as surprised as I was to know I won a silver medal at the individual tests. Besides the little medal I understand a shield is being placed in the historic convent announcing the fact and for future competitions.

This is quite a large place in which to find acquaintances, but while up in Flanders a young private came up and introduced himself as Percy Cunningham. He had just been released from hospital but was looking very well. He had received a slight wound on the right arm.

It is Sunday, and I think the hottest we have had this year. The guns are thundering and the only rain we have had recently is one of shells.

Peterboro' Agency Captures The Cup

The Peterborough district agency of the Sun Life scores again. For the second time this year it has won the cup. This district won the cup offered for competition and awarded to the district securing the largest amount of new paid business, which went to the Peterborough district twice this year, the last time for the month of July. Won three times, the cup becomes the property of the winning agency. Good for Peterborough.

Hot weather is always tolerable if your nerves are properly fed and air and rested.

Make an Exhibit At The Fair

Good Suggestion From The DeLaval Monthly

When you make an exhibit at your local fair, why not get out a good circular letter and send it to all your mailing list, telling them that you are going to make an exhibit, listing the various lines you will show, and asking them to be sure to come in to see you if they go to the fair? It will also pay you to run an advertisement in your local newspaper, telling your farmer friends that you are going to exhibit, and asking them to be sure to come around and see you. There may be occasion where the quality of bashfulness and a retiring disposition are desirable, but the retail merchant will accomplish a good deal more by taking every possible occasion to keep himself and his store and the goods he carries in the limelight.—De Laval Monthly.

Marie Doro at the Empire

A Great Play for To-night and To-morrow—Don't Miss it To-night.

Marie Doro, the exquisite star, whose previous screen appearances in "The Morals of Marcus" and "The White Pearl," have distinguished her as one of the most fascinating film favorites of the day, surpasses all her former stage or screen achievements in the Famous Player-Charles Frohman Company's picturisation of Sardou's great drama of foreign political intrigue, "Diplomacy"—in the stage presentation of which as co-star with William Gillette and Blanche Bates, Miss Doro won a notable personal triumph. Suspected by her husband, a young diplomat, of stealing from his despatch box the plans of the Gibraltar fortifications, Dora (the role assumed by Miss Doro) portrayed with infinite skill and fear, anger, hate and despair, which result from the accusation. The screen version attaches added interest by the fact that the young diplomat is played by Elliott Dexter, Marie Doro's husband.

A Snap For Men

Autumn is on the threshold, and the new material for men's fall apparel is making their appearance. The Globe Tailoring Co. are receiving their new fall suitings, and the prices in certain cases are lower than last year, with the additional bonus of a leather suit case entirely free.

If men want to share in this big offer, they must apply this week. The tickets on the goods tell the story better than anything else. There is no reason why men should miss this opportunity—for saving in the purchase of a fall suit. It may be a little early in the season for some men to order, but when a good new leather suit case is thrown in along with the reduced prices it should be well worth while ordering now for future delivery.

The chance to secure a suit case entirely free does not often occur. The suit case is made of leather, with brass lock and buckles. The cloths for the suits themselves are shown in a variety of patterns with the made-to-measure prices attached. This phenomenal offer is made to start the season and to help to localize the Globe Tailoring Company's new store on the corner of Brock and George Streets.

TELLS TALE WHICH STOPS EXECUTION OF INNOCENT MAN

(BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 12.—Sheriff Nichols, of Cattaragus, last night at Little Valley, announced that a prisoner, Earl King, had confessed that he was guilty of the murder of Charles Phelps and his housekeeper, Mary Wolcott, at West Shelby on March 22, 1915.

King, who is fifty years old, was arrested on Tuesday night at Pavilion by a private detective agency.

A Vice Hunt In New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Revelations in the vice investigation in this city has induced a number of society women to offer their services to stamp out the evil and to help girls rescued from the clutches of white slavers. In addition to this unofficial agency the police department is co-operating with the district attorney's office in the greatest vice hunt this city has ever known.

Information given to Assistant District Attorney Smith by Yushe Botwin, head of the so-called "vice trust," involves two more policemen as collectors of graft, making five in all so far mentioned by witnesses questioned by the assistant district attorney.

This information will be given to the grand jury later in the week.

As a result of this testimony, Mr. Smith believes that at least four more indictments will be returned.

Botwin has given the names of four more persons who were active in the "white slave trade," and they are said to have sold thousands of past few years.

Oil As a Street Improvement

The following is from the Perth, New Brunswick, News, whose editor is Mr J. F. Breckon, formerly a member of the Examiner staff, and is interesting as a contribution to the universal testimony as to the benefit of the application of oil to streets, as well as a preventive of dust discomfort, and as a preservative of new surface:

"The following letter from a friend in Peterboro, Ont., explains itself, and offers a practical solution of the dust problem which so sorely besets the merchants in some of the smaller towns in this part of the province:

"I have noticed items in the Victoria County News regarding dusty streets. Allow me to suggest a solution: It is oil. I do not know the conditions prevailing down in New Brunswick, but up here in Ontario the use of oil has become quite prevalent. As a dust preventive it is a complete success but it has other qualities of no less importance. A road treated with oil becomes, after a few weeks of traffic, much improved. The oil apparently has a tendency to bind the surface, which after use becomes hard, compact and smooth, little inferior to asphalt. Ruts are obliterated, loose, rolling stones disappear, and if the road before treatment is in a fair condition, with a suitable 'crown,' it becomes an excellent highway.

"Peteroro has been experimenting with oil for some years. This summer some sixteen miles of streets have been oiled. This has taken four tanks. The most travelled roads wil receive a second coat. The price of oil this summer went up to to about ten cents a gallon but since has dropped to seven and a half cents. The actual outlay is little more than the cost of the old watering carts, and the results are five hundred per cent. better."

WESTERN FARMERS HAVE BIG PROBLEM SECURING LABORERS FOR HARVEST

One Ruralist Believes Rust Rumors Are Circulated to Influence Stock Markets—General Opinion is That Crop Will be an Average One

BY CHARLES E. COMPTON

The crops! This is the absorbing question in Canada to-day. As this country is commonly known as the "granary of the Empire" everyone wants to know if she is going to sustain her reputation again this year. Perhaps there never was a time in the history of the Dominion when the eyes of the world—especially those of the British Empire were focused upon Canadian crops as at the present time. The vast armies of the Britannic allies are depending, to a large extent, upon Canadian grain for their subsistence. Russia is feeding her own multitudes, but grain from Canada must help feed the millions of hungry mouths in Great Britain, France and Belgium.

While the older provinces of Canada have produced millions of bushels of grain annually, the record rapid development in agriculture in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, has so far eclipsed the productive qualities of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces that the northwest provincial trio is ever more and more in the limelight of the grain markets of the world.

SOMEWHAT PRECARIOUS.

Owing to the frost and hail possibilities the unfortunately present realities, the growing of grain in the Canadian northwest has always been considered to a certain degree, more or less precarious.

With the yawning mouth of Europe stretched wide open for food and the war demand from other places, the grain crops from Canada this season will probably be a greater factor in shoiding this war than most people anticipate.

A splendid grain crop in the West will mean greatly improved commercial conditions there, which will have a stimulating effect upon Ontario. This is why everyone from the farm or city, is so greatly interested in this year's crop prospects.

In Western Canada the crop prospects is the absorbing question and as grain growing is the foundation upon which that country was built, all know one year's destiny at least, will be decided by the output of grain.

What are the prospects? Will this year's yield compare favorably with that of last? Has the hail (so far) materially damaged the aggregate yield and will the demand for labor, necessary for harvesting be much greater than the supply.

THE REAL FACTS

By inquiries made in different parts of the country, from different individuals, ruralists and urbanites, I have endeavored to find out the real fact, regardless of what land boomers, grain speculators, or stock squelchers may report.

Passing from Winnipeg to the western extremity of Alberta by the Canadian Northern Railway and touching at Prince Albert, about the beginning of August, general observations revealed the fact that the straw on an average was from 3 1-2 feet to 4 feet high, the heads ranging from six to eight inches. The wheat was beginning to reach the "milk" stage; the barley had been "milked" and was ripening while the oats were not as far advanced. On all sides in the settled districts one sees in prairie sight first appeals one then fascinates him. The first question that suggests itself is: "Why do people eke out a mere existence in some of the rock piles of Ontario, when so much valuable land is going to waste?" But there's no accounting for taste and perhaps a man who lives on a rock pile is just as happy, though poor, as the man who is willing to take chances of hail and frost and expects to make $35,000 with one good season's crop. This may seem like an exaggeration but it is a fact that not a few farmers in Southern Saskatchewan are looking forward to a crop this season that will bring them in $35,000. Precarious it may seem, to dodge frost and hail, but where is the farm in Ontario that will produce $25,000 worth of wheat in a single year?

AN AVERAGE WEIGHT.

From conversation with those in a position to know, I have learned that prospects indicated an average yield but would not come up to the bumper yield of last year.

Mrs. A. Graham, of Kinistino, in the northern part of Saskatchewan, a woman versed in the agricultural productiveness of that province and whose brother writes the crop reports for the district, was of the opinion that there would be an average yield, if grain was harvested before it was caught by the frost, but owing to the late seeding she feared. She, however, had good reason to believe that 25 bushels of wheat would be a fair estimate for this year.

A man who had spent sixteen years on the prairies of Manitoba was Mr. Walter Scott, of Strathclair. In the past he had known of land producing 60 bushels of wheat and 120 of oats per acre. He judged an average yield this year would be about 25 of wheat and 60 of oats.

DAMAGE EXAGGERATED.

Asked about the black rust he said he thought it had been exaggerated by American grain holders who had circulated these reports for their own purposes, and he pointed out how thousands of dollars had been made daily by controlling the American stock markets by this means.

Miss Cora Hind, an expert from Winnipeg, whose opinion is Dominion widely valuable, said it was customary to have hail every year, and gave an opinion that while it was serious in individual sections it would not greatly affect the aggregate output. She judged the damage would probably amount to three per cent.

MILES OF GRAIN

One of the finest wheat fields is to be seen at Bladworth, Sask. One of the most progressive farmers of the place, Mr. John Butler, who cultivates 1,000 acres of land there, in addition to other huge farms in adjoining localities, has some 700 acres in wheat and this year summer-fallowed 300 acres. He is very well satisfied with the crop this year and thinks threshing will reveal an average yield. Formerly Mr. Butler lived at Renfrew, Ont.

When I passed through the great grain belt, cutting had not commenced, and only in Ontario did I see harvesting operations in progress. The western farmer, is, however, up against the biggest problem of his life—that of securing labor to take off his grain. Thousands of men are required for the work and the west apparently has not anything like the required number. Consequently they must come from the east or the United States if the crop is to be properly harvested.

Dies of Anthrax Body is Shipped To Philadelphia

Lad Supposed To Have Contracted Dread Disease in Hair Factory.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 16.—"Stanley Zombie, 16 years old, died at his lodging-house, 148 Rowenss street. Was employed by the Detroit Curled Hair Company. Cause of death, anthrax."

The above death certificate, signed by the health officer at Hamtramck, caused considerable excitement in the offices of the Detroit Board of Health building recently when it was filed. Dr. Price, health officer of Detroit, at once took every precaution to safeguard the city from contagion.

The body of the dead lad had already been shipped to Philadelphia, his home city, but clothes and linen in his room were burned, his personal effects boiled, and the place where he had suffered and died, and lain in his coffin, was subjected to a thorough disinfection.

Zombie is supposed to have contracted anthrax, from haid used to make cushions where he was employed.

WINDSOR MAN KILLED BY OWN NEGLIGENCE

Coroner's Jury in Chatham so Decides in Case of Chas. Rennie.

CHATHAM, Aug. 16.—"We find that Charles Rennie came to his death as a result of his own negligence," is part of the verdict returned by a jury in Coroner Chatteris' court.

Rennie, who came from Windsor, was firing on a yard engine, and last Tuesday was run over and killed instantly. A Pere Marquette yard engine was helping to handle a heavy freight and moved the train while Rennie was underneath his engine, unknown to other workmen.

The other members of the two crews were cleared of all blame with the death. The jury was out only a few minutes, but the evidence occupied about three hours.

AMERICAN COLONEL GIVES FREE ADVICE TO RHEUMATICS

SAYS IT'S SHEER FOLLY FOR ANYONE TO SUFFER THESE DAYS.

Rheumatism can't be cured so long as your system is weak and run down.

You must first build up and get strength to fight off this disease.

Ferrosone cures because it builds up, because it renews the blood and dissolves the Uric Acid and the poisons that cause rheumatism.

It is proved right here that Ferrosone does cure.

Col. H. M. Ruse of Edwards, St. Lawrence Co., one of the fine old heroes of the civil war, was completely restored by Ferrosone. Read his statement:

"I couldn't get around without a cane, and then only with difficulty.

"Rheumatism took complete control of my limbs.

"Suffering was more intense than the hardships on the battlefield.

"When my doctor had done his best I got Ferrosone.

"Then came a quick change.

"Ferrosone gave me comfort at once, eased the pain and took the stiffness out of my muscles.

"I am well to-day. Ferrosone cured me completely. I can jump and run like I did forty years ago."

Be sensible about your case. If your present medicine is useless give it up.

Don't experiment again. Ferrosone is known on all sides to be a cure that does care. Why not get a supply to-day. The sooner that you get Ferrosone the quicker you'll get well. Price 50c per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from the Catarrhosone Co., of Kingston, Ont.

A wheel tray is a great saving of time and strength in hot weather or any other weather.

PETERBOROUGH LADS RECEIVE REWARD OF SUMMER'S LABOUR

These Who Spent Three Months Service on Farms to Receive Matriculation Certificates —Members of the Collegiate Institute Are Beginning to Return From Their Respective Fields of Labour.

There are many and diverse ways of serving King and country besides donning the khaki. Of course discarding your civilian clothes and filling out the King's uniform is the most unmistakable testimony that you are doing your 'bit.' A few words of praise and appreciation are due at this moment, however, to another class of Empire defenders and sharers of the white man's burden in the hour when the world's freedom and ideals of international liberty are being imperiled by the ambitious Hun.

HIGH SCHOOL YOUTHS.

We refer here to the High School youths of this Province, including our own city of Peterborough and country about, who, after their tenmonths' hard grind along the "flowery path of knowledge," were not afraid to deviate a few points from the pleasing monotony of school life and to undertake the formidable prospect of three months' labour upon the farm. The call from the land for help, necessitated by the enlistment of so many men who had in past years borne the brunt of the harvest time, caused the educational authorities of the Province to consider means whereby the students of the higher grade schools could be induced to fill the shoes of the farm hands now in khaki.

The proposition was placed before the High School youths and those trying the matriculation examinations were given the option of staking their chances on the usual final examination, or of spending three months in the service of a farmer, and receiving their matriculation certificate in return for their work and sacrifice.

THREE MONTHS' LABOUR.

A large majority chose the none too pleasing prospect of three months "down on the farm" and on and about May 12th hundreds of High School lads, many of whom were raised and bred in the luring and attractive environments of city life, donned their "Peabodys" and settled down to the monotonous vicissitudes of country life.

To spend three months on a farm in the busy season when the chores are at their maximium, and when a man is kept going from sunrise to sundown in order to keep pace with a day's work is by no means a pipedream, especially to the city youth raised in the atmosphere of the hydrolights, nice, cool Otonabee and shady verandah. The Collegiate lad, however, his brains saturated with Latin idioms and French grammatical constructions, proved himself an excellent "hired man," and reports from various farmers who have harbored the young "educationalists" all summer are prolific with praise of their season's work.

ARE RETURNING.

"Tempus fugit," even three months on the farm likewise and last week several bronze faced, hardy sons of toil, doffed their working clothes, had their employment certificates signed by willing employees, and will receive shortly the reward of their sacrifice, viz., certificates of Junior matriculation, from the Registrar of Toronto University.

STEAMER OTONABEE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Burned to the Water's Edge at Big Bay Point Wharf—Fire Was Discovered by E. W. Cooley of Peterboro

BARRIE, Aug. 16.—Capt. P. McLean Campbell and Purser Harold Hughes, both of Collingwood, barely escaped with their lives when the steamer Otonabee was burned to the water's edge at Big Bay Point wharf at six o'clock yesterday morning. The fire was noticed by the engineer of the steamer, Modello, E. W. Cooley, of Peterborough, just a few yards away and by the time he could arouse Campbell and Hughes, the flames were licking up the upper deck and they had to scramble through flames and smoke and jumped over the side. As soon as Capt. Campbell climbed out, he set to work getting the Modello towed to a place of safety. About one-third of the wharf was burned and with it the lighthouse. When the fire was in progress considerable alarm was caused in the vicinity by several explosions of gas tanks stored in the lighthouse, the concussion being felt for miles. The cause of the fire is unknown. By the fire, the Lake Simcoe Navigation Company, which is mainly owned by H. Waddington, King street east, Toronto, loses in the neighborhood of $17,000, partly covered by insurance. For the last six years the Otonabee has been plying on these waters and before that was sailing in the Kawartha Lakes.

The Otonabee was brought here in 1911 by the Lake Simcoe Navigation Co., being purchased from the Peterborough Navigation Co. Herbert Waddington of 86 King street east, Toronto, is the principal shareholder in the Lake Simcoe Navigation Co It is estimated that the loss to the company is more than $16,000.

The boat was 125 feet long. It is understood that there was only a small insurance.

HAVE TAKEN OVER DEFENSE OF TRIESTE

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Aug. 16. — A despatch from Milan via Paris says the Germans, in response to Austria's call for help, have taken over the defence of Trieste, in expectation of early assaults by Italy.

VAG TAKEN NEAR KEENE.

Barefooted and without a hat, a man believed to be a deserter of the 74th Battalion, was arrested in the vicinity of Keene this morning by Constable Moore on the complaint of the residents in Otonabee. He appeared before Magistrate Langley and was remanded for a week.

Voice of The People

Dear Editor,—Give me a line or two to protest against unnecessary noises. I live not far from a street car line, but the noise the cars make is necessary noise, cars can't run without noise; and it is a regular noise that one gets used to. I refer to night and early morning noises. We have a new milk man on our block. He has a voice like a fog horn, and in the stillness of the early morning his stentorian "whoa-back!" and his lusty call of "me-ulk," together with the shriller cries of a strong-lunged boy he has with him, make noise enough to raise the dead or even raise cream on the milk of the average milkman. These morning noises when one who has been kept awake by a restless baby or a restless conscience on rasped nerves, wishes to catch a little sleep in the morning are exasperating and quite unnecessary, and should be avoided.

Yours truly,
RESTLESS.

PETITION.

To the Council of the City of Peterborough—

We the citizens of the City of Peterborough, whose signatures appear on this paper, do hereby petition you to build and furnish suitable buildings, etc., for the purpose of the citizens, to be used for properly conducted swimming and bathing places. We request that at least three places be built as soon as convenient, and as the demand grows that more be added.

By being suitable we mean that both sexes be accommodated of all ages.

Signatures—

A. G. Robertson, E. Barrie, C. A. Maohum, T. K. Brown, M. Bowler, T. P. Wrightington, I. Collins, M. Guerin, M. Throop, W. Cole, N. Robinson, M. Reed, M. Schweir, C. Tate, A. Tate, B. Bartley,, M. Hogan, J. McDonald, B. O'Brien, A. Conroy, M. E. Ketcheson, R. Farthing.

With the kindness of the Examiner, I am permitted to herewith publish the first lot of names as signed for the public swimming places, and to-morrow's issue will contain more names.

The names on this petition as far as I know are genuine signatures.

There are a number more of these copies about ready to be received.

Nearly every factory has a copy of this petition, get busy and sign it. If the Examiner is more convenient, sign it there. Or at my address.

Funeral of Late W. R. G. Higgins

The funeral of the late W. R. G. Higgins was held yesterday afternoon, to Little Lake Cemetery, under Masonic auspices and was one of the largest funeral corteges ever witnessed in this city.

The large attendance of Masonic and Oddfellow brethren, and citizens in general, together with an abundance of floral tributes, testified to the esteem and respect in which the deceased was held.

Rev. Mr. Johnston, in the absence of Rev. Mr. Peever, of the George street Methodist church, conducted the denominational service both at the home and at the grave.

The beautiful and impressive Masonic rites were conducted by Rt. Wor. Bro. H. R. H. Kenner, Master of Royal Arthur Lodge A.F. & A.M.; and Wor. Bro. J. M. Rousel, Master of Peterborough Lodge, assisted by Rt. Wor. Bro. W. H. Walkey, Rt. Wor. Bro. H. Rush, and Wor. Bro. W. A. Logan, and Wor. Bro. J. G. M. Wilson filled the duties of Master of Ceremonies.

The pall-bearers were Rt. Wor. Bro. H. R. H. Kenner, Rt. Wor. Bro. D. Walker, Wor. Bro. M. Comstock, Bros. T. H. Hooper, J. A. Brightman, F. W. Trebilcock, E. B. Fowler, and W. C. Acherman.

Market Situation For The Week

One of the Features During the Past Week Has Been a Further Jump in the Price of Flour

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer.

One of the features of the market during the past week had been a further jump in the price of flour. With the continued soaring of wheat prices flour moved upward. Reports from Winnipeg state rust damage is not nearly as serious in Manitoba as some elements would like the market to believe. Rumors have also been afloat that certain parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta have been visited by rust; Mill men in Winnipeg assert their belief that the increased price of wheat is due largely to a bull element in the wheat market. They are of the opinion the market will decline as soon as the real facts respecting conditions become known.

WHEAT CROP.

If, however, the bulls are successful in keeping these reports afloat there is no doubt but that both wheat and flour will continue to advance further. It is significant, however, that the reports issued by the Manitoba Department of Agriculture on August 2 state that out of twelve districts in various sections of the province on which returns were made seven report rust, while the remaining five have no signs of rust. Those districts having rust grade from much rust to very little.

A further decline in the price of sugar is recorded for all sections of the Dominion Corn meal has advanced in price in conformity with the high price of corn. Corn is now selling at the highest mark for several years past. Hot weather in the Western United States corn belt is reported to have largely damaged the crop.

Lemons continue firm at a high price owing to the big demand and shortage of supplies. Fruit is somewhat scarce owing to the continued dry weather. Ontario peaches are beginning to reach the market and are of medium size and quality. Cooked meats continue in big demand and live hogs have had a big advance during the week. Packers in certain sections of the Dominion have accordingly advanced the price of the main lines of pork products.

Italians Push Beyond Goritz

ROME, Aug. 14.—General Cadorna's forces pierced another strong line of Austrian entrenchments east of Nadlogen height, south of Goritz, and are continuing to press the enemy back on the Carso plateau, it was officially announced to-day. East of Hill 212 they pierced strong lines of hostile entrenchments. About 800 prisoners were captured by the Italians.

In the Gorisia area artillery duels took place," the statement says: "The enemy's batteries shelled the town and bridges over the Isonzo.

"On the remainder of the front small but sharp encounters took place, on the slopes of Forame, at the head of the Costeana valley, on the Bonte, and on the Sugana valley. The enemy was repulsed everywhere and left about fifty prisoners in our hands. Hostile batteries bombarded villages in the upper Chiarso and Cordevole valley. They were silenced by our artillery.

"Last night hostile aircraft dropped bombs on Monfalcone and other places on the lower Isonzo: No damage nor casualties have been reported."

My Dear Father and Mother.—Just a line to let you know we are still alive and kicking. We are very comfortably fixed here and are getting good food, so don't worry about us. I wrote this just before we landed, and had a sailor post it for me. I thought they might hold it back, as we were told not to send any mail. When did you get the news of our docking? Can you tell me exactly, as we were wondering when they let you know? We got in harbour Monday, July 25th, and disembarked the next morning.

We had a grand welcome. When we sailed up the harbour all the boats on the river were blowing their whistles. All the ferry boats and beaches were crowded with people, who cheered us and waved their handkerchiefs, and hats. We went from Liverpool to Shorncliffe on a fast express, going seventy an seventy-five miles an hour. Every town we passed through the people flocked to the doors and windows and cheered Men in the streets would take off their hats as we passed through. We passed through London on the way.

BANDS BROKEN UP.

We got to our station about 9.15 p.m., and marched to our camp, about two miles. Got there about 9.40. We had something to eat, and went to bed. We are only three and one-half miles from the 59th. All the boys were over the next night to see us. They are looking good. All the battalion have gone over, except a few sergeants and officers. They and the band have transferred to the 39th Battalion. There have been quite a few bands broken up here. All the poor bands are broken up and the best left. I have seen a lot of the old boys around here. I have just been talking to Vic. Bullied. He just enlisted a couple of weeks ahead of me, and has been in the trenches five months. He was wounded and is here on sick leave. He is looking fine and is practically better. I was talking to Chess Moray. He is looking fine. He is sergeant cook in the 39th and hasn't been over yet. I was talking to that Carter fellow, yesterday. He married Hesba Jackson. Fred Leach was up in the camp last week. He is on leave from the trenches. I also saw Sergt.-Major Dodds.

AIR RAID.

There was an air raid yesterday and another to-day. They were Zeppelins to-day and aeroplanes yesterday. Six aeroplanes passed over our camp yesterday, one after the other. We found out afterwards the first was a German and the rest were British, chasing it. They brought him down about four miles from here. I saw it after it came down. To-day, when we were just through dinner, we got word the Zeppelins were coming. We 'doubled' out to a big field and scattered in the long grass. We waited an hour and a half. Two British aeroplanes passed and then a big dirigible balloon, (British). It is much like a Zeppelin, only not so fast. It had a large gun on it, and was silver coloured. We came back to camp then. There is an aerodrome right near us and the aeroplanes are flying over us all day.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION.

We had an examination Friday and a few of the boys got turned down on account of their eyes; at least they had some trouble, though they'll not go home.

Tom Blunt may have an operation on his. We don't have any early morning drill now. The boys drill from 8 till 12 a.m. and 1 till 5 p.m. When we are duty battalion for the week the band has to play at 5.30 a.m. for about half a mile march. We were to Folkestone, a town near here, yesterday. It was a treat to have a walk up street, even in an English town. Women are doing a lot of men's work. The place is quite busy. We went to the beach, had supper at the Y.M.C.A. and went back to the Beach to listen to the Band that was to play. It was the 90th and is a splendid band all through. We have only heard a couple of bands yet, and they have been very good. There were some Belgian ladies selling tags for the Red Cross. They are very pleasant people and it was amusing to hear them talk in broken English. They have such a pretty accent. We are where we can see better the effects of the war. It is only forty miles to the front, and you can hear the big guns quite plainly. Frank Robinson saw a new gun that will fire a shell thirty-eight miles. That is the most powerful in the world. They wanted Frank to go to London to work in a factory on munitions.

The Y.M.C.A. have a nice big hut here for the fellows to write in. There is a lunch counter at one end, and a platform and piano at the other. They have a little song service every night. They are sure doing a great work. In the city where we had our supper, ladies come in and work, and give their services free.

INVALDED HOME.

Mrs. H. A. Pearson, who is staying at Chemong Park, has received a cablegram from her husband, Captain H. A. Pearson, stating that he has been invalided home, and will arrive in Peterborough shortly.

Staff Instructor H. Clayton has received a gold star in recognition of the fact that he has secured the highest marks as a training instructor at Aldershot gymnasium. He also expects to be sent back to Canada as instructor to new battalions.

Prisoner of War.

Owner Wanted.

A discharge certificate bearing the name of Private Wesley Donohue, of the 157th Battalion, C.E.F., was picked up in the yard of Mrs. Playford, 371 Burnham Street. The owner can have this document by applying to Mrs. Playford.

The Late Pte. Menzies.

Citizens will no doubt read with interest the following letter which was received by Mr. R. J. Menzies, of Detroit, Mich., from the Presbyterian chaplain who had charge of the work in one of the hospitals in Belgium, where Private Norman Menzies died as the result of wounds:

Dear Mr. Menzies,—I am grieved to tell you that your brother, Norman Ernest Menzies, came into the hospital severely wounded in the skull and face. He was conscious only a little space and so was saved any pain, but for the same reason he has not been able to send you any message.

I had a little prayer with him during the brief minutes of consciousness. He passed away at 10.30 a.m. peacefully and calmly as if falling asleep.

We buried him with all the honours given to a gallant soldier in time of war. He was borne out of hospital upon the little funeral car wheeled by comrades. No coffin is used at the front, but over all the Union Jack is spread.

At the graveside after six comrades had lowered the body a simple service was conducted. After the benediction the command was given and the party came to the salute, their last mark of respect to your brother ere turning away.

He sleeps in the military cemetery hard by. For your private information I may say it is at ——. The grave is being marked with a cross to bear his name and tell how he gave his life.

I pray that God will comfort you and all to whom this news will have pain.

With deepest sympathy. Yours sincerely,

W. J. Baxter,
Presbyter in Chaplain.

P.S.—His few effects will be sent on, but as the officer who deals with these things has so many to handle it may be some considerable time.

The late Pte. Norman Menzies has numerous relatives in Peterborough. He was a son of Mr. R. J. Menzies, of Detroit.

Dear Sovereigns,—Allow me this method of expressing my heartfelt thanks for the beautiful wallet, having my name beautifully engraved on the inner side in gilt letters. Also the address which was read at presentation. Again allowing me to thank you. I remain, yours sincerely,

(Sergt.) E. J. Waterman,
A Company, 130th Battalion, C.E.F.,
Valvartier, Que.

Distinguishing Mark.

Lieut. Adams and all officers and men who have just returned from the front are wearing, according to Imperial regulations, if they have been wounded, a piece of narrow gold braid on the left arm, below the elbow, just two inches long. For each wound received in different battles all will add a piece of gold braid, so that it will be easy to know if a returned soldier or officer has been wounded, and how many times.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Local Tournament To Begin Thursday

Preliminaries Must be Played Off by Thursday Night

The local tournament for the Scotch doubles will begin on Thursday evening.

The doubles who can find it convenient to begin to-night are at liberty to do so, but if they do not begin to-night they will not be defaulted.

To-morrow night all doubles not ready to begin will default to those who are ready.

The following are the preliminaries and these must be played off by Thursday night:

Hill and Fizgerald vs. Walton and Pratt; Clements and Cunningham vs. Buckham and Elliott; Wren and Cairns vs. Metheral and Moore; Benore and Waddell vs. Breyfogle and Maynecrd.

The following doubles will play off on Friday night:

McGarrell and Skinner vs. Webb and Brightman; Everett and Dayman vs. V. Elliot and Mitchell; McCluskey and Wylie vs. Perkins and Bellegham; Grant and Oke vs. McKenzie and Read; Budd and Taylor vs. Hammond and Wightman; Allen and R. Elliot vs. Gould and W. Elliot.

"Cave Men" of Boxing Extinct

Fitzsimmons Says Champs To-day Can't Compare With Old Timers

"I had my first fight when I was 15 years of age," said the old gladiator. "I had three bare knuckle fights with heavy weights when I was a kid weighing less than 115 pounds.

"That's the school I learned in. To-day they get a purse that would equal my entire ring earnings, and they have it handed them for six or ten rounds of no decision fighting.

"Jim Jeffries was the greatest fighter that ever lived. I say so because I fought him twice and I trained him for the fight with Corbett. Do you know why he lost? Not age. Bah! Age counts nothing.

Says Jeff Was Doped.

"Some of his smart friends thought they would tone him up, and they used chloral on him, and it killed every chance he had. That's as true as I'm Bob Fitzsimmons.

"He was doped. You don't think a man like Jim would lie, do you? He has never said a word since, but some day you will hear the whole story. I think I know who slipped it to him.

"The best bantam and feather weight to my mind, was little Dixon. He was a fighter. He was a boxer.

"Joe Gans was the best lightweight, and so much greater than the rest of the field that only one compares with him—Kid Lavigne. A fight between them would have been a great battle.

"Mysterious Billy Smith was the best of the welterweights if watched and trained right. He seemed immune to all punishment.

Tells How He Took Chances.

"Pardon me, but I think old Fritz was a good heavyweight. Fair kind of a chap. Never wasted any time peeping into the looking glass, but nevertheless he was a fair sort of a fighter at 158 pounds.

"I fought Jack Johnson. I had a broken arm at the time. I took a chance with Jeffries as a pug dog would with the butcher's terrier."

Owned Three Defenders of the America's Cup

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The death at Weston of General Charles J. Paine, well-known as an officer of the American Civil War and later as owner of three successful defenders of the America's Cup, was announced here. He was 83 years old.

He headed the syndicate which built the yachts Puritan, Mayflower, and Volunteer, all of which successfully defended the America's Cup in the international yacht races.

Real Trial For Redleg Hurlers

Matty Remembers Own Start And Will Give Rookies Chance

Those young pitchers who are drafted by the Cincinnati Reds while Christy Mathewson is at the helm of the Rhineland crew will have scant cause to complain of lack of thorough trial before being shunted back to the minors. Matty condemns the policy of many managers in turning a boy adrift because he fails to shine forth as a star in his first trial with the majors. He cites his own case for a point. It is well known that Matty did not look any too good when he started, but just the other day Bill Klem pronounce him the greatest pitcher baseball ever knew.

"If any young pitchers come this way in the near future," said Mathewson recently, "I'll give them the best possible trial. Too many of them have been chased because they looked bad at the jump. The Giants had Shore for a few minutes, just as an example, and let him out after one disastrous game.

GUESSED RIGHT ON SHORE

"I thought at the time that Shore had an immense amount of valuable stuff, and the after years have shown that he was a wonder.

"Firing kid pitchers too soon is as bad a habit as keeping them too long. It takes a lot of judgment to decide when they will and when they won't make good. Don't know whether I'll have the right judgment or not; I'll have to find out, that's all.

"Tell you why I am strong for the young pitcher. Did you ever see the score of my first game in the National league? Well, I went in during the late innings of a badly-played game, and many managers would have told me I never knew anything and never would know anything.

UNSTEADY IN FIRST GAME.

"I was hit a lot, was unsteady, and in general, couldn't have looked even half way good. But I got another chance—in fact, got several of them. Didn't I lose three games of my own, besides that bad start in another game, that first campaign? Any time I see a kid pitcher trying to make good and see that the boy is game and intelligent I'm not going to turn that boy away without a fair show, for I remember my own troubles sixteen years gone by."

Famous Racing Boat Is Found Abandoned

SENECA IS PICKED UP BY SPORTSMEN NEAR SOUTH SHORE OF LAKE ONTARIO.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Aug. 16—The Seneca, once winner of the famous Canada's Cup, was found hard aground on a sandbar four miles northwest of Sodus Bay, in Holland's Cove. The boat was deserted by a crew of four, evidently amateur seamen, after they had tried to make harbor. The Seneca recently disappeared from her moorings at the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, in Toronto. Her owner Commodore Aemillus Jarvis, conducted a thorough search of the $7,000 flyer, but without success.

The quartette swam ashore, and applied at the house of Alonzo Holland, where they posed as owners of the boat, and obtained a loan of $5 to pay their expenses to Rochester. The name of the Yacht had been removed, but Mr. Holland, who is a keen admirer of racing yachts was able to recognise the craft. He immediately notified officials in Wayne and Munroe counties and a sharp lookout is being kept for the pirates who are supposed to be deserters from the American battalion in the Canadian army. The Seneca was sighted in midlake by Detective Captain Whaley early in the week, while he (Whaley) was a guest on board the Iroquois, once contender with the Seneca in elimination trials.

THE THEORIES AND THE FACTS.

Although the sport and science of rowing is thousands of years old, it is remarkable that, in the very fundamentals governing the most effective application of rowing power, the best coaches and authorities are still flatly at odds, as illustrated in the diverse theories of swivel-lock, flat or inclined slide and style of boat rig in general.

Rowing is really a matter of mechanics, and every problem in recent years has been treated from the scientific standpoint, but the theories of application of power are still at variance as much as when the Greek triremes and the Roman galleys were manned by slaves and raced for sport or for the prey of a war campaign.

Every regatta goes far, however, toward establishing and reducing theories into applied science and permanent fact.

AUSTRIAN ARMY CRIPPLED.

New York, August 14.—A Berne, Switzerland, despatch to the Journal says:

That the Austro-Hungarian armies have been seriously crippled by their losses on the Russian and the Italian fronts is evidenced by Vienna despatches, which announced to-day that Hungarian Landstrum forces of all classes of 1833 to 1897 inclusive have been ordered to report for active service on August 28. This call will furnish reinforcements of 875,000 men

News From The Diamond

Charles Webb Murphy, the Chicago plutocrat, has started to collect ball parks as a fad, being entirely retired from baseball as a business proposition.

The mystery of the Athletic slump is explained. Connie Mack's doctor is said to have warned him against high altitudes.

On the occasion of his thirty-sixth birthday, all fans extend to Mr. their best wishes for many happy returns of the day. This Cincinnati job can't last always.

One of the great handicaps of the St. Louis club is that they have to play so many games in St. Louis. About the only advantage the Mound City offers as a summer resort is that there are no sharks in the Mississippi.

As the poet says, the course of love never did run smooth. That is Slim's great difficulty.

Tillie Shafer, the ex-Giant, recently travelled from Los Angeles to New York in sixteen days. That's a lot faster than the present crop of Giants can travel.

George Burns, the Giant outfielder was a catcher when he started his baseball career with the Utica club.

Phil Ball who dropped a wad in the Federal league and then coughed up half a million for the Browns, is likely to have another deficit to make up at the end of this season.

It begins to look as if the Yankee owners got a bargain when they paid Richmond $8,000 for Allen Russell last summer. At first Russell's control was poor, but he is gradually getting rid of that weakness.

Poll Perritt and Slim Sallee, both St. Louis deserters and once idols of the Mound City fans are now almost as popular in that city as smallpox. Almost, but not quite.

Zachary Wheat, the Brooklyn slugger, denies that he is an Indian. Says he hasn't a drop of aborigine blood in his brains. Anyway, Zach certainly looks like a dusty son of the plains.

The idea that ball players are refined highbrows who spend all their spare time pouring over the classics in the original Greek, doesn't seem to be borne out by the rough stuff spilled by so many big leaguers of late.

Napoleon Lajoie, in passing the twentieth milestone of his big league careers, says this will be his last season in the game. But, as Omar says, "And then came spring—"

Larry Chapelle, erstwhile $18,000 beauty of the White Sox and later with the Indians, has become the stellar swatter of the American association with the Columbus club.

Frank G. Menke says a Boston fan once paid $25 for a ball batted into the stand by Tris Speaker. Probably the same fellow who was recently attacked by squirrels in a Boston Park.

Nick Altrock story: Girl in stand hit and seriously injured by foul ball. Great excitement. Umpire asked Nick what was the matter "Woman fainted" said Nick. "You called one right, and she fainted dead away."

Christy Mathewson never used the "bean ball" but he's sorry now that he didn't take a few shots at some of the Cincinnati players while he had a chance.

One of the baseball weeklies has reduced its size because of the high cost of white paper, but it continues to waste space by calling it base ball.

It is now alleged that German conspirators are responsible for those blow-ups of pitchers which have occurred so frequently of late.

Sam Crawford is said to entertain an ambition to become a sheriff. Old stuff. Slim Sallee has that stunt copyrighted.

JOE HAD TOUGH 'DOGS'

Joe Jackson, the heavy hitting outfielder, is releasing some savage swats this season. There were times when Joe didn't have the bank account he enjoys to-day. Joe played with a small team in South Carolina some years ago.

Joe did not wear $7 baseball shoes like he does to-day. For strictly reasons of finance, Joe wore nothing at all on his feet. He roamed all over the briers, stubble and stones to centre field in his bare 'dogs.' The field was also littered with broken glass bottles, but Joe didn't mind it.

At the end of the fifth inning of a certain game, Joe walked in to the bench and expostulated to his manager:

"Say, you had better get that glass out of centre field. It's cutting the balls to pieces."

SELLING SUB.'S CARGO.

New York, Aug. 16.—The first consignment of dyes brought from Germany by the submarine freighter Deutschland has been received by a colourin geompany in this city and constitutes the first shipment of the kind to reach this city from German manufacturers since the beginning of the war. Other dyestuff users here received bills of lading for some of the Deutschland's cargo, which is estimated to have included about 200 tons of dyes valued in excess of $1,000,000.

It is reported that high prices are demanded for these dyes, but one of the consignees here said that it was absurd to believe that fabulous profits will be realized on their sale.

Meeting of Fire Chiefs End With River Excursion

Presentations Made to Chief and Mrs. DeFields and Ald. Eanser —Chief Howard of Peterboro Officiated at Presentation

WINDSOR, Aug. 16.—The best entertainment of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs' convention was reserved for the wind-up. This was the river outing to Bois Blanc on Friday afternoon. A special boat, the Sapplo, was provided, and about 200 were on board. "Just a nice crowd," was the general verdict.

A feature of the trip was the presentation of fine leather chairs by the association members to Chief and Mrs. Clarence De Fields, Chief W. A. Howard, of Peterborough, doing the honours. Chief De Fields made an appropriate response.

Chief Atkins, of London, presented a pipe to Ald. Eanson, chairman of the fire committee, who took great pains to make the convention the big success it turned out to be. Remarks were made by Inspector of Police Giroux of the parliament buildings in Ottawa.

Music was furnished by Zimmerman's orchestra and the pipers of the 241st kilted battalion.

Dinner was served at the casino on the island. On board the boat was plenty of ginger ale and cigars. Nothing was considered too good for the fire chiefs.

Several aldermen were included in the party, as well as O. J. Wilcox, M.P., C. W. Cadwell and Walter Piggott, with a number of ladies.

Ald. Eanson "Criticized."

During the trip Ald. Eanson was placed in the peculiar position of being criticized for the good time shown the delegates to the convention during their stay in Windsor. His critics were the Port Arthur and Fort William delegates to the convention, who were successful in landing the 1917 convention for the Twin Cities, and Ald. Eanson was, as he put it, "tickled to death" by the criticism.

"We have landed the next convention," said the Porth Arthur and Fort William men, "but you have set an awful pace in the entertainment line which, we frankly admit, we cannot equal when the delgates come to our town next year. Slow down a little bit or the fire chiefs will begin making comparisons next year when in our towns which will not be complimentary to our humble efforts."

Ald. Eanson and the other members of the entertainment committee refused to put the brakes on, however, and the result is that a number of visitors are remaining in Windsor until next week, despite the fact that the convention is over.

Visitors Appreciative.

"When Windsor was selected last year as the convention city of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs, we were frankly dubious about Windsor's facilities for handing such a gathering," declared Chief W. A. Howard, of Peterborough. "We met with an agreeable surprise, and I do not believe another city in Canada could have done as much for us as Windsor has.

"The 1918 convention is still a long way off, but I firmly believe that Windsor will be chosen again as the meeting place for that gathering when the ballot is taken at the Twin Cities next year," he continued.

The delegates were unanimous in voting the 1916 convention as the most successful ever held by the fire chiefs. Important papers were read at all sessions, and free discussions were held on them.

The entertainment furnished the visitors was all that could be desired and the delegates were appreciative of the efforts of the members of the Windsor council and the citizens at large make to their stay there an enjoyable one.

Olive Van Sickle's Act Was Deliberate Suicide

Inquest Concludes Into Case of Petrolea Woman Who Jumped From Ferry.

SARNIA, Aug. 16.—"We, the jury, sworn to enquire into the reasons how, when, where and by what means Olive Van Sickle came to her death, find on the evidence submitted that by her own deliberate act she committed suicid by jumping into the River St. Clair on April 11, 1916, off the steamer Omar D. Conger."

The above verdict was reached at the inquest before Coroner Dr. Logie.

Much interest was attached to the evidence of Harry Harding, liveryman of Petrolea, who had accompanied the woman from Petrolea to Port Huron and was with her until a few moments before she took the fatal plunge.

Mr. Harding related that Mrs. Van Sickle had engaged him to take her to Port Huron. He drove her to Sarnia and at her request accompanied her across to Port Huron on the ferry, where they were turned back by the immigration officers. On the return trip they had conversed on the upper deck until nearing Sarnia, when the woman picked up her grip and went down the boat's stairs. Soon he heard shouts that a woman had jumped overboard. She had intended visiting relatives in Flint, Mich.

The latter part of this story was corroborated by Thomas Buckner, deck hand on the boat, who said he had come down the stairs behind the woman, had seen her pause at the bottom, set down her grip and before he could prevent it, had rushed to the boat's side and jumped overboard. This was about 200 feet from the Sarnia shore.

Mrs. George Brown of Petrolea, an aunt of the unfortunate woman, established identification by means of pieces of clothing taken from the body.

COLLEGE STUDENT AT 85.

Mrs. A. D. Winship Started Her Education in 1847.

Probably the oldest college student in the United States, Mrs. Amy D. Winship, aged 85, will soon be enrolled at the University of California, Berkeley, Cal. She is coming from the University of Wisconsin, where she was a student before the early part of this year.

Mrs. Winship, who had the foundation of her education in a log schoolhouse in Illinois in 1847, started her university career several years ago at the Ohio State University. Recently she specialized in botany, physics and international law.

DUTCH READY FOR POSSIBLE ENEMY.

Render Country Practically War Proof by Placing it in State of Proper Defence.

The Dutch people, writes H. W. Van Loon, in the National Geographic Magazine, do not intend to use their army for any purpose of aggrandizement. They do not expect that the few hundred thousand men which they are capable of bringing into the field but they intended to create an army uill ever decide the fate of Europe; and a navy of such strength that any enemy who should wish to attack the small country would be obliged to reckon the cost before he dare to make the attack.

They make a soldier of every man capable of bearing arms. They prepared the principal part of the country for immediate inundation, and then quietly made it known to their neighbours that they would regard a neighbour which should cross their frontier as their enemy.

Together with Switzerland and Denmark and Norway and Sweden, Holland owes its salvation to its own labours and sacrifices. It was a lesson which was not easily learned, but which will not lightly be forgotten after the terrible example of Belgium.

ODDFELLOWS PROPOSE FUND FOR THE AGED; GRAND LODGE CLOSES

Toronto is Selected as Next Meeting Place—Rebekah Numbers Grow—Subordinate Lodges Advised to Adopt National Badge—Nominations.

CHATHAM, Aug. 16.—Toronto will be the scene of the annual convention of the Grand Lodge of the I.O.O.F. at the 1917 session. This decision was reached at the conclusion of the present session.

Reports of the various committees were presented at the morning session, and dealt with by the grand lodge. The committee on the Rebekah degree reported an increase of a thousand members and nine lodges, and also recommended that effects of defunct lodges be collected by the grand lodge officers.

Aged Oddfellows' Fund.

A special committee recommended that the grand lodge repeat its request to the sovereign grand lodge for an amendment of the law concerning the aged Oddfellows' fund, and that a special meeting be arranged to collect data on the matter, with the view of instituting an aged Oddfellows' fund for this province.

To Have National Badge.

Special committee No. 2 recommended that subordinate lodges purchase a national badge, to be displayed while the lodge is in session. The report was adopted.

Recommendations were also made that delegates bring the matter of the voluntary relief fund to the attention of their respective lodges ,and arrange for them to contribute in the future.

PEPSIN IS TAKING PLACE OF RENNET IN CHEESE MAKING

Letter from Mr J. A. Ruddick Read at the Cheese Board Meeting This Morning. Question of Boxes Touched Upon

Copies of the following letter were distributed among the salesmen at the Cheese Board this morning, and will prove of interest to patrons of factories in addition to the makers:

This is to call your attention to the following regulations which have been, by order of the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, in effect since August 1, 1916, and to which all wooden boxes used as containers must conform:

"When cylindrical cheese boxes are used as outside containers, they must meet the following requirements:

(a) Tops and bottoms (headings) to be not less than 5-8 inch in thickness, and consist of not more than 3 pieces, or 4 pieces if tongued and grooved.

(b) Hoops and bands to be not less than 1-5 inch in thickness.

(c) Hoops to overlap at joint not less than five inches and to be fastened with staples or nails not more than one inch apart and firmly clinched on the inside.

(d) Bands to be nailed to the heading (top and bottom), as follows: one nail on each side of every joint, with additional nails not more than four inches apart.

(e) Bottom rim to be not less than 1¼ inches in width, and top rim not less than 3 inches in width.

(f) Covers must fit closely and boxes must be trimmed flush so that the heading of the cover shall rest on the cheese.

All cheese manufacturers must see that boxes conform to the above specifications.

J. Stanley Cook, Secretary,
Montreal Produce Merchants' Association.

Pepsin Vs. Rennet.

The following letter was read to the Board by Mr. Gillespie, and explains itself:

Ottawa, August 3, 1916.

Dear Sir,—It appears that certain persons, for reasons best known to themselves, are circulating reports to the effect that cheese made with pepsin "does not keep," etc. In view of the quantity of pepsin now being used it might be injurious to the good name of Canadian cheese if such assertions were allowed to go uncontradicted.

During the week ending May 27th several lots of experimental cheese were made at the Finch Dairy Station from mixed milk divided into two vats, one of which was "set" with pepsin and the other with rennet extract. These cheese are still on hand in the curing room and no difference can be found in the flavour of the two cheese in any of the tests. Any statements to the effect that cheese made with pepsin are inferior to cheese made with rennet extract are absolutely unfounded, providing, of course, that the pepsin is of good quality and is properly used.

There are different forms and strengths of pepsin being offered at the present time, and cheese makers should be careful not to use anything which has not been carefully tested and proved to be suitable for the purpose by some disinterested and competent person.

Pepsin is now being used at the Finch Dairy Station, and its use there will be continued until we can ourchase rennet extract at not more than $5 per gallon.

Yours very truly,
J. A. Ruddick, Commissioner.

WEDDING BELLS

DEAKIN—WALTON.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday at the home of Mr and Mrs. Walton, 35 Dennistoun Avenue, when their daughter, Clara Maud was united in marriage to Frederick Deakin of Walkerville The Rev. William Johnston, George Street Methodist church, officiated. Sharp at one o'clock the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohns wedding march which was beautifully played by Miss Maysie Cunningham, cousin of the bride. During the singing of the register, Miss Iva Colville of Toronto and Mr. C. Walton, brother of the bride sang "The Sunshine of your Smile". The only attendants were little Miss Florence, sister of the bride who officiated as flower girl. The bride looked charming in a dress of white silk and Georgetta crepe. Among the out of town guests were Miss Colville of Toronto, Mrs. George Deakin, mother of the groom, and a number of others.

The bride received many costly and useful presents including a miscellaneous shower which was given by the employees of T. C. Elliott. The young couple left on the afternoon train; the bride travelling in a tailored suit of seal brown with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Deakin will reside in Walkerville.

OBITUARY

MRS. PHILIP O'REILLEY.

The death occurred in Percy township on Sunday, August 13th of Mrs. Philip O'Reilley, daughter of Mrs. William Clancy, 188 Douro street. She is survived by three sisters, Mrs J. Devlin, Indian River; Mrs. J. Collins, 263 Munro Avenue, city; and Miss Teresa Clancy, 188 Douro street. There are four brothers, Messrs John, Joseph and Robert of this city and Edward of Percy.

Another of Port Hope's leading citizens in the person of Thomas Hitchcock Ambrose, was called home Sunday evening after a lengthy illness from heart trouble.

The late Mr. Ambrose was born in London, England, in 1848 and when quite a young man came to Port Hope. He entered into the brewery business with Mr. Winslow under the name of Ambrose & Winslow. Their first place of business was on Mill street on the Riordan property and they later moved to Cavan street, just opposite the Nicholson File Works, their place of business there being known as the Highland Spring Brewery. Business grew to such proportions that larger quartters became necessary and they built the large plant now used as a canning factory. About twenty years ago the business was disposed of, and since then Mr. Ambrose has lived retired.

Deceased was married to Miss Cluxton, of Peterborough, who predeceased him several years ago. To this union one son was born, Guy; now a member of the second King Edward Horse, Kilkenny, Ireland. A few years ago Mr. Ambrose was united in marriage to Miss McBain, of Cobourg, who now survives him.

The late Mr. Ambrose was a man of very liberal principles, and always ready and willing to do some one a good turn. Although attached very much to home life, he always took an active interest in municipal affairs, having served at the Council Board, the Board of Trade and the Board of Health. To the bereaved widow and family, Port Hope extends heartfelt condolence.

Assault Charge Was Dismissed

At this morning's Police Court, Stanley Wilk, an Austrian, laid a charge of assault against Mr. Abraham Low. Evidence went to show that Wilk, an employee of Low's, called for his pay, but became quite saucy in so doing. Mr. Henry Rush, J.P., in dismissing the case, exonerated Mr. Low from all blame, and told him he was perfectly justified in taking the action he did.

A little Russian woman, who spoke no English, gave evidence against the Austrian, and demanded $2.30 which was owing to her. He was ordered to pay up and did so.

VILLAGE OF MAUREPAS CAPTURED BY THE ALLIES

The French and British Make a Combined Assault

French and British Made Brilliant Assault On The Western Front

Village of Maurepas Was Captured Together With Many German Prisoners and Guns—Attack Was Made on Both Sides of the Somme—Western Line of Prussians Melts Slower Than the East.

MILITARY EXPERTS EXPLAIN WHY

PARIS, August 17.—The French and British made a brilliant assault on both sides of the Somme River last night, capturing the village and Maurepas and many German prisoners and guns.

The apparent slow rate of progress by the French and British forces on the western front since July 1 as compared with that of the Russians on the eastern front, it is explained in military circles here, is due to the methodical nature of the Entente offensive against a line of strongly fortified positions extending virtually from the North Sea to Salonika and the fact that infantry must wait until the artillery has done its work.

The front of the Central Powers in the western theatre of the war is much more strongly fortified than the front with which the Russian armies have had to deal, so the latter are in a better situation for manoeuvring on a large scale..

One of the principal drawbacks of the Entente Allies on the western front is the nature of the Teutonic positions, which prohibit the use of the wings of the Entente armies. The Russians, however, face no such obstacle. The Russian operations, it is explained further, have not been arranged with political considerations in view, such as necessarily have arisen on the western front, owing to the co-operation of various Entente armies.

The methodical, if relatively slow policy of the Entente leaders on the western front is held here to be justified by the fact that the losses in the field are now much smaller as compared with what they were earlier in the war. Since July 1 the Entente losses have been only about one-fifth of what they were during the push in Champagne last fall or during the first months of the battle of Verdun.

Italian Troops Enter Suburbs of Tolmino

Austrian Fleet Hurriedly Leaves the Istrian Port for Unknown Destination—Tolmino Under Heavy Shell Fire and Two of its Suburbs Are Burning—Italians are Only Thirteen Miles From Trieste—A Naval Battle is Looked For.

CONTINUOUS ATTACK

PARIS, August 17.—Italian troops have entered the suburbs of Tolmino, which is under continuous shell fire, according to a despatch from Turin. The Austrians, says the despatch, are evacuating the city.

Tolmino has been under continuous attack since the very beginning of the Italian advance into the Isonzo River region. The importance of Tolmino lies in the fact that it controls not only the Isozo River territory but is also the headquarters for the Austrian forces which during the last two years has been based at this point. From Tolmino it has been practicable to reinforce both the lower and upper reaches of the Isonzo and the Tyrol country, as well, lying farther westward. Located in the only open valley stretch of any importance along the entire length of the Isonzo, Tolmino has had the further advantage of close proximity to the main trunk line of railroad connecting Trieste with the Tyrol country and with upper Austria.

Tolmino lies thirty miles to the northward of Gorizia. The Isonzo River flows past both cities.

FLEET ABANDONS TRIESTE.

With the flight of the Austrian naval forces from Trieste, the conjecture is that all units have fallen back on Pola or Fiume. It is well recognized that naval forces cannot be counted on to render an effective defence against military forces on land operating against a place. The Japanese attack on Port Arthur was preceded by the destruction through 12-inch mortar fire of the Russian ships an anchor in the port.

At Pola the Austrians possess a strong naval base and one which is capable of a strong defence, but Pola, it is believed, would be rendered helpless were the Italian military forces able to invade the Istrian peninsula and cut the line of railroad leading from Laibach over Kosino to Pola.

This road can be reached from Trieste at a distance of only fifteen miles eastward of the last named city.

Beyond Pola the Austrians possess an important port in Fiume, and Fiume cannot be cut off from railroad connection with Hungary short of a seventy-two mile drive southeast of Trieste. In military circles it is believed that coincident with an Italian occupation of Trieste an active blockade by the Allies may be expected of the two ports of Pola and Fiume.

LOOK FOR NAVAL BATTLE.

Such a step, it is thought, will hasten an early encounter between allied and Austrian forces, and it is believed that the combined Italian-French naval forces in the Mediterranean are fully able to meet the entire strngth of Austria's fleet.

Below Pola and along the Dalmatian coast the inland waterways afford many advantages to the naval forces having intimate knowledge of their characteristics. This knowledge is possessed by the Austrians, it is believed, in a marked degree, since the Dalmatian coast has been the manoeuvre ground in many of the important Austrian naval problems of recent years. The Italian naval defeat at Lissa in the last war between Italy and Austria was fought on the eastern shores of the Adriatic, and the Austrian success was in no small measure due to the thorough seamanship and intimate knowledge of the navigation required in those waters.

Tolmino had only some two thousand inhabitants before the war. It has been of chief importance during the period of hostilities because of the strong bridgehead position established there by the Austrians in their system for the defence of the Isonzo region north of Gorizia. This bridgehead, considered generally next in importance to that of Gorizia, has persistently resisted Italian attacks. The town itself, however, which frequently has been under Italian shell fire, has previously been reported abandoned by the Austrians, but these reports never have been confirmed.

MAY NOT RESUME DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH GERMANY

Britain Will Demand Full Reparation for the Execution of Captain Fryatt and Similar Outrages According to Announcement in the House of Commons

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Britain may not resume diplomatic relations with Germany after the end of the war until Germany makes full reparation for the execution of Captain Fryatt and similar alleged outrages, Premier Asquith intimated in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The Prime Minister thus replied to a question put to the Government by Sir Edward Carson. Sir Edward asked, if in view of the Fryatt and other cases, whether England was prepared to resume diplomatic intercourse with Germany after the war unless these allowed crimes were expiated.

"Will the Government declare that the Kaiser's action is wanton murder?" asked Will Thorpe, the labour member. The question went unanswered, amid a tumult of cheering.

NOW CUTTING GRAIN NEAR MEDICINE HAT

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 17.—Grain cutting has commenced at many points throughout the province. Medicine Hat, Baintree and many other towns report that cutting has commenced and that it will be general by the middle of next week. In the more westerly sections, near the foothills, the crops are much later and it will be the first week in September before they become matured. The weather is ideal for ripening and cutting to-day and the temperature is high.

OTTAWA, Aug. 16.—A man who enlists in a Canadian battalion and then absents himself without leave for any period cannot be charged as a deserter unless the battalion has left for overseas, in accordance with a special amendment to the militia act passed by an order in Council recently, which was asked for by the military authorities themselves. Counsel, by producing this enactment in the Police Court, succeeded in having Albert Thibert, charged with desertion from the 207th Battalion, acquitted this morning.

Northern Ontario Fire Relief

A Committee has been formed to receive Funds for the Relief of Sufferers

The Northern Ontario Fire Relief Committee, consisting of representatives of the Dominion and Ontario Governments, City of Toronto, Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, Toronto Board of Trade, and Canadian Manufacturers' Association, has been formed at the request of the Ontario Government to solicit and administer funds for the immediate relief of fire sufferers. The Dominion and Ontario Governments have each subscribed One Hundred Thousand Dollars, and the City of Toronto Fifty Thousand. It is estimated that at least Four Hundred Thousand Dollars is needed to effectively relieve the situation, which is very serious. Citizens are urged not to make contributions through other than the Toronto central organization, in order that duplication and waste may be avoided.

Subscriptions are earnestly and urgently requested, and should be made payable to T. Bradshaw, Commissioner of Finance, Toronto, Treasurer of the Fund.

5 of 4,000 Germans Reach British Lines

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN THE FIELD, Aug. 11.—(delayed)—The Germans made several attempts to regain the high ground taken from them north of Pozieres and yesterday evening between 5 and 7 o'clock they set out a strong body of infantry to attack the British trenches. It was a curious, vain and tragic endeavor like several other counter-attacks launched at the command of the German staff of men recently brought up as support troops, knowing quite absolutely nothing of the country in which they were called upon to fight and just blundering out with a kind of desperate courage toward the British lines. It was exactly this last evening.

From prisoners the British took it was learned for certain that these troops had no familiarity with this ground between Mouquet Farm and the windmill and when they were ordered to attack they regarded themselves as sheep sent to the slaughter. They knew only that the Australians were in front of them and from what they had heard of the Australians they did not have much hope. What hope they had was in the guns behind them. Certainly in spite of all the German guns the British had knocked out by counterbattery work and all they had to shift from day to day, owing to the ceaseless searching fire of the British against their emplacements with the aid of the aerial scouts the bombardment that preceded the German assault was intense and formidable. The Australians "stuck it" guessing what was to follow. In the trenches they have dug and the shell craters and old German trenches which are now almost shapeless under the British and German fire they held on and kept bombs ready and machine guns handy and watchful eyes, wherever a man could see, upon arow of broken tree stumps appearing over the crest of Pozieres right beyond the windmill, then below the crest on the other side of the ridge—the German side—in Mouquet Farm, called Moscow Farm by the men who will still jest whatever the conditions of life.

TWO BATTALIONS WIPED OUT

A small valley or gully runs behind the farm toward the quarries and it is fro mthis the German soldiers came streaming out in open order when their guns lengthened the range so they could set forward without walking into their own barrage. As it happened, they worked into the British barrage. The British guns waiting for them. The German infantry came straggling forward in extended order and irregular waves. There were two battalions of them in the open when the British shells burst over them, and the trench mortars made a target of them, and the machine guns whipped into their ranks with a scourge of bullets. Men fell face forward in large numbers. Others came on and fell further from their own lines. Some men ran quickly, as though to escape from all the bursting shells, into the Australian lines, flung up their arms and lay still. They were very brave. Quite a number of these German soldiers travelled a quarter of a mile over this open ground, in spite of the terrific fire concentrated upon it, before some bit of shell caught them and killed them, or left them lying there in agony.

The Australians shot straight. They had no notion how many waves of men would advance upon them. They had to kill them very quickly lest they should overwhelm the line of trenches and the ground in which there was any kind of cover. The Australian machine gunners sent out sheets of bullets, and far away behind them, for a distance, unknown places, the British gunners were sending over a fierce storm of shells in a curtain of fire, through which men could hard ly pass alive.

No German soldier came through alive; only five escaped. Men were standing on the papapets of the German line, calling to them, calling them back, trying to save something out of this senseless slaughter that had been ordered. There were some stragglers who ran back, but not many. In No Man's land, also, south of Mouquet Farm, there were individuals who crouched in shell holes and escaped, as some men always escape in spite of the great shells that explode over them and around them. These were collected afterward by the Australians and they numbered about fifty.

SIGNS OF DEMORALIZATION

The counter attack was a utter failure One is left wondering why the Germans attempts such attacks predestined to end in disaster. It is an expensive form of reconnaissance to test the British strength. The German soldiers would have the right to call it murder. It seems to show that the German staff is disorganized perhaps a little demoralized by the continual bombardment which cuts their signal lines and prevents the sending up of supports and supplies. They can only retaliate by gunfire upon which they always rely as their great power in attack as in defense.

The Australians are still fighting in a way which wins the admiration of their Generals and staff and of all the army. These clean-cut men are so fine in physique and appearance that one always learns to look at them in any street of war. They are not stolid fellows who can stand the test of shell fire without suffering in spirit. They are highly strung and sensitive, with more nervous temperament than many of the English soldiers, but they have a pride and heroic quality that keeps them steady and an intelligence in the individuals as well as in mass which makes them great soldiers. At Pozieres now they are doing wonderful work, which will tell upon the adversary in his efforts to hold the ground at all costs and win back his lost positions.

Alkali In Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

PORTUGAL'S HOMER.

Camoens, Who Wrote "The Lusiad," Died In Abject Poverty.

Camoens, its gifted author, determined to do for Portugal what Homer had done for Greece. The great poem was written in the sixteenth century, which has been called the heroic age of Portugal, and its main feature is the rounding of the Cape of Good Hope by Vasco da Gama, while a most interesting episode is the crowning after death of Inez de Castro as queen of Portugal.

"The Lusiad" took its name from Lusius, who was said to have founded Lisbon. Its author was born about 1520, and his career, which began brilliantly, was blighted by the death of a broken heart of the lady of his love, for whose sake he was banished from the land.

Camoens wrote "The Lusiad" in his banishment and was recalled in 1571, losing on the way all his property except his poem. Pensioned at first by the king, this great epic poet of Portugal died in great poverty and misery in 1570, when his patron was also dead.

Knowledge and Culture.

A great memory does not make a philosopher any more than a dictionary can be called a grammar. There are men who embrace in their minds a vast multitude of ideas, but with little sensibility about their real relations toward each other. These may be antiquarians, annalists, naturalists; they may be learned in the law; they may be versed in statistics; they are most useful in their own place. I should shrink from speaking disrespectfully of them. Still, there is nothing in such attainments to guarantee the absence of narrowness of mind. If they are nothing more than well read men or men of information they have not what specially deserves the name of culture of mind or fulfills the type of liberal education.—Newman.

England's First Almanac.

The first almanac printed in England was the "Kalendar of Shephardes," which appeared in 1497, just forty years after Gutenberg printed his first almanac at Mentz. From that time onward almanacs were numerous, "omens and prognostications" being added in most cases to the calendar information. One of the earliest specimens preserved enjoys the title of "The Prognostycacyon of Master John Tybault, of the influence of the moon, of peas and warre and of sykenesses of the yere, with the constellacions that be under the planets and the revolucions of kynges and princes."—London Mirror.

Church Steeples.

The church steeple was originally designed as a means of advertising the situation of the church. Among the low buildings which originally prevailed the steeple was an impressive beacon, but under modern conditions it is a failure, as even the most towering steeple is lost among the higher industrial structures reared around it. The steeple is really being replaced by electricity, which answers the purpose much more satisfactorily. Electrically illuminated signs are being introduced quite extensively for this purpose.

Battleship Schools.

It is a striking testimony to the efficiency of the British Navy that school-work for the boys on board has been carried on far more assiduously since the start of the war than ever it was before. It would be excusable, even natural, to jump at the conclusion that all such studies would be dropped in these strenuous days, that every minute would be devoted to the immediate purpose of preparing for the ever-present chance of battle.

The opposite of this is the case; and the reason is, partly, that the navy is kept always in such a state of readiness and efficiency that it would not dream of allowing a thing like a war to disturb it from its calm routine; and partly that a wise forethought shows how necessary it is to prepare now the men and the officers for the navy that shall be in being when the present magnificent fleet shall be relegated to the scrap-heap.

One of the Cavendishes.

The young Marquis of Hartington, who has consented to be the Coalition candidate for North-east Derbyshire, is following the Cavendish trait and entering politics early. It was only last month that he celebrated his majority, and if there is an election in the near future he will be the youngest member of the House of Commons. His father entered the House at the age of 23, when he, too, was the "baby" of the House.

The Cavendishes are not a military family, though it is to the first Duke that we owe one of our best cavalry regiments—the 7th Dragoon Guards, raised in 1688 by the then Earl of Devonshire. It bore his name for two years, when it was called Schomberg's Horse, and afterwards the Black Horse, the men being mounted on black horses.

Dangerous.

If a Maori wishes to speak words of insult to another Maori he calls his adversary some kind of food. Any kind will do, living or dead. One Maori chief once told another that he was a roast veal. Then he fled to the bush, hid in a cave, was tracked, captured, and beheaded.

The cave is still shown to visitors, and when Lord Kitchener was in New Zealand he was taken to it by a pretty Maori girl acting as guide. She told him the whole story, and at the conclusion the stern soldier's face softened into a smile as he said:

"Ah, then, I suppose it would be highly dangerous to call a Maori lady a little duck?"

China's Porcelains.

The famous King Teh Cheong porcelain factory, which from the year 1306 furnished all the fine porcelain for the royal palaces of China, is to be reopened. This factory was partly destroyed during the revolution in which the republic was established and the various samples and patterns kept there were divided among the leading revolutionists. However, many patterns have been recovered, together with samples, and the next step is awaited with interest.

A Handy Dog.

Iva Line—My dog is a regular blacksmith. Ivan Other—How's that? Iva Line—Why, I kicked him the other day and he made a bolt for the door.

Safety First.

"Isn't it distressing to think of all the poverty in the world?"

"I never do. I confine myself exclusively to thinking of my own."

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to such in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washings the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headache, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin ont the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HIS MONUMENT

It Was One to the Living, Not the Dead

By AGNES G. BROGAN

BEAUTY OF THE SKIN

Is the natural desire of every woman, and is obtainable by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Pimples, blackheads, roughness and redness of the skin disappear, and the skin is left soft, smooth and velvety when this ointment is used. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Sample free if you mention this paper.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Old Charlie's life began with the coming of the children's mission to the shore. Eighty birthdays or more had he known on this same sandy beach.

Then one day when the tempting odor of his favorite ginger cookies filled the air Charlie's real life began. It was a group of romping Fresh Air mission children who attracted his attention. They were drawn to his place, no doubt, by that same delicious odor. Charlie's glance was forbidding. "Now, look a-here," he commanded. "You scampez. Don't come a-trackin' up my steps!" But one little maiden lingered unafraid. Beneath a shock of fair curls her witching eyes looked up at him.

"If you please," she said, "I would like three cookies." Charlie chuckled. "Three!" he exclaimed. "I want them," the little girl told him, "for the Borinsky children. They have never had any cookies." Behind their spokesman the Borinsky children waited hopefully.

"Land!" said Charlie. (It was his one exclamation, but he brought forth a plate heaped generously.) "No, thank you," the unusual young person remarked. "I did not ask for the cookies for myself." Grinning widely, old Charlie watched her down the sands.

"There's a nervy one," he murmured delightedly. "Spunky, too." The next morning she was back again, this time bearing in her arms a white bedraggled kitten. Uninvited, she confidently walked inside, appropriating Charlie's own big chair. "You'll keep the kitten, please," she said; "it cried last night all around the mission, and they would not let it in."

"Land!" ejaculated the old man. "Do you think I want to take keer of a cat?"

"You will," answered Miss Goldilocks. She smiled winsomely. "I like you," she said. Charlie took up the kitten, something unaccountable stirring in his breast. "You can come here and see it," he told her, "as often as the mission folks'll let you." He paused perplexedly. "You ain't like the rest of 'em," said Charlie. "How'd you come to get here?"

"Mother thought it best," the child replied in her pretty, precise way. "It is hot and crowded in the city, where we live, and we had not money to pay for country. You see"—she raised grieved eyes to his—"our daddy went and left us."

"Left a little thing like you?" said Charlie. But he added in quick encouragement, "He'll be comin' back again." The child shook her head. "He can't, mother says, because he's broken his leg. People with broken legs cannot walk." "Sho!" said Charlie slowly. "That's so—if mother told you." "And," continued the child, "mother has to work very hard to keep us both, so she cannot go away to find father. But if I stay here long enough perhaps she can save money to go. Then we will all be happy again. We were so happy! That's why they call me Joy."

"Joy!" whispered old Charlie. For a moment his roughened hand rested upon the curly head. "It's a good name," he said. Suddenly Joy leaned forward. "Couldn't you go to find father?" she asked.

Charlie smiled. "Mebbe," he said, "maebbe, some day."

When he had finished reading his paper that evening Charlie drew forth in the lamplight an old tin box. Painstakingly he made a record of the savings within and added his evening's toll. Then, with furrowed brow, he bent to study a map and a drawing which had for him never failing interest and charm. The map was the plan of a nearby cemetery, the drawing that of a tall marble tombstone. If in this uncertain life old Charlie had lived and labored unrecognised it was his one dream and determination to leave a mark after death. Here his name should be pointed out to future generations, the resting place of Charles Jaffray—Charles James Jaffray. And so, gloating one morning over his little store, Joy, coming to visit her kitten, found him.

"What's it for?" she asked in her straight, childish way. And, delighting at last in a confidant, old Charlie told her.

"That," said Joy softly, "will be beautiful, and I shall come to place flowers about your monument."

When upon a never forgotten day Joy brought her mother to visit him Charlie thought at first that two children were coming together across the sands, so young and sweet and fair was the mother of Joy. Looking up with the same frank smile, she thanked him for his care of her daughter.

"Land," said the pleased old man, "that wan't nothing! Reckon"—he smiled—"reckon Joy's my first love. She was telling me about her father," he went on, lowering his voice—"how he went away and didn't come back. I'm real sorry. Seems you put her off lettin' on he'd broke his leg."

"But it's true!" cried the mother of Joy, her cheeks flaming and her eyes aglow. "He is the finest man in the world, Joy's father, the best. We should not have married on so little money. Our people told us so. But we did"—she tossed her head defiantly—"and we were happy, so happy, until the accident. It was an automobile, and it injured his hip. At the hospital they could do little, and, oh, the suffering!" The girl covered her face, but soon her voice rang clear again. "Even then I could have managed had he trusted me. He was brought home from the hospital to spend his life in a wheeled chair. But I found a position, and it was good. After hours there was extra typing. Joy alone seemed to suffer, needing more care than I could give. So I decided to put love before pride—to send her here with those good people for the summer. Then, sitting there all day alone, her father reasoned wrongly. 'A double burden is more than even willing hands can bear,' he wrote. I found the cruel self sacrificing note when I came home at night, and he was gone. He would have good care, he assured me. But the place where he was going should be kept secret that I might not come to break his determination. Always I would have news of him, and he would hear of me. But until some easier way might be opened my husband would efface himself for my sake. Letters came, many and often, all dated from New York. How he had managed to get there I could not know."

"And does it," asked the child at evening, "take so many dollars to buy a tombstone?" Charlie was counting the money back into the box, his fingers moving shakily. He nodded. "Reckon you'll have to take keer o' your cat for a day or two, Joy," he said. "I've got to go into town."

"Oh," she cried, her eyes wide and shining, "are you going to find my papa now? you said 'some day, mebbe.'" Charlie's horny palm closed in promise over the little soft one. "If I kin," he answered simply.

From hospital to hospital went the bent old figure, and then Charlie turned into the broad gateway of the place of his last hope. New York, he felt sure, was not the true hiding place of the crippled father. Letters might be forwarded from there in order to keep from the loved one the humiliating fact of the home city "poor farm." And Charlie found that he was right. His sharp old eyes soon sought out the wheel chair even in its secluded corner. A young man, lifting his head in quick alarm at a stranger's approach, dropped it again at sight of the seaman's bent figure.

"How do?" said Charlie pleasantly. "Pretty tiresome, I reckon, a-settin' round all day. Been like this long?" The young man nodded brusquely.

"And they ain't no cure?"

"None." The word was shortly spoken. Sympathy, deep and true, shone in every line of Charlie's wrinkled face. The sick man, regarding him quietly, smiled in sudden friendliness. "Unless," he added, "I were rich; then there might be a chance."

"Sho!" Charlie was interested. "How's that?"

"There's a clever old customer, an Austrian surgeon, who sometimes fixes up a job like me. He's in New York now, but it would take more money than I'll have in all my crippled life just to bring him to look me over."

"Land!" murmured Charlie softly. "That's too bad!"

The young man laughed. "Oh, well," he said, "don't you worry about it."

"Too bad," Charlie repeated as he shuffled down the long corridor to the doctor's door.

"Come in," called a brisk voice, and old Charlie entered the attending physician's office.

* * * * * * *

Joy was waiting for him when he returned at evening—waiting upon his doorstep in the early twilight, the white kitten in her arms.

"You didn't find my daddy," she sighed resignedly. "But 'maybe' another day you'll bring him back to me."

"Mebbe," said old Charlie.

When the little mother came again upon visiting day she hurried eagerly across the sands with Joy.

"Listen, kind friend," she called, and waved aloft a letter. "It is from my husband." She paused breathlessly. "Such wonderful news. I must share it with you. He feared to write too hopefully, yet could not keep his hope from me. Some great Austrian surgeon has consented to take his case—to operate there in New York. The doctors have arranged everything. If the operation is successful my husband will walk again." The girl's voice sang. Charlie turned reverently from the radiance of her eyes.

"An' then you'll be happy?" he asked. There was a subdued eagerness in the question.

"Happy!" She breathed the word tremulously.

It was Joy who finally told him the great news. How daddy had been sent to New York, where a great surgeon, like the wizard in a fairy tale, made broken limbs straight and strong. "And soon," said Joy, nestling close in the old man's arms, "my daddy will walk home again. But I'll come to see you after because I love you so, and—and I'll be sorry when you have your monument."

"As for that monument," said Charlie, "I've changed my mind. Reckoned it'd be better to rejoice in a livin' monument here than to have a piece o' marble when I'm dead."

"I'll bring you flowers," murmured the child sleepily. Old Charlie gazed tenderly down upon the little head against his breast. Over his rugged features came a look of great content. "Reckon, dearie," he said, "you're a-bringin' me flowers right now."

BERLINERS EXPECT CHANGE.

Canadian Official Railway Guide Has Anticipated It!

BERLIN, Ont., Aug. 16.—General satisfaction was expressed in business industrial circles here when it was announced that the Ontario Cabinet would definitely decide on the ratification of the by-law passed by the City Council to change the name of the city from Berlin to Kitchener. In view of the sentiments expressed by Premier Hearst to the deputation of anti-name changers several weeks ago it is confidently expected here that the name of the Prussian capital will be replaced by the name of the late British Secretary of War.

Copies of the August edition of the Canadian Official Railway Guide received here apparently anticipated the proposed change, the name "Berlin" not appearing in the list of "B's," but "Kitchener" taking its place in the list of "K's."

WHEN CUTTING TEETH

Babies Are Subject to

DIARRHOEA

When the baby starts to cut its teeth, then is the time that the poor mother is under the stress of great anxiety. For some reason or other the bowels become loose, and diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps and many other bowel complaints occur; the gums become swollen, cankers form in the mouth, and in many cases the child wastes to a shadow.

When the child gets into this condition the bowels must be looked after very closely, and for this purpose we know of nothing that can equal Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This sterling remedy has been used for teething children, for over seventy years, by thousands of Canadian mothers who will swear by its efficacy.

Mrs. R. J. Waldruff, South River, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my little girl had diarrhoea while cutting her teeth. She got thin and very weak. I had tried different remedies, but all to vry little good. A friend recommended Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so I procured a bottle at once, and after she had taken a few doses I could see a change, and by the time she had taken half the bottle she was cured. I think every home should keep it on hand."

Vancouver Murderer Fought The Hangman

VANCOUVER, Aug. 16.—Strapped to a heavy arm chair, and hysterically calling to be taken back to court, Rocco Ferrante, who last year decapitated his partner, Dick Foracce, and dropped his head down a well, yesterday morning paid the extreme penalty of the law. He put up a terrible fight against executioner Ellis and the other officials, and before he left the death cell had to be pinioned and strapped to a chair on the trap.

The priest who accompanied Ferrante to the scaffold attempted to offer his spiritual consolation, but he paid no heed. Ferrante was pronounced dead eight minutes after the trap was sprung.

THREW WATER ON WIFE AND LOCKED HER OUT

STRATFORD, Aug. 16.—James Kinsman, Albert street was arraigned in the Police Court charged with assaulting his wife and pleaded not guilty. Evidence showed that he had on several occasions thrown water on his wife and had locked her out of the house. Magistrate Coughlin convicted the accused, but did not place any fine on him, adjourning the case for a week to let counsel for both parties arrange a separation.

$150,000 for Wounded.

Mrs. A. H. Scott, the organiser of the sale at the Caledonian Market in London in support of the funds for the wounded of the Allied countries, states that the magnificent sum of $150,000 has been received to date. Certain amounts are outstanding, and there are still some things to be sold. Lady Markham, for instance, had about 600 tons of coal—so that she hoped the grand total would ultimately be nearer $175,000. This was a most astonishing result when, before the sale, the most sanguine view was that $100,000 would be realized. The stall-holders whose receipts were highest were: Lady Markham (coal), Hon. Mrs. Charles Craven, Mrs. A. H. Scott, Mrs. Mathias, Lady Paget, Australian Stall, Italian Stall, and Lady Perley (Canada). Between 70,000 and 80,000 people visited the market.

FUTURE OF THE AEROPLANE.

How the Lessons Learned Now Will Be Applied After the War.

When the war is over the wings of the wind will have been harnessed so effectively that a splendid profit will be written on the balance sheet of peace. The air dreadnaughts of the day are the prototypes of the aeroplane de luxe of the morrow; the winged wains that carry a ton of explosives will be commandeered by commerce, and the safety devices that stand the gaff of shot and shell will find no very great test in the trade winds of the world.

The highways of the sky know no barriers and no frontiers. Besides being lord of its own element, the new aeroplane, driving through space at a hundred miles an hour, will outdistance the fastest ship and leave in a dilatory smudge of the horizon the smoke of the speediest railway train.

The sky is a universal roadbed that never needs repair. Spanning continents and bridging seas, hurdling cities, forests and the waste spaces of the world, the aeroplane, made safe, sound and speedy at the demands of war, will be trained to the minute for the greater service of peace and humanity.—Merle Crowell

He Made Good.

Lord Lansdowne once had a remarkable prophecy made concerning him while he was an Oxford graduate. Jowett, his tutor at Balliol, greatly admired him and always said that he would do great things.

"There goes a man," remarked Jowett, "who is as certain to be foreign secretary in due time in whichever party he chooses as tomorrow's sun is to rise."

Of course at that time Lord Lansdowne had not the least idea of filling such a distinguished post, and yet in 1900, after a brilliant political career, he found himself at the head of the foreign office.—London M. A. P.

World's Greatest Rink.

The largest skating rink in Europe, measuring about 35,000 square yards, is at Davos, in the canton of the Grisons, Switzerland, where all the great international skating competitions take place. It is generally open from the third week in November until the middle of March, and the climatic conditions prevailing at that altitude of 5,200 feet are so excellent that it is indeed an exception when the rink has ever to be closed during this period. A considerable staff of men is employed to maintain the rink in order. The ice is flooded every night and is scraped and polished in the morning with almost the same care that glass workers bestow upon plate glass.

Learning From Tumbles.

It does not matter how many tumbles you have in this life so long as you do not get dirty when you tumble. There is the greatest practical benefit in making a few failures in life. You learn that which is of inestimable importance—that there are a great many people in the world who are just as clever as you are, • • • and you very soon find out, if you have not found it out before, that patience and tenacity of purpose are worth more than twice their weight in cleverness.—Huxley.

The Baby's Room.

For the wee baby a nursery room separate from the living apartments of the family is especially important. Quiet, sunshine and good air are first requisites for the child's well being, and these are not easily secured when he is moved hither and thither to different parts of the dwelling as suits the convenience of his elders. The din and clatter and bustle of work and the confusion of movements, sights and noises are bewildering and harmful to the little one's sensitive nerves and brain.—Good Health.

Ceiba Tree of Honduras.

The tree known as la ceiba is one of the dominating features of the landscape in Honduras. It rises to a height of seventy or eighty feet before branching, and then a broad top spreads out like a huge umbrella. The trees are commonly six feet or more in diameter, but the wood is soft and not considered valuable for lumber. It is white, and many persons think it would be valuable for paper pulp. The tree bears a silky cotton, which is used to some extent for stuffing cushions.—Commerce Reports.

The Jewelers' Circular says they have a wonderfully fragile appearance, and their preservation is due entirely to the exquisite workmanship. They were made to replace gold jewelry given by women to the government when Prussia was crushed by Napoleon.

Postage Stamps as Money.

An interesting innovation has been introduced in Russia owing to the scarcity of small coins. To meet the difficulty postage stamps of the value of 10, 15 and 20 kopecks have since Oct. 1 been in use as paper money. At the same time they can be used for postage, but they are printed on stouter paper and have an overprint on the back in black which denotes the new use to which they have been put.

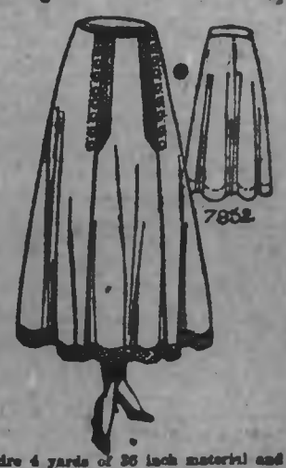
EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S THREE GORED SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.



Ever since the separate skirt and waist were introduced as aids to the wardrobe, to serve a plain or pretentious purpose, they have been held in favor for any but a really formal function, and they promise to hold preferred place for many seasons to come.

The skirt illustrated is one that may be called plain, but it is by no means an ordinary style. It is in three gores, is made on a high or regulation waistline, according to preference, and has the closing at the left side of the front.

There is a novel feature introduced by inserting braid under a plait at each side of the front, covered buttons outlining the braid from the line of the belt to the hip serving to make more pronounced the braid "trim." Around the lower edge of the skirt the braid trimming is repeated and a very stylish effect is the result.

Silk, poplin, gabardine, serge and whipcord will be suitable materials for this model.

The pattern of skirt, No. 7,852, is cut in sizes 22 to 32 inches waist measure. To make the waist in size 24 you will require 4 yards of 36 inch material and 4 yards of braid.

You may obtain the pattern by sending [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

The Allies Have Made A Number Of Important Gains

German Positions On Western Front Are In Danger

BRITISH AND FRENCH TROOPS ADVANCE ON A THREE MILE FRONT

Three Strongly Fortified Villages on the Somme Front are Two Thirds Surrounded By the Allied Troops as Result of Yesterday's Successful Blow Against the German Lines---The Village of Guillemont is Menaced by the British---Fighting in the Balkans.

GIGANTIC SLEDGE HAMMER BLOWS

LONDON, August 17. — Three strongly fortified villages on the Somme front are nearly two-thirds surrounded by the Allied troops as the result of yesterday's successful blow against the German lines, and are expected to fall before the next great Anglo-French assault. The Village of Guillemont is menaced by the British. The French have penetrated into the outskirts of Maurepas, and have driven their lines around the village to the north. The Germans are in a deep pocket at the Village of Clery, where capture will mark an important gain for the French in their advance on Peronne from the north. The forward rush of the British and French armies on a front of nearly three miles yesterday was preceded by one of the most violent bombardments of the whole war. Several hundred thousand shells were poured in upon the German positions. When the Allied infantry rushed the enemy trenches they found little work to do except to round up dazed Germans who had escaped death in the terrific downpour of shrapnel and high explosives, and send them to the rear. The fighting was over in a few minutes. On both the Russian and Italian fronts severe fighting is continuing on a large scale. In the Balkans an official statement reports enterprises along about one hundred miles of front.

The French Are Pounding Away at The German Lines

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE SOMME, August 17.—Like a gigantic multiplied sledge-hammer, the French army is smashing away at the German lines on the Somme battle front. The French offensive in no way resembles the Russian steam roller. Instead it hammers continually with blow upon blow at any given point at any given time until eventually, the French officers believet, it must break down both the German defenses and the resistance of the Germany army. The success of this steady hammering is demonstrated both by the actual advance and the influx of prisoners who have surrendered in large numbers.

Germans Are Beaten Back By Severe French Attacks

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, August 17.—(French Official) — Beaten back by the heavy French assault on both banks of the Somme, the Germans made no attempt to counter attack against the newly conquered French positions last night.

An official statement from the War Office to-day reported a lull in infantry fighting on the Somme front, but reported violent artillerying especially near Maurepas and Belloy-en-Santerre, where the French advanced yesterday.

British Success West Of The Foureaux Wood

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 17.—Driving forward in conjunction with the French, the British not only scored advances west and southwest of Guillemont, last night, but also captured three hundred yards of a German trench west of Foureaux Wood, General Haig reported this afternoon. The gain in this region advanced the British front three hundred yards from their previous position.

East of Mouquet Farm, (northwest of Posieres) British machine guns stopped a German attack.

Over Seven Thousand More Prisoners Captured by Slavs

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 17.—The capture of 7,506 more prisoners by the Russian armies under General Sakharoff was officially announced to-day.

Other additional booty taken by Sakharoff's forces include 29 light and 17 heavy guns.

Austro-German Counter Attacks Halt The Russians

LONDON, August 17.—Strong Austro-German counter attacks have halted the Russian and Italian offensive temporarily, though the great battle of the Somme continues to progress favourably for the Allies. For the first time in more than a fortnight the official statement from the Russian War Office to-day recorded no more gain in territory.

TAKES EXCEPTION TO PRESENT METHOD OF OILING STREETS

Members of the Board of Works Are a Unit in Declaring That the Dust and Refuse Should First be Removed from the Streets That are to be Oiled.

EXTRAVAGANCE ALLEGED

"Gross extravagance" is the way Ald. A. H. Stratton at last night's meeting of the Board of Works, characterized the present method of oiling the city's streets without first removing the dust and refuse. "It's damnable extravagance," added Ald. Weir. The people will stand for a job well done, but they won't stand for a poor job, said the East Ward representative.

"Where are you going to get the money to clean the streets,' enquired City Engineer Parsons. The Aldermen were a unit in declaring that the oil was often placed on streets that boasted of a three inch layer of dust. The oil soaked into the dust and much of its value as a dust layer and road preservative were lost.

A number of south end residents want Perry street oiled from Aylmer to Park street.

Ald. Saunders — "It's too bad it can't be done. The people down there are helping to pay for it."

"The same argument applies to any street in the city. You wouldn't like to oil all the streets in the city?" observed Ald. Weir.

Ald. Saunders—"I don't see how we could do it."

Ald. McIntyre—"We might up to the limit of our appropriation and the only extra piece we have oiled is the ground at the rear of the C. P.R. station."

"Is that more important than the yard of the Canadian General Electric Company," inquired Ald. Stratton.

City Engineer Parsons—"I am inclined to think it is. It was a poor advertisement for people coming into the city before it was oiled."

Ald. Stratton—"That may be so, but we should look after our industries who are spending a lot of money here."

Fear of Vengeance Prompted Suicide

C. B. COLLINS WHO PLUNGED INTO RIVER, SAID TO HAVE WRONGED HIS FRIEND.

SANDWICH, Aug. 17—Fear of the avowed vengeance of a friend, whom he is alleged to have wronged more than a year ago by luring his wife from her six-year-old child and home, caused Charles B. Collins, sixty-three years old, a salesman, of Cleveland, to end his life two months ago, when he leaped from a Sandwich dock into the Detroit River. This was disclosed here to-day when James Kirkpatrick of Cleveland told High Constable Smith of Sandwich how his home had been broken up by Collins, whom he had cherished as a brother.

For weeks Constable Smith had worked to discover a motive for Collins' act, but not until Kirkpatrick's story of Collins' treachery, and of the unfaithfulness of a wife of thirty years, was told, was the real cause learned.

TO REGISTER FOR RECRUITS

Major Campbell Refers to New Scheme That Government Has Sanctioned and Will Support.

ADDRESS HERE TO-NIGHT

The chief obstacle to recruiting at the present time is the prosperity of this country."

"The population of Ontario is greater now than it was at the beginning of the war."

"There will be ten battalions recruiting in the third division within a month."

"There is no intimation or indication of any easing off in recruiting efforts."

These are some of the predominant statements expressed by Major Campbell, chief recruiting officer of the third division this afternoon. To-night he will address a meeting of business men and other citizens in the Council chamber, and looks for a large attendance that the new system of registration, authorised by an order-in-Council passed at Ottawa yesterday, may be generally understood.

The New Scheme.

A resolution passed on July 15th in Kingston at a meeting of citizens of this district, who have been active in recruiting, is entirely embodied in the Order-in-Council. It has also been augmented by the more specific and authoritative method of registration which has been actively advocated by those who have realized the limitations of the less rigorous system that has been hitherto employed.

It provides for the registration of all men in the Dominion for the twofold purpose of ascertaining:

(a) The number of non-elegible men who are to be provided with a government button, with registered number, and stating why they are not eligible for military service.

(b) The eligible men who will be systematically canvassed with a view to enlistment.

Business Men's Aid.

The new system provides for a recruiting organization of which the main feature will be the inclusion of business men to assist the military. Each division will be subdivided into districts in charge of recruiting directors. Local recruitting staffs will be appointed who will recruit for all branches of the service, thus eliminating the rivilary that has been fostered in the past between infantry, artillery and other branches.

It is proposed to compile a list of all rejected men to form a record, a blue book, of all those who offered themselves for military service.

Major Campbell stated that appeals will be made for the assistance of women and of men who have retired from active work.

The whole scheme as prepared for fresh recruiting endeavours will be detailed at to-night's meeting.

INQUIRIES MUST BE MADE THROUGH PROPER CHANNELS

Instructions Issued to Facilitate Inquiries Concerning Canadian Soldiers—The Procedure-- News of the Peterboro Boys Now Overseas.

MILITARY NEWS

Because of the number of inquiries made daily at headquarters concerning members of the C.E.F. the authorities have promulgated the following in order for Barriefield Camp and district:

The following instructions regarding inquiries concerning members of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces are published for general information, and are to be given full publicity:

1. Inquiries relating to casualties are to be made direct to records office, Ottawa.

2. Other inquiries or any applications for leave, transfer or otherwise, relating to members of the C.E.F., who have proceeded overseas must be made to Canadian Headquarters, Cleveland House, St. James' Square, London, England.

3. Any application or inquiry relating to a member of the C.E.F. in Canada must be made through the regular channels i. e., to the officer commanding the unit to which the member of the C.E.F., belongs,, who will deal with the matter himself or forward it, after prompt investigation, with his recommendation, to the officer commanding military district in which the unit is situated.

4. Applications or inquiries concerning members of C.E.F. units in Canada, which cannot be made to an officer commanding a unit should be made to the officer commanding the military district concerned.

5. All officers commanding units in military district 3 are to distinctly understand that all inquiries or correspondence in this connection must receive immediate acknowledgment and prompt attention.

Well, we arrived here safe after two weeks of steady travelling and I was well sick of it. We left Kingston Wednesday, the 12th of July and arrived in Halifax Friday night at half past seven. It was a grand trip. We came through Montreal early in the morning and had a good view of the city and all the way down through Quebec. The scenery was grand, and down Nova Scotia and New Brunswick the scenery was even nicer. They fed us right on the train, then we marched around Halifax, and at three o'clock in the

PROPERTY ENCROACHES ON PUBLIC HIGHWAY

Mr. D. W. Dumble Notifies the City Council to Take Action on Behalf of the Citizens—Statutes of Limitations Work Overtime Like a Mortgage.

THE LETTER

Magistrate D. W. Dumble has again invited the City Council to take such steps as may be necessary to preserve as a public highway that portion of Rubidge street, lying between London and McDonnel streets. The request came before last night's meeting of the Board of Works Committee of the City Council in the form of a letter which is appended. Ald McIntyre chairman of the Committee was instructed to see all parties concerned and arrange some form of settlement.

MR. DUMBLE'S LETTER

The letter follows:—

The Mayor and Council of City of Peterborough:—

Gentlemen,—On a former occasion I wrote to the City Council drawing their attention to the fact that the Roman Catholic church was in possession of part of Rubidge street, lying between London and McDonnel streets on that occasion the church authorities were reported to have promised to remove erections placed on that street, but nothing has been done to remove these erections. The kitchen of the Orphanage Building is entirely on the street; a small pavilion, recently erected is partly on the street; the clothes line apparatus is wholly on the street. I again, draw your attention to this matter and although, in one sense, the street is vested in the crown, nevertheless title can be obtained even against the crown by length of possession. As a citizen I am interested in the land lying to the west of that street, between London and McDonnell streets, nearly four hundred feet and I do not want to be deprived of my rights, as owner of the adjoining lands, by this street being private property simply by possession. I do not wish to make any inconvenience for my neighbours but I do not intend to submit to being deprived of my rights by the negligence of the Council in not taking necessary steps to preserve that street as a public highway. I thereby notify you that you are required on behalf of the interests of the people of this city to prevent the statutes of limitations from depriving the public of their ownership of the street.

D. W. DUMBLE.

WILL GATHER FORCES TO OPPOSE UNION

Presbyterian "Antis" to Hold Convention Here in October---Will Last Three Days

A convocation of Presbyterians opposed to Church union will be held at Toronto on the 17th of October. This was the decision reached on Tuesday at a meeting of a Committee appointed to take charge of the matter. There were twelve members present, presided over by the Rev. Dr. Andrew Robertson.

The convocation will last three days; and it is expected to be very largely attended. According to Mr. C. S. McDonald, Convener of the Finance Committee, there will be representatives present from every Presbytery in Canada. The programme of speakers and the place of meeting have not been decided upon yet, but will probably be given out next week.

"The members of the Committee," Mr. McDonald said yesterday, "are resolved upon continuing the Presbyterian Church. We are convinced that the majority of Presbyterians in the Dominion are of the same mind, and at this convocation we intend to assure them that everything possible will be done to continue the Church. It will provide a medium for the expression of their opinions on the matter, and will reassure them as to the stand the members of the Church are going to take."

It is understood that weekly meetings of the Committee will be held hereafter in the Central Executive office, Kent Building.

Fatal Blueberry Picking Excursion

ONE BODY FOUND—FOUR OTHER PERSONS BELIEVED TO BE DROWNED ALSO.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 17.—One man is known to have been drowned and four others of a party who left Gimli, on Lake Winnipeg, last Thursday, are believed to have met a like fate. Herbert Bristow's body has been found, and the missing ones are Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Peterson, aged twenty-eight and seventeen years respectively; Mrs. D. Einerson, aged twenty-five sister of Mrs. Peterson, and Alfred Bristow, aged eighteen. The dead man was aged twenty-one.

The party left Gimli Thursday morning last in a sailboat for Elk Island, twenty-four miles from Gimli to pick blueberries, and were to have returned Saturday morning. This morning several people left in a launch for the island, and after considerable search the upturned boat was found with the body of Herbert Bristow lashed to the mast. The lake was very rough and the party returned to Gimli with the body. Another search party will be sent out tomorrow.

Austrian Emperor Must Give Answer

Matter of Baron Burian's Successor Causing Trouble in Dual Empire.

Paris, Aug. 17.— The matter of Count Julius Andrassy, succeeding Baron von Burian as Austrian Foreign Minister, says a wireless despatch from Rome, now appears to be dependent upon whether Emperor Francis Joseph will accede to Count Andrassy's request that Hungary be allowed to have a larger part in the direction of the foreign policy of the Dual Monarchy. The Emperor's decision on the matter, it is said, is still being delayed.

REEVE RESIGNED CHEQUES UNSIGNED

Havelock Finally Decides to Consult its Solicitor

The problem of Reeve Fennell's resignation again loomed largely on the horizon of the Council's troubles, and in an endeavour to break up the clouds of doubt and darkness the Council decided to do what they should have done at first—to consult a solicitor as to their action in the matter, and to hold another special meeting on Friday night.

In the meantime the finances of the village are held up. The Bank refuses to loan money without the Reeve's signature and there is no money wherewith to pay outstanding cheques.

That disinterested parties should suffer from all this turmoil is decidedly wrong. Reeve Fennell took the oath of office at the beginning of the year and he should, in duty bound, conduct the business of the town until his successor is appointed, and not refuse to exercise his powers of office to the extent he has. On the other hand the members of the Council have no business not to accept his resignation until their sense of dignity and pride is appeased. If they wish to protest against the tenor of the Reeve's letter of resignation they can do so, but they too, have no semblance of right to hold up the business of the village by refusing to accept the resignation. They, like the Reeve, are the servants of the people and should govern themselves as such.—Havelock Standard.

BENIGN COMPULSION.

After rather long delay Homewood avenue has been treated to a dressing of dust-laying oil. The excuse given for not doing this sooner, was that the street was not in fit condition for the application of it. Here is proof that one, and not the least, of the benefits of treating streets with asphaltic oil consists in the benign compulsion it exercises. In the case of Homewood avenue, it is more than probable that, but for the necessity of properly preparing the street surface for oil dressing, it would have remained in the undesirable condition it has been in all the previous summer.

One of the greatest failures of city councils is the neglect of street surface maintenance — neglecting the simple, and easily applied, expedient of keeping road surfaces in smooth condition. This is a very simple thing to do and it has been found to be so by the comparatively trifling work that has had to be done in preparing streets for oil. The logical course to pursue is to keep the streets in this condition. One of the best paying additions that could be made to the civic street building and repairing equipment would be the provision of facilities for properly screening gravel for street repairing purposes and the provision of one or more dump carts to intelligently apply it where and at the time it is needed—the moment small depressions appear or where deeper holes have been allowed, by neglect, to be gouged out of otherwise good street surfaces.

TRENT CANAL TRAFFIC.

The figures published in the Examiner yesterday as to the traffic—goods and passengers—handled at the government wharf on George street, are a faint indication of the traffic of both kinds that will develop with the prospective speedy opening of the canal from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. The traffic referred to in yesterday's Examiner was purely local, and consequently must be of limited character. The opening of through inter-lake navigation will multiply the present traffic many times, and it is not being too sanguine to anticipate that the present wharf accommodation, ample as it comparatively is, will be quite inadequate to future traffic needs. It is to be hoped that this will be the case and that we shall be be compelled to greatly extend the wharfage accommodation in Peterborough.

This would be a most desirable thing. If the Trent canal fulfils the expectations that are held to justify the expenditure of millions in its construction, we can complacently and even cheerfully contemplate the expenditure of a few additional thousands to meet traffic needs at this port whose great increase over the present considerable volume can be very confidently predicted, with the completion of the canal. This enlargement would have been virtually unnecessary if those who had the decision in regard to the present wharf had been more optimistic and had the faith in the future of the canal possessed by such citizens as the late James Stevenson and the late John Bell. The former proprietor of the Examiner and representative of the city, advocated the construction of a much larger wharf that would provide for all reasonably probable future contingencies. He advocated a series of slips which would have very greatly extended the wharf frontage and accommodation of shipping. At present not more than three or four small craft can use the wharf at the same time. When the opening of the canal throughout will multiply the shipping, using the wharf many times, it is certain that the present wharf will not accommodate it.

For the sake of Peterborough, it is to be earnestly hoped that this will be the case and that the necessity of greatly enlarging the wharfage of Peterborough will be forced upon the government. We have been waiting with more or less patience for many years the completion of the Trent Canal and will be disappointed if the traffic development resulting from its through opening does not compel enlargement of navigation and traffic facilities in the near future.

A WORTHY APPEAL.

In another part of this issue is printed, for the second time, the appeal of the "Northern Ontario Fire Relief Committee" for immediate relief and aid for the sore-stricken sufferers from the recent disastrous forest fires. It is estimated at the least, four hundred thousand dollars will be required to meet a most serious situation. The Relief committee to administer the funds is of a character to give confidence in the funds contributed being judiciously expended and if, as requested, funds contributed are invariably sent to the Central committee in Toronto, there will be a guarantee of better organized and more economical expenditure as well as of avoidance of duplication and waste.

The appeal should come to open and responsive hearts and pockets. Imagination cannot conceive nor fancy picture the widespread and poignant suffering and destitution that attended and resulted from the disaster. Homes and household goods destroyed, crops of all kinds consumed by fire, a wide area made a desolation, and thousands homeless and shelterless, naked and, if not helped speedily, starving, in a land of plenty—all this constitutes a strong appeal to practical sympathy.

The governments of the Dominion and Ontario have subscribed a total of $200,000, though each might have well, especially Ontario, duplicated its giving. Toronto has voted $50,000, and thereby set a good example. It seems under the circumstances, the right thing for governments and municipalities to give liberally in the people's name. For the past two years, multitudes of demands for money contributions of private individuals, have been made and met. The number of these in every community has been comparatively few, and generally always the same. Under new appeals the heart is as willing as ever, but in reality the capacity for contribution is prettily well exhausted. By a municipal corporation contributing with liberality, the amount is distributed over the whole people and the individual payments deferred for a year, to be included in next year's taxes. We are sure, that in addition to what individuals are urged to do, and will continue to do, popular approval will meet the action of the City Council in making a liberal subscription. The County Council, with its constituency of farmers, should, by a liberal grant, voice their practical sympathy with their fellow farmers of Northern Ontario, who are suffering from a most disastrous and crushing blow.

THE "WORLD" QUESTION OF NICKEL.

The Toronto World, with a modesty that is characteristic of all journals, takes credit in the following wise for the work it has done in compelling official attention to the proper attitude of our government towards the important policy of the refinement of Ontario nickel in Canada:

Forced consideration of the nickel situation on two governments and a readjustment of their policies; also on both political parties.

Forced the Ontario Government to twice adjust the tax contribution of the International Nickel Co. to the province; and another change is promised.

Forced the International Co. to build a refinery in Ontario, although it said it could not be done.

Compelled the British Government to only renew its contract with the International Nickel Co. for one year.

Compelled the British Government to give a ten-year contract for $50,000,000 worth of nickel, spread over ten years, to a Canadian company.

Compelled the British Government to guarantee $2,000,000 securities of the Canadian company, and thus get rid of American-German capital.

The new Canadian company is to build its entire plant in Canada, smelters and refinery.

As soon as smelting is done in Canada we will know the value of the product and what metals other than nickel are in the ore.

And The World has shown the people of Canada that the International Nickel Co., by means of its agents and its peculiar methods, has stalled off the development of a nickel industry in Canada for twenty years; brought out the fact that Germany controlled the nickel producion of Canada; that Germany has great stores of nickel in the States; that the International Nickel Co. is a vital part of the all wider international metal and munition trust that has had so much to do with this war. Also that German munitions, guns, armaments, etc., are all made from Canadian nickel and directed against Canadian soldiers.

While we may be willing to concede due credit to the World for its propagandism in the nickel question, it is not, however, quite alone. The Examiner has many times, and as earnestly as possible, advocated the essentially important feature of a right national attitude toward nickel, as well as all others of our national resources—the policy of manufacturing, to, virtually, the ultimate condition, in this country, all our natural resources. This policy would include all the other things the World is contending for. It would be a truly national policy, far more potent than any other in providing labour and profitable industrial exploitation of our natural resources and giving Canada the full benefit, material, financial and economical, of the immense natural resources with which this country has been endowed. Killing outside competition by excluding foreign industrial products, by the imposition of taxation, is a crude way of providing for the realization of the policy "Canada for the Canadians," compared with the policy of doing things for ourselves, and in the fullest sense, holding what we have—thereby not only profitably developing our natural resources, but incidentally, at the same time, developing our home financial, industrial and economic skill and capability, our self-reliance, and material independence, to the fullest possibilities.

The government of Ontario announces, with the air of doing great things, conferring a tremendous national benefit, that it is considering the retro-active and future increase of the taxation on nickel. While we want provincial revenue, there are better means of providing it than imposing taxes. In the matter of nickel it would be better if the Government would consider the question of decreasing immediate revenue by bonusing, instead of taxing, some enterprise that would undertake the refinement of all our nickel ores in this province. The resultant industrial and economic benefits would be more to the general advantage of the country than trebling taxation, and allowing our nickel to continue finding its way to the United States and, in due course, to Germany.

FORESTERS NAME OFFICERS.

Peterborough Selected as Place for Next Convention.

Kingston, Aug. 16.— The Eastern Ontario High Court of Independent Order of Foresters elected the following officers at the concluding session this morning: High Chief Ranger, J. S. Eagleson, of Ottawa; past High Chief Ranger, G. M. Farrington, of Picton, Vice Chief Ranger, E. S. Graham, of Kingston; secretary, G. L. Dickson, of Manotick; treasurer, J. S. R. McCanna, of Kingston; physician, Dr. Bosken, of Ottawa; counsellor, A. L. Smith, of Cornwall; auditors —T. Lambert, of Kingston, and J. W. McElroy, of Ottawa.

It was decided to hold the next Triennial Convention at Peterborough.

LABOUR AND INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS IN CANADA DURING AND AFTER THE WAR

Much anxiety is felt as to labour conditions and much effort is being expended in dealing with the available supply so as to obtain the best results. Continuous pressure is being exerted to advance wages and at the same time national exigencies make it most desirable that the cost of munitions, which form at present so important a part of our industrial production, should be reduced. It is common knowledge that very decided economies in this regard could be effected if the supply of labour were more dependable and more efficient. The cost of munitions is frequently enhanced and the output limited through failure to obtain sufficient supplies of parts that are essential to complete production, and this failure is often traceable to workmen who insist on usual holidays and reduced hours of labour. Involving as it does, not only the waste incidental to the prolongation of the war, but additional suffering and loss of life at the front, the results of this insufficiency of labour do not appear to be understood by many of those who might give service and who ought to realize that this hour of their country's peril demand sacrifices and unremitting exertion on their part. In the interests of the country's general welfare it is most regrettable that our resources in men are not being conserved by more scientific methods of recruiting. It should be remembered that the whole-hearted services of a worker in a munition factory are in their way as valuable and necessary to the nation as those of the soldiers in the trenches, who in their perilous and imperative duty of carrying on our offensive on the battlefields, call for and have a right to expect the utmost help from our factories. This requires, when occasion demands, the sacrifice of normal pleasures and privileges in order that an abundance of artillery and ammunition may be forthcoming at cricial moments. Soldiers at the front are daily risking their lives to preserve our freedom and, while they are so doing, our universal and imperative duty is, with self-sacrifice and diligence, to strive to provide them with anything and everything that will minimize the loss of life. Sacrifices made within our well-defended shores to ensure industrial efficiency are insignificant compared with those being made by our kith and kin on their twenty-four hour duty in the trenches, for which there is no compensation in terms of profits or wages.

Industrial Conditions.

Great difficulty is still being experienced in procuring labour, not for munition work alone but to meet the growing demands upon domestic industry.—The latter have been stimulated by the prospect of another good harvest. The prices of raw materials tend upwards and in many cases they are becoming more difficult to obtain. Certain kinds of steel esstntial for present requirements are difficult to obtain in sufficient volume even though imports are on a larger scale than usual. Home rail mills have not been able to accept orders for domestic needs which must be satisfied before the heavy traffic movements in the autumn can be satisfactorily handled.

In many districts unusual difficulties will have to be faced this autumn by the operators of logging camps. Provisions are high in price and men are scarce. Under these circumstances the output of logs all over the Dominion will be less than normal and operating costs will be very much higher. An uncertain factor is the trend of values after the war ceases. Opinion on this point is divided, but the majority of practical lumbermen anticipate that after the war there will be a steady demand for lumber at good prices. In the meantime it is obvious that the cost of logging during the coming season will cause the output to be very much smaller, in addition present stocks are low and are being steadily drawn upon, and this will tend to prevent any serious collapse of prices.

Economic Situation After the War.

Second only in importance to providing for the requirements of our forces in the field is the duty of preparing for economic readjustments when the war ends. Sir George Foster, the Minister of Trade and Commerce, urges business men to confer with one another with a view to determining "the best means of meeting the coming situation and of mobilizing the business forces of Canada so as to employ our labour, increase our production and enlarge our markets along peace lines * * * *. Rebounding from two years and more of the most destructive and wasteful war of history, the world will then plunge into a trade and economic contest in which forces will assume totally new alignments, when competition will be keener and stronger than ever, and when science and organization will play a leading part in any successful role." — Monthly Letter Canadian Bank of Commerce.

JAPAN ARMS AND CLOTHES RUSSIANS

Uniforms, Rifles, Big Guns and Ammunitions Supplied to Czars Armies

PARIS, Aug 16.—The extent to which Japan is clothing, shoeing, arming and munitioning the Russian army was forcibly presented to a military observer who has just returned from a trip along the Russian font.

"I was astonished," he said, "to find great numbers of Russian soldiers clothed from head to foot in uniforms made in Japan, not only, the tunic and trousers, but even the leggings. They carried on their shoulders Japanese guns. Their cartridge belts were filled with cartridges made in Japan. Their leather belts and buckles were from Japan. And the stout hobnail shoes they wear are from hides gathered in Korea and made into shoes in Japan. So that, there you see, a Russian soldier, in Japanese clothes, Japanese shoes, with Japanese gun, ammunition and Japanese accoutrement.

SUPPLIES FROM KOREA.

"It is strange," he went on, "that Russia went to war with Japan over Korea, and now Korea the source of all the trouble, is supplying Russia with the shoes in which her soldiers are marching to victory. Korea is a great grazing country and is proving a vast reservoir of raw hides which the Japanese are rapidly turning into boots, shoes, saddles and leather furnishings."

"How did these supplies get from Japan to the Russian front?" the observer was asked.

"It was noted," said he, "that about the only vital point where the Germans had not been able to send their submarines was in the waters of the East China Sea the Straits of Korea, and the Sea of Japan. These are the waters separating Japan from Russia and the Asiatic mainland, and the routes over them, commercial and military, are open and without menace."

FURNISH DEADLY GUN.

"What sort of arms and munition is Russian getting from Japan?" was asked.

"All sorts," was the reply, "from the service rifle and small field pieces up to the big 12-inch guns. The Japanese 12-inch is a terrible weapon, and they are content not to make any of the 14-inch and 16-inch guns, as they consider from a military standpoint that the immobility of the monster gun offsets its advantages, whereas the 12-inch is a mobile gun and very deadly."

"It is said that French and Japanese officers are now furnishing the expert direction of the Russian artillery fire, which has made it so effective. Did you see any of these officers?" was asked.

OPERATED BY RUSSIANS.

"No, and the report is not correct" said the observer. "The Russian artillery officers are directing their own fire, and are getting splendid results. The only Japanese and French officers are those temporarily assigned to explain the workings of a new piece, just as an expert is sent along to explain any complicated piece of machinery. Japanese experts accompanied the big 12-inch guns, not to manoeuvre them in action, but to explain how it was to be manoeuvred. That is the extent of their help, and the Russians should get full credit for what they have accomplished in operating their artillery. No, the Japanese have done remarkably well in arming, clothing and munitioning the Russians, but they have not had a chance to do the fighting."

TO INVESTIGATE ARRESTS.

KINGSTON, Aug. 17.—An investigation is to be conducted at Ottawa by Lieut.-Col. S. A. Thompson of the Royal Military College and Major R. D. Ponton of Barriefield Camp, into the arrest of certain officers and men of the 207th Battalion. These officers have left for the capital.

Germans 'Quaff Their Own Medicine' from Gas Tanks

British "Gasman" Describes Attack in Which Death Fumes Are Used to Paralyze Opposition—Danger of Their Employment in Daytime.

London, August 15.—Before the "big squeeze" began discussion of British gas attacks was strictly prohibited, but now the taboo has been lifted, and a British "gasman" has been allowed to write a graphic account of the work of his own special corps whose business it is he says, "to doctor the Germans with their own medicine."

"Behind our lines," he writes, the sun set in a blaze of glory. A glance over the parapet shows the green and scarlet of the poppied No Man's Land already merging into the gray mists of twilight, but 150 yards away, like a brown earth shadow among the grays, hangs the rusty barbed wire of the enemy, and just beyond a white, chalky upthrow marks his front line trenches. The gasmen stare across the silent shadows at that white line and for a moment they think of the choky, gurgling cough of the men who die by gas. It is not pleasant to die by gas.

"Connect up." The order comes down the line from one bay of the trench to another and the gasmen immediately get busy. The front rows of neatly piled sandbags of which each fire step is apparently solidly built, are pulled out and disclose a cavity, in which show, black and ominous, the cowled heads of a row of iron cylinders. They are sunk in pits, well 'bagged up' to protect them from possible crack or puncture by flying fragment or ricocheting bullet. Each cylinder weighs about 130 pounds, and contains sufficient compressed gas if it could be used without waste, to put an entire company out of action.

"On top of the cylinders lies a tangle of flexible connecting pipes, three and four way joints, spigots and screw jets, and upon these with spanner and key, the gasmen start work. The cylinders are all connected up in series and nothing remains but to throw the jets over the top of the parapet and open the valves in order to release the deadly fumes.

"But something is required to carry the gas over to the German lines—a favoring breeze—and never did sailor scan the sky more intently than the gasmen watch their little inconspicuous wind guages, fixed to the edge of a trench. They must have a wind of a certain direction, and they prefer it of a certain strength. On this occasion the direction is satisfactory enough but the breeze shows signs of weakness, and occasionally falls to a mere, almost imperceptible zephyr.

"ELEVEN O'CLOCK."

"When not watching the wind the gasmen are watching their pipes; repeatedly feeling and testing every inch of tube and joint, for none know better than they the danger of leakage and of the escape of gas into their own trenches. Persistently an officer passes down the line, casting rapid though keen glances as he goes at each set of cylinders and their connecting pipes. And in every bay he pauses and whispers two words to the corporal in charge: 'Eleven o'clock.' But the wind, without which the gas will not reach the enemy's trench and do its deadly work among the occupants, begins to die out.

"At ten minutes to eleven the gasmen don their special respirators, which in the dim light give the wearers a strange almost inhuman appearance. Masked and goggled, with weird, trunk like pieces of hose running from the mouthpiece to the box of air purifying chemicals strapped to their chests, they looked like some of the unearthly beings who people the books of Mr. H. G. Wells.

"But not a breath disturbs the still air. The feeble breeze has died completely. Hurriedly the order runs down the line:—Cancel and stand by! Behind their masks the gasmen grunt disgustedly. But suddenly—crack crack!! rat-a-tat! rat-a-tat tat!! The orders to the infantry have not been countermanded, and the quiet of the night is roughly shattered by a long line of viciously crackling rifles and Lewis guns, to which the German reply.

"The gasmen move about uneasily. It is not for themselves they fear, but for those pipes and cylinder heads lying bare and exposed to the hail of flying fragments. Well they know the danger of bursts and of trenches filled with gas and no wind to move it. But they cannot 'bag up' without orders, and so they detail one of their number in each bay to watch the cylinders while the rest gather behind the traverse, as being a slightly safer spot.

THE ATTACK IN DAYLIGHT

"When day breaks a fair wind is blowing, straight toward the German trenches. But, of course, it is now broad daylight, and the gas will be visible as soon as it leaves the pipes. The gasmen know what to expect. They know that as soon as the greenish-gray clouds appear outside their parapet there will be running messengers and hurried telephoning in the German lines. They know that within a few minutes the word will have reached the German big guns at the back, and that every place capable of flattening out a parapet and burying them, mangled and broken among their own cylinders will be concentrated upon the front line trench in which they stand.

"Time! Over the top the jet-pipes are flung, and then, simultaneously along almost two miles of trench, there arises a sibilant hiss, as of some monsterous and venomous snake suddenly aroused from slumber. Now the gasmen are working frantically with wheel and spanner and key, and the hiss increases in shrillness and volume. Outside the parapet the green poison fog is already spreading like a foul blanket over No-Man's land. Carried ceaselessly forward its outer edge is rapidly approaching the German trenches into which it will presently sink, spreading agony and death among those who cannot escape.

"No rifle or machine gun fire has been ordered this time, and from either line scarcely a sound is heard except the deadly hiss of the escaping fumes. The minutes pass in tense, ominous quiet. Nature herself seems to rise aghast to watch this devilry practised by her children upon one another.

"Behind their masks the gasmen begin to breathe more freely and then suddenly, on the left, 'crush'. And 'crash' again, and yet again. This time on the right, somewhat close at hand. The men crouch lower over their cylinders, the explosions follow one another almost too rapidly to count, and in any case their minds are no longer fitted to count—or care. Only the valves must be turned, and the pipes must be watched, and the sudden spurt of vapor which marks a leak must be checked by the application of a handful of mud, which the gas itself immediately freezes into an iron-hard and impenetrable mass.

THE BREAK IN THE PIPE.

"In one of the bays the parapet rocks suddenly and falls forward, burying the men and their cylinders. Almost immediately the men scramble out unhurt, but the pipes are broken, and the gas is filling the trench. With spanner and mud the thing is stopped new connections are rigged up, and the death vapor is again directed outside what is left of the trench. But one of the men has had the mouthpiece of his respirator broken, and already he is coughing and choking painfully. "I've got it!" he gasps hoarsely, and goes behind the traverse to suck an ammonia ampule and die slowly.

"Closing up time! Rapidly the valves are shut down, the jet pipes withdrawn and plugged and stacked away. Feverishly the men work at bagging up their cylinders again. Imperturbably a sergeant stalks down the ruined and battered trench, shepherding his flock toward their dugout. He is an old-timer—a transfer from the infantry—an he scarcely quivers as a shell bursts behind a traverse he has just left. Quietly he directs two of the men to carry an unconscious case to the nearest point of the communication trench where stretcher bearers may be found.

"In the dugout, with the shells still pounding overhead, the section's roll is called. Most of the men answer to their names. Some are answered by comrades as wounded and for others no one answers at all.

"But over in the German trenches hundreds of men are choking and gasping in agony for an hour before they can die. They have been made to quaff their own medicine."

Man to Man—

"You say your heart is acting up, and that you don't sleep well nights, and yet you don't believe tea or coffee hurts you.

"There's a subtle, cumulative drug in tea and coffee—from 1½ to 3 grains to the average cup. A little today—a little tomorrow, and so it goes on, irritating the nerves, interfering with digestion and working changes that very often lead to ill health and discomfort.

"Hard to quit, you say? Not if you have the pleasant, healthful, pure food-drink—

POSTUM

Made of whole wheat, roasted with a small amount of wholesome molasses, it contains only the goodness of the grain—no drug or harmful ingredient—no tea or coffee troubles.

Postum comes in two forms. The original Postum Cereal, which has to be boiled; and Instant Postum—soluble—made in the cup with hot water, instantly.

A delicious, economical, healthful table beverage—

NOTED SURGEON DIES; ORDERED AN AUTOPSY FOR SAKE OF SCIENCE

Mackinac Island, Mich., August 17.—Dr. J. B. Murphy, renowned the world over as one of the most expert surgeons and inventors, died at the Grand Hotel here of a sudden attack of angina pectoris. Dr. Murphy had come here for a rest after the intense heat and the hard work in Chicago, but was so weakened that he was unable to withstand the cool rarefied air of the island. One of the noted physician's last requests was that an autopsy should be held upon his body in order that brother practitioners should ascertain whether Dr. Murphy's own diagnosis of his condition was borne out by facts.

At the time former President Roosevelt was wounded by a fanatic in Chicago several years ago, it was Dr Murphy who assumed charge of the case and probably saved Colonel Roosevelt's life by skilful treatment of his injuries.

DIED DURING TRIP TO KIRKFIELD

BEAVERTON, Ont., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Harold A. Greene, wife of Harold A. Greene, of Bankers Bond Co., Ltd., 335 Lonsdale Road, Toronto, formerly Miss Ethel Anderson, daughter of Robert Anderson, 543 Palmerston Boulevard, died in this village at 5 a.m. on Sunday on their way to Kirkfield in a motor car with Douglas Gunn, son of Hector Gunn, of Toronto. Shortly before nine o'clock on Saturday night Mrs. Greene was taken ill. The party was then south of Sutton. Mr. Gunn rushed the car through to Beaverton for consultation with Dr. Smith, well known to Mr. and Mrs. Greene in their student days. Mrs. Green reached Dr. Smith's surgery at 10 p.m. Her ailment was diagnosed as pulmonary embolism. An all-night struggle to prolong the patient's life ended in failure, and Mrs. Greene died at 5 o'clock on Sunday morning.

TWO VILLAGES CAPTURED

SALONIKA, Aug. 16. — Further progress has been made in the allies' offensive against the Bulgarians in Macedonia, according to the following official report issued by the French headquarters staff to-day.

"There has been calm on almost the whole front, except at the foot of Hill No. 237, where we have occupied two villages in the zone of Lake Doiran. This district last night was the scene of a series of infantry actions, which permitted us to advance still further along the terrain attacked."

Too Good Fighter; To Go To Law, Says Injured Alderman

London Alderman Who Was Injured During The Course of a Council Meeting is Still Seeking Legal Advice.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Ald. W. A. Wilson, whose head was split open in the city council meeting of Monday night, when Ald. Adam Palmer threw a heavy drinking glass at his colleague, following a bitter wordy warfare, declares that he is too good a fighter to take the case to police court.

Ald. Wilson was out Tuesday with his head and hand bandaged. Two stitches were required to close the wound in his head. His hand was also badly cut by the flying glass. He is securing legal advice on the fight, but announces that he has taken no definite steps yet.

"I never had a man in police court in my life," he declared. "I am too good a fighter to take a man there, but the last of this thing has not yet been heard."

ALD. PALMER'S STORY.

Ald. Adam Palmer, who hrew the glass, and who narrowly escaped injury in the "return fire," expressed sorrow that he had lost his temper. He claimed that he had been nagged so unmercifully for so many months that he could not longer restrain himself, and that if he lost his temper it was small wonder.

At the city hall it was declared that the occurrences of Monday night would undoubtedly put a stop to the personalities that have been so marked in the council this year. The rules of order, it is said, have been broken so repeatedly that something had to stop them, even though it were a broken head.

NO ACTION BY MAYOR.

Mayor H. A. Stevenson is taking no official action in connection with the hostilities that became open and bloody warfare on Monday.

"It was an unfortunate affair, but there is nothing that I can do," he informed a reporter.

Asked if there was any attempt made to expell the principals from the council, he declared that none would be made.

"There is nothing in the statutes governing such an action as that of Monday night, and I don't know what we can do about it. I have asked Ald. Palmer to apologize to the council, and I feel sure he will.

THINKS IT OVER.

"I believe the whole trouble in the council is over now, and I don't think that a policeman will be necessary to keep order in the council, as was stated last night. However, we will see what transpires in the meantime, between now and the next council meeting.

"Ald. Wilson, I am informed, is seeking legal advice on the question, but I hope that no more personalities will be indulged in by any members of the council. It gives a city a bad name and is most unfortunate."

Mayor Stevenson declined to say anything as to the cause of the trouble, nor would he comment on the action of the aldermen involved. "It is most unfortunate," was all he would say of the matter.

DRIVEN INSANE BY FEAR OF GALLOWS

DENVER, Col., Aug. 14.—A haunting fear of the gallows has driven Harold Frank Henwood insane and he has been transfewred from the laundry of the State prison to the ward set apart for the criminal insane. Ever since the night of May 24, 1911, when Henwood shot and killed Sylvester von Phul and George E. Copeland and seriously wounded John W. Atkinson in a drunken row in the bar of the Brown Hotel, this one-time society man has held this fear, and at last his mentality has given away and he is hopelessly insane, according to expert alienists.

Henwood's hallucination is that he has electric wires in his head. Anld, despite the commutation of his sentence of death granted by the Governor on October 16, 1914 he yet holds to the belief that he is to be hanged for the killing of the two men he shot to death five years ago.

Henwood has shown signs of violent insanity for several months, say the prison officials who have been keeping a close watch upon his movements. A year ago Dr. Lamoure, of the prison medical staff recommended that Henwood be given hard manual labor as a means of affecting a cure of his mental trouble. It was thought that physical labor would clear his mind and produce sound sleep. This treatment was tried, but failed to produce the desired effect.

It made no difference, however, in the mental condition where he worked or what he performed. He tossed and tumbled all night, moaning aloud and crying out many times that the electric wires in his head were slowly burning him to death. This continued until last week, when he grew violent and it became necessary to confine him in the ward for the criminal insane.

Henwood's mental malady is not uncommon to those who have been sentenced to death on a murder charge, say the criminologists. The circumstances of the killing are always before them after an exhausting trial such as Henwood underwent upon two occasions in Denver, and when the death sentence has been pronounced it may as well be executed, say these experts, so far as the mentality of the condemned is concerned, because he is never able to recover from the shock of the sentence.

IT'S COMING!

EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY

MONEY SAVING EVENT

Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

$175.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $25.00; the second $20.00; the third $15.00, and so on.

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate.....1st Prize $25.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd Prize $20.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 3rd Prize $15.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 4th Prize $10.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 5th Prize $10.00

Next 5 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 5 Prizes, each $3.00
Next 10 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 10 Prizes each $2.00
Next 30 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 30 Prizes, each $1.00

As a guide in estimasting the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

You can recogaize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

Austria Bows To Germany

Austrian Foreign Minister Succeeded by Count Andrassy, of Party Favoring Surrender to Germans

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A despatch from Vienna reports that Baron Burian has resigned as Austrian Foreign Minister and that he will be succeeded by Count Andrassy.

A despatch from Milan yesterday said: The meeting between the German Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Foreign minister, Dr. von Jagow, and Baron Burian, the Austian Foreign Minister, at Vienna with renewed rumors of the impending nomination of Count Andrassy as Austrian Foreign Minister is evidence that events of almost transcedent political importance are transpiring in the Austrian capital.

SURRENDER TO KAISER

Count Andrassy represents the party of absolute surrender by Austria to Germany. He idolises the German Emperor, and is idolised by him. It is likely that pressure has been brought by Berlin to force the acceptance of Andrassy on the Austrian Government as a sort of compliment to the appointment of Field Marshal von Hindenburg to the command of the Austro-German armies in the East.

MEANS CLOSER UNION.

Thus is Andrassy is appointed successor to Baron Burian, it will mean a closer union between Vienna and Berlin.

Andrassy has been back and forward between Vienna and Berlin frequently, figuratively speaking to kneel at the feet of the Kaiser. As if to counteract the policy of Andrassy, the Hungarian party of independence, under Karolyi, has received a considerable extension. Numerous adhesions pour in from the Provincial centres. Vienna papers, on the other hand, deprecate Karolyi's movement and hail the arrival of the German Chancellor.

BERLIN BECOMES CAPIITAL

"These are decisive hours for both the German and Austro-Hungarian Empires" says the Neue Freie Presse, "Austria being attacked on all sides."

The collapse of Austria means the imminent downfall of Germany and therefore Austria-Hungary must be saved at the costs, even at that of handing over its political as well as its military direction to Berlin.

Amidst it all one can hear the death knell of the Austro-Hungarian Empire sounding.

REMANDED ON CHARGE OF SUPPLYING LIQUOR

This Morning's Police Court---Woman Found in an Intoxicated Condition

Remands were the rage at this morning's Police Court session and three cases out four which came before Mr. Henry Rush, J. P., were remanded until Wednesday.

An employee of the G.T.R. pleaded not guilty to a charge of supplying liquor to a blacklisted woman, contrary to the Liquor License Act. Particulars of the transfer will be heard on Wednesday.

The woman to whom the liquor was unlawfully supplied pleaded guilty to being found in an intoxicated condition and with liquor in her possession. She will wait till Wednesday for the resume of her trial.

A well known local man was charged with being drunk but will be given until Wednesday to regain his former sober self.

A Wescott street resident was fined two dollars as the result of a little "spree" which he enjoyed yesterday.

A HOUSE FLOATED BY EVERY MINUTE

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 12.—Rescue parties proceeded far into the mountain district to-day carrying relief to thousands of homeless people in the Cabin Creek valley, which was swept by a flood Wednesday, causing a loss of more than sixty lives and property damage reaching into the millions. Progress was slow as many bridges have been washed out and the roads are blocked by slides.

J. W. Hartless, of this city, who was at Eskdale Wednesday morning, when the cloudburst swept Cabin Creek valley, is the first eyewitness to reach Huntington from the flooded district. According to his story at 8.30 o'clock in the morning, Cabin Creek started rising at the rate of eight feet an hour and continued until the creek reached from mountain to mountain. Houses floated down stream at the rate of one a minute. He watched almost all of Eskdale swept away. Whole families rushed for the hillside, he said, but some never reached safety. One could hear women praying on all sides.

Known dead by towns follows: Ferndale 18, Drybranch 2, Hurricane 1, Oakley 7, Eskdale 3, Leewood 1, Cherokee 1, Kayford 3, Acme 1, Ohley 5, Broundland 1, Redwarrior 1.

Scores of others are missing and are believed dead.

Meatless Day a Week For German Soldiers

Allowance to Men in Front Line Being Steadily Cut Down.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The German military establishment has now brought down its meat allowance for the fighting troops in the front line to 10.5 ounces for six days in the week. On the seventh day no meat can be served or eaten. For troops not in the first line the six-day meat ration is only 7.7 ounces.

This information, disclosing for the supply of the fighting soldiers of the Kaiser is contained in an order issued to the Fourteenth German Reserve Corps by its commander, General von Stein, on May 31 last, a copy of which came into the possession of the British forces in France two weeks ago.

The order was found on a captured German officer. Subsequent to the issuance of this, another order was issued, dated July 6, calling upon troop commanders to report back to headquarters how their man had taken the cutting down of their rations.

The Times received Monday, from official sources in London, copies of both the orders referred to.

DROPS HIS HEART INTO HIS ABDOMEN

At a sporting and musical evening given by the Irish-Canadian Rangers at Valcartier camp, Dr. A. Whitman, of New York, enlisted as a private, gave an exhibition that was easily the feature of the evening.

Dr. Whitman is possessed of lax ligaments and can perform more dislocations of the human body than any person living. One of the most dangerous of his acts is the lowering of his heart four inches. His heart can be plainly felt beating in the centre of the abdomen. He extends his height four and a half inches, and adds a length of eighteen inches of his arm.

LINDSAY TRAIN CREW FOUND DRUGGED GIRL ON RAILWAY

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 16.—On Sunday morning at eight o'clock as a freight train from Belleville, with Lindsay crew, was proceeding west over the Grand Trunk, engineer Mr Grant Wakelin, saw the form of a person lying on the right of way not far from Gunn's Crossing, about five miles above the city. The train was brought to a stop and the railwaymen found a young girl, who was in what they thought was a drugged or exhausted state. Unwilling to leave her in this state, they proceeded to the farm house of Mr. George Castleman and told him their story. They asked him to make enquiries as they could by no means get any details from the girl. Mr. Castleman at once hitched up and drove to Belleville police station arriving at 9.30.

At police headquarters she gave the name of Annie Holland, stating her age to be eighteen years. Five years ago she came out from Manchester, England, under the auspices of the Marchmont Home. She had worked part of two years at Mr. William Peters at Magog. She has a married sister living at Whitby.

Owing to the condition of the girl, the police held her on the charge of vagrancy. She seemed very dull and answered questions almost entirely in monosyllables.

Monday morning she appeared before Magistrate Masson and was remanded to jail pending inquiry as the officers believe there is something to be investigated. In the girl's possession were many photographs of people including soldiers. The names of some of the persons she told, others she claimed not to know, and in still other cases she did not answer the questions of the police. She had worked for a Mr. Denyes and has been engaged at Mr. Bunnett's of Sidney.

All that she remembered is that she was at the milk stand when a stranger came along and took hold of her. She said he declared he would come back in a buggy but did not. He did not give her anything to drink nor any candy. From the time she was at the stand until she was found on the track, the police say, she declared she remembered nothing. She did not know the man's name.

Her brother is a soldier in the band of the 77th Battalion which left Ottawa some months ago.

Whether she has been drugged or ill-treated by some person at present is unknown, it will be investigated by the police.

Annie Holland is a fair-haired girl short in stature and wears a middy with a crimson sash and white shoes.

OVERDOSE OF DRUG KILLS ROBERT GRAU

AFTER ACTIVITIES IN WORLD OF MUSIC AND DRAMA HE BECAME AUTHOR OF BOOKS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Robt. Grau, impressario, theatrical manager, and writer of books on music and the drama, who managed Adelina Patti on her farewell concert tour of this country in 1903-1904, when the profits of the season reached the then record figures of $200,000, died at his home, 55 Elm Avenue, Mount Vernon, of an overdose of morphine, taken to induce sleep. He was dying when his wife entered his room to arouse him, and, although physicians were summoned hurriedly, they failed to resuscitate him.

Mr. Grau had been in ill health for several years, and the loss of his pocket-book Tuesday and the excessive heat so upset him he was unable to sleep.

Robert Grau was a brother of the late Maurice Grau, manager of the Metropolitan Opera House, and in his early years was associated with him in theatrical work. He was born in this city fifty-eight years ago of Austrian parentage, and his earliest associations were with the theatre. As a boy he sold librettos in the old Academy of Music, and at the age of 18 he was a producer.

He did press work for a time and acted as advance agent for his brother. Later he turned his attention to management of operatic stars on concert tours and among others managed Mme. Aimee. His most famous effort was the conduct of Patti's tour, when he arranged concerts in forty-nine cities in thirty-one States.

In recent years Mr. Grau had devoted himself almost exclusively to writing. His literary work, which had begun in connection with the legitimate drama, spread to the new motion-picture field, and his last book was entitled "The Lure of the Silent Drama." In the last eight years he had produced five books on theatrical subjects, beside innumerable magazine articles on music, the stage, and the cinema.

Among his books were "Forty Years' Observation of Music and Drama" and "The Business Man in the Amusement World."

BOY OFFICER RACED HIS MEN TO THE FRONT

One of the most striking features of the Great Push, according to the consensus of opinion of the men who have gone through it, has been the gallantry of our young officers, many of whom have received a truly stupendous baptism of fire, says the Dundee News.

It would be hard to find a more remarkable example of heroism than that of a certain boy officer, barely nineteen, and obviously only recently released from the fostering care of his school O.T.C. rulers. The story is told by a member of the platoon of which the young man, fresh from England, took command just six weeks before the offensive began.

On the first morning, writes the narrator, when he paraded us he took us straight into his confidence and talked to us as if he had brought us up from the bottle. At first we did not quite know what to make of it. We were grown-up men, and we didn't want to play at kindergatrem. Still, it amused us intensely to be called "my men" and "my good fellows." He wasn't in the least patronising, and he seemed to be very much in earnest.

"My men," he said, "we have got to go through this thing together, and we might as well begin by knowing one another. I am not going to stand any nonsense, and by the same token I don't want you either. We are soldiers together. You are going to obey my orders without question, and on my part I am going to do the best I can for you. I know what I've got to do, and I shall expect the same from you. What I want above all things is cleanliness, cheerfulness, and grousing. Stick to that and we shall be a happy family."

We promptly christened him Babs, and rather liked him for his confidence in his young self. We found, too, in a day or two that he did know his business; and he would not stand nonsense; that he never funked taking a hand at work with the rest, and that his one obsession was dirt. He was a perfect fiend for cleanliness.

"A Mother's Boy."

When the time for the charge arrived, Babs, who had handed a letter addressed to his mother to an A.S.C. corporal, stood on the ladder, revolver in hand. "Now, men," he shouted through the din, "we are going over, and I'll race you to see who goes in first!"

Up he went. He stood for a moment on the parapet just to show how easy it was, and then jumped off into "No Man's Land," with a torrent of machine gun bullets whizzing by. The platoon followed. Here and there some body went down. We were running fast, but you cannot go like a racehorse if you are loaded down with rifle and accoutrements, and so Babs, who had only his revolver, was still leading in the race that he had proposed. He looked around and pulled out his silk handkerchief and waved it to us in encouragement.

When it was all over we had twenty-three Boches in tow. Their trenches had been fairly blown in, and Babs had gone down alone with only his revolver and his silk handkerchief to fetch them out of their small dug-out.

We got our prisoners back, under fire of course, but just before we reached our safey nook Babs, who was now in the rear, fell into a shell hole. He was not hit. When he got up our Babs was as dirty as any mudlark, and he was very angry. For the first time since he had come to us he betrayed himself in a temper. He had faced death like the hero he is without wincing, but this was too much.

"To hell with the Germans," he cried, "look at my tunic!"

"There's a mother's boy for you—and God bless him!

Anglo-Italian Pact Effected

LONDON, Aug. 16.—An official announcement issued is to the effect that at a recent conference at Tallanza, Italy, between British and Italian Ministers, a complete understanding was reached on all points discussed. The statement says that Italy was assured the supply of coal that is indispensable for war purposes, and that careful consideration also was given to the question of supplying Italy with other British products essential to the successful prosecution of the war.

THREE ROUSING CHEERS!!!; HONEY WILL NOT ADVANCE

Bees Have Been Very Busy This Year in Spite of War.

With the prices of all other foods soaring, housewives will be pleased to learn that there is plenty of honey and that prices will not be advanced. Last year's prices for honey will not be advanced, and producers plan to have honey used freely in every household.

Honey requires no preserving and will keep in first class condition in any dry, cool place. A 60-pound can should last an average family all through the winter.

Middlesex reports in 1915, 118,945 pounds of honey and in 1916 reports 262,812 pounds. This leaves an average of 101.1 pounds of honey per colony.

The prices recommended by the committee are as follows: No. 1, light extracted, wholesale, 10c. to 11 1-2c per lb.; No. 1, light extracted, retail, 12 1-2c. to 15c. per lb.. No. 1, comb, wholesale, $2 to $2.75 per doz.; No. 2, comb, wholesale, $1.50 to $2 per doz.

ITALY'S KING VISITS GORIZIA

"Don't Bother to Salute Me," He Tells Wounded Soldier.

GORIZIA, Aug. 16.—Although this city is still under bombardment by long range Austrian guns, King Victor Emmanuel stopped here on one of his tours of inspection along the Italian lines, watched the effect of the hostile artillery fire, and visited the tunnel by which the Italians penetrated and surprised the place.

While he was entering an automobile to leave Gorizia, the King saw a soldier wounded in the hand and foot standing at attention. "Don't bother to salute me, comrade," said the King, who shook hands with and then saluted the soldier.

RAILWAYS FOR RUSSIA

Important Russian-American Enterprise Is Organized.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 16.—An important Russian-American enterprise, organized with the principal object of the construction of railways and the exploitation of motive and water power in Russia, has been put on foot, according to the semi-official Russian news agency.

A LUMBER AN'S OPINION.

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Wm. Battle Cruiser's Place in Fleet Established by The Action Off Jutland

A Naval Correspondent Writer of Work Accomplished by Vice Admiral Beatty's Squadron and Finds Lesson for Development of American Navy

A well known naval correspondent writes:

Is the battle cruiser to succeed the battle ship or will the former continue to be an auxiliary to the latter? This question is being discussed by naval officers, ship constructors, artillerists, and the manufacturers of the material for war at sea. To what extent does the battle in the North Sea on May 31, so far as its details have been revealed, officially assist to elucidate this question?

The experience of the war at sea, including that of the recent battle, certainly appears to have had at least one definite influence upon naval construction—it has established the value of the battle cruiser. The official opinion which has just been expressed, by Rear Admiral Knight of the United States navy, in response to the request of Mr. Daniels, that the battle cruiser has more than justified itself, is likely to be endorsed by the great bulk of the officers in other navies. Not only has the battle cruiser demonstrated that it can discharge successfully its original function, but that it can, under certain conditions, hold its own against the battle ship.

When the Invincibles were laid down about ten years ago, it was understood that they were intended chiefly for reconnaissance purposes. The need had been shown at manoeuvres for a class of vessel of sufficient speed and strength to be able to thrust back the enemy's scouts and outposts, whether armored or not, and in this way to discover and report the composition and movements of his main force. This is what is technically known as pushing home a reconnaissance.

The armored cruiser of pre-dreadnough design was not sufficiently fast or heavily armed to effect this purpose. The battle cruiser, therefore, was provided with a speed much higher than the armored cruiser and equal at least to that of the unarmored scout. An armament much greater than that of any existing cruiser was given to them. To allow for these two essential elements of speed and gun power armored protection was sacrificed somewhat. It will be interesting to see to what extent, if any, the value of the battle cruiser's ability to reconnoitre the enemy's strength and numbers may become discounted in the near future by the progress of aircraft.

VICE ADMIRAL BEATTY'S EXPERIENCE.

The Jutland battle shows that the above conception of the role of the battle cruiser was a sound one. Vice Admiral Beatty, on learning from his light cruiser screen of the presence of hostile ships, at once steered in their direction. He got into touch first with the enemy's light cruisers. It is common knowledge how he forced back the latter on to their main fleet and so learned of the latter's presence and position. In this he fulfilled the chief purpose of a battle cruiser force. Armored cruisers or light scouts could not have done as much. On the contrary they must have fallen back upon their own main squadrons or risked destruction, and probably the proximity of the enemy battle fleet might never have become known in time to the British commander in chief.

It is timely to recall one early objection to the battle cruiser design, which seems to have been entirely disposed of by the action of May 31. It was suggested that a ship capable of performing the duties alloted to the battle cruiser would be of such a powerful character that an admiral would include her in his regular battle line, where her lighter protection would be a disadvantage and her high speed of no value. It is now shown that there was no real foundation for this suggestion, at all events so far as the British commander in chief is concerned, for he did make a tactical division of his fleet in order to obtain from his battle cruiser squadrons the greatest advantage of his powers, and he was entirely justified by the result. It also is shown that when used as a fast wing of the battle fleet the admiral had a great asset in his battle cruisers. After the main action had been joined they were able to move their heavy guns where required, their speed enabling them to choose the position, and had it not been for the atmospheric conditions they might have chosen their range as well. Thus Sir David Beatty was able to turn the head of the enemy when the British battle fleet was seen approaching, thereby placing the former at the greatest disadvantage when that fleet deployed.

There are many other uses of the battle cruiser. One is that of commerce protection. How successfully it can fulfil this duty was shown at the Falkland battle, when at one long stroke the backbone of the German commerce raiders was destroyed. The two Invincibles travelled seven thousand miles to fight this battle. No other type of ship had the necessary speed, radius of action and gun power to perform such a feat.

DESIGN IS JUSTIFIED.

Other qualities of the battle cruiser were revealed at the Heligoland Bight and the Dogger Bank battles. So far therefore as the purposes for which the original ships of this class were built are concerned, the design has entirely justified the action of the committee appointed by Lord Fisher, which resulted in their production.

When, however, it is asked further can the battle cruiser supply the place of the battleship it must be admitted that the information required for a complete answer is lacking. Naturally, it is unlikely that, either in Sir John Jellicoe's despatches or in the semi-official German accounts, information will be given to be drawn on this subject. To do that would be to give away something to the other side. Thus, while there are indications that Admiral Bacon's prediction of future naval actions developing into a series of duels between battle units, each composed of a battle cruiser with attendant torpedo craft, is nearer fulfilment than when he made it in 1910, those indications hardly can be deemed sufficient for a change of policy at present.

In what respect does the battle cruiser differ from the battle ship? Mainly as regards high speed, to obtain which some sacrifice of armament and a still larger sacrifice of armored protection has been made. It may be conceded at once that both Sir John Jellicoe and Admiral von Scheer willingly would have given a good deal for the extra speed which would have brought them earlier into the battle. As however it could only have been at the expense of some loss either in armament or armored protection, or both, it is not clear that when the meeting had taken place they would have gained anything by it.

While it has been demonstrated that high speed is of value for the purpose of forcing an action and to some extent for obtaining the advantage of position it has not been shown that it compensates for the heavier batteries which the comparatively slower ships are able to carry. It may be of course that when more is known about the Jutland battle a different complexion will be placed on the problem but at present, as an American authority has said, the battleship is the backbone, the vital weapon of every modern fleet. In a word, the battle cruiser has won an important position by its merits but that position is still supplementary to that of the battleship. In its inclusion of both types the American Navy Department would seem to be taking a wise course.

CITY COUNCIL MEET THIS EVENING

Local Military Situation Will be Discussed---The New Battalion

At the request of Major G. L. Campbell, Chief Recruiting Officer for Military District number 3, a meeting has been called for this evening by His Worship Mayor Duffus. The Peterborough Board of Trade and all business men interested in the local military situation are invited to be present for the purpose of discussing matters in connection with a new overseas battalion about to be inaugurated in this city and county. The meeting will commence at eight o'clock.

Water Level is Normal Again

The water gage at the new wharf registers the depth of water to be seven feet eight inches which is about a normal depth for the vicinity mentioned. The water during the early part of the season was rather high all along the route, due no doubt, to the damming up of the canal at Healy's Falls and points below. The opening of these locks, however, and the opening of the canal from Healy Falls down stream have caused the water to return to its normal level.

REGISTRATION MEASURE DEFERRED TILL AUTUMN

STRONG OPPOSITION HALTS ELECTORAL LEGISLATION IN THE BRITISH COMMONS.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Owing to strong opposition and differences of opinion revealed in debates in the House of Commons, the Government has been obliged to postpone until the autumn session further consideration of the bill in regard to registration forms. Winston Spencer Churchill, opposing the measure, said that though he hoped it would not be necessary to hold a general election during the war, circumstances might arise which would force this on the country. In such a case it would be manifestly unfair to exclude soldiers and sailors from voting.

Andrew Bonar Law, Secretary for the Colonies, speaking on behalf of Premier Asquith, announced after the formal second reading that further consideration would be postponed until autumn.

Wish to Thank 57th Bugle Band

Mr. Robert M. Beach of the Parker Dye Works has received an interesting letter from Sergt. Drummer George East of the 93rd Battalion Bugle Band. The letter is a characteristic soldier's epistle, and is full of news and a Canuck's thrill of wonder at the sights of old England.

In the letter Drummer East desired to thank the officers and members of the 57th Bugle Band for their kind donations of cigarettes and gum to the 93rd Band on the occasion of the departure of the Battalion.

MR. WEBB'S ADDRESS AND MAYOR'S TELEGRAM SECURED CONVENTION

The persuasive powers of Mr. A. H. Webb were illustrated at the annual convention of the Eastern Ontario High Court of the Independent Order of Foresters, when he secured the 1917 convention for Peterborough against the opposition of Ottawa, Brockville, Picton and other towns. In what is reported as a fine oratorical effort, he sketched the natural advantages of Peterborough with a richness of colouring that even nature might envy. Then, as a clinching conclusion, he read a telegram from Mayor Duffus, which, combined with Mr. Webb's address, swept the other invitations into the High Court basket. The retiring H. C. R., Bro. G. M. Farrington, and Dr. C. D. Clarke of the Supreme Court, congratulated Mr. Webb upon his fine effort, and also expressed their appreciation of the tenor of the telegram Mayor Duffus had forwarded at what was truly the psychological moment. As a result, three hundred delegates of the I.O.F. from the eastern district will assemble here next year.

It is quite a number of years since Peterborough welcomed the I. O. F. Court, and the members of Court Chemong intend to make it a memorable convention. This city is on the fringe of Eastern Ontario and is, therefore, under a handicap to the advantage of the more central towns. But a handicap would simply warm "Andy" Webb up to the task before and, well, look at the result.

Other delegates from Court Chemong were Mr. W. G. McKee, Mr. G. W. Powell and Mr. W. Brown. Mr. Webb was chosen chairman of the committee on New Business, and also elected an alternate delegate to the Supreme Court Convention. The other Peterborough delegates were chosen for special committee work.

Mr. S. B. Lynd, D.S.C.R., will be in Peterborough for a short time, and will have a number of interesting matters to discuss with local members.

PRICES WORRY THE PRINTERS

FEAR THOUSANDS WILL LOSE JOBS THROUGH ADVANCE OF PAPER.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 17.—The danger that thousands of printers may be thrown out of work because of the high cost of white paper was said to be a question seriously concerning the delegates to the sixty-second annual convention of the International Typographical Union, which opened here.

John W. Hayes, secretary and treasurer of the union, said the alarming shortage of print paper is making it difficult for many newspaper corporations to continue business. In some cities, he said, there was talk of consolidating plants to reduce working forces and expenses.

That the union probably will decide to cooperate in a Federal investigation to determine whether there is a conspiracy among paper manufacturers was the belief expressed by union leaders.

Board of Works Will Investigate a Policy of Retrenchment for the Remainder of the Year---Appropriation is Running Low

Unless the Board of Works committee of the City Council stumble on a gold deposit at some point within the city limits, or devise some means of introducing Mexican methods of financing into Peterborough, a few of the contemplated works will be left over until such times as sufficient funds are forthcoming to meet the needs. At last night's meeting of the committee, Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Board, informed the members that the appropriation was below the six thousand dollar mark and about four and one half months remained of the current year. The chairman sought the advise of the Board and at the same time suggested that some of the more ambitious work be left over for another year, leaving the remainder of the appropriation for much needed street repairs and such minor work. This suggestion met with the approval of the Board. Ald. Weir favoured a kind of patrol system, whereby one or more men would be delegated to patrol the streets in each ward or district and effect minor repairs when needed. Such repairs might mean the filling in of a hole or levelling a crossing, removing stones, etc..

This scheme was endorsed by the members of the committee as well as City Engineer Parsons. The cost would not be excessive and the advantages would be many. A few of the aldermen outlined a number of places where repairs were needed at once.

Ald. McIntyre was instructed to see that this work was carried out and that some of the larger and more expensive work be deleted in order to keep the expenditure within the limits of the appropriation.

Modern Culture Has Not Sapped Courage, Students of War Find

Paris, August 15.—The discussion of courage as developed by the war and as manifested by individual soldiers under fire, has drawn some interesting contributions from Dr. Charles Richet, of the French Institute, and the Abbe Moreaux, director of the Bourges Observatory.

Dr. Richet is of the opinion that fear and courage must be considered separately; that the former exists in certain temperaments alongside the latter; that a man may be unable to control the terrifying effect of a dangerous situation upon his physical faculties and yet stand his ground in the face of almost certain death through the exercise of his will. These men he considers the bravest of all.

Among the soldiers who hold their ground under murderous fire there are always some who are afraid and others who are not, says Dr. Richet, but all prove their bravery by still being there; the cowards have fled.

Considering the whole war, taking into account the atrocious features that have developed here and there, and with all allowances made for occasional weaknesses, Dr. Richet considers that the soldiers have shown heroism which justifies great pride on the part of the present generation, in spite of the belief before the great conflict that intellectual development, with progress in science, letters and arts, while ennobling the mind, had diminished personal courage.

CULTURE NOT EFFEMINACY

The question was frequently discussed as to whether the delicate and subtle culture of later years was not going to produce a tame spirited and effeminate generation, preferring welfbeing to arduous effort and incapable of comprehending the beauty of sacrifice. It is exactly the contrary that has been demonstrated, according to Dr. Richet; the most cultivated and refined of the young men of France and Great Britain have been those who have shown the greatest bravery. Students of the Sorbonne and other French universities, students of Eton, Oxford, and Cambridge, set the example.

These are the men, Dr. Richet says, who have shown the most courage in its simplest form; that is to say, by supreme contempt of death, and that contempt, he concludes, is not the result of philosophical reflection, but is simply the spontaneous manifestation of inherent bravery.

Never, even among the heroes of antiquity, in the times of Leonidas, Spartacus or Hannibal, according to Dr. Richet, was there shown so much of this kind of abnegation and so much tranquil self-sacrifice—supreme courage—as in the present conflict.

As to the men who are naturally brave and take supreme risks without requiring an effort of the will to overcome fear, Dr. Richet gives different reasons, the first of which is that some of them do not believe in danger; they imagine that they are invulnerable—that they have a lucky star; they are surrounded by a sort of optimistic fatality that gives them a feeling of security. In other cases these naturally brave men even when they believe in danger, are not intimidated by it, because they have in their own minds already made the sacrifice of their life; once that conclusion reached, to die or to be wounded is something that does not torment them.

SUSTAINED BY "A WORTHIER IMAGE."

Others, and perhaps the great majority, are neither those indifferent to death, nor those who believe in their lucky star; they are the men who see before them other more powerful images than that of death, such as the Fatherland, sense of duty, of honor, renown of the regiment, ambition to earn praise or promotion pride at being admired by one's comrades, and shame of being taken for a coward. In all these cases the idea of death and danger disappears and the soldier is brave without effort. He forgets every risk that he is taking in the presence of the image that he has in his mind.

The number of these naturally brave men is notably larger in daylight and in the presence of commanding officers and comrades than at night on sentry duty or on a solitary mission which no witness will be able to recount.

In the constant habit of bravery all notion of danger finally disappears, as in the case of aviators, most of whom the first time in the air have a sensation of fear in spite of all reasoning. After a certain number of ascensions the physical manifestations of apprehension disappear; to be supported in the air by the speed of the motor seems to them to be the simplest thing possible and certain pilots have declared that they felt themselves in greater safetly seated in their aeroplanes in the air than when riding in an automobile.

The hardened fighters of African campaigns habituated to all the risks of war, were naturally more stolid under fire than young recruits who had seen nothing of military life but the barracks and the manoeuvres, and yet, according to the Abbe Moreaux, even these seasoned men, in the presence of the new and formidable dangers of scientific warfare, showed no more fortitude than the young recruits who had only had a few months of preparation before facing the enemy.

Abbe Moreaux is of the opinion that the war itself has developed all the latent fortitude of the race. The sentiment of union, of common interest and patriotism will have been reawakened, he thinks, and many a pusillanimous creature, both in the army and out of it, will have a new courage born of the virtue that makes heroes. The entire nation, he thinks, will participate in this reawakening.

GERMAN SPIRITS ARE LOSING HOPE

Captured Officers Say Germany Will Make Peace in Spring

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail with the ——— army on the Russian front, under date of August 14, sends the following:

The brilliantly rapid movement of Litchitsky's troops northward toward Lemberg causes the greatest rejoicing throughout the Russian army. This fresh blow inflicted on the Austrians has sensibly reduced their power of resistance, and there is abundant proof that the spirit of their troops is sinking lower every week.

At the same time the Russians have taught the Germans a severe lesson by handling the troops sent to stiffen the Austrians in a manner so rough that they were glad to surrender in thousands. Nearly all the prisoners were found to be still in complete ignorance of the character of Brusiloff's drive and of the failure of their army before Verdun. They say when these facts are generally known all hope of victory will die away.

Prepare for New War.

Many prisoner officers say terms of peace have already been much discussed among them. Their view is that failing any great success for her arms, Germany will make peace in the spring by giving back all the occupied territory and possibly paying an indemnity. When told the allies would never agree to such a peace they express great surprise. They admit, however, that the whole energies of Prussianism would in such an event be directed to preparing another war.

The view taken by the majority of officers with whom I talked is that, short of a weakening by the Germans on the western front or of the German people taking matters into their own hands, the end is unlikely before spring.

Fall of Lemberg Sure.

The Austrians will be unable to do more than hold a defensive line very far back. The fall of Lemberg is now regarded as certain. Even if the troops of Generals Von Bothmer and Bohm-Ermolli, now hastily retiring from the centre, escape the fate which threatens them, they will not be in condition to make any determined stand, and Galicia will again be overrun by the Russian troops. In Hungary the difficulty will become more serious.

Russians Hasten End.

All the Germans can expect of their ally will be at best a passive resistance. All they could hope to do themselves if they succeeded in holding Kovel, to which their efforts are now directed, would be to maintain something like their present positions. Probably as soon as the harvest was gathered in they would fall back to the line of the Niemen, with its fortresses. This would shorten the front and enable them to economize in men. They would try to spend the winter here in the hope of wearing out the allies' patience and resources.

If anything can hasten the end it seems likely to be the incomparable vigor of the Russian armies. From generals to privates on all parts of the front, all are eager to push back the Teutons as quickly as possible, and they are impatient at every delay, however necessary it may be.

A TRIBUTE TO ITALY'S ARMY

Have Overcome Great Difficulties On Long Front of 500 Miles

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Lord Northcliffe sends another despatch about the Italian army, this time from the Cadore front, on the central portion of the long battle line from the Stelvio Pass to the Isonzo.

"I am writing in brilliant sunshine," he telegraphs, "and yet in several degrees of frost. It is not usually realised that the Italian front is nearly 500 miles long. In the parched wilderness of the Carso plateau the chief enemy of the fighting man is thirst. Hhis chief enemy on the Cadore front is the frost. These two facts should bring home some of the difficulties the Italians have faced for fifteen months.

9,000 FEET UP.

"Picture to yourself men 9,000 feet up in the clouds, for seven months in and surrounded by deep snow, and so close to the Austrians at some points that they can see the enemy's eyes through the holes in observation posts."

Lord Northcliffe, after describing the cables by which guns, food, materials for huts are taken up to the troops on the high mountain peaks, continues:

"The first sensation of transit down these seemingly fragile tight ropes is much more curious than one's first trip in a submarine or aeroplane and tries even the strongest nerves.

FIGHTING NATURE, TOO

"Man is not only fighting man on these heights, but both the Italians and the Austrians have been fighting nature in some of its fiercest aspects. The gales and snowstorms are excelled in a horro ronly by the avalanches. Quite lately the melting snow has revealed a heap of frozen bodies—horrible lifelike—of a whole platoon swept away nearly a year ago.

"While there have been heavy casualties on both sides from sniping, bomb-throwing machines and mountain guns, and from heavy artillery fire, there has been little sickness among the Italians, for the men know that visits of a doctor are practically impossible. Therefore, they follow the medical advice of their officers. King Victor Emmanuel, whose life has been passed almost entirely among his troops since the beginning of the war, told me, however, that, despite the greatest care, occasionally death resulted from frostbites.

MEN OF GREAT STRENGTH

"In addition to the heavy guns, there are guns carried by mules, guns partly carried by mountain artillery men, huge fellows, whose weight and carrying capacity entirely put in the shade that of the Constantinople porters. When Queen Margherita arrived at Gressony some years ago four Alpine gunners presented arms with guns of their battery. They were cheery fellows, proud of their strength, and with backs like bulls.

MADE DRIVE POSSIBLE

"Higher yet than the mountain fighting line stand sentinels whose works resembles that of expert Alpine climbers. They carry portable telephones, with which they can communicate with their platoon. The platoon in turn telephones to the local commander.

"When thinking of our own brave men who held the trenches in Flanders for two years, and who now alongside the French, are slowly forcing back the Germans on the Somme, it is only fair that we realise that but for the work of those Italians in weakening Germany's chief ally our advance would not have been possible."

Lured 3,000 Girls To Infamous Dens

New York, August 12.—Using well dressed young men as his agents, Yuse Botwin, confessed "King of the New York White Slave Trust" lured 3,000 school girls from their homes into dens of vice in ten years. He told Assistant District Attorney Smith who made the confession public today. Many of his victims were only 16 years old. Botwin told Smith. They came generally from families too poor to provide good clothes and entertainment for them.

Botwin's agents located around the school houses and flirted, then came gifts of candy, automobile rides to Coney Island, and finaly a trip to a Broadway resort winding up with a night in a hotel. Then the girls were induced to write to their mother saying they had eloped, and were taken to a nearby city and kept for a few weeks before they were brought back to New York and placed in disorderly houses.

"But did they not ever try to run away and go back to their homes?" asked the Asaistant District Attorney.

"Older girls might have done that, but the ones we handled never went back home after we had given them their strat," said Botwin. "That's why we picked schoolgirls."

Botwin has pleaded giulty to one of the five indictments found against him in the investigations of the "vice trust." His revelations are expected to result in the filing of charges against more policemen.

WOMAN "STRIKES" IT RICH

Mrs. Cleveland Will Clean Up Million This Year in Alaska Mines.

SEWARD, Alaska, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Cleveland, the famous woman miner of Fairbanks, has "struck it rich" on Woodchopper Creek and will certainly clean up $1,000,000 or more this season. Mrs. Cleveland came to Alaska during the Klondike rush and started a supply store on Gold Run, where she became comparatively wealthy within a year or so. With this stake she began mining on Eureka creek and went broke. Her credit enabled her to start another store in which she partially recovered her fortune. From that time to the present she has grubstaked more prospectors than any other two people in this territory combined. She has participated in scores of mining ventures, some of which brought her fortunes and others crowded her to the verge of bankruptcy.

Hairs Will Vanish After This Treatment

(Toilet Helps)

You can keep your skin free from hair or fuzz by the occasional use of plain delatone and in using it you need have no fear of marring or injuring the skin. A thick paste is made by mixing some of the powdered delatone with water. Then spread on the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and all traces of hair have vanished. Be careful, however, to get real delatone.

U. S. SOCCER TEAM DRAWS FIRST GAME

Each Team Scored a Goal at Stockholm—King of Sweden Was Present.

Stockholm, Aug. 17, via London, Aug. 16.—The first game of football played here by the American soccer team against All-Stockholm resulted in a draw. Each team scored a goal. King Gustave was a member of the large, enthusiastic crowd that saw the contest.

BASEBALL

With the Erie team on the rocks and no money in the treasury, there will be about fourteen healthy, athletes looking for the shortest way home. Among the lots is our own Willie Cristall, who piloted the Hams for over half the season last year. Bill had a claim against the Hamilton club which he never got, and it looks as though he will have to leave Erie with something coming to him.

With the Interstate league out of business, the American legion should be able to recruit about 100 good bomb throwers. It is likely they would come to Canada if their expenses were paid.

Two more Canadian leaguers have been grabbed by major league clubs. Merlin Kopp, who has been playing great ball for Buffalo and who was thought to be the property of Washington, has been purchased by the Boston Red Sox, as has Ty Tyson the pitcher, who played on the Hamilton team for a time as a first baseman. Kopp was in the big show for a time last year with Washington but Clarke Griffith decided that he needed a little seasoning, and he went to Buffalo.

There is no truth in the report that John J. McGraw has tried to sign Cornelius Murphy, one of the eminent pastimers here under the pilotship of George Washington Lee.

It looks as though Frank Shaughnessy's toast will be buttered on one side only this winter. The usual baseball stipend has been sadly crimped, and it is not likely that he will find and soft berths as a football coach this year, unless he crosses the border, and football coaches on the other side are as plentiful as Austrian prisoners in Russia.

Fourteen ball players are broke in Erie. Fourteen thousand horse players were the same way at Fort Erie a few days ago.

Detroit News: If Detroit can't win Cleveland is now the proper selection. It has a ball club that is thoroughly game, while Chicago has not proved itself to be. It is a town that deserves a pennant winner, and it should beat out St. Louis, a club largely owned and managed by men who deserted organized ball and who, going into a world series, would be able to laugh at ball players who were faithful to their trust.

This finish threatens to be nearly as good as that of 1908 when Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland came to the wire neck and neck. Only five games separate the clubs that are in first and fifth places. In the year referred to, any one of three clubs had a chance three days before the season ended, and the final game decided things.

All of which is making for the good of baseball. In the American league, with the exception of two cities, the attendances are very large. At Cleveland yesterday there were at least 8,000 fans, which is a bumper crowd for any town to draw out on the first day of the week. And it was an enthusiastic gathering.

When polishing the stove, first rub the hands thoroughly with soap and allow it to dry. The polish will then wash off easily.

Gallant Athletes Killed in Action

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The latest casualty list contains the names of several more prominent British sportsmen who have fallen in action in the fighting on the western front, which sadly thins the ranks of stars in every branch of sport.

A well-known polo player and a keen man to hounds has been killed in Lieut.-Col. Harold Brassey.

Lieut. D'Arcy J. J. Hartley, killed in action, won the long jump for Oxford University at Queen's Club in 1911, covering 21 feet 6 inches, and was also on the University team which opposed Harvard.

Another athletic "Blue" killed is Captain W. Thornton Wetenhall. In 1910 he won the quarter mile in the intervarsity sports and established fresh records for the 100 and 440 yards, while at the City of London school.

A crack polo player and a successful rider in point to point races and army steeplechases has been lost in Lieut. Col. O. S. Flower.

Lieut.-Col. A. E. Fitzgerald, who has died of wounds, was a son of the famous Secretary of the Marylebone Cricket Club—the late R. A. Fitzgerald—who captained the team of Gentlemen of England which toured Canada in 1873.

Lieut. Walton R. Wilson, who has made the great sacrifice, shot for his school at Bisley and represented Cambridge on several occasions.

Lieut. E. Milroy, of the Black Watch, is reported as missing. He captained the last Scottish fifteen in the International football games and is the nineteenth Scottish football 'cap' reported killed or missing.

A famous rowing 'Blue' has been killed in action in Captain J. A. Ritson, who rowed in the winning Cambridge eight against Oxford in 1914.

$15,000 FOR A BASEBALL.

St. Louis Fan Sues American League Club For That Sum.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 17.—The St. Louis Browns were defendants in a $15,000 suit here brought by a fan, who says he was wrongfully accused of stealing a baseball batted into the stands. While the ball was being passed out, he alleged, a park watchman grabbed him by the wrist and led him to the club's office, where he claims, he was detained for twenty-five minutes and greatly humiliated.

TO DISTRIBUTE MILK JUST LIKE LETTERS

SUGGESTION ALSO DISCUSSED THAT AMERICAN MEAT AND GRAIN TRUST BE TACKLED.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The House of Commons War Committee is preparing a report on the milk supply of London, and will recommend municipal control of distribution in a manner similar to the present postal deliveries, according to the Daily News, which says:

"It has been found that the present sporadic distribution by the various milk companies involves a tremendous amount of over-lapping, irregularity, waste, and the employment of useless labour. The organization of this distribution by a central authority would result in great saving and benefit. Distribution on postal lines would mean several deliveries daily.

"Districts will be mapped out, so that rivalry among the various milk companies will not result in wastefulness in national resources."

OTHER FOOD PRICES.

In an article pleading for vigorous Government encouragement of home-grown foods, the Times, in an editorial article, says:

"Who fixes the price for bread? The Chicago corn ring. Who determines how much we shall pay for meat? The Chicago meat trust. Who decides how much our rasher of bacon shall cost? The Danish bacon producer. The price of our butter is largely regulated by Danish and French butter makers; the price of our cheese by Canadian and American cheese makers. With the exception of milk and fish there is hardly any article of food the price of which is not controlled by foreign producers.

"At the present crisis the price of meat affords a good illustration of the grip of the foreign producer. On the whole we may be grateful to the American meat trust for the moderation with which they have used their power."

TRUSTS CAN WAIT, PEOPLE CAN-NOT.

"In the circumstances, why, it is asked, should we not fix maximum prices? A moment's reflection shows that this lever is powerless in the face of our necessity. We are dealing with an immensely wealthy organization which could easily afford to stand out of trade for a month. On the other hand, we cannot wait a single day. Whatever the price asked we must have the meat, and we can not even refuse the use of our ships, for, without this meat our armies and those of our allies would starve."

London Closes Great Poster Campaign To Recruit Soldiers

London, August 15.—The blinds have been drawn and the doors closed at the Publicity Department, Central Recruiting Depot, Whitehall, thus concluding what was perhaps the greatest poster and advertising campaign in history. How many bundles of these war posters have reached America it would be impossible to say, for one of the joys of the souvenir hunters in London has been the collecting of these posters to sell in America, big sums being asked for complete sets.

From the humble origin of one small poster, Lord Kitchener's appeal for 100,000 men for the war, more than 500 different kinds have been issued since. Without going into the figures, one or two incidents arising from the work may amuse:

One letter ran: "Dear Mr. Publicity Manager: Please send me at once a picture poster to paste over a broken window. It will look better than brown paper and be patriotic."

One popular poster showed an assortment of headgear, with the query —"Which will you wear?" the khaki cap being in the centre. One of these was stuck outside of a comparatively humble hatter's shop in the East End, and the enterprising tradesman having printed the price under each style, marked the khaki cap "free."

"WAKE UP!" ON GRAVEYARD

It is not on record whether a certain billposter had a sense of humor or not but the fact remains that he placed the invitation, "Wake up, England! Join the army, now," on a graveyard wall, which so tickled a certain major passing to the war office each morning that he insisted on it being left there, and part is there yet.

One may imagine the quantity of paste used. To avoid the cartage of this obnoxious stuff from the central depot tubs were sent to the depots, which were mostly installed in the local town halls. Unfortunately the paste company omitted to advise the various places of the advent of the tubs. One was deposited at a certain town hall, label downward, in the central hall. Eventually it reached the mayor's parlor and was opened by some over-curious official, with results which may be left to be imagined.

What will always rank as the greatest achievement of this large output was the night of the King's own appeal, when 40,000 posters appeared on the London walls between the hours of six p.m. and six a.m. Forty-five men were employed.

IT WAS HIS MOVE.

A touchy chap was irritated by a certain poster staring at him night and morning near his home. "Why aren't you in khaki?" it read. He wrote demanding that it be removed or he would have to move. He moved, but the posters moved with him.

Series of these posters have been sought the world over and now repose in most of the museums in the principal cities of the world. In every illustrated paper reproductions have been made from time to time of the various editions.

By virtue of numbers the most popular poster was "The Laughing Soldier," and next "The Veteran's Farewell," with "Our Flag" a good third. Many people have said, "What a waste!" but when one stops to consider that the new armies were raised to a great extent by this method of appeal the question arises, Was the money spent on 3,000,000 posters to get 3,000,000 men all waste? All the space for this "pageant of paint" was given free.

And it seems that an exhibition of these recruiting posters has been held in Berlin and other towns in Germany, many thousands of people paying for admission, the proceeds going to the German equivalent of the British Red Cross. How did they get them?

afternoon we embarked on the boat, the Empress of Britain, and you would think you were climbing up in the fourth story of a building. They carried over 4,000 troops, and you know those troops eat, so you can form an idea of the size. There was the 93rd Batt, 105th Batt. of Nova Scotia and the 108th Batt. of Prince Edward Island, a draft of the 67th Battery and Royal Canadian Dragoons, 150 sailors from H.M.S. Newcastle, off the Pacific Ocean. They had come through from Victoria and are home on two months' furlough. The weather could not have been better; an old sailor told me he never saw the sea so calm. I only saw two on the boat seasick. When you see the vastness of the ocean it makes you think what a small thing man is in the world. It takes nine days to cross, but our boat has made the trip before in five days. It is the zig-zag course they take that makes the trip so long. It was a grand sight to see Halifax as we steamed out Sunday morning at 6 o'clock, and I will never be happy till I see that good old coast again, where my heart and mind is nearly all the time. I had to do guard duty—anything for a change.

Well we sighted land on Monday about 4 o'clock. It was the north coast of Ireland and you could hardly see it for the fog. The Irish sea was just like a mill pond and if it hadn't been for the way the little destroyers guarded us we would have been an easy prey for a submarine. Monday night at nine o'clock we arrived in Liverpool and it was the nicest sight I ever saw, coming up the Mercy river nothing but rocks on one side and hundreds of boats of all descriptions, with thousands of people on board and they cheering us. They certainly give you a good hearty welcome. We stayed on the boat over night and disembarked at ten o'clock Tuesday morning with that terrible pack on our backs and our kit bags, too, but it was only a couple of hundred yards to the train. Say they were dinky looking trains, but they would take our breath the speed they travel at. We went through one corner of London, through towns of all sizes, and I think the people in every town were trying to see how loud they could cheer. We arrived here about six o'clock and had to walk about three miles to camp, but they had a good warm supper waiting for us. We have been curtained up till yesterday and could not mail a letter. There was a medical examination Friday and they found us O.K. This is a nice camp up on a hill and nice and dry. There is a heavy dew falls every night, but we have had no rain yet. Of course this is the best time of the year in this country. This camp is seven miles from Shorncliffe and about fifty miles from the front. They can put you on the firing line in seven hours, but it will be a couple of months before any of the 93rd is shoved over. All the signallers have been transferred to the 6th Brigade, so I will not be with the Battalion again but our camp is just across the road from the 93rd. The way they do over here is if a man is a good shot he is sent over as a sniper, and if he is a machinist he goes over with the engineers. They put you wherever you can be applied to the best advantage. I have seen a few Peterborough boys. Some of them have been over and back wounded, and some that haven't been over yet. There is an aviation school about half a mile from our camp and the aeroplanes are as thick as birds overhead all the time.

Well, dear mother, I will have to close for this time as I want to write to Clara and Dad. Write me as often as you can as I have read your letter about six times since I got it, as don't have me reading the same thing all the time. I hear there has been a very hot spell in Peterborough. I hope this finds you all well. I am enclosing a piece of ribbon that came off a chocolate box that I bought on the boat.

With lots of love, I am,
Your loving son,
CLIFF.

P.S.—Tell Clarence and the girls to write to me. Give my best regards to my friends. I want to get a letter every mail that comes over here.

Prisoner of War.

The address of Pte. W. Toottil, No. 113220, 4th C.M.R., is as follows: Detachment No. 10665, Compie 77, Geuppe III., Gefangenenlager, Dulmen, Westf, Germany.

New Battalion.

The name of Lieut.-Col. Barragar is prominently mentioned as a possibility for the command of the new battalion which it is intended shall be organized in Hastings and Prince Edward counties. Lieut.-Col. Barragar is at present commandant of the Infantry School of Instruction, and in his present position is doing excellent work. If given command of an overseas unit, he will make a good officer under whom it will be a pleasure to serve.

Sergt.-Major H. M. Callaghan, of the 156th O. Battalion, is spending a few days at his home in the city.

MONAGHAN PEOPLE HOLD EXCURSION

Over a Hundred Residents of North Monaghan took in the Trip

The bookseller or insurance agent would have met with a cold reception yesterday had he made the rounds of North Monaghan's farms, for the simple reason that they had closed up house and forgotten the cares of rural life for the day in order to enjoy the day down the river on Capt. Harris's excursion craft, the good old "Geneva."

Over a hundred excursionists took in North Monaghan's annual picnic, the crowd being picked up at the Railway Wharf, Crawford's Grove, and other points along the river wherever the "Geneva" could poke her nose in without scraping too hard on bottom.

The party had dinner at Jubilee, and in the afternoon Harwood and Gore's Landing were visited. A large number of "kiddies" took in the outing, such a large number in fact that Capt. Harris thought he had a kindergarten on board, instead of simply a few of North Monaghan's large and happy family circles.

WOODSTOCK MAN DIES AT THE AGE OF 102

MAURICE EGAN WAS THE FIRST ROMAN CATHOLIC RESIDENT OF OXFORD COUNTY.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 17.—Mauric Egan died here early yesterday morning in his 102nd year. He was born in Ireland March 14, 1815, and came with his parents to Canada when a mere lad. He was the first Roman Catholic resident of Oxford County and was instrumental in building the first Roman Catholic Church here. He spent most of his life in Woodstock, but lived in Toronto for a time many years ago.

It is a good idea to try changing foods about from one meal to another—use something generally planned for breakfast for luncheon instead, and a dinner food for breakfast. It makes meal time much more interesting.

WRECKED HOSPITAL ONE OF THE FINEST RHEIMS BUILDINGS

RICH MUSEUM AND TWELFTH CENTURY CLOISTER IN THE STRUCTURE RUINED.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Th civic hospital of Rheims, formerly the abbey of the church of St. Remi, the destruction of which by German artillery fire was officially announced, was one of the finest edifices in the city. It was almost entirely reconstructed in the 18th century.

The linen room in the structure contained an important series of seventeenth-century tapestries, which, with others much older, were recently sent to the Museum Beaux Arts in Paris.

Under the arcades of the cloister forming part of the structure was a rich lapidary museum, containing all the remaining specimens of the archaeological collections of the city, which were almost entirely destroyed in the burning of the archbishop's palace. In another part of the hospital was a part of a primitive cloister, a perfectly preserved and magnificent specimen of twelfth-century art.

A large vault of the cathedral was recently crushed in by a big shell, which brought down a mass of fragments.

War Was Not Forgotten At The 9th Annual Regatta of The Upper Stoney Lake Cottagers

There Was a Noticeable Absence of Young Men—Six First Prizes Were Won by a Fourteen Year Old Lakefield Boy—Members of The Canadian Militia Were Present on a Recruiting Mission

LIST OF PRIZE WINNERS

Crowe's Landing, Stoney Lake, Aug. 17.—The war and Stoney Lake, with its peaceful waters and happy throngs of holiday makers may seem far apart but the great conflict was indicated in several ways in the ninth annual regatta of the Upper Stoney Lake Campers' and Cottagers' Association held on the course off Belvidere summer resort yesterday afternoon. In the first place there was a noticeable absence of young men, to such an extent that six first prizes were won by a fourteen year old boy, Don Fitzgerald, son of Reeve H. G. Fitzgerald of Lakefield. A second evidence of the war was the visit during the afternoon of Lieut. Stewart, assisting recruiting officer for No. 3 Division, and Gunner Rickaby of the 74th Battery on a recruiting mission, which was not eminently successful because of the already mentioned scarcity of young men. Still a third sign that there is a war on was the presence of many ladies who knitted away steadily as the races were being run off. The boys in the trenches were not forgotten even in the excitement of the annual athletic event of Upper Stoney Lake.

The regatta was a most successful event with good competition in many of the events and with close finishes in a number of the races. The events were run off in good style and there were few delays. The attendance was large, with all parts of Stoney Lake well represented. In the evening the presentation of prizes took place in the pavilion, followed by a most enjoyable dance.

The results were as follows:

REGISTRATION SYSTEM PROVIDED FOR CANADA

Order in Council Passed at Ottawa for the Appointment of District Recruiting Officers—Canvass of Districts May be Made—Some of the Provisions of the Order

OTTAWA, Aug. 17.—A species of registration is outlined in the Government's new system of recruiting, for which an order in Council was passed yesterday.

Briefly, the new scheme contemplates the appointment of Directors of Recruiting, who will have a supervision of the enlistments in the various Military Districts, one Director to be appointed for each district. These Directors shall be empowered to make a canvass of their districts with a view to distinguishing between the various classes. Those whose services are required in the essential industries of the country shall have their names tabulated, while those who are physically unfit shall be provided with buttons or badges. Thus by inference all "slackers" shall be designated.

WHERE OF MORE VALUE TO STATE

As outlined by the order in Council it shall be the duty of the Directors to visit localities and acquaint himself with the nature of the various industries, to take into consideration the character and importance of the employment in which any persons proposed to be recruited may be engaged, and to notify the Commanding Officer of any unit which is being recruited there whether the services of such persons would be of more value to the State in the employment in which they are then engaged than if they were enlisted for active service in the military forces of Canada.

In case the Director of Recruiting should determine that the services of any person are of more value to the State thus engaged, such person shall not be enlisted without the written authority of the Adjutant-General, though the Commanding Officer shall have the right to appeal from the decision of the Recruiting Director to the Adjutant-General.

In order to secure his information the Director of Recruiting shall have power to confer with various labor and other organizations. Power is given by the order in Council for the appointment of a Director-General of Recruiting, to have supervision over the other Directors. The latter will be appointed to the Expeditionary Forces and their salaries and allowances shall be fixed by the Governor in Council, and such salaries and expenses shall be charged to war appropriations.

The regulations governing badges are somewhat extensive. Badges "of such form as the Governor in Council may recommend" shall be issued to the following classes:

(b)—Men who have offered themselves for active service in the present war and have been rejected.

(c)—Men who desire or who have offered to enlist, and who have been refused upon the ground that their services are of more value to the State in the employment in which they are engaged than if they should enlist for active service.

CARDS AS WELL AS BADGES

The badges as approved may be issued by any military officer authorised thereto by the Governor in Council, and every badge shall be numbered and accompanied by a card bearing the same number and signed by the military officer issuing it. These cards shall contain particulars as to the person to whom it is issued and the reason for its issue. These cards must be kept at all times on the person of the man who wears the badge, so that they may be shown on request to any military officer or constable. Otherwise the omission will be reported to headquarters.

Loss of the card must be reported at once to the officer by whom it was issued.

PUNISHMENT OF FRAUD

The wearing of an imitation of such badges or the selling of such imitations is strictly prohibited. Anyone guilty of the offence shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $100 or imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days.

In no case will a badge be issued to persons who have been rejected on account of temporary disability or who are obviously unfit for service in and have not served with the Expeditionary Forces, for example, to men who are totally blind, crippled, paralytic, etc.

General Crusiloff's Armies Checked

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 17.—Despatches carried the admission that enemy counter attacks have checked General Brusiloff's armies. The German War Office reported not only the repulse of all Russian attacks, but the capture of a dominating height in the Carpathians. The arrival of Austrian reinforcements and the necessity of straightening out the Italian front have halted General Cadorna's march southward against Trieste.

Thursday Lull With Us Again

The Thursday afternoon lull is with us again and Peterborough's business section has taken on the quiet aspect of a corpse, from which stupor it will not awake until George Street business houses throw open their doors, to-morrow morning, and sun-burnt clerks begin to dust the trusty shelves after their half-holiday. One more Thursday-half-holiday is decreed by the calendar.

SERIOUS BREAKS IN THE ROMAINE STREET SEWER

Number of Manholes Have Settled Causing Breaks in The Pipe—The Sewer is Gradually Filling up With Sand — Matter Will be Dealt With by a Committee of The Whole Council.

The Romaine street sewer is again in the limelight. At last night's meeting of the Board of Works committee, City Engineer Parsons reported that several serious breaks had been discovered in the pipe which would have to be repaired at once if this particular service was to be of any use in the south end of the city. Ald. Stratton suggested that Mr. Chipman of Chipman & Powers, Consulting Engineers, Toronto, be notified. City Engineer Parsons was of the opinion that the work would involve a large expenditure of money. One part of the sewer that was excavated for temporary repairs revealed the fact that tile pipe had been used, whereas the plan on file in the City Engineer's office indicated that iron pipe had been used. Some of the manholes have sunk, causing breaks in the pipe through which sand and water is pumped. In time this will fill up the pipe, rendering the sewer useless. The committee thought that the matter was important enough to be dealt with by a committee of the Whole Council.

Miscellaneous.

James Bogue wants a siding into his property on Dublin street. This he claims would be of some service to the Peterborough Planing Mills. City Engineer Parsons was asked to make a report on the matter.

Mr. M. A. Turner's request for a sidewalk on part of Dublin street from Aylmer street west was discussed, and the committee felt that if the necessary means can be secured Mr. Turner could have the sidewalk.

A number of other sidewalks which the committee contemplated building may be left over for another year.

The Bell Telephone Company was granted permission to erect six poles on Concession street for the purpose of extending their service.

A letter received from the Grand Trunk Railway Company suggested that a new bridge might be constructed on the company's property crossing Murray street on Bethune at an early date. This would necessitate raising the grade six or eight inches.

The matter was referred to City Solicitor Gordon, who will investigate the legal obligations of any party or parties if any, also City Engineer Parsons, who will deal with the matter from an engineering standpoint.

THE RUSSIAN FORCES HAVE RESUMED THE OFFENSIVE

German Counter Attacks Were All Repulsed

Jablonitza Seals Roads By Which Austrian Could Launch a Flank Attack

Little Advantage For March into Hungary—Grade is too Heavy and Way is too Narrow for a Marching Army—Russians Gain Immense Advantage in Latest Advance.

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION

LONDON, August 18.—The importance of the capture of the Jablonitza Pass by the Russians lies in the fact that from Jablonitza it is possible to control the mountain highway connecting Jablonitza with Pistyn, Kosow and Kuty. All four places lie at the head of deep, narrow valleys flanking the left wing of the Russian advance into Galicia. The Jablonitza valley is not more than one-half mile wide, while the Kuty and Kosow valleys are not more than one and one-half miles wide at any part. So long as these four valleys remained in Austrian hands it was possible for Central Power forces to pass from one point to another in the mountains over the Jablonitza Pass highway, and strike the advancing Russian army wherever the left wing might be found up in the air. Until Jablonitza was taken the situation by the use of high military skill made possible a tremendous flank attack such as characterized Stonewall Jackson's assault at Chancellorsville in the Americah Civil War."

DIFFICULT TO NEGOTIATE.

As a point of advance into Hungary over the Carpathians the Jablonitza Pass, it is thought, does not offer marked advantages. The ascent above Jablonitza is difficult to negotiate and would only be availed of, it is believed, in order to effect a turning movement beyond Delatyn. The Kolomea-Marcaros-Sziget Railroad crosses the Carpathians at a point west of Jablonitza distant only fourteen miles, and the grade of this railroad can be followed over the mountains by having recourse to the banks of the Pruth River on the north until it meets the headwaters of the River Theiss and by then following the latter stream down on the south slopes of the Carpathians into the plains of Hungary. In military circles the opinion is expressed that the Jablonitza Pass will be utilized by the Russians only to effect a turning on the Kolomea-Marmaros-Sziget Railroad, but in view of the fact that Russian cavalry, according to the very latest reports, have penetrated to the line of the Bistritza River, beyond Delatyn, it is hardly reported as necessary to conduct a cross mountain expeditionary force to get control of the upper stretches of the Kolomea railroad.

THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE.

The Russian advance in Galicia is still marked by the line of the Zlota-Lipa River; that is to say, the Teutonic defence was in the first instance defined by that stream, but already the Russians have crossed to the west side and have pushed forward in that region lying between the lower reaches of the stream and the Dniester. The Austro-Germans, however, continue to hold the west bank of the Zlota-Lipa at the point where the Tarnopol-Rohatyn railroad crosses.

The immediate objective of the Russians in Galicia is the capture of the line of railroad running from Halicz to Rohatyn. So soon as this is an accomplished fact the Russians will be in position to throw troops in the rear of the Austro-Germans in that region lying between Brzezany and Rohatyn.

HAVE YOU HEARD

that eczema cases, which have defied all other treatment, yield to Zam-Buk? An illustration of this is found in the case of Mr. J. L. Frenette, of Nigadoo, N.B. He writes:—

"My head was entirely covered with eczema, and although I tried numerous remedies and received medical treatment, I got no benefit. Then I heard of Zam-Buk and tried it. The first few applications stopped the burning. Gradually the inflammation was drawn out, and before long the sores began to heal. Perseverance with Zam-Buk resulted in a complete and permanent cure."

Zam-Buk is just as good for ulcers, ringworm, running sores, blood-poisoning, piles, cuts, burns and all skin injuries. All druggists 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Towns And Villages Completely Blotted Out

The Big Guns Devastating Fire—Heavy Cannonading Like Dozens of Thunderstorms Blended Into One, With Tons of Steel Shrieking and Whining—Britain Has Plenty of Munitions—Great Masses of Men are Held in Reserve.

ROADSIDE TRAINING FIELDS

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN THE FIELD, August 18.—If it's possible to imagine dozens of heavy thunderstorms blended into one continuous roar, the shrieking and whining of tons of unseen steel and high explosives racing through the sky, lightning flashes of bursting shells continuously pecking the horizon like a giant Fourth of July display, then it's partly possible to visualize the newest phase of war on the western front.

BLOTCHES OF BROWN.

The correspondent saw and heard all this to-day from a high stretch of ground commanding the scene of a dozen of the bloodiest and most terrible conflicts of the British drive. Dotting the green hills and valleys here and there were distinct blotches of brown visible among naked skeletons of trees. These ugly blots on the landscape a short time ago were pretty villages, each with a church-spire and red-topped houses snuggled down between the rolling hills. To-day they were merely ugly blots. Each is typical of the other—mostly a pile of bricks that resembles nothing.

PECULIAR BRITISH PUSH.

From the vantage-point were observed Contalmaison, Bazentin-le-Grand, Montauban, LaBoisselle, Mametz and several small woods, which have figured prominently in the official communiques. Just beyond the range of vision lay Longueval and Delville wood, where at the moment the Germans were engaged in a heavy counter-attack, which gave them back a part of the wood and a few houses of the village. A British counter-attack soon reversed the situation. Fighting of this character has been a peculiarity of the British offensive. All captured points are strongly held. Wherever the Germans concentrate their reserves and carry out a counter-drive, any success they gain is of short duration. The systematic British advance makes it possible to retaliate quickly, usually in force.

PLENTY OF SHELLS.

Precaution prevents publication of news relative to troops and movements of troops, but it can be said with safety that there is no shortage of shells or men or guns behind the British line. From the viewpoint of the non-military observer there is no shortage of anything. For miles along the network of country roads well behind the fighting lines great masses of men in khaki, most of them wearing the picturesque steel helmet, are awaiting for their turn. Motor lorries in great droves are also performing their functions. Passing along the roads miles and miles to the rear, khaki is everywhere. Pitiful little villages which fate has left so near the ravages of the conflict, yet still untouched, are filled with it. Every doorway shows a "Tommy." Every corner shows a group of "Tommies." These men are in billets. Many of them have had their turn at the fighting and are taking a well-earned rest. Others have freshly arrived from England, as can be seen by the newness of their uniforms. The veteran fighting "Tommy" is a trifle more stained.

Roadside training fields, with detachments of newer contingents still in training are frequently seen. Schools of bombing and musketry are scattered here and there. Northern France is one great panorama of war.

NEW SYSTEM WILL TAG SHIRKERS

OTTAWA, Aug. 16.—Pending the approval of his Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, who is at Valcartier, the new Government regulations in regard to recruiting will not be promulgated. Substantially however, they are understood to be on the lines indicated yesterday. The present methods are not proving satisfactory, and a new plan is called for.

Steps are to be taken in conjunction with the local authorities in each military division to ascertain the number of eligible men if military age who have not enlisted, or who are engaged in some industry vital to the war. Men with a good excuse, physical or otherwise, for not enlisting are to be given a distinctive badge, which also will go to those who are willing to serve but proved upon examination to be physically unfit. There will be no compulsory service, but men who are able to enlist and have no valid impediment to their doing so will be especially appealed to join the colors.

REFORM IS NEEDED.

The need of some reform along this line has become increasingly apparent. Recruiting has not been up to the standard, and has fallen off, especially in the past month or so. While farming operations and the demand for labor generally have absorbed large numbers of men, otherwise available for military service, these factors do not account for the diminished recruiting records, and so a revision of methods becomes necessary to enlist the 180,000 men yet required to complete the promised compliment of a half a million men.

DIRECTORS OF RECRUITING

A director of recruiting will be appointed in each military district to supervise methods and work of recruiting. It will be his duty to

THE GERMAN SUBMARINE NINE LAYER

BY A CANADIAN OVERSEAS

The irony of fate shows itself in the capture of the German submarine mine-layer, U C 5. Some months ago a picture was circulated in neutral countries far and wide by the Germans; it represents a hostile submarine off Westminster and the Houses of Parliament, with its crew cheering defiantly on deck. This was the German dream. The reality, which appears now alongside this picture, in the Daily Mail, gives us the picture of the German submarine mine-layer U C 5, drawn up at the temple pier, as a prize of the British navy, and with their white ensign floating over the enemies flag.

It is on view to the public at a small charge, the proceeds of which are to go to naval and military charities. The tale of her capture is interesting:

One day a British destroyer was patrolling off the East Coast. It was a calm and rather hazy day, so a sharp look-out was kept for the enemy. Suddenly something suspicious was sighted and all caution was taken, the course being altered to make a closer inspection. As the destroyer got nearer they found it to be a submarine of odd and unusual type. The destroyer was quite close to her, with the guns loaded and trained on the craft. The Commander summoned the crew to surrender, which they did. A boat from the destroyer, in charge of a sub-lieutenant, went off to pick up the crew. When the boat was within a few yards of the submarine the Captain gave an order, and all the men except himself plunged into the water and swam towards the boat, crying "Kamerad! Kamerad!" As they were all wearing lifebelts the sub-lieutenant ordered the Captain to surrender, else his men would not be rescued. He came immediately.

As the boat was returning another man rushed out on to the deck of the submarine and swam rapidly away. At the same time violent explosions were heard. He had remained to blow up th craft.

The sub-lieutenant, at some risk, and protected by a gas mask, descended through the conning tower hatch and found the boat somewhat damaged, with two feet of water in her. He also found that she had her full compliment of mines, 12 in number, and no torpedoes on board. Two of the mines had broken adrift, which made the work of taking the vessel dangerous. Later, a gallant officer, who has since received the Distinguished Service Cross, went down in a diving suit and after a couple of days' work, secured the mines.

Eventually the submarine was brought safely into harbour. Both the Ensign and the Machine-gun are much prized trophies of the destroyer.

The craft, in shape, is much like the older British submarines. She is 110 feet long, with a diameter at the widest part of nearly 10 feet; the draught of water, when running awash, is about 9 feet, 10 inches, and from her keel to the top of her conning tower is about 20 feet in height. On the surface her displacement is 190 tons, and when submerged, 210 tons.

As her hull was badly injured by explosion, all her fittings were taken out, and have not been replaced. Right aft were the two-cylinder Diesel engines, which gave her a surface speed of 6 knots, and just before these were the electric motors for under-water propulsion. There are cramped quarters for 18 persons, who form the crew. In this part also, were the storage batteries, petrol tanks, and stores. One-third of the bow was given up entirely to mines. These were stored in six chutes, two mines in each, one above the other.

The submarine itself is constructed with a rounded hull, made in four sections. It was probably built in Germany and the sections conveyed separately by land or water and bolted together at a place of assemblage, probably Zeebrugge or the Holboken Works, near Antwerp.

THE MINES.

A mine is a remarkable piece of mechanism. It is a spherical body, with short horns and painted a glossy black. It stands about four feet high upon a thick circular steel disc, which is called the sinker, and supported within four upright double angle-iron stays, hinged at their foot to the sinker.

When the mines sink to the sea-floor, the angle-irons are automatically released at the top and drop outwards and downwards, lying flat on the sea-floor. The sinker remains and the mine rises up through the water, trailing after it a steel wire, attached to the bottom of the mine, which wire unwinds from a revolving drum inside the sinker. This releasing the mine to the required position is done by a complicated mechanism through which the wire passes. In short, when a submarine deposits it weapons of death in the ocean, the mechanism is so set that the mine, anchored by the sinker and its steel arms to the bottom, rises to a cerain height and here remains.

A single pin, at the same time, is automatically detached, leaving the mine sensitive to contact. This contact is made by four metal horns projecting about six inches from the top of the mine, striking a heavy body, such as a ship. The blow smashes a glass tube which is inside each horn. In this tube is a powerful liquid acid of a reddish colour. When the tube is broken the acid goes into a charged cell, where, by chemical action, an electric current is generated. The electric spark from the current ignites the detonator, which explodes about 500 lbs. of T.N.T.

As I said before, the mines are in 'shoots' in the forward hull. The steel 'shoot' is fitted with flanged runners, on which slide four steel stays holding the mine. When the officer sets out to plant mines, he first ascertains his position, sets his course and drops his mines at fixed intervals. Each mine is released by pulling over a lever which is fixed into the hull aft.

A high rate of speed is not necessary to a submarine mine-layer, but habitability and seaworthiness are essential features, if they are intended for long-distance work, such as the coasts of Scotland and Ireland.

The U C 5 appears to be the first one caught intact, but there is every reason to believe that many others of her class, these sowers of death and destruction to warships and merchantmen alike, have been accounted for.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More.

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are, when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, much of the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal, amount of fat, the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can probably best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet wit every meal. Sargol is a careful combination of six especially assimilative agents. Taken with meals they mix with the food to turn the sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect has been in many cases reported remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five months in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by all druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you with Sargol send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the National Laboratories, St Antoine St., Montreal and a complete ten days' treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

MOTH KILLER.

If moths get into the closet, saturate a cloth twelve inches square with foraldehyde; place the cloth in the closet and close up tightly for twelve hours. The same plan may be used in chests, trunks or boxes where clothing is stored. The fumes will kill moths as well as their eggs; also germs of any kind. No odor is left in the clothing.

"GRABATERIA" THE LATEST.

New Grocery Store Where There Are No Clerks and No Delivery.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 15. —"Grabateria" is a name of a new kind of store launched on the East Side. The name is an adoption of portions of cafeteria, where, without a waiter, one selects his own dishes and pays for what he takes. A grabateria is a grocery store where no clerks are employed. Every article is marked with the price and the customer selects what he wants and walks up to the cashier's counter, where it is paid for. In the "grabateria" there are no clerks, no delivery wagons and no charged accounts.

It is claimed for the grabateria establishment that the saving on delivery and clerk hire alone will be from 10 to 25 per cent.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

7849

You can "see right through" this design that it has perfect style lines and affords a luxury of comfort, and these features give the wearer poise, as the girl in the picture shows.

Any mother will find it a pleasurable task to make this frock, which is very fetching with novelty striped material to contribute the collar, cuffs on short sleeves and the belt at a lowered waistline, where the waist body is gathered front and back. Long revers in self-material aid in giving the surplice closing; an abrupt termination of the closing above the belt attracts attention to the loops and button, which ornament as well as secure the dress fronts. Ten backward turning pleats in each half of the back are arranged so as to give a panel front. A fancy buckle secures the belt and a removable shield is included in the pattern.

Linen, repp, ratine, gaiatea, gingham, &c., may be chosen for a tub frock, but the design is well suited to albatross, tweeds, serge and plaid silks, crêpe, voile and like fabrics for a dress for better wear.

The pattern is cut in sizes 6 to 12 years. To make in size 10 will require 3½ yards of contrasting goods, also 36 inches wide.

You may obtain this pattern by sending 25c. to the office of this publication for No. 7,514.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Germany Harbours No Plans of Aggression Toward Canada.

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—Dr. von Jagow, Foreign Minister, in denying that Germany opposed the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States said:

"Germany is antagonistic to nobody's intention as to the distribution of sovereign rights in these parts of the world. The German policy was plainly stated by the Imperial Chancellor in his speech in the Reichstag on April 4 when he made known to everyone that Germany harbours no plans of aggression or annexation towards Canada, Brazil or any portions of America whatever."

STORM DAMAGES BANANAS.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 17.—The hurricane which struck the eastern end of Jamaica resulted in considerable damage to banana plantations, but as far as has been ascertained cocoanut trees and sugar cane were not affected. Wires in all directions from Kingston are down and no details have been received from the north and west coast of the island.

Several coasting vessels and lighters were driven ashore in Kingston harbour, with the loss of two persons drowned. The damage done to buildings was slight.

M. ALBERT THOMAS

French Munition King Rose Through Ability—Was a Journalist

The two men behind the men behind the guns of France and Britain are both of humble birth and origin. Mr. Lloyd-George, Britain's ex-Minister of Munitions, rose from village green to Downing Street, while his confrere, M. Albert Thomas, who has organized the armaments of France, has risen from baker's boy to Cabinet rank. As a schoolboy, M. Thomas, who was born in 1878, displayed abnormal cleverness. He stood head and shoulders above his classmates intellectually, taking prizes for history and philosophy, and winning scholarships which enabled him to travel and widen his knowledge in other countries. First he went through Siberia, then visited Germany, where he took a course of lectures at Berlin Universities. Afterwards he went to Smyrna and Constantinople, adding largely to his knowledge of men and matters. Returning to France, M. Thomas settled down to journalism, and scored a great success with a series of articles on legislation for the working classes. It was these articles which ultimately led him to take up municipal and political work, and in due course he was elected a deputy. This was in 1910, and his great chance came when war broke out.

Attached to the staff of a famous general, he was asked, when it became obvious that there was a weak spot in the organization of France's military resources, to endeavor to remedy this. That weak spot was the lack of munition workers. M. Thomas was given an absolutely free hand, and in a short time, as the result of keen observation, he had organized the work of thousands of willing hands for making shot and shell, guns, and the like, just as Lloyd-George has done. He knew that the man behind the gun depended on the man in the munition factory for support, and under his "push and go" the output in French factories went up tenfold.

"There cannot be two kinds of terms for Frenchmen to-day," he said. "They are all fighting," a delicate compliment implying that the makers of shot and shell are doing as much in another way as the men in the trenches. One of the secrets of M. Thomas' successes is his cleverness in choosing the heads of the various departments. He believes in the man who, like himself, has won through by practical ability. A man has only to prove that he knows his business in order to be enlisted in the wonderful munition works which M. Thomas has organized.

Tirpitz's Successor

Capelle is known as the "genius of the budgets." In a period of fifteen years he and Von Tirpitz, creator of the German navy, which he managed for nearly twenty years, raised the naval expenditure from $30,000,000 to $115,000,000 per annum. The appointment of Capelle to be Von Tirpitz's successor caused no surprise in Germany, for it was always recognized that the understudy of the grand pirate would in due course step into his shoes. Capelle, born in 1856, is five years younger than Von Tirpitz, but has had a good training in sea murder.

Bavaria Guards Her Food Supplies

Renewed attempts by the Imperial German Government to induce the Kingdom of Bavaria to release larger amounts of foodstuffs for the use of the other States of the empire continue to meet with stubborn opposition, both on the part of the Bavarian authorities and of the agricultural interests. The leader of the anti-Prussian forces is Dr. George Helm, head of the Bavarian Farmers' League, whose activities command considerable space both in the German and the London press.

In the course of his campaign for the maintenance of Bavaria, Dr. Heim, who is a well-known writer on political and agrarian subjects, says, in articles in the Neueste Nachrichten of Munich, that the Prussian officials monopolize the jobs in the various war societies and war committees which control internal trade. He also cites numerous incidents calculated to disprove the Prussian contention that Bavaria has not been furnishing its share of supplies, and severely criticises the methods of other States. He points out that Bavaria now imports practicaly no cattle or pigs, while she nevertheless supplies pigs to the other States, and has been compelled to supply more than her share of meat to the army.

The Prussian press expresses amazement at Dr. Heim's disclosures, "at a time when all Germans ought to stand together." A supposedly inspired telegram from Berlin to the Frankfurter Zeitung suggests that the only way to end discussion and to promote justice is to sweep away all barriers and to establish identical regulations and identical rations for the whole empire.

The Neueste Nachrichten prints an article, regarded in some quarters as expressing the opinion of the Bavarian Government, reading in part as follows:

"In the discussion of the difficulties with which the War Food Bureau has been faced there have lately been more or less pointed references to the obstacles which are supposed to be due to the federal structure of the empire. People often shrug their shoulders and regret that there are barriers over which even the War Food Bureau cannot ride. In the first place, we dispute the fact that it is the federal character of the empire which really is ultimately to blame for the failure to procure unity thus far. But, even if it were so, it would be necessary to say that the main object of the creation of the War Food Bureau was that it should banish obstacles between the Federal States and the empire, or even perhaps within particular States."

The writer goes on to point out that everybody is expected "even the largest" of the States—that is to say, Prussia—to adapt itself willingly to the new order of things.

Dr. Helm has openly challenged the right of Adolf von Batocki, the Imperial Food Dictator, to decrease Bavaria's rations for the benefit of Prussia, and has addressed an open letter to Herr von Batocki, containing a list of questions, some of which follow:

"Is it true that forty large estates, whose names were made known to the Imperial Barley Office, had up to a few months ago not turned over a single pound of their supplies?

"Is it true that Bavaria alone up to the end of March had sent more beer to the front than all Prussia?

"Is it true that Bavaria, when favors are being distributed, does not by far receive the same advantages and benefits from the countless millions spent for armaments that the rest of Germany gets?

"Is it true that Bavaria is not allocated even approximately the same share of raw materials and fodder stuffs, brought from abroad or confiscated at home, as other portions of the country?"

In a summary of the results of his physical examination of thousands of men during the last two years, Dr. Alfred Tilger of Bonn, as quoted in the Cologne Gazette of July 18, says:

"I have not been able to discover in any single case among the men who have passed through my hands representing every class of the urban and rural population in the district surrounding Bonn—that any injurious effect to their health or working capacity, of whatsoever kind, has been caused by war-food regulations.

Many a man with a good scheme lacks the required nerve to push it through.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

MRS. MASON'S SCHEME

A Story For Easter Sunday

By BARBARA PHIPPS

Horace Baxter, twenty-four years old, had been graduated from an Episcopal theological seminary, had packed his trunk preparatory to leaving for home and was looking over a time table to see what train he should take when a maid brought to his room a postcard from the bishop requesting him to call. Wondering what could be wanted of him, he went immediately to answer the summons.

Baxter had shown unusual proficiency, originality and withal a special ability for speaking without notes. He stood high in his class.

"I received your call, bishop," he said, "and have come"—

"Ah, Mr. Baxter. H'm; be seated."

Reaching toward a table near by, the bishop fumbled among some papers, selected one, took out of his waistcoat pocket a pair of gold rimmed glasses, wiped them with a cambric handkerchief, looked over the paper, thought awhile, then said:

"I have here a letter from a widow who is apparently wealthy, for she has built a church in memory of her husband. She desires me to recommend some young recent graduate for the position of its rector. The salary is surprisingly large for a beginner—two thousand a year."

Baxter was caught in a whirl of expectation.

"There is a curious condition to the appointment," continued the bishop, "which may or may not be considered an encumbrance. At first I was suspicious that there might be something wrong about it all. It doesn't seem to me that any sane woman would suggest such a condition."

"What is this condition?" asked Baxter anxiously.

The bishop lowered his face so that he could see the curate over his glasses and replied:

"That the rector shall marry the owner of the church."

Baxter caught his breath.

"I have made inquiry," the bishop continued, "and have learned that the matter is a bona fide offer."

"How old is the lady?" asked Baxter, unable to control his desire to know the truth.

"She is described as a woman of not much over forty and well preserved. There is nothing very bad, so far as her age and physique are concerned, but—"

"But what?"

"I have been given to understand that she is considered very queer. No one can foretell just what she is going to do."

"Quite likely, considering what she has done in this case," remarked Baxter, looking at a clock on the mantel and thinking of trains.

But the bishop was not thinking of trains. He was thinking how he might put the case in a light that would be of ultimate advantage to a young man whose career promised to be brilliant, but who, he thought, should take advantage of any fortuitous circumstance that might arise. Resting his elbows on the arms of his chair and putting the tips of the fingers of one hand against those of the other, he leaned back and proceeded:

"The proposition is that the candidate shall preach a sermon on next Easter Sunday in the church. He will dine with the owner, thus making her acquaintance. If she is pleased with him and his sermon and if he is pleased with her the arrangement may be perfected. If not the candidate is at liberty to go his way, and the lady will look for another. My advice, Mr. Baxter, is for you to permit me to enter you as the candidate. If no advantage comes to you directly one may come indirectly. If you acquit yourself well it may lead to a call elsewhere."

This seemed reasonable to the curate. He asked if the matter of the condition would be kept secret and was informed that his not mentioning it was one of the requirements. After having spent an hour with the bishop he gave his consent and took the next train for home. Within a week he received a note from the bishop that all had been arranged, and straightway Mr. Baxter began to prepare himself for the coming ordeal.

Easter Sunday falling in a spring month is apt to be pleasant. The Easter that Baxter preached his trial sermon opened bright and beautiful. He arrived at the station at Masonia to meet an auto sent for him by the lady whose church he was to preach in and was conveyed to her house. She was a Mrs. Mason. Her family owned everything in sight of the center of the village, and hence its name.

On Baxter's arrival at the Mason homestead he was ushered into a drawing room, where he waited for some one to receive him. A heavy curtain draped an east window, and Baxter, desirous of letting in the sunlight, went to it and pulled it aside. What was his astonishment to uncover a girl. The blood rushed into her cheeks and she bolted for the door. Then the curate heard her running upstairs.

"Surely," he remarked to himself, "this whole affair is amazing. It's my opinion that in following the bishop's advice I have acted very foolishly. No good can come of it."

In a few minutes more a middle aged or, rather, elderly, woman entered the room. She was dressed in a most absurd fashion. It struck Baxter that she had rigged herself out to make herself look young, and nothing is more grotesque than an old face decked in the trappings of youth.

"I am Mrs. Mason," she said, advancing and graciously extended her hand. "The bishop has spoken very highly of you, not only of your talents, but of your Christian qualities. He assured me that I will not need to look further for a rector."

Baxter bowed. Inwardly he said, "You'll have to look a good deal further for a husband." Outwardly he told the lady that the bishop had doubtless raised false expectations of him. Then the lady told him that whoever was selected as rector for her church would be untrammeled by those cliques that are so intolerable to clergymen. Indeed, she had determined that the edifice should be used for those who need a church, but cannot afford to build one. It should be free to all. As to the rector, he was not to be installed till there was every reason to believe that he was the man for the place, and once installed he could not be driven out, as the lady expressed it, "by a lot of clattering spinsters," for he would be part owner of the property.

When she said this the lady looked down at the floor, causing her listener to believe that she referred to the matrimonial condition attached to the appointment.

While they were chatting the auto was announced, and Baxter and Mrs. Mason were driven to the church. He found an indiscriminate congregation assembling, nearly all being poor persons, judging from their dress and appearance. There was something so little to his taste in the affair that he was not his usual self. He got through the service well enough, but when he came to the sermon there beneath him was the curious looking Mrs. Mason and in the same pew with her the girl he had found secreted behind the curtain. When the latter glanced up at him, which she seldom did, she looked ashamed. The natural consequence of all this was that he bungled his sermon, and, what made the matter worse, he could see plainly that Mrs. Mason was grievously disappointed in him.

After the services Mrs. Mason drove the curate back to her residence, scarcely speaking a word to him on the way. He wondered what would be the independence she had promised of any man holding a pulpit with her for his wife, even though he owned half of the church. He was not sorry that she was dissatisfied with him. He would be relieved of telling her that he would decline the honor of the appointment with the condition attached.

On reaching the house Baxter was left in the drawing room again, while Mrs. Mason went upstairs. He heard voices above in what sounded like animated discussion. One voice he recognized as Mrs. Mason's. The other was also that of a woman, but seemed to belong to a young person. Baxter was too much of a gentleman to listen to what was said and closed the door between him and the disputants.

Baxter wondered if the girl he had surprised and had seen at church would be at dinner. She came to the table late and looked much disturbed. When the curate was introduced she bowed without looking at him, which caused him to think that he was unacceptable to her as well as Mrs. Mason.

"My niece, Eleanor," said the older lady and proceeded to unfold her napkin.

Baxter was uncomfortable throughout the whole dinner. When it was finished Eleanor led the way into the drawing room, and Mrs. Mason went upstairs. Eleanor—she was Miss Eleanor Rutledge—did not seem disposed to open the conversation, so Baxter spoke of the church, the congregation and the praiseworthy object of its foundation, which could be more successfully carried out because she owned the property. At this last assertion Miss Rutledge looked antagonistic.

"Isn't your aunt the owner?" asked the curate.

"No."

"Who is?"

"I am."

Baxter was astonished.

"This matter has gone far enough, Mr. Baxter," she said. "I must explain, whether my aunt likes it or not. She is my guardian till I am twenty-one. She is decidedly queer and does things that I don't approve of, but can't help. This whole scheme of putting the church into the keeping of a rector is hers, not mine."

"But the matrimonial condition that the appointee should marry the owner?"

"Oh, my aunt doesn't believe in love. She intended to select a husband for—the owner of the church who would have the bishop's approval. Just as if she could force me into such a scheme."

There was silence for a few moments. Baxter was looking at her intently; she was equally intent on the floor.

"What were you doing behind the window curtain?" he asked.

Seeing that she was about to bolt for the door, he barred the way.

"You needn't tell me what you were doing there," he said. "I will tell you. You proposed to have a look at the candidate to see what sort of a fellow he was."

The rest of this story is a simple love tale that any one may read anywhere at any time. Baxter is now rector of the church owned by his wife.

Mrs. Mason has not been sent to an insane asylum yet, but people say she should be. She says:

"I'm not such a fool as they think."

OUR MOTHERS

In the Pictoral Review, Dr. O. S. Marden has an article on 'Mothers,' He says in part, speaking of the reverence that ought to be paid, you owe it to your mother:

To lift all the burdens you can from shoulders that have grown stooped in waiting and working for you.

To seek her comfort and pleasure in all things before your own.

Never to intimate by word or deed that your world and hers are different or that you feel in any way superior to her.

To manifest an interest in whatever interests or amuses her.

To defer to her opinions and treat them with respect, even if they seem antiquated to you in all the smart up-to-dateness of your college education.

To talk to her about your work, your studies, your friends, your amusements, the books you read, the places you visit, for everything that concerns you is of interest to her.

To treat her with the unvarying courtesy and deference you accord to those who are above you in rank or position.

To remember that her life is monotonous compared with yours, and to take her to some suitable place of amusement, or for a trip to the country, or to the city if your home is in the country, as frequently as possible.

To bear patiently with all her peculiarities or infirmities of temper or disposition, which may be the result of a life of care and toil.

Not to shock or pain her by making fun of her religion prejudices if they happen to be at variance with yours, or if they seem narrow to your advanced views.

To study her tastes and habits, her likes and dislikes, and cater to them as far as possible in an unobtrusive way.

To remember that she is still a girl at heart so far as delicate little attentions are concerned.

To give her flowers during her lifetime and not to wait to heap them on her casket.

To make her frequent, simple presents, and to be sure that they are appropriate and tasteful.

To write to her and visit her.

To do your best to keep her youthful in appearance, as well as in spirit, by helping her to take pains with her dress and the little accessories and details of her toilet.

If she is no longer able to take her duties, not to let her feel that she is superannuated or has lost any of her importance as the central factor in the family.

Not to forget to show your appreciation of all her years of self-sacrifice.

To be generous in keeping her supplied with money, so that she will not have to ask for it, or feel like a mendicant seeking your bounty.

If the plainer curtains are edged with rick-rack (where the expense of lace is not desirable) they are very easy to stretch and there are not the annoying crinkled edges which result from stretched hems.

IT'S COMING!

EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY

MONEY SAVING EVENT

Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

$175.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $25.00; the second $20.00; the third $15.00, and so on.

Next 10 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 10 Prizes each $2.00
Next 30 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 30 Prizes, each $1.00

As a guide in estimating the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

You can recognise all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

WOMAN WEAK, DIZZY, NERVOUS

Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Jamaica, N. Y.—"I suffered greatly with my head and with backache, was weak, dizzy, nervous, with hot flashes and felt very miserable, as I was irregular for two years. One day when I was feeling unusually bad my sister-in-law came in and said, 'I wish you would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.' So I began taking it and I am now in good health and am cured. I took the Compound three times a day after meals, and on retiring at night. I always keep a bottle in the house."—Mrs. L. N. BUSHMAN, 26 Glebe Ave., Jamaica, N.Y.

HOW THEY MADE SOME GOOD FIRES

The Fire Marshal of Wisconsin has issued a bulletin which he terms a "Comedy of Errors".

He looked for a gas leak with a match, and found it.

He lighted a match to see if his gasoline tank was empty. It was not.

He smoked while filling his auto tank, but will do so no more.

He smoked in the hay mow, but will not do so again.

He smoked in bed, so did the bed clothes.

He threw the matches into the waste paper basket. He is wiser now.

He threw a cigarette stub into some rubbish.

He saves his oily waste and oily rags and they burned his shop.

He washed his hands in gasoline near the stove. The doctor washes them now.

He did not worry about fires as he had "plenty of insurance" and forgot the safety of his wife and children upstairs.

He stuffed up the chimney holes with paper and rags.

She cleaned her gloves with gasoline and saved fifteen cents, but paid the doctor and druggist fifteen dollars.

She poured kerosene into the lamp while the wick was burning.

She dried clothes too near the stove.

She used the wrong oil can.

She used gasoline to exterminate bed bugs. They are all cremated.

She burned sulphur all over the house to fumigate.

She used the woodbox back of the range as a waste paper receptacle.

She gave matches to her children to go out to burn leaves in the yard. The cotton dresses burned easier than the leaves.

She swung the gas bracket too close to the curtains.

She fixed up a fine tissue paper shade for the lamp.

The comedies have turned tragedies—many of the scenes of action are in ashes and too many of the actors are maimed or asleep; others will follow, no doubt, as they are prone to ignore the advice and experience of others, instead of profiting by the errors and sufferings.

ECLIPSE OF SATURN.

It Can Be Seen On the Morning of August 25th.

The moon will pass between earth and the planet Saturn, blotting out from view entirely the latter, at exactly three minutes past 3, mean time, during the morning of August 25th. This is really an eclipse, resembling an eclipse of the sun to a great extent. At five minutes past 4, Saturn will serenely emerge again, having been hidden from view for little over an hour.

French Troops Have Recaptured The Village Of Fleury

Desperate Fighting Preceded By Terrific Bombardment

FRENCH RECAPTURE THE VILLAGE OF FLEURY AFTER DESPERATE FIGHTING

Germans Still Retain a Few Ruins Outside and East of the Village Near the Chapitre Forest---French Troops also Advanced West of the Town Between Thiaumont and Fleury Taking Fifty Prisoners---Enemy Attacks Repulsed on the Somme Front---Russians Threaten An Invasion of Hungary.

TURKISH TROOPS REPULSED

PARIS, August 18.—(French Official)—By a powerful attack on the northeast front of Verdun last night the French completely recaptured the village of Fleury, driving the Germans from that part of the village which they still held, it was officially announced to-day. The Germans still retain a few ruins outside and east of the village near the Chapitre Forest. The French also advanced west of the town between Thiaumont and Fleury, taking fifty prisoners.

The French blow was struck on the 178th day of the great battle for the fortress city. It was preceded by a terrific bombardment and a heavy curtain fire that prevented the Germans from bringing up reserves. Clinging desperately to the northeastern houses of the town the Germans vainly attempted to stem the French advance with machine guns. Violent combats occurred in the streets of the ruined village before the Germans withdrew. On the Somme front the Germans last night made their first attempt to recapture positions taken by the French in Wednesday's advance around Maurepas. Ot the same time the Germans were delivering heavy attacks against the British around Poziers. Fighting broke out along the French front southeast of Maurepas, where violent artillery fighting continued throughout yesterday. The French not only repulsed the German attacks, but took some prisoners.

The Russians Threaten An Early Invasion of Hungary

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, August 18.—Threatening an early invasion of Hungary the Russians have pushed forward in the Jablonitza Pass region and are approaching the summit of the mountains in the region of Koromezo, Hungary, it was officially announced to-day.

The capture of the villages of Lysiec and Stary southwest of Stanislau and west of the Zlota-Bistritza River, and of a series of heights in the direction of Arsaluza, was also announced.

Koromezo lies at the southern end of the Jablonitza Pass, and is one of the most important gateways leading into the plains of Hungary. The War Office, however, admitted that the enemy resumed the offensive west of Podhojce, thirty miles northest of Stanislau, but was repulsed suffering heavy losses. In the Caucasus a Turkish force that attacked Russian positions west of Lake Van was easily repulsed

British Troops Extended Gains Made Yesterday

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 18. — British troops last night extended the gains they made yesterday northwest of Bassentin-Le-Petit, entering German trench portions in small local enterprises, General Haig reported this afternoon. These trenches were found to be greatly damaged and full of enemy dead.

Other hostile attacks from the region of Martinpuich during the night were repulsed as completely as were the attempts in the Somme region yesterday.

PARLIAMENT TO LIVE TILL MAY 1

LONDON, Aug. 18. — In the House of Commons the Government accepted an amendment whereby the life of the present Parliament will be prolonged until the end of April, instead of the end of May, as in the original bill. The bill thus amended passed its third reading.

Premier Asquith announced that Parliament would adjourn Tuesday or Wednesday until October 10.

PUBLIC MEN LINKED WITH NICKEL TRUST

Hartley Dewart, Liberal Candidate in Southwest Toronto Prefers Serious Charge Against Cochrane, Hearst and Ferguson.

FERGUSON'S REPLY

TORONTO, Aug. 18. — The direct charges of Hartley Dewart, K.C., the Liberal candidate against the legislation in the by-election in Southwest Toronto to the effect that Hon. Frank Cochrane of the Dominion government, and members of the Ontario Cabinet indirectly, were connected with the nickel trust which sends nickel to Germany, have brought about an intense political situation here. Hon. G. H. Ferguson, of the Ontario Cabinet, this morning said if Dewart had placed himself in a position to be arrested for criminal libel he wouldn't be at large to be a candidate next Monday, which is election day.

Early Move Is Contemplated

Work of Recruiting the New Battalion Will Commence at an Early Date—To be Known as the 247th Battalion.

Potato Famine.

The Kingston Whig says: — The vegetable and potato question for the soldiers is still arousing considerable interest. In explaining why Lieut. Biggar bought up all the potatoes offered on Saturday, it is said that the Harris Abattoir Co., contractors for supplies for the camp, have been unable to secure the desired number. In default of contract the military authorities have power to buy the amount needed and issue them to the soldiers, the difference in price being charged to the contractor. This was done Saturday when potatoes could not be secured. Since then carloads have been coming in from London, Ont., and they are certainly of fine quality.

The vegetables still present a problem. The small patches cultivated by the gardners of this district could not supply very long the needs of 8,000 hard working soldiers. The contractors persist that the vegetables can be bought locally, but their representative, in spite of strenuous efforts, does not seem to be able to provide a sufficient supply.

It is thought the same conditions will prevail on Saturday next with vegetables and possibly Lieut. Steacy will be detailed to go to the market and buy everything in sight if the price is reasonable.

STORES WILL CLOSE ON DOLLAR DAY AT SIX O'CLOCK

This Arrangement is Mutual Among The Merchants of the City—Thursday Next Will be at the Disposal of the Clerks Instead of One Half Day.

$ DAY ANNOUNCEMENT

By mutual consent among the merchants, it has been arranged that the stores will only remain open on Wednesday, Dollar Day, until 6 o'clock A further arrangement has also been made that Thursday next, instead of being a half holiday, an entire day will be at the disposal of the clerks, and the stores will remain closed all day.

A FULL HOLIDAY.

In consideration in giving the full day's holiday on this Thursday, the last weekly half holiday on the following week, will be cancelled.

It is felt that this arrangement will be much more satisfactory to the employees of the stores, who will thus have a whole day to devote to whatever purpose they wish, and Labor Day following so quickly makes it more hardship to forfeit the final half holiday for the last week in August.

LOST CONTROL OF AUTOMOBILE

Car Driven by Miss Annie Thompson Turned Turtle Near Norwood.

NORWOOD, Aug. 18.—An automobile accident, which might have been attended with serious consequences, occurred at Peters' bridge, Alma street, when Miss Annie Thompson had the misfortune in some way to lose control of the car, and it turned over the side of the bridge into the creek below. Some parties nearby, who witnessed the accident, rushed to the scene and wading into the water rescued the young woman from her perilous position. Except for the shock and a bad cut or so, it was found that she had not suffered any apparent injury of a severe nature. She was at once taken to Dr. Sutton's office, where she received medical attention. Her escape from such a precarious situation was indeed a miraculous one. Miss Thompson had been driving the car for the past couple of years and handled it well. That she was seized with a dizzy spell probably accounts for the accident. The car came through the episode little damaged ,only the wind shield being broken and fender bent. Since the accident Miss Thompson is resting nicely and her recovery has been more rapid than could almost be expected, considering the nature of the accident.

CITIZENS ENDORSE REGISTRATION PLAN

After Detailed Explanation of its Proposed Operation by Major Campbell Last Night---Ask That North Hastings Be Added to Peterboro's Recruiting Area.

MEETING WAS ENTHUSIASTIC

Endorsed the Government's proposed plan of registration.

Requested that North Hastings be added to Peterborough for the recruiting area of new battalion with local headquarters.

Endorsed Ontario Organization of Resources committee.

Such in brief, were the fruits of last night's public meeting in the Council chamber, addressed by Major Campbell, chief recruiting officer of the 3rd Military Division. The scheme of registration of Canadians between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, announced yesterday through an order-in-Council passed at Ottawa, was welcomed by quite a large gathering of prominent citizens as an expeditious, economical and long overdue method of recruiting the remainder of Canada's promised half-million men. Furthermore, the hope was expressed that the Government would clearly and definitely support the new scheme with the authority essential to its successful operation.

Mayor Duffus was appointed chairman of the meeting, with Mr. W. H. Morris secretary. Among those present were G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., R. J. Soden, Col. Miller, R. R. Hall, J. A. Aylmer, P. A. Ferguson, F. R. Yokome, J. A. MacGregor, W. J. Henry, Frank Mason, A. E. Coulthard, W. F. Johnston, W. H. Dunsford, Walter Stocker, Robert Harstone, C. A. G. Spence, J. J. Cunningham, John Cameron, Peter Campbell, C. H. Pennefather, Joseph Wearing, Benj. McGill, R. B. Rogers and Aldermen Stratton, Evans, Edgar, McIntyre, Duncan, Saunders, Dobbin, Weir, Langford, Capt. H. J. Lattimer, chaplain of the 15th Artillery Brigade, Pettawawa.

Major Campbell.

Mayor Duffus introduced Major Campbell, who was accorded a hearty reception. The latter pointed out that the necessity of a form of registration had evidently been strongly impressed upon Col. Cecil G. Williams at the recruiting convention he had called about the middle of July. From the opinions expressed at that conference the decision had developed that some form of registration was necessary. Major Campbell was convinced that the resolution passed at the meeting was largely responsible for the order-in-Council.

The Scheme Outlined.

That resolution has recommended first an adequate organization in each district with the business men co-operating with the military authorities; second, the registration of all the men in the Dominion of military age; that the non-eligible men received buttons with registered numbers showing the cause of their exemption from military service; that the eligible men be systematically canvassed with a view to enlistment; third that the military districts be divided into sections with an officer in charge of each sub-division who carry complete responsibility for all the recruiting in that section, and that he have the assistance of a recruiting staff. Another recommendation concerned the women whose assistance would be sought in every way possible and that their services be recognized by the presentation of a government button.

Further Explanation.

Major Campbell stated that when a man goes so far as to sign his name to attestation papers and submits himself to medical examination he is thereby entitled to some little recognition if it is nothing more than a ten cent button issued by the government. It had been suggested that a record be kept of all those who offer

Hammond has extended to Rev. Mr. Irwin the congratulations of the Provincial Council upon his appointment, and trusts that success may crown his efforts in his work on behalf of boy life in Norwood.

SAID 93RD WAS BEST BATT. AT BARRIEFIELD

Capt. H. J. Lattimer, Chaplain of the 15th Artillery Brigade, Pettawawa stated at last night's public meeting in the Council Chamber that the 93rd Battalion was the best bunch of men that went from Barriefield this summer. In a short address he made a plea for closer and friendlier relations between townspeople and soldiers in their midst. Often the man in khaki forms the idea that he is but a drop in the military bucket, his identity lost, and themselves forgotten. This was a discouraging feature to the men. Besides there should be an effort made to maintain correspondence through the press between the men in camp and the home town. In both these aspects the conditions in Peterborough were quite favourable, Capt. Lattimer observed. He urged that reading matter should be forwarded to the men and that constant supplies be sent along.

REGISTRATION AND RECRUITING.

The recruiting meeting held in the Council chambr last night was an evidence of the democratic ideal, "government by the people." Canada has done splendidly in providing soldiers to help the empire; but the government deserves the minimum credit. The chief glory goes to the spirit of the people who, except for the merely mechanical assistance of the government, have done the scoring off their own bat. In the first place the spirit of the men who entered the ranks is responsible largely for the result, but it is a question whether or not the patriotic civilians who stay at home, have not done as well as the soldiers. We have seen in Peterborough how much of the result achieved in recruiting was to be credited to the civilian organization, the Speakers' Patriotic League and the other civilians that cooperated with it. There has been lack of government interest and lack of official cooperation. The spirit of the meeting last night was admirable and the necessity of placing recruiting upon a systematic basis, was recognized and emphasized. But it is also apparent that the registration proposal lacks steam, in that it has not definite and asserted government sanction behind it. The present proposal is merely a reawakeneed of means that has heretofore unofficially employed. The first step to placing recruiting upon a systematic basis is obviously registration, which furnishes a definite basis of operation. Registration is simply a catalogue of materials available—a stock-taking to see who are eligible and who, nominally eligible, are actually not eligible. To effect such registration, to make it effective and capable of being complete and reliable, we must have authority behind it. The point is that the people are willing and ready to do their share in bringing recruiting to a system, but the government which is responsible and commissioned for the work must give the authorization. Without system in recruiting we are working at loose ends, more or less groping in the dark. So far recruiting in Canada has been very largely automatic, it has operated itself, plus the help of the patriotic spirit of our recruits and the cooperation of the civilians who have stood in loco parentis—in place of the government, by doing much of the work which the government should have done and must hereafter do if recruiting is to go on effectively. The proposal of registration as a step towards placing recruiting upon a systematic—a really military—basis, requires a more explicit declaration of authority than is contained in the order-in-council, which it seems does no more than provide for a canvass of districts, something that has been possible at all times.

KEEP HOME FURNACES BURNING...

We cannot excuse our neglect of duty by recounting the short-comings of others. There is a disposition in partisan journals to minimize the neglect of the present Dominion and Provincial governments in the matter of nickel, by asserting that previous administrations have neglected to provide for the exploitation at home of our home resources. The latter may be true, but the past is past and the mighty present confronts us with its momentuous duties. The Mail and Empire, for instance, valouorously excuses the inaction of the government. It details the processes by which Canada nickel matte is doled out to the International Nickel Company, and asserts that arrangements have been made by which it is assured that no Canadian nickel refined in New Jersey reaches the enemy. It requires a great stretch of credulity to believe this. The first purchaser of Canadian nickel may seem all right, but what guarantee have we, or could we have that he will not act as a middleman and turn it over to the agents of the enemy, who conceal the identity of such relations so skilfully that they would deceive the very elect. But even if the alleged arrangement works, and no Canadian nickel reaches the enemy, that is not the chief point—the chief point is, that a Canadian product is shipped out of the country for refinement and this province loses the immense profits that would come in the employment of labour and the associated industrial and commercial activities. We lose millions every year and all the benefit we get for our monopoly of nickel ores, is a trifling taxation.

It is hinted that there are difficulties in the way of bringing about refinement in Canada. Of course there are difficulties, but they can be overcome. There was a "corner" in zinc, a short time ago, and it was difficult to procure it in Canada when we needed it. But by a little energetic action by Sir Sam Hughes, who deserves great credit for his action, we have zinc refined in Canada. Then why not nickel? The Mail and Empire says that up to 1905 and 1911 Liberal Governments neglected the matter. But in the five and eleven years respectively, since the present governments came into power, surely something might have been done; and the action that is now forced on the governments, might, if taken earlier, have resulted in Canada refining all her nickel ores to-day at home, and creating an industry that would add millions to our financial resources, that now go to a foreign country.

We can overlook a good deal of neglect of home interests, and a great deal of injury to Imperial interests, if the present semblance of action of the government results in doing something; if it leads, to the most important way to implement the policy of "Canada for Canadians". This is, however, no time for laboured excuses and profitless pondering. That is the time to do something that should have been done long ago.

He Threatens Bourassa

In concluding a long letter to Henri Bourassa from the front, his nephew, Capt. Papineau, writes as follows:

Perhaps, my cousin, I have been overlong and tedious with my reasons, but I shall be shorter with my warning, and in closing I wish to say this to you:

Those of us in this great army who may be so fortunate as to return to our Canada will have faced the grimmest and sincerest issues of life and death —we will have experienced the unhappy strength of brute force—we will have seen our loved comrades die in blood and suffering. Beware lest we return with revengeful feelings, for I say to you that for those who while we fought and suffered here, remained in safety and comofrt in Canada and failed to give us encouragement and support, as well as for those who grew fat with the wealth dishonourably gained by political graft and by dishonest business methods at our expense, we shall demand a heavy day of reckoning. We shall inflict upon them the punishment they deserve, not by physical violence, for we shall had enough of that, nor by unconstitutional or illegal means, for we are fighting to protect, not to destroy justice and freedom—but by the invincible power of our moral influence.

Can you ask them for sympathy or concession? Will any listen when you speak of pride and patriotism? I think not.

Remember, too, that if Canada has become a nation respected and self-respecting, she owes it to her citizens who have fought and died in this distant land and not to those self-styled Nationalists who have remained at home.

Can I hope that anything I have said here may influence you to consider the situation in a different light and that it is not yet too late for me to be made proud of our relationship?

At this moment, as I write, French and English Canadians are fighting and dying side by side. Is this sacrifice to go for nothing, or will it not cement a foundation for a true Canadian nation, a Canadian nation independent in thought, independent in action, independent even in its political organization — but in spirit united for high international and humane purposes to the two Motherlands of England and France?

I think that is an ideal in which we shall all equally share. Can we not all pay an equal part in its realization?

Your affectionate friend,
TALBOT M. PAPINEAU.

RECRUITED 3,624 MEN.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—In the fortnight ended Aug. 15th, 3,624 men were recruited for overseas service. Of this number the divisional enlistments were as follows: London, 202; Kingston and Ottawa, 694; Montreal, 448; Quebec, 41; Maritime Provinces, 183; Manitoba and Saskatchewan, 541; Toronto, 577; Alberta, 227; British Columbia, 503.

The aggregate enlistment is 358,705.

For the first time since the outbreak of war the Toronto division loses its pre-eminence. The Ottawa-Kingston division takes first place, and British Columbia second. Toronto comes third.

Recruiting is now proceeding at the rate of about 250 men a day, or seven battalions a month.

Pushing screws in common soap before using will cause them to enter the wood more easily.

IS GOVERNMENT RESPONSIBLE FOR SHORTAGE IN MUNITIONS OUTPUT?

Apropos of the complaint of Mr. J. W. Flavelle, chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board, that Canadian manufacturers are seriously behind in the delivery of shells, the Ontario "Provincial Organization of Resources Committee" has issued a statement explaining that "the shortage in production has been largely due to the fact that there has been a very inadequate supply of labour sufficiently skilled to make deliveries effective.

That there is in Canada to-day a very considerable shortage of labour does not require argument. It is evident on all sides, and in all trades. How could it be otherwise when 350,000 of the most active and able-bodied men have been drawn from their ordinary occupations to fill the ranks of Canada's army? That the shortage is due to this withdrawal of workers is confirmed by the fact that it is most keenly felt in those provinces, particularly Ontario, where the enlistment has been the largest.

So far as the shortage in munition factories is concerned, it ought to receive the most energetic and systematic attention from the governments, both of the Dominion and the provinces. The Ontario committee seems to be doing something in this direction, but what is needed is an aggressive movement by the Dominion government on the lines of those adopted in England under the regime of Lloyd George.

Instead of thoroughly organizing the factories and the workers who remain in Canada, the Dominion government seems to have been content to let the manufacturers work out their own salvation. Having asserted that the Flavelle Munitions Board is an Imperial and not a Canadian body, the Dominion cabinet apparently has deliberately washed its hands of the matter.

In this connection, the serious charge is made by T. A. Stevenson, secretary of the Toronto Trades and Labour Council, that the Dominion government has done nothing toward removing the conditions which for several months have resulted in a strike of 2,000 munitions workers in Hamilton. Mr. Stevenson is quoted by a Toronto paper as saying:

"I blame the government because they are permitting 2,000 munition workers to walk the streets of Hamilton unemployed. Four months ago the government's Royal Commission into the manufacture and labour problem made an award as to hours and wages. The Toronto factories adopted it. Several Hamilton ones declined. As a result some 2,000 men went on strike two and a half months ago. They continue on strike to-day.

"It is for this reason that I consider the government is to blame. With the need for workers so great they should not allow these men to remain idle. They ought either to force the munition manufacturers to live up to the award of the Royal Commission or take away their contracts."

Of the facts are as stated by Mr. Stevenson, the Dominion government has undoubtedly been very remiss in its duty. In an ordinary case, the hands of the Dominion Labour Department may be tied after one of its conciliation boards has made its award on a labour dispute. But this is not an ordinary case. The Dominion government ought to be very much concerned in seeing that the Hamilton munitions workers are kept busy in the making of shells.

If the Hamilton factory owners will not abide by the award of the Dominion commission, then the government ought to take some steps for the taking over of those factories or for the establishment of others.

If the Hamilton factory owners will not abide by the award of the Dominion commission, then the government ought to take some steps for the taking over of those factories or for the establishment of others.

It seems to be just another sample of the dilatory way in which a majority of the members of the Dominion cabinet have handled matters pertaining to the conduct of the war. One frequently gets the impression that some ministers agree with Henri Bourassa that this war is "a distant venture of no direct concern to their native land."— themselves for the coutry's service and that this record be published by the government.

The first announcement, continued Major Campbell, stated that this registration scheme would have the authority of Ottawa behind it. The officer in charge of each district might be the officer commanding the battalion authorized for that section. The whole matter of recruiting would be in his hands. He would gather around him competent assistants and take steps to perfect his organization. Every eligible man would then be recorded in a card index system which the provincial government had promised to provide. This co-ordinating all the recruiting in a section would obviate the competition that has existed among the different branches of the service.

Women's Assistance.

A warm appreciation of assistance moral and material, that Canada's womanhood, for the most part, had rendered, was voiced by Major Campbell, who stated that God alone knew what they had silently endured. It should be shown that their aid was appreciated, and it should be duly recognized.

Must Win the War.

In conclusion, Major Campbell mentioned the splendid record Peterborough had made in recruiting. At the present time, the chief obstacle to the work was the country's splendid prosperity for which thanks should be rendered to God. It reflected Lloyd George's recent statement that the Empire was so prosperous that its income was almost sufficient to meet the entire cost of the war. The people were all resolved that this war must be won though it takes ten years. "But we'll win out," asserted the speaker amid applause, "we'll never let the old flag fall."

We are in the midst of what appears to be the very crucial point of the war, the real crisis has been reached. We want to win without conscription if we can do so, Major Campbell said he was confident that in the last analysis the people would solemnly decide to let business go, the war must be won. He felt that the business of the country could be maintained and the promised quota of men raised by the co-operation of the people. He pointed out that while many men have gone from Ontario, it was a fact that the population showed an increase over the year immediately preceding the war.

Registration was desired throughout the entire Dominion if possible.

Resolution Endorsed.

The first resolution passed by the assembly embodied an endorsation of the recommendations presented at the convention in Kingston a month ago. This was moved by Mr. G. A. Gillespie and seconded by Mr. J. A. Aylmer, both of whom regarded the embodied proposals as timely and of promising effectiveness. Mr. Aylmer added that the Government be impressed with the necessity of giving the registration scheme its entire sanction that it might be made as officially strong as possible.

Government Endorsed.

Mr. R. J. Soden moved a resolution conveying to the authorities at Ottawa the gratification of the assembly that they had at last decided to secure the very necessary registration of all men eligible for service in the war; that the scheme was particularly gratifying to Peterborough for the reason that it had been urged upon Col. Williams when he met city and county representatives here some time ago; and that the Government leave no uncertainty of its authority behind the registration scheme.

Mr. Joseph Wearing seconded this motion remarking that it should be borne in mind that in the Old Country absolute compulsion is employed. He believed that the people of Ontario desire a system as near compulsion as the times will permit.

Recruiting Area.

Mr. Aylmer broched the idea of asking for the addition of Hastings county for the new local battalion.

Major Campbell said that if North Hastings were asked for there might be some chance of obtaining it, but that Belleville in south Hastings was inseparable from Prince Edward.

Mr. Soden remarked that the more territory Peterborough could get, the better. A larger recruiting field would be in the interests of speedy and economical recruiting.

He moved, seconded by Mr. Walter Stocker that the government be requested to include North Hastings in the area in which the new Peterborough battalion may recruit.

Endorse Committee.

It was moved by G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., seconded by R. J. Soden, that this committee, in accordance with Mr. Aylmer broached the idea of askion of Resources committee of the Province of Ontario, hereby resolves to so broaden its work as to co-operate with the Provincial committee in the following undertakings:

1. To assist in enlisting more men.
2. To aid in keeping production in agricultural, necessary manufacturing and other essential industries as high as possible.
3. To encourage thrift and economy to enable us to finance further war expenditure and to meet the heavy obligations which the war will place upon our people.
4. To aid in absorbing the soldiers wounded and disabled soldiers, the wish and request of the organiza-
5. To aid in placing and absorbing the large number of immigrants who may come to Ontario after the war.
6. In short, to assist in securing the organization of the resources of Ontario in the prosecution of the war, and to educate and pave the way for new social, industrial and economic conditions, a high ideal of citizenship and a quickening of national efficency.

King Now Retracts Murder Confession

MRS. HUMISTON WILL ASK GOVERNOR TO SUPPLANT KNICKERBOCKER ON THE GROUND OF PREJUDICE.

ALBION, N.Y., Aug. 18.—Irving King recanted the confession to-day, in which he declared that he killed Charles B. Phelps and Margaret Wolcott in West Shelby, a crime for which Charles F. Stielow has been awaiting execution in Sing Sing, and Nelson Green. Stielow's nephew, is serving a term of twenty years to life imprisonment in Auburn.

According to witnesses summoned by District Attorney Knickerbocker to hear King's new statement, the peddler said $3,000 was promised to him if he would say he had committed the crime. He was assured he asserted, that Governor Whitman had given a written promise to reprieve him within a year if he would assume the guilt.

Mrs. Grace Humiston, the New York lawyer who led the fight to save Stielow from execution because of her belief that he was innocent, arrived here shortly after it was announced that King had recanted. She and David A. White, Stielow's attorney of record, were not allowed to see King. They had only a brief telephone interview with District Attorney Knickerbocker.

Mrs. Humiston denied King's assertion that money and immunity were promised to him if he would confess the crime.

"My interest in the matter has been entirely humanitarian," she declared, "and King confessed voluntarily, not to me, but to Surrogate Larkin of Cattaraugus County, who questioned him in the jail."

"They took King out of a neutral county and brought him here for Detective George Newton to handle." Attorney White asserted. "I understand that King says in this alleged retraction that $3,000 was offered to him to confess the West Shelby murders. That I am sure is false."

Newton is the private detective of Buffalo, and whose alleged use of the 'third degree' has been attacked by the condemned man's defenders.

Mrs. Humiston and White announced to-night that they would appeal to the Attorney-General to appoint Surrogate George Larkin of Cattaraugus as special prosecutor to handle for Orleans the cases against Charles F. Stielow and Erwin King.

"District Attorney Knickerbocker allowed the same influences to overcome King in seeking a retraction which he permitted to wring a false confession from Stielow." Mrs. Humiston said. "He is determined to convict Stielow again. He is too prejudiced now to handle the two cases with justice for Orleans County and the two men."

Mrs. Humiston was indignant because King was arraigned without her knowledge before Justice of the Peace Tucker this afternoon. He was discharged when District Attorney Knickerbocker withdrew the warrant. He was immediately held in $600 bail by County Judge Downs as a material witness for the hearing on Stielow's application for a new trial which will begin in Rochester on August 23.

Two newspapermen saw King this afternoon. They asked him which was the true story—the Little Valley confession, implicating himself and O'Connell in the Phelps murders, or the recantation.

"That Little Valley story was a lie," King said. "I wish I had never seen that gang at Little Valley. I would be all right now."

King's original confession was made in the Little Valley jail a few days ago, after Mrs. Humiston had had him arrested on another charge. He told of getting drunk, meeting Clarence O'Connell, now an Auburn convict, and driving with O'Connell in a buggy to the Phelps farm. He said he hit Phelps over the head with a broom stick, and that O'Connell shot Miss Wolcott, Phelp's housekeeper, as she ran from the house and then shot Phelps.

Before a committee of Orleans County citizens early this morning King said he made the confession for the sake of the alleged profit involved, and that he knew it could readily be proved false so that it could place him in no danger. He added that on March 21, 1915, when the double killing occurred, he stayed at the Hotel of Frank Montondo at Knowlesville, seven miles west of Albion. He said Frank Stevens, now a neighbour of the District Attorney, and Harry Horn of Knowlesville saw him there that night, and the following morning.

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S.

"I was a great sufferer on occasions and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Hass, Lunenburg, N. S. "Five years ago three cakes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is as soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

THE TEST OF BATTLE.

We are not good at shouting in the street,
At waving flags or tossing caps in air;
We take our triumphs as we take defeat
With scarce a hint of having turned a hair;
And so our pride to-day
Declines to boom itself the German way.

Yet we are proud because at last, at last
We look upon the dawn of our desire;
Because the weary waiting time is passed
And we have tried our temper in the fire;
And, proving word by deed,
Have kept the faith we pledged in France at need.

But most because, from mine and desk and mart,
Springing to face a task undreamed before,
Our men, inspired to play the 'prentice part
Like soldiers lessoned in the school of war,
True to their breed and name
Went flawless through the fierce baptismal flame.

And he who brought these armies into life,
And on them set the impress of his will—
Could he be moved by sound of mortal strife
There where he lies, their Captain, cold and still Under the shrouding tide.
How would this great heart stir and glow with pride!

—Sir Owen Seaman, in Punch.

Dredging At Curtis' Point

Will Deepen the Passage for Steamers—Sand Rolls in From the Lakes

Dredging operations were under way on Rice Lake last week and the big Auburn calm dredge spent a few days ridding Curtis' Point of its surplus sand. There is usually some six feet of water opposite this point, which is one of the calling points for steamers plying up and down the lake. The strong winds of the past few weeks caused a large amount of sand to roll up from the lake bottom and pile itself up against the point, leaving less than a foot of water in some points where there is usually five or six.

Monday's storm, however, was too much for the big dredge and not being able to hold her position at the point she was towed across the lake to Harwood by the tug "McColl" until the storm ceased.

BIG SLAUGHTER IN ALGEBRA

Hon. Mr. Ferguson Promises to look into Circumstances Surrounding Stiff Algebra Paper at Examinaton

"Why," asks the Belleville Ontario, "can't the examinations in our high schools be conducted in the same broad-minded, common-sense manner as in our universities? There are rarely over ten per cent. of failures at the university examinations.

"The high schools and collegiates of Ontario are manned by a fine, intelligent, conscientious, thoroughly trained and equipped group of mathematical masters.

"The curriculum prescribes a certain specified course, of reasonable length, to be covered in the algebra in the school year. A large amount of the school time is taken up in the proper presentation of this subject by the teacher. We believe the work is thoroughly done. And then along comes the examination, and seventy-five per cent. of the students fail!

We say it without fear of successful contradiction that any system of teaching and examination that results in seventy-five per cent. of failures is damnable.

Point of Attack.

Algebra was selected by the executioners as the pivotal point of attack. Mathematics is an exact science. An answer is either right or wrong, and that is all there is about it. There are no gradations of rightness or wrongness such as soft-hearted examiners can gloss over in grammar, history, or composition. In algebra it is impossible to mark the victim "up" and enable him to pass when he has done well in other subjects. It was intended to leave no room for the exercise of the quality of mercy.

"A specialist with the axe was asked to prepare the algebra paper. When his genius reached its full fruition he produced a masterpiece that deserves to cause his name to rank with Archimedes and Sir Isaac Newton. The paper may have been slightly deficient in latitude and depth, but these shortcomings were abundantly atoned for by its longitude. The masterpiece of the axe-man consisted of nineteen parts. There was abundant material there to keep the most industrious working for hours after the time-table said they should quit.

The Remnant.

"To make a long story short, only a battered and enfeebled remnant of one-quarter of the original strength of the draft survived the attack. They were outclassed only by the Princess Pats after the battle of St. Julien.

"Why can't the departmental officials be honest and fair about this thing?

"We deny that there are too many teachers being turned out, but suppose we had five times more public school teachers than we had positions for, is this the right way to reduce the number or to 'raise the standard'?"

Minister to Investigate.

Owing to the absence in England of Dr. R. A. Pyne, Minister of Education, Dr. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister, being out of the city, Hon. Mr. G. Howard Ferguson, acting Minister of Education, was asked to explain the slaughter.

"Good heavens, man, don't argue with me. I cannot jump at that with 15 people waiting to see me in my office," answered Mr. Ferguson. He also said that he was not to be expected to be thoroughly conversant with a matter which was not a matter of policy. "You see I am also acting only temporarily for Dr. Pyne," he added, "but with the affair properly before me I will go into it thoroughly at the earliest possible moment."

It may be noted that the deepest secrecy prevails as to the "executioner" referred to in the above article, for the names of the examiners were not set at the top of the examination papers, as was the case with each of the matriculation papers.

AMBROSIA.

Four oranges, one small cocoanut, four bananas, sugar. Peel and slice thinly the oranges and bananas; grate the cocoanut. In the bottom of a pretty glass bowl sprinkle a lining of grated cocoanut, a layer of sliced orange, then a layer of sugar. Repeat until the dish is filled. Chill before serving.

Mayor's Segregation Plan Sensation in All Police Circles

But Every Official Refuses to Discuss the Proposal—Police Activity Against "Red Light" Greater Than Ever Before While Difficulties of Their Work Increase Daily—Ald. Blumenthal Predicts Startling Investigation into Vice Conditions.

MONTREAL, Aug. 17. — The statement by Mayor Martin that he was in favour of the segregation of Montreal's vice district, with a consequent official recognition and oversight of the segregated area, has caused something akin to a sensation in local police circles. It was the sole topic of conversation along the corridors and in the rooms of the court house, but the heads of the various departments from Chief Campeau down, absolutely refused to discuss the matter for publication.

"Did you see the Mayor's statement?" Chief Campeau was asked He nodded.

"Can you say whether you agree with him or not?"

The Chief shook his head.

"Will you express an opinion as to the best methods of handling the vice situation in Montreal, whether by segregation or otherwise?"

Once more the Chief shook his head.

"You mean that you are willing to allow the Mayor to keep on talking while you will continue to do your work as you see fit?"

The Chief nodded his warm approval.

The interview was over.

It was the same with Sub-Chief Grandchamps. He absolutely refused to discuss the situation, stating that it was simply a matter for the police to keep on doing their duty as called for by the statutes, while those who made the laws could keep on talking all they pleased.

Inspector O'Keefe, leader of the morality squad and the man who has perhaps, during the past twenty years come in contact with the actual situation more than any other man in the city, was equally reticent. He stated he simply obeyed orders and that he had no personal opinions for publication.

Startling Figures.

Investigation into the records of the Recorder's Court where the inmates of disorderly houses appear after arrest, disclosed some strange and curious facts. The situation in Montreal during the past two years, or since the beginning of the war, has changed a good deal. Since the beginning of 1916 340 women have been arrested and condemned for street-walking. This figure is above the average for past years and shows that the police are at least active in this branch of the vice epidemic.

It was also disclosed that more arrests are being made at the present time in connection with disorderly houses than probably ever before—but that the numbers of those who appear as inmates of these houses are less. The reason is that since the war broke out, during which time the police have been more than usually active along these lines, many of the inmates of these houses have branched out for themselves and now instead of the police finding from six to twelve girls in one house it is often the case that they discover only two and three. This means that while there are probably less people engaged in the terrible trade, yet there are probably more houses and that the work of the police is made harder by the fact that after a series of prosecutions in a certain district the others who are left move to some other and often new district, where the work of the police must be begun all over again.

Ald. Blumenthal's Views.

Alderman Blumenthal, the representative in the Council for St. Louis ward, where so many of these houses are located, stated that the time was not so far away when a tremendous investigation into the whole affair would be under way. He stated that he knew, although he admitted that the proof was difficult, that in Montreal there was a vice organization, headed by a man who is usually to be found in the mornings in the corridors of the police or recorder's courts. The alderman deplored the increase among his own race and especially among the young men of those who are making a living out of the vice traffic. Over 300 families, he declared, had moved out of St. Louis ward during the past two or three years for the simple reason that they refused to bring up their children under the conditions prevailing there. The alderman stated that at the present time there was nothing to do but endorse the Mayor's views as to a segregated district for the city. It is the only practical way to grapple with the question at this time, in his opinion, and after such a district is inaugurated then and only then can measures be enacted for the gradual suppression of the traffic.

Vagrant Brothers Appear In Court

This Morning's Police Court Was Light—Remanded For Sentence

Two short, dwarfish-looking individuals occupied the dock at the police court this morning and answered to the names of John and David McDonnell of Toronto. They pleaded not guilty to the charge of vagrancy, and of having no visible means of support. The pair were picked up yesterday by the police, and were evidently begging their way around, judging by their actions. They were remanded for one week for sentence.

It's The Barbers' "Next"

Clear the decks for the Barbers' first annual excursion to Harwood and return, on next Thursday half-holiday, August 24th, per steamer Geneva. Tickets have been limited to 175. If you're wise you'll secure your pasteboards in advance. As this is a union affair the friends of the tonsorial artists are expected to be accompanied by their "better halves" and children. Mr. Riley, the modest secretary of the Barbers' Union, promises a first-class musical orchestra for those who don't dance. Be there on time, or you'll have to wait for the "next." As there will be no Koken chairs on board, get shaved before you go.

NO POISON IS FOUND AT ALL

Death of Vancouver Mining Engineer is Very Mysterious.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—A new element was present in the mystery surrounding the death at a Michigan avenue hotel last Wednesday of Morse Davis, a mining engineer of Vancouver, B. C. It was the announcement made that Dr. William D. McNally, coroner's chemist, in a chemical analysis of the contents of the stomach of Mrs. Davis, who was found unconscious at the time of her husband's death, had discovered no poison of the kind believed to have killed Davis.

The chemist said he would make more tests for other poisons and that he would analyse several bottles of medicine found in Davis apartments.

Mrs. Davis, after she regained consciousness was quoted as saying a chemical which her husband used in his professional work must have gotten mixed with salts which she and her husband took for illness. Mrs. Davis is still ill.

RUSSIANS WEAR JAP EQUIPMENT

Trousers, Tunics, Leggings, Small and Large Arms Supplied.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The extent to which Japan is clothing, shoeing, arming and munitioning the Russian army was forcibly presented to a military observer, who has just returned from a trip along the Russian front.

"I was astonished," he said, "to find great numbers of Russian soldiers clothed from head to foot in uniforms made in Japan, not only the tunic and trousers, but even the leggings. They carried on their shoulders Japanese guns. Their cartridge belts were filled with cartridges made in Japan. Their leather belts and buckles were from Japan, and the stout hob-nail shoes they wear are from hides gathered in Korea and made into shoes in Japan. So that, there, you see a Russian soldier in Japanese clothes, Japanese shoes, with a Japanese gun, Japanese ammunition and Japanese accoutrement.

Reverse of Feeling.

"It is strange," he went on, "that Russia went to war with Japan over Korea, and now Korea, the source of all the trouble, is supplying Russia with the shoes in which her soldiers are marching to victory. Korea is a great grazing country and is proving a vast reservoir of raw hides which the Japanese are rapidly turning into boots, shoes, saddles and leather furnishings."

"How did these supplies get from Japan to the Russian front?" the observer was asked.

"It was noted," said he, "that about the only vital point where the Germans had not been able to send their submarines was in the waters of the East China Sea, the Straits of Korea, and the Sea of Japan. These are the waters separating Japan from Russia and the Asiatic mainland and the routes over them, commercial and military, are open and without menace."

"What sort of arms and munition is Russia getting from Japan?" was asked.

"All sorts," was the reply, "from the service rifle and small field pieces up to the big 12-inch guns. The Japanese 12-inch is a terrible weapon, and they are content not to make any of the 14-inch and 16-inch guns, as they consider from a military standpoint that the immobility of the monster gun offsets its advantages, whereas the 12-inch is a mobile gun and very deadly."

No French and Jap Officers.

"It is said that French and Japanese officers are now furnishing the expert direction of the Russian artillery fire, which has made it so effective. Did you see any of these officers?" was asked.

"No, and the report is not correct," said the observer. "The Russian artillery officers are directing their own fire and are getting splendid results. The only Japanese and French officers are those temporarily assigned to explain any complicated piece of machinery. Japanese experts accompanied the big 12 inch Japanese guns, not to manoeuvre them in action, but to explain how it was to be manoeuvred. That is the extent of their help, and the Russians should get full credit for what they have accomplished in operating their artillery. No, the Japanese have done remarkably well in arming, clothing, and munitioning Russians, as they have not had a chance to do the fighting."

DOG HAD WOODEN LEG.

Therefore Judge Waived Charge of Viciousness.

When is a vicious dog not a vicious dog? When it has a wooden leg.

This definition was handed down from the bench by Police Judge Sullivan, of San Francisco, recently, in the case of S. E. Kramer, who was accused by William Heitstuman, a neighbour, with allowing a vicious dog to run at large in the vicinity of the Kramer home.

Kramer's dog is an Airedale. Heitstuman owns a bulldog, which, because of its tendency to chew up Kramer's animal, wears a muzzle. Soon after the muzzle was applied the Airedale took advantage of the situation—he hopped over on his wooden leg and chewed a little on the bull dog, just by way of revenge. Judge Sullivan was touched by the tale of the wooden leg. He dismissed Kramer on the latter's promise that, should his Airedale show signs at any time of becoming ferocious, he would unstrap the pegleg and render the dog helpless.

SEVEN STEAMBOATS INVADE NEW WHARF LAST EVENING

Steamboats Hold Reunion After The Holiday Rush—List of Arrivals at The New Wharf—The "Bessie Butler" Sought a Secluded Spot —Excursion Boats Return

Peterborough was fairly ready for a naval invasion last night, judging by the crowded condition of the new wharf and the other steamers which lay at their moorings at the other wharfs. It is seldom that so many of Peterborough's water fleet congregate together, and last evening some seven steamers, including passenger crafts and tugs, lay at their anubbings, the guests of the local water front for the evening.

First Arrival.

The first arrival for the Thursday steamboat re-union was Capt. Burnett's "Rainbow," which came up from Birdsall's after collecting Rice Lake freight and passengers along the lake. The old Rainbow has been a familiar figure on the Otonabee for a great number of years and means to certain points along Rice Lake what the C.P.R. means to Port McNichol.

The next guest at Wharfinger Runnett's "Haven of Rest" was the Str. Manita, which ran her nose in for the evening after ploughing through Stoney Lake breezes and dodging her way among its many islands all the afternoon.

Sharp at six bells a speedy green little tug which might have been mistaken for a Sein Fein flag ship, tore her way across Little Lake from No. 6, and the sharp clang of the wheel house bell announced that Capt. C. W. Calcutt and his crew had finished their day's work.

The Geneva.

Guest No. 4 was Capt. Harris' Geneva, which brought back to "home and mother" some one hundred excursionists of All Saints' W. A. after they had spent the day at Bewdley away from civic cares and a city's hum.

Later in the evening (they say it is more fashionable to call late in the evening when you are going any place) a strong headlight threw its penetrating glare over the dark waters, revealing to the gaze anything that was within striking distance of the lake. It was the announcement that Capt. Scollard and Peterborough's premier excursion boat were coming back after the day's hunt. The "Stoney" had taken a crowd of half holidayers down stream and was now bringing them back and depositing them under the welcome glare of George street hydro lamps.

Look Who's Here!

According to all appearances the steamboat tea-party was complete, but over at No. 6 lock lay a distinguished aristocratic guest which preferred the solitude of Alex. Calder's lock gates to the noisy company of the craft at the new wharf. We refer to the famous and ne'er-to-be-forgotten "Bessie Butler," which wished to maintain its social attitude by remaining aloof and to show its disdain for the company of ordinary steam boats which have to earn their living by letting the public herd tramp their decks.

One more name will complete the personal column for last evening's guests along the water front. The tug "Ajax" of the Fitzgerald Co. spent the afternoon and evening at the Wolfe street wharf and cast envious glances all evening across at the new cement walls, black nigger heads and classy moorings of the new wharf.

BIRDSALL AND SON WIN FIRST PRIZE

Eleven Entries in the Field Crop Competition—Seven Share in the $75.00 Prize Money

The following are the prize winners who will share in the $75.00 prize money, offered in the field crops competition of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society:

1st, Col. R. E. Birdsall & Son . . . .90 points
2nd, John English . .....88¾ points
3rd, Adam Humphries ....88 points
4th, H. Dunham & Son...87¼ points
5th, J. Sargent & Son.....87 points
6th, G. J. Elmhirst . ....86 points
7th, W. Brackenbridge . ...81 points

The judging took place last week, when Mr. C. I. H. Jordison, of Hybla, government expert judge, visited the farms of the various competitors in East Peterborough. Mr. Jordison was accompanied on his tour in this section by Mr. Chas. O'Reilly, one of the Honorary Directors of the Society

The crop was white oats. There were eleven crops entered and all excepting one received over seventy points.

It is interesting to learn that all the prize winners excepting the last two treated their seed for smut with formalin.

The judge remarked upon the prevalance of the sow thistle, but said it had not reached so bad a stage as in the district west of Peterborough.

The oat crop, while a little light in the head, shows a splendid stand of straw.

Lieut.Col. Shaw Was Recommended For Victoria Cross

Late Officer Was Fond of His Men —Has a Number of Relatives in Peterboro County Where He Spent Part of His Boyhood Days

"All the boys loved him". This tribute of praise was uttered by at least half a dozen wounded subalterns in London hospital recently when the dead hero, Lieut-Col. A. E. Shaw, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, was mentioned. The Colonel was of the least boastful men, and it was known only to a very few that on March 18th last he was recommended for the V. C. He was well known in Peterborough having resided in Otonabee at one time. One of the air scouts was in difficulties, his machine taking a nose dive upon a part of the ground at Ypres which at the time was under shell fire. The Colonel rushed out of his dugout and carried the pilot to safety, and not a minute too soon, for the aeroplane was shattered by a shell immediately after.

Col. Shaw owed much of his skill as a soldier to several years spent in the R.N.W.M.P., prior to which he had served in the Third Mounted Rifles, going to South Africa with that corps. Three years before the present war he transferred to the Lord Strathcona Horse at Winnipeg and went to England in October, 1914. For eleven months he was assistant provost marshal in London, during which time he won the affection of the soldiers.

"I AM PROUD OF MY MEN"

The Colonel was as fond of his men as they were of him. "We go in again on Tuesday for about three weeks," he recently wrote to a friend, "and after that, for England I have been beside men who have been killed, and beside the badly wounded, and have never heard one of them murmur or complain. They shed their blood like heroes we read about of olden days. You will often hear people sympathising with officers, but it is the rank and file that have to bear the brunt of the hardships. I am proud of my men and want to be with them always.

As late as May 10th within three weeks of his heroic death, he wrote: "Having the lives of thousands of men on your hands is no light responsibility. At least, I do not take it lightly. We had a bad blow three nights ago. When we were relieving a battalion in the front line the Huns caught us with shrapnel, and we had fifteen casualties. It was hell for a few minutes, and a terrible job of gathering them up in the dark. I went out next morning to see if we had missed any, but they shelled me out of the place.

A TRIBUTE TO 'MR. T. A."

Continuing Col. Shaw wrote: 'There is one man out here to whom everyone who enjoys the protection of the British flag owes a debt of gratitude and that is "Thomas Atkins," or the men who have volunteered to take his place during the war. Last night I was around the front line about midnight; it was raining, and they had no cover, standing out there in the drizzle, the mud up their knees in lots of places; but still they kept their faces to the front, looking at the German trenches not 50 yards away. In one isolated post eight men had commenced the tour of "duty" but two had been killed, and their dead bodies were lying behind the little outpost, in the rain, until some one could be spared to carry them out to be buried. The six that were left still kept watch over the line, but looked as though they were prepared to stay there and die, if necessary like their comrades had already done. It's sad I can tell you," he concluded. "But I have to try and keep their spirits up, no matter how things are going. So you can see how all of us out here feel about the shells."—Winnipeg Free Press.

Consignment of Liquor Seized

Wet Goods Was Consigned to a Resident of an Adjacent Village

The License Inspector this morning seized five cases of O'Keefe's lager consigned to a resident of an adjacent village. The lager was seized under section 136 of the Liquor License Act which states the Inspector may seize and remove any liquor in transit at any railway station or steamboat wharf and hold until such times as it is investigated before the proper court.

The shipment is under seizure and is in possession of the Inspector.

The case will come up at a future date.

GAME WARDEN IS BADLY BEATEN UP

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—Incensed by his refusal to allow any poaching on the grounds of a big reservation owned by Americans near Maniwaki of which he is in charge Game Warden David Howe, of Maniwaki, was set upon by a gang of men and so badly beaten up that he sustained a compound fracture of the lower jaw. He was in the city to-day being treated by Dr. Baird.

Mr. Howe had rounded up three of the gang and was putting one of the fellows under arrest when the others set upon him knocked him down and kicked him in the jaw. He managed to arrest his man, however, the others making off.

Mr. Howe was sent to Ottawa to be treated by Dr. Baird who performed a special operation after six o'clock last night applying an interdental splint, firmly binding it on to his lower jaw which enabled the sufferer to eat.

Dr. Baird is a veteran of the South African war and he takes a pride in performing operations of such a ticklish nature.

About three years ago, Mr. Howe was the victim of an assault when he was shot in the abdomen. He is the pfamf wwaomfw yoibg kaoibg q a veteran of the Spanish American war. He will be compelled to wear the split on his jaw for two weeks.

SEVEN STEAMBOATS INVADE NEW WHARF LAST EVENING

Steamboats Hold Reunion After The Holiday Rush—List of Arrivals at The New Wharf—The "Bessie Butler" Sought a Secluded Spot —Excursion Boats Return

Peterborough was fairly ready for a naval invasion last night, judging by the crowded condition of the new wharf and the other steamers which lay at their moorings at the other wharfs. It is seldom that so many of Peterborough's water fleet congregate together, and last evening some seven steamers, including passenger crafts and tugs, lay at their snubbings, the guests of the local water front for the evening.

First Arrival.

The first arrival for the Thursday steamboat re-union was Capt. Burnett's "Rainbow," which came up from Birdsall's after collecting Rice Lake freight and passengers along the lake. The old Rainbow has been a familiar figure on the Otonabee for a great number of years and means to certain points along Rice Lake what the C.P.R. means to Port McNichol.

The next guest at Wharfinger Runnett's "Haven of Rest" was the Str. Manita, which ran her nose in for the evening after ploughing through Stoney Lake breezes and dodging her way among its many islands all the afternoon.

Sharp at six bells a speedy green little tug which might have been mistaken for a Sein Fein flag ship, tore her way across Little Lake from No. 6, and the sharp clang of the wheel house bell announced that Capt. C. W. Calcutt and his crew had finished their day's work.

The Geneva.

Guest No. 4 was Capt. Harris' Geneva, which brought back to "home and mother" some one hundred excursionists of All Saints' W. A. after they had spent the day at Bewdley away from civic cares and a city's hum.

Later in the evening (they say it is more fashionable to call late in the evening when you are going any place) a strong headlight threw its penetrating glare over the dark waters, revealing to the gaze anything that was within striking distance of the lake. One more name will compelte the personal column for last evening's guests along the water front. The tug "Ajax" of the Fitzgerald Co. spent the afternoon and evening at the Wolfe street wharf and cast envious glances all evening across at the new cement walls, black niyger heads and classy moorings of the new wharf.

THE DEATH OF MAJOR WILLIAMS

Well Known Lindsay Soldier Was Killed In The Trenches

LINDSAY, Aug. 18.—Lindsay citizens received a shock yesterday when word was passed around that Major "Artie" Williams had been killed in the trenches in Flanders. At first the rumour was not credited, but it was soon verified, a brother of Major Williams having received the message.

No particulars were given, except that he was killed in the trenches.

Major Williams, it will be remembered, resigned his position of Town Commissioner, to enlist with his old Regiment, the 45th of Victoria. Later on he was transferred to Kingston and became attached to the 59th Battalion. He sailed across the seas with the 59th, but as this unit was broken up on its arrival in England and men and officers scattered everywhere in order to fill the gaps, Major Williams, it is thought, was detailed to special business. In his letters home to his family and friends he spoke of having been in the trenches on several occasions, and it is believed that he was engaged in travelling back and forth to the trenches, securing information.

The deceased was every bit a soldier, having been a member of the 45th Regiment for years. He was a good soldier, and had the opportunity of becoming commander of the 45th Regiment on the death of the late Lieut.-Col. F. H. Hopkins.

While in the service of the town he was a trusted and valuable employee, a practical man of considerable ability and town officials and others will regret his untimely death.

Major Williams is survived by his wife and a family of three, namely: Lawrence, a lad of 13, and Corrinne and Ruth. He is also survived by his mother, Mrs. Thos. Williams, Regent street, and the following brothers: Reese, Frank, William, Herb., Louis and Alfred.

TOM GOSSELIN'S FINE CATCH

Lands 15¼ Pound Lunge near T.A.S. Park Last Evening.

The Otonabee looked good to Mr. E. Hubel of Matthews Retail Store yesterday and with a party on board he turned the nose of his craft "full moon" down steram and let her drift along the cool surface of the Otonabee as far as T.A.S. Park, where the party disembarked, or at least, stopped long enough to let Mr. Tom Gosselin, of 269 Perr ystreet step out on shore and get his tackle ready for an afternoon's fish.

The Perry street angler is never satisfied with a holiday unless he holds some kind of communication with the finny tribe.

An afternoon of still-fishing brought no luck to our angling friend but the "jibes" and scornful remarks of Hubel and party failed to hold him back from going out trolling after supper.

Mr. Gosselin had hardly left the T.A.S. wharf and had but few yards of his trolling line dangling in the water, when he felt a real bite and his fisherman's instinct told him he had a big one. Without any playing or giving it a chance to get away, he pulled right in and soon had a lovely lunge, weighing fifteen and a quarter pounds in the canoe. The catch is a fine looking one at that, and is one of the finest looking fish, Mr. Gosselin has gazed upon in some HaTahr daf yof kobgk fiaofd ffofd time.

A Spectacular Engineering Feat

Centre Span of the Quebec Bridge Will be Dropped into Place During The Second Week in September

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—During the second week in September a tremendous and spectacular engineering feat will be performed on the St. Lawrence river, when the centre span of the Quebec bridge, 600 feet long, 100 feet wide and 650,000 tons in weight, will be floated to its place between two big cantilevers 160 feet above the water, and sunk into its place, thus connecting up two sides of the river, making a through route from Prince Rupert to Moncton. There are engineers living to-day who say it can't be done. Many prominent public men will be on hand to witness the feature.

PLUMBERS COMPLAIN AGAINST INSPECTOR

Wesley Rose and John Shaughnessy, plumbers, registered a complaint with the City Property Committee, against Plumbing Inspector Thompson. Their contention was largely along the line that the work of some plumbers was passed by the Inspector that had been so skimped and cheapened that conscientious workmen could not compete with the prices these men were able to quote. Mr. Rose claimed that the tiled drain in the city wouldn't stand Inspection. He offered to pay the cost of a Toronto Plumbing Inspector who would be brought here to examine some of the work recently done. If his complaint was not upheld by this outside inspector, Mr. Rose would pay the expense of his coming here; if it was upheld the city, he proposed, should pay it. The committee felt that the complaint should be considered, and Ald. Saunders will call a meeting for this purpose some time next week.

ALLEGED CRIME AROUND HASTINGS TO BE INVESTIGATED

It is understood that Crown Attorney Hatton has decided upon a more searching investigation of the conditions in the south east fringe of the county as revealed by the evidence at the recent inquest into the death of the infant child of Annie Douglas of Westwood. On that occasion, Coroner Dr. Grier intimated that no matter what report the jury returned the case would be followed up by the authorities. And just now there are certain rumours that some form of clean-up will be started in the near future.

In addition to the mysterious death of the Douglas infant, the authorities have information of other cases of almost identical similarity. Immorality and worse has been hinted. Concealment of birth is included in the rumoured conditions, and this is one practice the authorities will doubtless strive to correct. It is told of another woman, unmarried, that she buried her baby in a hen-house. And it was a third child.

With these reports circulating it is scarcely to be expected that the Crown intends to sift the information for facts that may possibly incriminate some one.

ATTRIBUTES REGULAR SCHOOL ATTENDANCE FOR EXAM. SUCCESS

Regularity of attendance materially helped Miss Mildred Archer of Smith to win the gold watch presented by Capt. J. H. Burnham to the public school student attaining the highest marks at the recent High School entrance examinations. During the past five years she had not missed a single day from school.

On Tuesday night at the home of her father, Mr. John Archer, on the fourth line of Smith, Miss Mildred received the Burnham gold watch and the congratulations of quite a large number of friends who had assembled for the occasion. Mr. George A. Gillespie, M.P.P., was appointed chairman of the meeting which was held on the lawn and Reeve Fred McKee made the presentation in behalf of Capt. Burnham. Mr. Harold Archer made an appropriate and appreciative reply for his sister, thanking the donor through his proxies for the gift watch.

Short addresses were made by Mr Vincent Eastwood, Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, and Rev. Mr. Galt. The programme included instrumental and vocal music by Mr. Archer, the Misses Archer and Miss Graham.

Mr. Harold Archer stated that his sister attributed her regularity of attendance to her success in the recent examinations. By this means she was never behind in her work.

SERGT. ART ELLIOTT HOME ON A VISIT

Sergt. Arthur Elliott of the 196th Western Universities Battalion at Hughes Camp, Manitoba, is visiting Mr. Thos. Barrie for a few days. He was credit manager of the Great West Saddlery Co., Edmonton, but threw up the position to join the University battalion. He has been away from Peterborough about five years and is renewing many acquaintances. There is something of a coincidence in the fact that Lieut. Max Fife, son of Mr. J. A. Fife of Edmonton, and another Peterborough boy, is one of the subalterns of the company to which Sergt. Elliott is attached.

Jess Willard Weighs 300 and Outgrows His Boxing Class

Champion Now Qualifies as a Fat Man—Experts Estimate that it Would Take Two Years to Get the Champion into Shape for Another Contest

Jess Willard, according to those who have seen him elevating the circus, will not be without a profession after his retirement form the roped square.

The heavyweight champion of the world is rapidly qualifying to fill the lucrative and not arduous position of fat man of the side show.

Willard is now said to scale 300 pounds, and he puffs so furiously when boxing with his sparring partners that the management is considering the advisability of applying a Maxim silencer to the big fellow's breathing apparatus.

Not only are Willard's efforts at boxing marveled at by the onlookers because of the evident strain on the champion, but even the kindness of the management in cutting the rounds to ninety seconds each has not helped the matter to an appreciable extent.

Experts in training estimate that him two years to get into ordinarily if Willard started to fit himself for a championship contest it would take good condition.

Therefore, as a boxer, Willard is the victim of his own mountainous growth, although from the showman's standpoint his size has some compensating features.

It has been frequently the case that the champions of various lighter classes have outgrown their divisions, but Willard furnishes the first instance on record where the champion has outgrown the heavyweight class.

Team Play Responsible For Dodgers' Good Showing

Charles Ebbetts Confident Brooklyn Will Win Pennant

NEW YORK, Aug. 16. — Again, team play in baseball stands forth as the most powerful force in a club's fight for the top. The Brooklyn National League club started its last swing around the circuit to-day in the lead by a margin of three games, and it's all due to the co-operative spirit—the spirit that knows no defeat, with very man trying his best to do something that will help get just one more run across.

This is the secret of the Brooklyn club's success this year, during which time they have been at the top of the heap most of the time, Prsident Ebbets said to-day. If a player becomes injured or is removed for some other reason, every man on the club is eager to tae his place. Wilbert Robinson has made a real baseball club out of a collection of athletes who formerly just played ball.

Ebbets has supreme confidence in his men. Before his club left for Pittsburg to-day he told the United Press he expects the Dolgers to return from the western trip still in first place. He pointed to the club's record against the Braves, admittedly the hardest nut in the league to crack. While the Dodgers' recent showing against the Stallings crew has been nothing to brag about, the season's record shows that the Robins have done better against the Boston crowd than Philadelphia, champions last year.

My men are confident and I am confident, "Ebbetts said. "However, do not think we are over-confident. Such a feeling might be disastrous. We believe we can win and we're going to keep on hammering away until we do it. If we lose no one can say we didn't make a game fight.

"All the players are in fine condition with the exception of Jake Daubert and we expect him back in the game within a week or ten days."

Daubert recently slipped a bone in his hip and its pressure on a nerve has been giving him considerable pain. He is under the care of a physician, who hopes to have him back in the game in a short time.

While Daubert is out, McCarty is playing first and doing a good job of it. His hitting has been one of the bright spots in the Brooklyn offense.

If the Dodgers can take a majority of their western games, it is reasonable to assume they will be able to hold their lead.

Yesterday's loss to Boston was something of a blow, for it cut the Dodgers' lead down to three games, and put the Braves just that much nearer the top.

The Phillies, too, began to loom again when they downed the Giants in the final contest of the series with the McGraw clan. The Phillies are in thrid place and going strong.

TWO MILLBROOK RINKS ENTERTAINED

Number of Schedule Games Were Played off Last Evening

Yesterday the club entertained two rinks from Millbrook. The honours were even—one rink lost and the other won.

MR. STAN COON HIGHEST SCORE AT BELLEVILLE SHOOT

In the competition for the silk challenge flag of the Trent Valley Trapshooter's Association in Belleville on Wednesday, Peterborough's marksmen secured second place against Belleville and Sterling, the club scores being:—

Belleville	210
Peterborough	198
Sterling	172

The local men shot as follows at 50 clay birds—Wood, 42; Graham, 30. Coon, 46; Dunk 42; Outram of Port Hope 38.

Mr Stan Coon made the individual high score of the competition with 46 out of a possible 50.

At the conclusion of the competition a practice shoot was held by Messrs. Coon, Day, Mott, Dunk and M. Sprague, who shot at 25 birds each. Mr. S. Coon won the silver spoon donated by the Dupont Powder Company, and Mr. A. Mott won the watch fob donated by the Dominion Cartridge Company.

GERMANS ESTABLISH KRUPP GUN HOSPITAL

REPAIR WORKS ARE LOCATED BEHIND THE FRONT LINE TRENCHES.

Quite near the western front in Flanders the Germans have established a miniature Krupp cannon factory—a "cannon hospital" as it has been dubbed by the soldiers—where guns worn by constant action or injured by enemy shells, are treated, re-tested, and then sent back to the fighting line. Two hundred and fifty workmen work in this factory, an interesting account of which is given by a German journalist, who was afforded an opportunity of visiting it. He relates how, when looking at the havoc wrought by enemy shells on the guns, it is difficult to imagine how they can ever be repaired.

Very often damage occurs to the wooden parts, especially to the wheels. In the woodwork department are stocked all sizes of gun wheels, so that in case of quick need a gun can be made serviceable in a very short time at the spot where the accident occurred.

After being repaired, cleaned, and thoroughly examined, the guns are taken to a specially built proving ground. Here the rifling of the gun barrels is also looked after, and if necessary they are reground and recalibred. Here also guns captured on the field are remade for use.

On machine guns, for which all extra parts are made and stored in readiness, the cooling jackets seem to be the most vulnerable to the rifle bullets. With oxygen welding apparatus these repairs and even whole renewal of the jackets are effected without difficulty, each machine gun being thoroughly tested at the proving grounds before it leaves the hospital.

RELEASED TO ENLIST.

Private Kaine Leaves Penitentiary For the Front.

QUEBEC, Aug. 18.—Private Kaine, an American citizen, enlisted here for overseas service, and who had been sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary for murder last New Year's for killing Georges Pérgantes, a local restaurant keeper, is said to have obtained leave to enlist and leave the penitentiary for the front. His mother and sister came yesterday from St. Louis, Missouri, to see him.

RUMANIA ON EVE OF A FATEFUL DECISION

Gay City of Bucharest Seething With Intrigue That Involves Nation's Leading Men and Representatives of Warring Powers

(By William Bayard Hale.)

BUCHAREST, via Copenhagen, Aug. 15.—If all the elements of intrigue contrived by Anthony Hope, E. Philips Oppenheim, George Barr McCutcheon and the Baroness Orczy were combined into one glowing chapter of romance, it would not compare with the reality to be found in this Balkan capital.

Secret agent, diplomatic conspirator, plotting minister, religious zealot, beautiful women, glittering uniforms and melting music—these are the omnipresent features of life here at this entertaining hour.

But this time gathers not merely seriousness, but world importance, from the fact that the decision of Roumania to join or abstain from part in the great war may prolong the terrific struggle or influence its early end.

SERIOUS DRAMA PLAYING.

It is, therefore, no operatic comedy, but a drama of real and serious import for history that is being enacted to-day between the Carpathians and the Black Sea.

The scenes are laid first in Bucharest, a half Oriental city of wonderful fascination, staring stucco walls relieved by gardens of sycamore, acacia and olive, with swarming peddlers, with Astrakhan turbans, crying out their wares or asleep among the melons and plums. Every corner is ablaze by day wiht gaudy asters and iris, and throbbing at night with gypsy music.

The scene shifts to Sinaia, Summer residence of the Court, at the foot of the Transylvanian Alps, where plotters walk dim pleasaunces amid the firs below the crag castled by the royal palace and sanctioned by a Greek monastery. There they plan their games of high politics, to say nothig of the games of fortune and love being played in the great hall and terraces below.

The chief figures in the drama are the King, the Prime Minister, some four or five political leaders, and the Russian, French and German Ministers.

King Ferdinand, lately ascended to the throne, succeeding his uncle, after a long reign of that wise and much-beloved sovereign. Inheriting the problem of his nation's attitude in this war, Ferdinand has not yet asserted himself, ad it is not yet possible to draw his character in strong outlines.

His consort, the most beautiful queen Europe has seen in many generations, is the daughter of an Englishman and a Russian woma. Romatic temperament and feminine loveliess have never been more adequately combined for a striking part in history. Nevertheless, while Queen Marie decorates the stage, she has no star part in the play.

BRATINAU ON FENCE.

The president of the Council of Ministers, Jonel Bratinsu, is cast for a hero, but as yet is not playing a heroic part. It is not heroic to sit on the fence, and Bratinau has taken that undignified attitude for two years.

Son of the statesman who had a large part in guiding the destinies of his country from 1866, when Prince Karl von Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen came to rult it, through 1877, when Rumania declared her independence from Turkey, to 1881, when she erected a kingdom, the younger Bratianu cherishes a hope to preside over his country's expansion into a first-class power.

In internal politics his position is unassailable. Curiously enough, his power and that of his party (Lberal) rests largely upon the operations of three banks owned by him and two brothers. In foreign politics he is shrewd and successful in employing methods purely Oriental. For the great part his history seems to lack audacity. Discretion is his watchword. He weighs, considers and rejects, like Hamlet, with anxiety.

The dashing figures in the drama are Take Jonescu and Nicholas Filipescu. Rumanian intrigue would be nothing without these picturesque names, which fit with the scenery like the gypsy music, the cassocked whip-cracking droshky drivers and their spanking teams, and the throngs of smartly shod and highly dolled ladies, doubly theatrical after Germany, where nowadays there is no so much as a penciled eyebrow.

JONESCU ROUMANIA'S CARSON.

Take Jonescu, is an adroit and indefatigable advocate, devoid of conscience and not burdened by principles, his conversion to a pro-Entente position was followed by a visit to England. He has the gift of invictive and insight into popular feeling, but does not possess any feeling of responsibility. His popularity is dangerous.

Filipescu is a rich amateur, with a penchant for emotional politics. He is wont to weep and rage with fine dramatic frenzy.

Opposing these are eaters, but by no means without their own theatrical methods, are the Conservative leaders, Peter Carp, the most venerable and cultured man in Roumania; Alexander Marghiloman, another man of character and of wide experience and outlook, and ex-Premiers Titus Maicrescu and Theodore Reosetti.

All these, and indeed the whole army of intellectuals, regard Russia as Roumania's inveterate enemy and oppose an alliance with her as a moral impossibility.

Among the foreign Ministers here, the Russian, Poklewski Koziell, is the most equipped with funds and disposition to intrigu, though the bitter capacity is vastly excelled by his Italian colleague, Faschiotti. Newly arrived is the French Count de St. Hilaire, who comes with an unusual retinue, and, it is said, with a ready-made copy of a new treaty of alliance to be signed by Rumania and the Entente, in his valise.

The German Minister, Baron von dem Hussche-Haddenhausen, came after the war and inherited a situation of extreme difficulty which his patience, straightforwardness and tact have much improved.

The world revolves here in a systematic organisation of secret intelligence. A stranger does not take a single step outside his hotel without being honored by the attentions of several pussy-footed escorts. The hotel porter is a spy; a man who begs a match is a spy. Letters and packages are carefully noticed: all visitors are shadowed.

Every morning reports of your acts and words of the day before are laid before the police and everybody else who may be interested. Nothing is manufactured or bought. Sincere public sentiment does not exist and if it did, it would never express itself.

It is in such an atmosphere that the question is being debated whether the area of the world conflict should or should not be extended as the third year begins.

SECRET TEUTONIC TREATY

It is now a well authenticated fact that Rumania had, when the war broke out, a secret treaty of defensive alliance with Germany and Austria by virtue of an agreement made by the elder Bratianu on a visit with Bismarck in 1884, renewable every decade.

In the early days of the war King Charles called the Crow Council to decide the course of the nation. The session was held in Castle Pelesh, the Royal residence at Sinaia, in the vaulted music room, on August 3, 1914, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The King and Queen Elisabeth (Carmen Sylva), Crown Prince Ferdinand and seventeen Ministers and party leaders were present.

The treaty of 1884 was laid before the council and the King read an address expressing the hope that the nation would remain true to its engagements and its highest interests.

He had scarcely finished speaking when a telegram from Rome was handed to Bratianu announcing that Italy would remain neutral.

The effect was electric. One strong voice cried out to support the King and the treaty, the voice of the venerable Peter Carp. Marghiloman and a few others seconded, but opposite counsel prevailed. It was resolved to remain neutral for the present and prepare the public sentiment for an alliance with Russia.

Almost broken-hearted, the old King, who during the council had a telegram from the Kaiser in his hand, that night sent a dispatch to his imperial cousin saying he was a constitutional King and withfut his Ministers could do nothing.

If the entente is finally successful Rumania might emerge a greatly expanded nation. Take Jonescu and Filipescu, indeed, rage because they are not taken more seriously by the Russian administration. But Bratianu knows, and the Entente intriguers know, that if they force the present Premier to resign the King would summon Carp of Marghiloman, not a pro-Russian agitator.

A new Rumian reverse would quiet the agitation like magic. Lacking this, the situation remains serious.

There is, for instance, always the grave possibility of some act by the Entente creating a situation like that in Greece. Suppose Russian troops were to cross the frontier. Rumania would have to choose instantly between resisting and embracing the plans of the Entente.

What Bratianu would do in such a case no one knows.

BEST TROOPS FOR KAISER.

Exhausted Soldiers Sent to Rear During the Review.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—President Poincare had a long, confidential conference with King George during the British monarch's recent visit to the Somme front. The visit of the King and President to the fighting line was coincident with the arrival of the German Emperor on the German front.

An order found on a captured German officer gives details of the military review which was held before the Emperor. The order directs that exhausted soldiers be sent to the rear so that the Emperor should see only the best element of the troops. It also directs that those who fought at Verdun should occupy the first ranks.

Sleeves may be alike simple and plain from shoulder to elbow in several different gowns, but from elbow to wrist they may be either very loose or very tight, according to the purpose of the gown and milady's

OBITUARY

T. A. COUGHLIN.
Death came at 7.30 this morning to a well known resident of East City Mr. Timothy A. Coughlin after a long illness of some six years, borne with live Christian patience and resignation.

The deceased young man was thirty-six years of age and was a son of the late Jeremiah Coughlin. The deceased was unmarried and died at his home, 349 Euclid Avenue, East City. He is survived by five sisters, Misses Minnie, Margaret, Nora, Lily, Mona at home and three brothers, Alonso, Michael and John, all of this city.

The funeral takes place on Sunday afternoon from the family residence 349 Euclid Avenue at 2.30 to the church of the Immaculate Conception. Interment to take place at St. Peter's cemetery.

FLORENCE LOSEY
The death took place yesterday morning in St. Joseph's Hospital of Florence Losey the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Losey of 872 Water street, Peterborough Ont.

The late Miss Losey came to Chatham a month ago on a visit to her sister, Mrs. McCranks, 217 Osborne street. She was taken seriously ill which necessitated her immediate removal to the hospital. During the held on the law dnan abfgw kabgk nineteen days she was in the hospital her condition gradually grew worse, until she was called by death yesterday morning.

Her death is a severe shock to the members of the family and is a particularly sad one as one of her brothers is now in France with a Canadian contingent, while her father is in England with another unit.

Besides the bereaved parents, one sister, Mrs. McCrank, of Chatham, and five brothers, Harold in France, Cecil, Stanley, Roland and Melville at home survive.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock from the residence of her sister Mrs. McCrank, 217 Colborne street to the Maple Leaf cemetery.

WEDDING BELLS

LAWLOR—KING.
The marriage of Lydia Claire, youngest daughter of D. N. King of Norwood, Ont., to Lieut. Thos. Lawlor, of the 218th Royal Irish Guards, Edmonton, took place in St. Jochin's Church, Edmonton, on Thursday morning, Aug. 3, the Rev. Father Le Marchand officiating. Lieut. and Mrs. Lawlor are spending their honeymoon at Lake La Biche, in the Rockies.

Post Office Name Is Still "Berlin"

Ottawa Will Not Act Till Provincial Authorities Recognize "Kitchener."

Ottawa, Aug. 18.— The deputation from Berlin, Ont., which waited on the post-office authorities yesterday, in connection with the desire of that municipality to change its name to Kitchener, did not obtain a definite answer. It was pointed out that until the new name was definitely recognized by the provincial authorities the Government would take no action.

ALLIES ARE ATTACKING ON AN EIGHT MILE FRONT

Russian Armies Are Converging on Lemberg

Russians Have Enough Ammunition to Carry Czar's Troops Into Germany

Corps Commander Says That the Munition Supply Is Unlimited—Russians Gradually Are Cutting in South of the Centre Sector—Preparing to Retire from Present Line—Enemy Face a Flanking Movement.

THE ADVANCE ON LEMBERG

WITH THE RUSSIAN ARMIES ON THE CENTRAL RUSSIAN FRONT, August 19.—The continued success of General Brusiloff's two powerful movements, which gradually are enveloping Kovel and Lemberg, have begun to have a marked effect on the situation in the central portion of the front, which, except for small Russian gains in the lake region south of Dvinsk, has remained virtually unaltered since the Russians fell back last autumn to the line from Dvinsk to the Pinsk marshes. The Austrian line now has receded so far before the repeated thrusts of the southwestern Russian forces in Southern Poland and Galicia that the Prussians are in danger of a flanking movement from the south and the automatic retirement of the forces opposed to the Russian centre.

PREPARED TO RETIRE.

Despite desultory bursts of activity at many points Russian officers say there are many indications that the Prussians are prepared to abandon their present line on this part of the front at any moment.

A correspondent made a week's tour along the front commanded by General Alexei Evert, from Lake Narocz to the region of Baranivichi, and found the Russian soldiers most anxious for an opportunity to advance as soon as the command is given. The armies commanded by General Evert are the same which, crippled by a shortage of ammunition and supplies, were forced to surrender a large part of Poland a year ago. Commanders who brought back only broken remnants of their divisions to the present positions now are in charge of splendidly equipped units. The men share with their officers the determiation to recapture the ground lost in Poland.

PLENTY OF MUNITIONS.

A corps commander, who showed the correspondent a huge supply of ammunition and material at the disposal of one part of the force engaged in this section of the front, said:—"We have enough ammunition stored away to take us to Berlin."

The soldiers seem to be plentifully supplied with wholesome food and are living under the best sanitary conditions. They are surrounded by comforts and conveniences comparable to those at a model American summer camp. The spirit and fighting strength of the Russian soldiers appear to be very high and the troops confidently expect to occupy their original quarters in Western Poland.

Compared with conditions prevailing a year ago the percentage of disease on this section of the front is declared to be appreciably lower. Not only has universal vaccination and personal cleanliness, which are now insisted upon, removed the danger of epidemics but individual cases of a disease of any sort are said to be rare.

French Operations Tend To Minimize Losses

Prussians Fail To React From French Attacks—Gains on Wednesday Held Without Interference, Declares a High Officer—Precision Feature of Allied Offensive—Only Objective Designated Before Assault is Occupied—Losses at Minimum.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, August 19. — "The operations on the Somme during the past two days were merely a detail of the offensive and of only local bearing," a high military officer explained, "but significance is derived from the fact that the Prussians did not counter-attack as usual. Never before have they failed to react when successfully attacked, and their failure to do so in this case is either a sign of weakness or, more likely, because of confusion or orders.

"The precision with which the French offensive has been carried out is shown by the fact that every objective designated in advance of an action has been reached. At Maurepas a certain number of houses were selected and every one of them was captured and occupied; it never was intended to attempt the occupation of the entire village.

"One consequence of this precision in the French operations is the reduction of losses to a minimum. The operations in Artois and in champagne cost five times more than all the ground gained on the Somme. The purpose is to destroy the Prussian forces, and the Franco-British defensive also has accomplished the feat of holding on the western front the greater possible portion of the Prussian forces.

"It is fallacious to figure out the probable duration of hostilities on French soil by computing the average surface of ground gained a day. Every time an action takes place, even though the gain may be no more than a hundred yards or so, the oposition is beaten. He loses heavily and the weakening moral effect cannot be measured in yards. It is a cumulative effect which sooner or later will wear the enemy down so that he will be unable to hold the French gains to a few hundred yards."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. — The railway strike situation is again serious. Men are ready to accept President Wilson's compromise, but railroad magnates say it is impossible.

GERMANS BEING PRESSED BACK INCH BY INCH

British and French Infantry are Making Combined Assaults on an Eight Mile Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Aug. 19.—British and French infantry are making assaults along an eight-mile front cleared by artillery. Canadians are believed to be engaged. Germans are pressed back inch by inch.

SAYS KAISER WILL SUICIDE

From Houlton, Aroostook county, Me., comes the strange story of an infant child, who just before her death a few days ago, announced to her parents that the Kaiser would commit suicide in August, and the great war will come to an end in September in this year. The child, about six months old, had never uttered a distinguishable word up to the day of her death, and so, on the morning of that day her mother was electrified to hear her distinctly say, when the mother had dropped and broken a dinner plate:

"Mother, you have broken a plate!"

When the father returned home from work that evening the mother told him the strange story of what the baby had said. The father laughed incredulously and remarked that his wife was dreaming.

"Well, you try it," suggested the wife, whereupon the father dropped and broke another plate. Instantly the baby spoke up:

"Father, you have broken a plate!"

At this the parents became alarmed and sent for a neighboring doctor, who declared that in all his practice he had never heard of such an instance of juvenile precocity or abnormal mental or lingual development. However, he said that he would try the experiment of dropping a plate himself.

At once the baby admonished him, with a little more emphasis, that he, too, had broken a plate. After a slight pause the infant startled all by declaring solemnly:

"The Kaiser will commit suicide in August and the war will come to an end very suddenly in September."

A few hours afterwards the baby expired from no cause that the doctor could discover.

Metal paraffin poured on the cracked surface of a vase will make it hold water as well as before it was cracked.

We like to talk Kodak

We are always best satisfied when our customers are best satisfied. That's one reason why we like particularly to talk about the goods in our photographic department. The Kodak goods have quality written all over them. They are our kind of goods because our kind of customers, the quality kind, can appreciate them.

KODAKS

made and popularized amateur photography. They have always led in improvements, in new ideas. But what is of equal importance is the careful workmanship and the superb lens and shutter equipments. Yet they are not expensive—$5.00 up.

DAILY RACING FORM BARRED FROM MAILS

According to Ottawa information the Daily Racing Form, the dope sheet of those who follow the ponies, has been prohibited the use of the Canadian mails. Evidently it is regarded as a gambling lure and incentive by the officials who are advocating economy and the saving of money. There are a number of Peterborough men who more or less rely on the Form's selections for the various tracks. Usually this is supplemented by "sure things." A ticker code does the rest, and in very many cases they have been coming across with decidedly acceptable wins. It is believed that the Form can be expressed into Canada as well as being sent by mail. The average toiler little suspects that some local men are able to follow the ponies day in and day out, usually with a weekly profit that goes a long way in providing the daily bread. Besides, consider the fun they get out of it.

A SPLENDID WAY TO REDUCE ONE'S WEIGHT

There is, perhaps, no one thing that shows the passing of our youth so much as the horrible tendancy of some of us to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 25 or 30. However young our face may appear, our figures "give us away."

The cause of this over-stoutness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combustion to destroy the fatty tissue. To reduce your weight go to a good druggist and get oil of orilene in capsule form, and take one after each meal. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Oil of orilene taken at meal times gives you all the benefit of the food you eat, and at the same time dissolves the fatty tissues from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. In this way many have reduced their weight at the rate of about a lb. a day, and no flabbiness is left.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00 postal note or money order. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240 Montreal, Can.

Take Iron For Your Blood

Makes You 100% Stronger in 10 Days

Phosphorous For Your Nerves

Doctors are now finding thousands of people who are going through life in misery with kidney trouble, liver complaint, nervous prostration, headache, nervous indigestion, rheumatism, constipation and numerous other complaints, all due to lack of Iron in the blood and Phosphorus in the nerves.

Just as soon as the blood becomes thin, and nerves weakened you are unable to digest the little food you eat and at once your system becomes poisoned, causing liver trouble, kidney pains, headaches, rheumatism, indigestion, heart trouble, and you soon are a living skin, run-down, nervous wreck, and life to you then is a burden. The first thing you should do is to go and get weighed; then go to the nearest drug store, and get some Bonised phosphorus with Iron tablets and take one or two after each good meal and you will find that in ten days you are 100 per cent. stronger. The Iron will give you good rich thick blood and the phosphorus will strengthen your nerves and the food you eat will give you 100 per cent. more nourishment than before; you will begin to get fat, your nerves will be stronger, and you will feel like you used to when you were 15 years old. You know as well as ever, doctor, that there is nothing like good old Iron to give you strength and build you up, while phosphorus acts wonders on the nervous system.

The Iron recommended here is an entirely new form of Iron which will not blacken the teeth or upset your stomach.

Life is short but you can lengthen it by 25 years if you take Bonised Phosphorus with Iron, which gives you digestive strength, and the food you eat will be nourishment to you instead of poisoning your system, causing so many complaints, which you know bring you to an early grave. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron does not contain an atom of arsenic, strychnine or any poison which has been proved so harmful in almost every tonic. It is easy to take and is taken up by the system almost immediately, making you feel 100 per cent. stronger in 10 days. It is dispensed in this city by F. C. Webber stores at 50c a box.

GOOD MOTHERS.

It is claimed that all the presidents of the United States had good mothers. It is said that John Q. Adams until the day of his death, said the prayer his mother had taught him. Lincoln said: "All that I am I owe to my mother." Garfield kissed the wrinkled face of his mother on the day of his inauguration and said "You brought me to this." Grover Cleveland said: "Worldly honours or worldly perplexities will never cause me to forget the lessons my mother taught me." As the shadows lengthen, the memory of a mother's love becomes intensified.

• • • •

All other earthy pleasures are a mockery in comparison to the contentment of a loving family circle. Other joys may last for a day, excite our interest for a time, but they fade away and leave us unsatisfied. While they are present we felt not the emptiness of this excitement—but with their vanishing our hearts hunger for the blessings which home alone can give. Even they who have never known what it is to have loving hearts welcome them on the threshold, and loving hands minister to their comfort, know that these are life's most precious gifts, and thirst for a draught from this cup of peace.

• • • •

If men would remember that a woman can't always be smiling who has to cook dinner, answer the door bell half a dozen times, and get rid of a neighbour who has dropped in, attend to a sick baby, tie up the cut finger of a two-year-old, gather up the play-things of a four-year-old, tie up the feet of a six-year-old on skates and get an eight-year-old ready for school—to say nothing of sweeping, cleaning, etc. A woman with all this to contend with may claim it as a privilege to look and feel a little tired sometimes, and a word of sympathy would not be too much to expect for a man who, during the honeymoon, wouldn't let her carry so much as a sunshade.

• • • •

To a young man away from home friendless and forlorn in a great city, the hours of peril are those between sunset and bedtime. The moon and stars see more evil in a single hour than the sun in a whole day's circuit. The poet's vision of evening are allcompact of tender and soothing images. It brings the wanderer to his home, the child to its mother's arms, and the ox to his stall, and the weary laborer to his rest. But to the tender hearted youth who is thrown upon the rocks of a pitiless city, and stands homeless among a thousand homes, the approach of evening bring with it an aching sense of loneliness and desolation which comes down on the spirit like darkness upon the earth. In this mood his best impulses become a snare to him, and he is led astray because he is sociable, affectionate, sympathetic, and warm hearted.

There are persons whom to know is to love, honor and admire, and others whom to know is to shun and despise. Live with persons of elevated character and you will feel lifted up in them. "Live with wolves and you will learn to howl," says the Spanish proverb. The life of every man is a daily inculcation of good or bad example to others. The life of a good man is at the same time the most severe reproof of vice. There are men in whose presence we feel as if we breathed spiritual ozone, refreshing and invigorating, like inhaling mountain air or enjoying a bath of sunshine. The golden words that good men have uttered, the examples they have set, live through all time. These being undisputed facts how carefully our young people should select their associates and be found only with those whose example they can take pride in following.

A single bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day; one surly glance cast a gloom over the household; while a smile, like a gleam of sunshine, may light up the darkest and weariest hours. Like unexpected flowers which spring up along our pathway full of freshness, fragrance and beauty; so kind words and gentle acts and sweet dispositions make glad the sacred spot called home No matter how humble the abode, if it be sweetened with kindness and smiles, the heart will turn lovingly toward it from all tumults of the world, and home, if it be ever so homely, will be the dearest spot beneath the circuit of the sun.

A good wife is to a man wisdom and courage, strength, hope and endurance. A bad one is confusion, weakness, discomforture and despair. No condition is hopeless when the wife possesses firmnes, decision, enwife possesses firmess, decision, enward prosperity which can counteract indolence, folly and extravagance at home. No spirit can long resist had domestic influence.

UNCLE EZRA INVESTS IN A COW.

Bought a cow t'other day;
Man was getting short of hay,
Rather sell his wife, he said,
Or part with anything he had,
but his hay was getting low,
And the cow had got to go.
"Such a cow," says he to me,
"Is something that you seldom see;
Gives two pails twice a day,
Only eating medder hay.
Give her shorts and cottonseed,
Another pail you'll surely need.
Butter that 'ere cow will make
Can't be beat in all the State.
Her mother took first money at
The Monroe fair for butter-fat."
I shayed him ten and took the cow, wish I hadn't done it now.
Felt like I'd been stealing sheep,
'Cause I got that cow so cheap.
Of course it wa'nt exactly right
To take advantage of his plight,
But turn it round and I could see
That he would do the same to me.
I took her home and gave her feed
Of ensilage and cottonseed.
Could hardly wait for milking time,
So as to try that cow of mine.
I won't attempt to express my thoughts
But all I got was just three quarts.
Yet he told the truth when, says he,
A cow like this you seldom see.
For her bag was bigger when I got done
Than it was before I had begun;
But strip and strip it was no use
There wasn't another drop of juice.
Next cow I buy I will not fail
To inquire the size of the milking pail.

Princess Says The Stampede 'Is Wonderful'

New York, August 18.—"It is the most wonderful spectacle I have ever seen," exclaimed Princess Paul Troubetzkoy yesterday after witnessing some of the dare devil exploits at the Stampede at Sheepshead Bay Speedway.

Cowboy Ed. Lindsay had just thrilled the crowd with a brilliant piece of "bulldogging" which, by a trifling miscalculation on his part had broken the neck of the steer.

Lindsay, a bundle of nerves and fire, who fears nothing on two legs or four, is leading in the contest for the New York American prize, cup to be awarded to-night to the best all-around American cowboy.

When he leaped on its back from his galloping broncho and grasped its horns he had in his mind the fixed idea of throwing it in 21 seconds.

The steer was a powerful and fiery animal, maddened with rage and bewilderment. Its bulging muscles resisted the exertions of the audacious pigmy on its back. The seconds passed. The clinging cowboy, stimulated beyond the restraint of Stampede bylaws, gave a tug and a twist too much, and with an audible snap of its mighty neck the great beast plunged to the erath and lay feebly struggling.

While the crowd chattered in amazement at the cowboy's feat, Dr. Thomas Childs, Inspector James Grace and Timothy McMahon hastened into the arena and gave the animal its quietus with a few revolver shots.

There were other exciting episodes during the day. Some of the racing finishes, especially those of the cowgirl races, lifted the spectators off of the seats.

One visitor, William B. Walker, president of the American Thermos Bottle Co., was so worked up by what he saw that he sought out Guy Weadick, the director general of the Stampede, and offered a special prize of $500 to be presented to the performer embodying the best type of cowboy or cowgirl in the show.

Mr. Walker's offer was accepted, and his prize will be added to the $50,000 in prizes that will be presented at the grand wind up of the Stampede to-night.

Mrs. John Hays Hammond sent an ambassador yesterday in the person of James Campbell to say that it would give her the greatest pleasure to attend to-night's performance and ceremonies, in order to present the William Randolph Hearst loving cup to the successful winner.

Dress in Paris In Midsummer

At the present moment, Paris shows rather a sober face in dress for many reasons, writes a Paris correspondent; the war, the weather, the time of year; yet, for all that the natural taste for dress comes out in a hundred different ways. A comparatively old coat and skirt will be brightened by a bag of original design and colour slung on the arm. The hair is done in a new fashion. The perfectly flat, Nattier style is slowly but surely going out, and we may see rolls and puffs and coils again. If so, it will mean the end of the very small hat, and already a round chignon crowns some heads, and the baggy crown of the popular velvet hat is probably designed to allow of such a style. Wings, too, are being used in plain silk, and straw hats and brims that a month ago were straight all the way round now have little twists and twirls, with a rose in an unexpected place, a bow, or some ornament that the wearer's next-door neighbour has never seen before. In such impromptu touches sure taste may be trusted, but it is an unsafe amusement for the unlessoned.

Many and various are the present neck arrangements. Round the waist a big sash tied in the old-fashioned way is in favour for an afternoon frock of linen or muslin. Embroidered belts in all widths and of many colours make other dresses decorative, and here and there a girl will wear a bunch of flowers stuck into her band. Quite a good innovation is the guimpe which is put into the low Victorian decollete of a grey taffetas dress. It is of silver lace, and it covers the shoulders and forms a 'V' in front. Another charming little frock in grey line has a slightly low neck bordered with three rows of white pique on the cross in the form of a little shoulder cape. The same motif trims the wrists. Otherwise the dress had no trimming at all. Nothing is more favoured than the shoulder cape in different forms when the day is fine. You see it rounded, pointed, plain and fussy, with collars and without collars, stiff and soft, short and long, full and very tight-fitting; indeed, the cape, with something like it at the wrists, exercises individual taste a good deal in these summer months before the dressmakers give out their autumn and winter models.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

WOMAN'S WORK.

The quiet faithful way in which a woman often of superior intellect, and decided talent for higher things, will dish-wash her life away for her husband and children, is a marvel of patient endurance. Here the servitude of woman is the heaviest. No sooner is her work done than it requires to be done over again. Men take contracts of work on them, finand the door of the home should shut The prospect of ending them and drawing pay for the labor is alluring. And woman's work holds no such promise. She washes on Monday after Monday the same garments until there is no more of them to wash; then they are replenished by new ones like old, and the rubbing and wringing goes on until the worn-out hands are folded for their eternal and only rest. She mends stockings with tireless fidelity, week after week, and year after year. Every morning the same rooms are to be put in order, only to be in the wildest disorder by evening. The same stockings, the same washing, the same cleaning and cooking, in endless rotation, which if done promptly and properly, leaves no time for reading and self-culture which, aside from the pleasure it affords the woman, is the only means of fitting oneself for the intellectual culture of children.

What wonder that women are not thinkers, or that the daughters of successive generations are rapid, uncultured creatures, incapable of forming an opinion on the most important subjects of human consideration. There is too little brightness in the lives of women. They have too little help in their domestic occupations.

The crowning grace of home is cheerfulness.

In nine cases out of ten man's life will not be a success if he does not bear burdens in his childhood. If the fondness or vanity of father or mother has kept him from hard work; if another always helped him out at the end of his row; if instead of taking his turn at pitching off he stowed away all the time—in short, if what was light always fell to him, and what was heavy about the same work to some one else, if he has been permitted to shirk, until shirking has become a habit, unless a miracle has been wrought his life will be a failure and the blame will not be so much his as that of his weak and foolish parents.

The life of the world is strenuous, ish them, and are over for all time. out the storms and stress but should not shut out new and wholesome inspiring influences. It should stand wide in hospitable welcome to friends. The home life that is narrow and selfish is dull and enervating.

Why should hearts spend years on earth growing into one, knitting life into life, blending soul into soul, for a union that is not to reach beyond the valley of shadows? Husbands, you are the head of the homes, why not be the head of the home for eternity?

As king over the stalwart oak and lofty pine, the fig tree would have been a lofty failure and as much out of place as some of our politicians are in congress; but for bearing figs the oak and the pine are its inferiors. Bearing figs is the grandest thing in the world for a fig tree. It shines in its own sphere but stripped of its fig bearing power it has no excuse for existence. Sometimes a mother who reigns a majestic queen in her own household, forsakes her quiet sweetness of home rule for a noisy rough, public career, for which she has not the slightest qualification. Of course there are no such mothers who are readers of this paper, but we have see them and so have you.

On the shores of the Adriatic Sea the fishermen's wives come down at sunset and sing to guide their loved ones home. On the mountains of Tyrol hundreds of women and children go out nightly and sing their native songs until fathers, husbands, brothers and sons answer on their return home. What a beautiful homecoming. Is it not worthy of imitation by the most polished citizen? A type of that welcome we hope every reader of this department will receive when they reach the golden gates of Eden!

"The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." This is a saying as old as the hills, but where it true our great men in our great cities would not be on trial and sent to prison pens for "boodle" and "graft." When the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world there will be "a school house on every hilltop and no saloon in the valley."

In the race of life, in the contest for endurance, in the moral tests that come, that child has not a fair chance who has sprung out of the mud of the streets. To know the breath of lilacs and the rustle of autumn leaves, to be up with the lark, to bathe one's feet in the dew of the pasture, to go to bed with the song of the whip-poor-will—these memories are like guardian angels.

Pale Cheeked Women Told About Restoring A Rosy Complexion

A few years ago the girl with pale, drawn cheeks scarcely knew what to do in order to restore her fading appearance. At that time there was no blood-food medium made that really would put color and strength into systems that were more or less worn out.

To-day it's different. The blood can be quickly nourished, can be made rich, red, and healthy. All you have to do is take two Ferrozone Tablets with a sip or two of water after meals. The effect is almost magical.

Mothers, look at your children. Are they ruddy and strong—do they eat and sleep well, or are they pale, weak, and anaemic?

FERROZONE will rebuild them. Take your own case—is your blood strong and rich? Have you that old-time strength and vigor, or are you somewhat under the weather?

FERROZONE will supply the strengthening elements you require. It is a blood-forming, nourishing tonic that makes every ailing person well.

FERROZONE is a marvellous remedy, it contains in concentrated form certain rare qualities that especially fit it in cases of anaemic, poor color, thin blood, tiredness, and loss of weight.

Every day you put off using FERROZONE you lose ground. Get it today, sold in 50 cent boxes by all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THIS IS THE SEASON FOR SILK FROCKS

They Fill Many a Gap When Summer Cottons Show Signs of Wear—Taffetas Among the Most Popular

New York, August 16.—No doubt most of us are feeling that our summer wardrobes are beginning to look a little the worse for wear. It is invariably the case when August comes! The dainty voiles and organdies that were so crisp and fresh at the beginning of June and July when we started, the season with them, are looking limp and faded since they have been pressed into service all through the warm weather. While it may seem rather late in the season to start getting new summer things, just now the stores are full of wonderful bargains in dainty summer frocks, and this is the opportunity for those who have to be economical.

Dress of Checked Taffeta

Lovely dresses and blouses in voiles, linens, crepes and other sheer fabrics can be picked up for a song, as the saying goes, and it is well worth getting them for the remainder of the season.

But you will make no mistake in having one of the single silk dresses that are so much in vogue. They are wonderful for filling in the gap between the seasons—and not only that they are going to be very good for fall. They will be quite comfortable with a top coat if the weather demands it, or with a fur cape or a scarf. The warm weather has not at all dampened the enthusiasm for fur capes and scarfs. It is such a common sight to see them worn on days when the mercury rises to great heights that one almost feels that one has been laboring under a delusion all along to believe that furs could be anything but cool!

TAFFETA THE LEADING SILK

By far the most popular silks for dresses just now are the taffetas. They are especially smart in self tones and in the many striped, checked and blocked effects seen. Navy blue and the rich, dark tones predominate. In some very striking designs both checks and stripes are combined. Following closely in the lead of taffeta are messaline, faille, figured and dotted foulard, crepe de Chine, silk voile, chiffon crepe and Georgette crepe.

The illustration shown here is typical of the simplicity of the present styles. The dress of checked taffeta has a gored skirt with panel front and back, and of course it would not be complete without the large patch pockets on either side of the front, for pockets are as popular as ever in spite of their having been in fashion so long. In the waist, the panel gradually tapers up toward the neck, where it is met by a collar of Georgette crepe, which ripples at the back though the front is quite flat. Chiffon net or organdy is often substituted for Georgette crepe in fashioning collars for this type of dress. The only trimming in this model is seen in the buttons on either side of the panel. The color harmonises with the dress.

AN ANXIOUS TIME FOR ALL PARENTS

Children Often Seem to Pine Away and Ordinary Medicine Does Not Help Them.

The health of children between the ages of twelve and eighteen years, particularly in the case of girls, is a source of serious worry to nearly every mother. The growth and development takes so much of their strength that in many cases they actually seem to be going into a decline. The appetite is fickle, brightness gives way to depression, there are headaches, fits of dizziness, palpitation of the heart at the least exertion, and sometimes fainting. The blood has become thin and watery and the sufferer must have something that will bring the blood back to its normal condition. At this stage no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their whole mission is to make new, rich blood which reaches every part of the body, bringing back health, strength and energy. Miss Helena Taylor, West Toronto, says: "Two years ago I was so badly run down with anaemia that some of my friends did not believe I would get better. I could not go upstairs without stopping to rest, suffered from headaches, loss of appetite, and for two months of the time was confined to the house. I was under the care of a doctor, but the medicine I took did not help me in the least. A friend advised my mother to give me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I did not expect they would help me after the doctor's medicine had failed, I thought they might be worth trying. After taking two boxes there was such a marked change for the better that people asked me if I had changed doctors, and I readily told them the medicine that was helping me. I continued taking the pills until I had used eight boxes, when my health was fully restored, and I have since enjoyed the best of health. I hope my experience may be the means of convincing some sickly person that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can restore them to health."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

A Foul Breath and its Cause: —(From Ideal Life.) "Few things are more offensive than a foul breath. The possessor of an offensive breath should leave no stone unturned until the cause is removed. There is always a cause for such a condition, and the skilful physician can find it. It may be located in the nose, the teeth, the tonsils, the stomach, or in the body generally. A single decayed tooth may cause a very foul breath. An ulcer of the nose or even a catarrhal condition of the nose may produce it. The foul breath of the fever patient is well known.

Many a time foul breath is caused by poisons being locked up in the system. Constipation may be the source; so may an obstructive condition of the skin. That onions will produce a foul breath is a notorious fact but it is not so well known that other articles of food may be the source of other offensive odors from the breath and from the body in general. Many persons do not know that these conditions are removable.

Certain constitutional diseases, especially Syphilis, may produce a very foul odor. Some people are afflicted with offensive sweating of the feet, which does not yield to frequent washing. Most of these cases can be cured by some very simple remedies taken internally. Other persons have very offensive perspiration from the armpits. This also will often yield to simple remedies administered internally."

Baby Feeding Hints: "Baby is often thirsty and not hungry. A baby is 85 per cent. water and only 15 per cent. solid.

If baby's stool is green and there is colic, give some cereal food preparation for 24 hours. Usually in that time or within 36 hours at most, the stool will become normal.

If the baby's food comes up yellowish there is too much cream in the food. If it comes up curdled there is too much milk in the food. Cut down the amount of milk temporarily a half by adding water, and subtracting milk. If the bowels are constipated add more cream to the food. The tendency of mother or nurse is to feed the baby too often. If the baby is fed every three hours right on the minute missing one feed at night it will be easier for all.

If the baby becomes chafed and the skin is raw the cause is overfeeding or the washing of the diapers in harsh soap or it is because the nurse has allowed the diapers to remain wet on the child for a long time."

Dear Doctor: I have a little girl about a year old and both of her eyes are very crossed. They both turn in. What would you advise doing?

Over a year ago my husband was thrown off a horse and landed on his back. For three or four weeks it bothered and pained him, then it got quite a bit bitter but every little while it troubles him. A short time ago, while loading grain in the wagon, the pain came on all at once and he could hardly walk to the house. He was in bed for a week. When we had a doctor in he said there was quite a deformity left in the back, and that the muscles had become afflicted and he thought the sinews had been torn away from the back. He was hurt just below the waist line, two or three inches. When he does not need to work very hard his back does not trouble him nearly so much. It is hard not to over work on a farm. Can you tell of anything that would help to make the back strong. What will cure Sciatica in a young man when it is just starting? He has it badly.

Mrs. H. S.

Answer: It happens quite frequently that babies are cross eyed, but frequently they grow out of it. There is nothing to do for it now. Under no circumstances should any surgery be used, at least not for 4 or 5 years. There is a very simple operation that can be performed by any skilful oculist which is not in the least painful or dangerous, but it should under no circumstance be allowed before the child is 5 or 6 years old. In the meantime it would be well for you to try to correct this irregularity yourself. Twice daily for a few minutes at a time you should hold your forefingers together before the baby's eyes a few inches distant. Gradually and very slowly draw them apart and endeavor to have the child's eyes closely fixed on the fingers all the time. This may not perhaps be done in the beginning but the child will soon understand it and after a while she will do it without persuasion. This exercise is very simple but it has in many cases succeeded in gradually overcoming cross-eyedness.

In your husband's case I am satisfied that osteopathy would be of the greatest help and especially if the muscles or the sinews are sore. If there is a good osteopath in your neighborhood by all means secure his services. Even a few treatments would undoubtedly do him much good. The Home Health Club method of treatment for Lumbago explained in Vol. II. would also benefit him greatly. There is a possibility of the kidneys being affected in some way and if so proper treatment must be given.

In the case of the young man having Sciatic, the pains can be allayed, at least to a very great extent by employing heat. In fact heat will give relief from almost any neuralgic pains if it can be applied in sufficient strength. Wet and dry heat are both effective and in the book above referred to their application is explained under the heading of Neuralgia and Hot Fomentations. A good stimulating liniment should be applied very thoroughly over the affected parts. He should also pay a great deal of attention to the digestive organs and see to it that the bowels move regularly. The affected parts could be wrapped in cotton, as this would allay pain. Absolute quiet is also needed in some cases. The diet should be extremely light. Excesses of all kinds must be avoided. A liniment consisting of tinctures of Lobelia, Mullein and Lady-slipper, each two ounces and tincture of Capsicum, four drams, is excellent for the above purpose. It can be easily secured from almost any druggist.

Safe Milk Foods for Baby's Summer Dietary

The cow's milk sold in towns and cities is so likely to contain harmful bacteria, particularly in hot weather, that it is recognised as unsafe for Baby unless it has been pasteurised. Yet ordinary pasteurising makes the curd-forming portions of the milk tough and indigestible for his little stomach.

The Allenburys Foods are prepared from fresh, clean milk, modified scientifically to the composition of mother's milk, and evaporated to dryness at a heat sufficient to destroy bacteria, but not high enough to lessen its digestibility.

Milk Food No. 1.
is suited to the first three months of baby's life.

Milk Food No. 2.

Malted Food No. 3. is what he needs from that time onward until he can take solid food.

THE SOLDIER'S WIFE

I had not got far on my country ramble before the landscape darkened suddenly and I saw the great purple clouds were rolling up. Then there was a low growl of thunder, and all in a moment huge rain-drops began to splash about me. I looked round rather helplessly, and then, at a turn of the road, came face to face with a comfortable workman's cottage which a strip of garden divided from the highway. The thunder growled again and the rain began to come faster, and a woman with a smiling face came running through the cottage door to take down some clothes that were hanging in the little garden. "Going to be a storm," she observed cheerfully. "I fear so," I said, "and I'm rather far from shelter." "Perhaps you'd like to come in and sit down a bit till it's over," she invited promptly, and a bright flash of lightening and upon it an instant peal made me glad to find this port in a storm. In the cottage I looked round in some surprise at the new, veneered furniture, the smart-looking carpets, and multitude of what-not knick-knacks. There were the remains of a meal on the table—and it looked as though it had been far from a frugal one. From the back kitchen I heard the shouts of children, and my hostess's first act was to run to shut the communicating door. Then she invited me to sit in a gaudily-upholstered chair from which she disturbed a short-haired terrier. Thunder pealed again, but it was further away and already the darkness was lifting. I found myself listening meanwhile to a not unfamiliar tale of a husband who had been over a year at the war, of a family of eight children, the three eldest of whom were now earning money, and of a sister living in the house and receiving a liberal wage at a munition works. "How glad you'll be to see your husband back safe and sound," I said conventionally enough. "Glad to know he's safe and well," said my hostess heartily, "but you don't think the war's going to be over yet?" "Not just yet, I fear," I told her. "Then if it is I'm thinking they'll have to let a lot of our soldiers stop in Germany a bit for there'll be no trusting the Kaiser and all that lot, whatever they say they'll agree to." "Then I'm afraid you don't want your husband home just yet," I said. "I'm sure I don't wish him no harm," was the strange reply, given with great fervour, "but, you see, this separation allowance lets you buy a bit. And I'm working odd days for the farm, and my sister's earning good money and doesn't mind spending it, and before the war my husband was only taking a pound a week, and leaving a good lot of it at the Blue Lion." I looked around at all the gaudy new furniture, and understood the situation. And the impression of my survey was quickly grasped. "My sister wants a piano," I was told, "but we can't afford it yet. But we've got a gramophone—perhaps you'd like to hear it. It'll play "Tipperary" just lovely." But the sun was shining again, and, leaving a little present to be divided among the merry crowd in the back kitchen, I went on my way.

The latest weight reducing feat for New York girl swimmers is the making of the letter "U."

Among the interesting discoveries made during the recent convention of the National Education Association, in New York, was the fact that four have women superintendents of public instruction.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRTWAIST

By Anabel Worthington

7899

No matter which way the sartorial wind blows in fashions each succeeding season finds the separate blouse as interesting as it was the previous one. In the design pictured extreme comfort is given expression; the illustration shows a very likable type of "sport blouse."

The square collar, reaching to the shoulders, shows that designers are always delving after novelties; a wide band of striped material in contrasting color gives the snap or dash that a sport waist must show, and the short sleeve has an ornamental cuff to harmonize. If the wrist length sleeve is preferred, a band cuff with a narrow turnover is best. A single fancy button put through a braid loop tells that the closing is at front.

Pongee, poplin, linen, silk, cotton voile, cotton crepe, madras and similar fabrics can be counted upon for the best results. Just looking at the picture will convince one that it is no puzzle to make the garment. With a striped linen skirt to combine with this waist a very serviceable and stylish sport dress may be made.

The pattern, No. 7,899, is cut in sizes 36 to 42 bust. To make in size 36 will require 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material, ⅝ yard contrasting goods, 27 inches wide.

You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

ENLISTING ROMANCES

Answered Call of Empire From Across the World

That the Germans calculated on Britain's colonies, at any rate, partly failing in regard to munitions and men is an undisputed fact, and it must be with the greatest chagrin that they read that Canada alone was contributing 500,000 men and Australia 300,000 —a wonderful testimony to the patriotic spirit which binds them to the Motherland. From all outposts of the Empire men hastened to shoulder a rifle when war alarms sounded, giving up lucrative posts and in some cases travelling thousands of miles to the nearest recruiting station in order that they might "do their bit" for the old country. Perhaps the most remarkable romance of recruiting is that afforded by the case of John Eaton, who worked for the Hudson Bay Company among the Eskimos, and who was so isolated from the rest of the world that he did not hear of the war until August of 1915. When he did so, he at once decided to come back to the old country and answer the call for men. He reached his home in Edinburgh, and enlisted. Many thousand of miles, too, were travelled by a Scottish ship's captain, who presented himself at the Newcastle office for enlistment in the Tyneside Scottish Brigade. This captain was the owner of the schooner trading among the South Sea Islands, and, leaving his wife and his possessions in the Pacific, he travelled home via Japan and Russia to enlist.

Paper as Soldiers' Coal

In all the big cities of Italy there have been established bands of boys and girls who go round and collect all the paper they can find. These are brought to establishments where other boys and girls, under the direction of women teachers, turn these papers into solid rolls and sections, afterwards cut into chunks. These are packed into individual bags and distributed among the soldiers in the Alps, mountains. In case a soldier desires to have a little hot soup or coffee he takes out three or four pieces of "coal paper," and his hot meal is soon ready.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past seventy years, and has had such great success in curing all bowel complaints that many firms have undertaken to provide a substitute for it, even going so far as to use a similar name.

What to Use and Avoid On Faces That Perspire

Skin, to be healthy, must breathe. It also must perspire—must expel, through the pores, its share of the body's waste material. Certain creams and powders clog the pores, interfering both with elimination and breathing, especially during the heated period. If more women understood this, there would be fewer self-ruined complexion. If they would use ordinary mercolized wax they would have healthy complexions. This remarkable substance actually absorbs a bad skin, also unclogging the pores. Result: The fresher, younger under-skin is permitted to breathe and to show itself. The exquisite new complexion gradually peers out, one free from any appearance of artificiality. Obtain an ounce of mercolized wax from your druggist and try it. Apply nightly like cold cream, for a week or two, washing it off mornings.

To remove wrinkles, here's a marvelously effective treatment, which also acts naturally and harmlessly: Dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel and use as a wash lotion.

QUARANTINE NOT NEEDED

Britain Will Take No Steps Against New York Paralysis Epidemic

LONDON, Aug. 16—No special steps are considered by the British Government to be necessary in connection with the epidemic of infantile paralysis in New York, according to a statement by Walter Hume Long, president of the local Government oBard, in the House of Commons today. Proposals have been made to enforce a quarantine against the disease on ships from New York.

Mr. Long, who made his statement in reply to a question by Carlyon W. Bellairs, Unionist member for Maidstone, said the Government was fully acquainted with the facts regarding the epidemic in the United States. The disease, he added, had been known here for a considerable period and the ordinary administration machinery for the protection of this country was adequate.

WAR PROFITEES THRIVE

Dye Makers Among Business Men Who Reaped Largely

An English newspaper lists war profits as follows: Button making continues to be one of the most profitable war time industries. A Birmingham company which makes a specialty of these articles paid a dividend of 25 per cent., the net profit for 1915 being $315,885, compared with $194,400 in 1914. The Barrow Hematite Steel Company, like other undertakings of its kind, had a good account to give of itself for the year 1915. Whereas the net earnings of the previous year were only $8,310, the profits for 1915 work out at no less than $298,410. In the dyeing industry extraordinary profits have also been made. One Manchester firm of dye makers has in a year made a profit of $400,000 on a capital of $450,000, enabling it to distribute a dividend of 30 per cent. on its ordinary shares. Another Yorkshire dye company raised its profit from £40,000 in the year before the war to £150,000 during the first year of war.

Inventions by Women

Among the war inventions is a combination glove and mitten. When the soldier desires to use his fingers the glove can be pulled back to form the mitten. Another is a collapsible bedstead, which can be carried in a soldier's knapsack. For the wounded there are adjustable crutches, which fit persons of any height. All these have been patented by women.

German Submarines Defied

Despite the perils of submarine warfare 400,000 persons crossed the Atlantic between America and European ports as passengers in 1915, 250,000 in allied vessels.

Record Medical Fee

It is announced that Dr. Israel, the surgeon who operated on the Sultan of Turkey received a fee of $30,000, plus $6,250 for expenses.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it formed stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

PATRIOTISM

Patriotism, like Charity, should begin at home. The man who is willing at any time to protect his country against foreign foes should be willing AT ALL TIMES to protect his Family against such common foes as Poverty, Privation and Suffering.

A Life Insurance Company cannot take the place of a Husband.

BUT---

It can preserve the family from want.
It can lighten their load of care.
It can build a barrier against adversity.
It can strengthen the foundation of the home.
It can certify to a man's affectionate regard for his family.
It can place his widow beyond the need of carrying for support.
It can add to a man's years by freeing him from anxiety.
It can enhance the respect and esteem of the public and of his wife and children for him.

Complete and absolute Family protection may be had by your taking a policy in THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA—The LEADING CANADIAN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

INEZ HERRARA

A Story of Old Mexico

By F. A. MITCHEL

In the early part of the nineteenth century Don Manuel Herrara, a grandee of Spain, suddenly sold all his effects in that country and set sail for Mexico. The reason for this change of residence was that Don Manuel's daughter, Ines, a girl of fifteen, had become infatuated with Jose Alvarez, a young man whose reputation was none of the best. Alvarez, though but twenty-five years of age, had already been a leader of several uprisings against the government, and his methods indicated not only a turbulent disposition, but that he was conscienceless. By changing his residence from the old to the new world Don Manuel hoped to rid his daughter of such a suitor.

Don Manuel, on arriving in Mexico, purchased a ranch in the state of Durango, near the base of the Sierra Madre chain of mountains. On the property he built a handsome residence and became an influential citizen of the country. His wife, who had been loath to quit Spain, left her heart there. But Inez took kindly to the new country. Young as she was, she had had no taste of the formal life led by the higher classes in Spain and delighted in the freedom she was accorded in Mexico.

Ines had not been in her new home long before she was considered the best horsewoman in the state. She grew very fond of hunting and, though living in a country always more or less subject to lawlessness, did not fear to go anywhere alone. This her father permitted because he could not prevent it, though so great was her popularity among those living in the vicinity of her home that he felt she was always in a measure protected. Added to this, she was always well armed.

Among Ines's many suitors was Miguel Coral, a young man who had when he came of age inherited a hacienda near that of the Herraras. He was as much in favor with Don Manuel as Jose Alvarez had been in disfavor. Coral was the soul of honor, and Don Miguel did not hesitate to trust Ines with him anywhere. Time and absence seemed to have cured her of her infatuation for Jose. At any rate she never mentioned him and turned a not unwilling ear to Miguel. In the hunting season Inez was fond of riding up among the foothills of the mountains for game, and Miguel was often her attendant on these excursions. This was permitted not because Mexican etiquette allowed a young girl to go off with a man alone, but because Inez had a code of etiquette of her own. What she did another could not do, and much of what others did she disdained to do, for keeping girls under watch tends to make them deceitful.

When the Herraras had lived in Mexico eight years and soon after a revolution which had been unsuccessful, the Sierra Madre mountains became the lair of a band of robbers, who made occasional descents upon the people of Durango, each time carrying off booty or levying contributions of money. Every ranch or hacienda that was worth plundering except that of Don Manuel Herrara was robbed. Why he was left immune while others far less promising of plunder were attacked was a mystery.

One thing, and one only, was known about the band. It was composed of persons that had been engaged in the unsuccessful recent revolution in the City of Mexico. It was reported that their leader had been one of the lieutenants of the leader of the insurgents, and some said that he was the leader himself. At any rate but few of the insurgents were captured; but, being hunted for their lives, most of them took to inaccessible points and lived by robbery.

In the autumn Ines was eager to go up into the hunting grounds. Her father objected to her going. The lair of the robbers was supposed to be in the region where she usually hunted, but they had been quiet for some time, and it was surmised that, having gained all they could get from Durango, they had gone elsewhere. Ines, who seemed to have a fancy for danger, started on horseback one morning alone to spend the day at her favorite sport. Besides her rifle she carried pistols in her holster and a knife.

Having attained considerable height, she was riding on a plateau when she met a horseman coming toward her. He was dressed in the costume of a Mexican gentleman, including the gaudy trappings. Bringing her rifle to a position which would enable her to use it readily, Inez rode on. The man drew rein a few paces from the point of meeting. She, too, stopped.

What was her astonishment to recognize Jose Alvarez. He had changed somewhat in his appearance since their separation, but not from age. That devil may care look that had fascinated her when she had scarcely budded into womanhood had become intensified. And Inez saw what she was blind to then—the spirit of evil in him.

"What are you doing here?" she asked, biting her lip to maintain her courage.

"I came here because you are here. I cannot live without you."

His voice was soft and smooth, that same voice in which he had made love to her in Spain. It caused her bosom to rise and fall more quickly than from fear.

"You have lived eight years without me."

"You were a child when we parted. I could not rely on one so young. Now you are a woman."

"As a woman I shall not act as a child."

"Then you no longer love me?"

She hesitated. She did not know whether she did or did not. Her heart was fluttering.

"You are mine. You were born to be mine. You shall be mine."

There was something in his looks, his tone of voice, when he said this that excited not exactly fear, but a realization that she had to deal with one who might make trouble for others, if not herself. She was drawing quicker breaths, but said nothing. Emboldened by her silence, he continued:

"I am going with you to your father to demand your hand."

"And suppose he refuses you?"

"You will not fail me."

Ines felt that this was an evasion. Something in the man told her that he was changed from what she had believed him to be when she was a girl. He had been sinking morally from what he had been then, and though she knew nothing of this descent she felt the difference. She was not afraid of him for herself, but for others. The image of Miguel Coral came up before her, and between him and this man she had loved so passionately she saw a great difference. She dreaded a meeting between them. She concluded to show Jose that all was over between him and her, trusting that he would leave her and those she feared for in peace.

"Jose," she said, "my love for you was that of a child. As a woman I will never be yours. I am going home. Goodby."

She said this resolutely, at the same time riding on. She did not look back. Had she done so she would have seen him start to follow her, then change his mind and turn away.

When a bad man, a reckless man, is in love there is no knowing what he will do. We constantly read in the daily journals of such men killing the women they love, then themselves. Jose Alvarez's love that had been no great passion for the child was fanned into a flame at meeting her again as a woman. He cared nothing for his life, and he was ready to take any chance to gain his ends. It was his disposition to do desperate deeds that had fascinated her as a child. He believed that he could play the same game with her as a woman.

One day Don Manuel, his wife, his daughter and others of the household were sitting on the veranda of the house when a horseman rode up to the gate, dismounted and came up the walk to the house. Inez recognized Jose Alvarez at once. The others did not recognize him till he had reached the veranda and, holding his conical hat in his hand, thus addressed Don Manuel:

"Senor, I am Jose Alvarez. When your daughter was budding into womanhood you refused her to me. Now that she is a woman and capable of deciding for herself I have come again to ask you for her."

"There is no need," said Inez, rising and confronting him, "for you to ask my father for me, for you have my own answer refusing you."

It was evident that his bold stroke was not successful. But he had not hoped for success at once. He was about to speak again when all were startled by a shot. Alvarez paused and clapped his hand to a pistol at his side. From every direction men were seen converging upon the house. When they came nearer all were seen to be carrying rifles in a position for immediate use. In advance of the others was Miguel Coral, and he seemed to be their leader.

Alvarez understood what this meant, though the others with him did not. He knew that it was a matter of life and death with him or rather the kind of a death he should die, for if these men who were coming took him—and their taking him was inevitable—he would be executed for a felon, and he was thinking of taking his own life. Raising a pistol to his head, he looked a farewell to Ines. That look prevented his intended action. Don Manuel, who was now beside him and slightly in his rear, knocked the weapon from his hand.

Those coming closed in on Alvarez and seized him.

"What does it all mean?" asked Don Manuel.

"This man," replied Miguel, "recently led a revolution in the City of Mexico to depose the president and put himself in his place. The movement was a lamentable failure, but its leader escaped and with a number of his men took to the mountains above us, and it is they who have been robbing us. Recently I organized a force to hunt them down. We were in the mountains watching an opportunity to bag them when one of our men saw this one about to descend the mountain and recognized him, having been robbed by him. We followed him and tracked him here."

"What are you going to do with him?" asked Inez excitedly.

"Take him to the capital."

"Jose," she continued, "if I can save you will you promise to quit Mexico never to return?"

"Inez," said her father sternly, "you cannot save him;" then to the others, "Take him away."

Alvarez was taken to Mexico, where he was executed by the garrote. Most of his band, deprived of their leader, were captured. Inez was kept in ignorance of the fate of the man she formerly loved. Indeed, she never asked what had become of him, for she married Miguel Coral.

BRITISH HAD TOO MUCH ARTILLERY SAYS PRISONER

(By Wilbur G. Forrest, United Press Staff Correspondent.

British Base Hospital, Northern France, July 21.—(By mail to New York.)—"The war will end early in 1917. Which side will win? Germany will win, of course."

A wounded officer of the noted Prussian guard made this assertion to the United Press to-day. The words came between big bites of thick white bread, laid sandwich-like over a heavy spread of real butter and orange marmalade. The officer was hungry. With about 200 comrades he had just arrived from the scene of the big British offensive. He had been nipped in the leg by shrapnel. His wound did not deter him from verbal optimism. But he was greatly thankful for the neat hospital cot and the treatment that he was receiving.

"Why were you taken prisoner?" he was asked.

TOO MUCH ARTILLERY.

"The British had too much artillery for us," was the reply. "Their fire was stronger than ours, and we were cut off. We had plenty of food but no water. We had to surrender."

This officer spoke excellent English. He learned it in a German school. He was under 30, and a perfect specimen of manhood.

"How long have you been at the front?" he was asked.

"Twenty-two months," he replied with pride. "I've been in Poland, Galicia, Champagne, Verdun and at Contalmaison and Mametz Wood. I was captured at Mametz Wood. For five days my division was cut off by the British artillery. A trip to the rear for water was death. Long range guns were plying streams of steel on the lines between us and the rear. Shorter range guns were doing the same in front. At night we could crawl to the shell holes and drink the water gathered there but it was very risky and the water did not last."

Despite his wound and the fact he was a prisoner, the Prussian could not conceal an air of "cockiness."

THIS IS FUNNY.

"Germany will win the war," he added in his slow, careful English. "We have the men, the guns and the material. But I think it will last another year."

"What about the food situation in Germany?"

"Food is very short now, but there is enough to last until the harvest. Then we will have plenty. We are not worrying."

Discussion of the possible duration of the war led the wounded German to a denunciation of the United States.

"You Americans are responsible for the long war that Germany is having," he said bitterly. "The war would have been over in a year if you Americans had not sold munitions to England."

"But Germany might have bought munitions from America as well as England. Perhaps the British fleet was partly to blame?"

"Yes," was the response, "but we blame the United States more."

PRIVATE PRAISED BRITISH.

Neither the Prussian officer nor his comrades had heard about the exploit of the German submarine Deutschland. The details interested them intensely.

Pte. Gerhard ——, of Prussian Guard Regiment No. ——, was just as confident as his officer about the outcome of the war but unlike the officer, was willing to give hearty praise to the fighting British "Tommies."

SHE GAINED 35 POUNDS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Marlowe, Ont. writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy, and nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was in fact, a chronic invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up, but by using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 35 pounds in

THE IMPOSSIBLE IS COMMONPLACE FOR THE ITALIANS

For instance, Here's How 6,000 Climbed Down Cliff and Took Austrian Rock Trench at Midnight, a Feat Thought Beyond Reason

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY IN THE TRENTINO, Aug. 12—This is the story of a fight that has never been duplicated in all the world. There have been other fights—greater fights, more important fights. But surely never since fighting came into fashion have six thousand men stolen down a mountain side in the dead of night armed only with hand grenades and knives, "to clean" an enemy out of his trenches.

"This is the way my boys do things" said the general who told me the story. "They are good boys. The Austrians cannot stand before them."

We are sitting in an observation platform high above the Valley of the Lagarina. Two days before the Austrians had been driven across the valley by the general's troops. They had not been driven far. Even as we talked their guns spoke from the mountain summits which overtopped us, and we could see the white and yellow clouds where their shells were falling in the Italian lines. But they were still going. That day the Italian troops had occupied one of these summits we were watching. The night before they had captured a fort a few miles further down the valley.

Any story of the fighting in these Dolomite Alps must have as a motive the incredible difficulties of the ground over which the Italians are hammering their foe. The Valley of the Lagarina at this point is perhaps two miles wide. The valley itself is a green and smiling meadow; rimmed on either side by wide benches on which in other summers the peasants pastured their herds. Above this pasture is a belt of woodland, the roots of the trees fastened among the great stones t aptahev wabigk qonfiq great stones that pave a hillside steep enough to test the lungs of a goat. Above them the cliffs rise as precipitously as church steeples. Their tops stand out as sharp and clear cut against the afternoon light as though they were of broken glass. It was from these spiky hilltops the Austrians were first driven.

They established themselves on the bench below. There they were unassailable. The inclination of the hillside was so steep, the mountain summits were so directly overhead, that the muzzles of the guns the Italians mounted there could not be depressed sufficiently to reach the trenches. The Austrians sat in security. It was obvious they could not be shelled until some distant hilltop was taken by assault, on which guns could be mounted, and from which the new position could be shelled.

"You see the evidence," said the general. "Look at the valley through your glasses."

Sure enough. At a distance from the line of the trenches once occupied by the Austrians were scores of pits where shells had fallen. The Italians had been vigorous but unavailing. The missiles had screamed overhead and fallen on unoccupied ground. Rifle fire against trenches blasted out of the solid rock is merely ridiculous. Machine gun fire is as bad. The Italians had thrust the muzzles of mule-guns over the edges of the cliffs they held, because mule-guns can be mounted on a ceiling if need be. But mule-guns against such trenches might be the dribbling of water on a duck's back.

"There was but one way we could take the trenches," said the general. "That was by assault. It was necessary that we take them."

So that one night six thousand Italian soldiers received an armful each of hand grenades. They were already provided with trench knives—long, heavy backed, edged affairs that go through a man's flesh as through the leather of an old boot. The attack was set for midnight. Most of the men slept quietly until that hour for they were very tired from five days' continuous marching and fighting. On the stroke of the clock—if there has been a clock—the sergeant shook them into wakefulness.

"We go forward now," whispered the sergeants.

The first of the task that confronted the Italians was to clamber down a rock wall—it would be like climbing down the side of the Singer Building in New York if that building had been canted at an angle of forty degrees—in darkness and silence. Through the glasses from the other side of the valley the job seemed impossible. A man might do it in safety at night, if permitted full license of swearing, and if no one cared how many loose stones rattled into the valley. Both were forbidden. In full daylight and in utter calm that assignment was impracticable. The Alpina did it at midnight.

The Austrians had not suspected anything. They had the usual sentries out, however, and that was the only precaution needed, for the soldier wakes very quickly when the alarm is sounded. These outposts were stationed in the belt of forest that ran about the feet of the precipitous cliffs. One by one they were silenced. This was not done in quiet, for many were able to fire their rifles, and some shouted when the knife went in, and others stumbled frantically through the darkness, among the trees, down the steep hill, yelling an alarm. The Austrians in the trenches stood to their rifles. Even yet, apparently, they had not awakened to what was going on. They fired in desultory fashion. There was no volley firing and no machine-gun activity. They did not think an attack in force possible. The Italians massed in the edge of the back wood.

"Now, go," whispered some one. The general I suspect but he did not say so. A whistle shrilled. The Alpina ran forward, stumbling, cheering, cursing, down this unknown hillside in the utter blackness of a moonless night. Not a man threw a bomb until he was within throwing distance of the enemy. As each pulled himself up, panting, on the edge of the Austrian trench he stood there and hurled bombs as though at practice.

"Then they went in with knives. The Austrians stampeded."

I confessed to a certain sneaking sympathy with the Austrians. They had not expected this sort of thing, you see. They had not believed that men could do it. They had been awakened by the noise in the wood, and doubtless grumbled under their breath at the sergeants who forced them out of their blankets and made them stand to their guns. They probably thought the sentries had taken to ghost-dancing, or that a few adventurous Alpini had organized a scalp-hunting expedition of their own. They could not have dreamed of an attack in force. And then the night parted, and vomited six thousand screaming men, each lustful for slaughter, for an inherited and acquired hatred of the Austrian is very real in the Italian army. Each bomb as it exploded glashed red against the solid black wall of mountain.

"The roar of the hand grenades was deafening. But it did not last long. No man, you see, can carry much of a load of bombs."

Then the Italians went in with knives.

Quackery and Corns

Hundreds of treatments have been offered for corns.

Some were sedatives to quiet pain. Some were acids, harsh and risky. Some mere quackery.

But one man—a famous chemist—studied corns for 25 years. And finally discovered Blue-jay.

That is now the standard treatment, gentle, certain, scientific. It is used on a million corns monthly.

It has stopped the corn pain instantly, 70 million times. It has ended the corns completely within 48 hours, in 91 per cent of the cases. The others take a little longer.

Stop paring corns. Stop treating them in wrong ways. Use Blue-jay, and that ends them in a gentle, easy way. Prove that tonight.

SANITY OF SAVING.

The opinions of William H. Osborn, United States Commissioner of International Revenue, on saving, are quoted in the August American Magazine.

"'People get rich in two ways;' he says. 'The minority through skill and success in investments and trading; the majority through systematic saving of small sums. I know a man who just before he was to be married, twenty years ago, lost all he had, and went $11,000 in debt on a business deal. He gave his intended bride a chance to release herself.

"'I think you can get on your feet again,' she told him. 'I'm willing to take a chance.'

"'All right,' he said, 'get into the boat with me.'

"And they were married.

"The bride got a cigar box and cut a hole in the top of the lid. She called it her 'furniture box,' and into it went all the dimes and quarters she didn't really need. Soon she had enough to furnish a home.

"But she didn't quit saving. She kept right on until she had $2,000. With this she bought a piece of land, which she later sold for $3,000. The fund kept growing, and she kept making more investments. To-day she has money and property in her own name valued at upwards of $40,000.

"I know of many more cases just like that. It's a law of business that invariably succeeds.

"My advice to every young man is to start a savings fund and put into it a definite part of what he makes. When the total runs to $500 or more he should invest it in something which brings more interest than he can get from a savings bank, yet is safe. If he keeps on in this way, he will be independent when he gets old enough to quit work."

SHOT ON STREET BY WIFE.

Five Bullets Fired Into Head of Mount Clemens Hotel Clerk.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Aug. 18.—Roy Pettit, 35 years of age, was shot and killed by his wife on a downtown street. Dozens of persons saw the tragedy.

Pettit, who was night clerk at a local hotel, was stopped on the street by his wife, who fired five bullets into his head. After she was arrested, Mrs. Pettit declared she killed her husband "because he sought the company of others too much."

Child Drowned Mother Lost Hold

SARNIA, Aug. 18.—The five-months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. George Clydesdale of Froomefield, was drowned in the St. Clair River last night, when their launch caught fire as a result of an explosion from the exhaust. The Clydesdales had driven up to an Indian reserve, where the husband who is a farmer, had some business to transact. While he was in the house of one of the Indians, the wife continued to drive the launch up and down the river. When the explosion occurred Mrs. Clydesdale jumped into the river with her baby, but in her battle for life lost her hold on the child, which sank. The husband succeeded in getting the wife to safety, while the launch, which was not seriously damaged, drifted ashore further down the river. A large steamer which was passing by gave distress signal which attracted Mr. Clydesdale to the scene. The Captain then lowered a lifeboat, and would probably have saved the mother and child had the former been able to realize that the fire was not serious.

BUCKMASTER GETS $50,000 PER ANNUM

Lord Buckmaster, the Lord Chancellor, who has been urging everybody to economize and save all they can in war time, is one of the most important men in the Cabinet, for it is through him that King George signifies his consent to anything signed in his name.

The Lord Chancellor is technically "the Keeper of the King's Conscience," advising His Majesty in regard of signing all State documents. Futrehermore, the Lord Chancellor, is the custodian of the Great Seal which figures on these documents. The Seal is kept in an elaborate purse made of the finest purple velvet, heavily embroidered in colored silks with the Arms of England—the lion and the unicorn, surmounted by the Imperial crown. Below is worked in the silk a motto in Latin meaning "For God and My Country".

A "QUEENLY" CHANCELLOR

It is on interesting fact that the Lord Chancellor takes precedence of every temporal Lord and anyone who is not a member of the Royal family, and of all Bishops except the Archbishop of Canterbury.

An interesting confession was made by Lord Buckmaster on one occasion to Mrs. Alec Tweedie, who relates the incident in her recently-published reminiscences, "My Tablecloths". "The most interesting thing about the office," said Lord Buckmaster, in a note to Mrs. Tweedie "is that it was held by a woman. Queen Eleanor, when her husband went to the wars. The result was disastrous, as feminine justice did not appear to agree with the proud stomachs of the city."

The appointment of Lord Buckmaster to the Chancellorship in 1914 astonished a good many people, for his promotion to the highest position on the Bench with $50,000 a year came after only two years as one of the Law Officers of the Crown. Lord Buckmaster, however, was before his appointment as Solicitor-General in 1913, one of the leaders of the Chancery Bar, where he had a very large practice. For some years he was a Chancery "Special". "Specials" do not appear for a lower fee than 100 guineas.

YOUTHFUL DIGNITY.

His Lordship, who is fifty-five years of age, is famous for his energy and youthful appearance. He only looks about thirty-five and it is related that on one occasion a client remarked, "It's a nice fee". But after Lord Buckmaster had won his case for his client, the latter made a further observation: "There's no knowing what fee that young man will want when he reaches sixty."

Lord Buckmaster however, has known the rough and ready life of the junior barrister who practises in the county courts for the small fees. When briefs of his own were scarce, he "devilled" for busier friends, doing their work cheerfully and well. Undoubtedly his energy and industry have been the secret of his wonderful success. Futrehermore, he is held in high esteem for his personal qualities and when his legal duties permit him to do so, there is nothing gives the Chancellor great pleasure than to hie himself to the country with a fishing rod and spend hours on the river side.

Clinging lines are emphasised in the new evening frocks, says New York, which also reports the revival of the train.

Instruction in the use of rifles had become quite a feature of the Washington University girls before College closed.

HEAVY GERMAN ASSAULTS REPULSED BY FRENCH

Enemy Resumes Fighting on the Verdun Battle Front

All German Counter Attacks Are Repulsed On The Western Front

Teutonic Forces Make a Desparate Effort to Recapture Positions Recently Won by the French--Enemy Suffered Heavy Losses Under French Machine Gun Fire---Three Hundred Unwounded Prisoners Captured --- French Troops Captured a Few Ruined Houses on the Outskirts of Fleury to Which the Germans Still Clung.

RUSSIANS REPULSE ENEMY ATTACKS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, Aug. 19.—(French Official)—The Germans entered a small element of French trench north of Maurepas in most violent counter attacks against all the newly won French positions north of the Somme last night, but at every other point were completely repulsed, it was officially announced to-day. On the Verdun front the French captured a few ruined houses on the outskirts of Fleury to which the Germans still clung. The German assaults north of the Somme reached their greatest violence between Maurepas and Clery. The Teutonic forces vainly attempted to expel the French from the outskirts of Maurepas and to throw back the French lines threatening to encircle the village. They suffered heavy losses under French machine gun fire. The French took fifty prisoners. South of the Somme artillery was most active in the region of Belloy-en-Sauterre, where the French have recently advanced their lines. The Germans resumed fighting on the northwestern front of Verdun last night with two grenade attacks against the French salient north of Avocourt, and against Hill 304. Both attacks were completely repulsed. The Germans were driven back to their trenches after suffering heavy losses.

Artillery was most active on the whole Verdun front. In Thursday and Friday's fighting the French captured 360 unwounded prisoners. Sergeant Guynemar of the French Flying Corps, brought down two German aeroplanes yesterday, making a total of fourteen he has shot down since the beginning of the war.

Giant Guns of the Allies Play an Important Part

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 19.—Giant sixteen-inch guns, outranging the famous German 42 centimetres, are playing a most important role in the Allied advance on both banks of the Somme. Despatches from the French front to-day revealed for the first time the presence of these new artillery monsters. Capable of throwing every two minutes a shell weighing nearly a ton, the new Allied cannons are blowing great holes in the German works and systematically levelling the fortified villages. An intense artillery battle in which the Allied guns of all calibres battered away at the German lines, preceded yesterday's gains in the fighting north of the Somme.

Russians Have Captured The Town of Toboly

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 19.—Heavy fighting has broken out on the Russian front east of Kovel, after a lull of several days, while the Russians pressed their advantage in Galicia and near the Carpathians. The War Office to-day announced that stubborn fighting was taking place along the Stokhod River. The Czar's troops broke through Austro-German positions and captured the Town of Toboly. A considerable advance was scored in this fighting. Further south near Svinichi the Russians repulsed eight desperate enemy attacks that followed a heavy bombardment in the Pripet marsh district northeast of Kovel. Russians captured enemy positions west of Lake Nobel in Cherviche River region.

British Have Advanced On a Two Mile Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 19.—The British have made another advance on a two-mile front to a depth of from two hundred to six hundred yards, it is officially announced this afternoon. This gain is from Highwood to the junction of the French and British lines.

The general British advance was made at various points along a six-mile front extending from a point northwest of Ovillers to the region of Guillemont. The most decisive gains were scored between Ovillers and Thiepval, where a forward rush of British deeply into the German lines around the salient at Thiepval.

Fighting In Mesopotamia

LONDON, August 19.—A renewal of the fighting in Mesopotamia in which the British defeated Turkish irregulars is reported in an official statement given out here to-day. British naval aeroplanes raided German ammunitions stations at Lichterveide in Belgium, thirteen miles southwest of Bruges yesterday, causing large fires, the War Office announced.

Enemy Night Attacks Repulsed

PETROGRAD, August 19.—The repulse of eight enemy night attacks in the region of Svinichi was announced by the War Office to-day. The assaults followed a heavy bombardment.

SEWER CONNECTIONS MUST BE PROVIDED

The Board of Health is preparing to make an example of some citizens who have ignored orders to provide their residences with sewer connections. Not only have they "hee-hawed" the idea, but they have gone around bragging about it, and that's where the Board's patience runs out, and it is prepared to hand out an exemplary wallop. Ten day notices were sent out to some of the negligent ones yesterday and these houses must be sewer connected within that time. To make sure of their ground, the Board yesterday decided to ask the City Solicitor for a statement of what action may be taken when citizens refuse to comply with orders issued in the interests of public health.

SERGT. KESLICK TO RECRUIT HERE FOR COBOURG BATTERY

The Cobourg Heavy Battery need only a few more men to complete their fifth overseas draft for the heavy artillery, and any men desirous of joining this branch of the service and wishing to get overseas at once, should apply to Officer Commanding, Cobourg Heavy Battery, Cobourg. Sergt. Harry Keslick of this battery, well known to baseball and travelling men of this district, will be in Peterborough Wednesday next, Aug. 23rd, and will give any information desired to those wishing to join the "heavies."

THE WEATHER

High temperature figures have been so common this summer that they often pass almost unnoticed. Yesterday's high figure was 91 deg., and Thursday's the same. To-day the figures will be about the same. Accompanying the heat is a clammy moist atmosphere which does not improve the conditions. It will be remembered that August of last year was one of the wettest on record. Thunder storm after thunder storm succeeded one another until the ground became boggy with the excessive rain. The contrast this August is marked.

PLENTY OF APPLES AND SMALL FRUIT ON TO-DAY'S MARKET

Butter Sold at Thirty-five Cents—Late Fruits are Beginning to Come in.

EARLY PLUMS

This morning's market was fairly large, both as regards the number of rural vendors and the proportion of local buyers.

The price of butter still hovers in the vicinity of 35 cents, while eggs were selling at a trifle higher than last week, 30 and 31 cents being asked to-day.

LOOK WHO'S HERE!

Corn made its appearance this morning, not a real large quantity but just enough to make purchasing it not an extravagance. It sold at 15 cents a dozen.

Huckleberries are still to be had at 15 cents a quart. Ted Crough of Warsaw, brought in his usual heavy consignment of the favorite berry. ment of the favourite berry.

Apples, cooking and eating, were sold at various prices, ranging all the way from 25 to fifty-five cents a peck. Duchess, Early Augusts and Red Astrachan were upon the apple market.

A few plumbs, including Fairbanks and 'gages were also to be had upon this morning's market.

NOTHING DOING AT THE POLICE COURT

Silence reigned supreme in the police court halls of justice this morning and there were no cases on hand when the hour for dispensing justice arrived.

A fine of two dollars and costs was paid over to the police treasury by a local man who sent in a plea of guilty to a charge of driving a horse whilst in a drunken condition.

POSITION TO BE SIMILAR TO THAT OF LORD DERBY

The government's new recruiting scheme will go into effect as soon as the machinery for its operation can be organized.

The order-in-council effecting the change provides for the appointment of a National Recruiting Director who will occupy a position practically similar to that held by Lord Derby in Britain.

For the present Col. McInnes, of the Militia Department Headquarters' Staff, will act as temporary recruiting director.

Mr. Smith is paralysed from the waist down. His home has been quarantined. Another case of the disease was reported to-day; Leslie, aged eight, son of John McBain, Margaret street, having been taken ill while on a visit at Belmont.

MAYOR DUFFUS URGES THAT ALL MILK BE TESTED

Matter Was Brought up at a Meeting of the Board of Health Which Was Held Yesterday Afternoon.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL

A revival of the testing of milk was promised at yesterday's Board of Health meeting. Dr. Amys stated the city had no laboratory and appliances for this purpose. Mayor Duffus suggested that he report to the Council regarding the equipment he needed, stating that it was very important that the city's milk supply should be regularly examined.

A report of the upkeep of the Queen Mary hospital, from the 1st of January to the 1st of August, was presented by City Treasurer Adams, as follows:

Drugs and medicines	$168.80
Groceries and provisions	647.53
Fuel	232.46
Light	35.86
Salaries	1428.93
Telephone	31.65
Water	45.00
Incidentals	310.38
Total	$2900.61

Appropriation, $4,400.00.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM ELECTROCUTION

Mr. Wm. B. Casey, an employee of the Dickson Co., had a close escape from receiving a severe electric shock yesterday afternoon in the basement of the Dickson store. Mr. Casey had gone downstairs in the dark to look over some goods which had been stored away, when in grasping the brass socket connected with the wiring system, he received a thrill which practically took him off his feet and rendered him powerless for some seconds. Mr. Casey was back on his feet in a few minutes and has no ill effects as the result of his shock. The damp condition of the atmosphere in the basement likely increased the induction of the current and made it so perceptible.

PETERBORO BANK CLEARINGS RECORD

Returns made to The Financial Post for the week ending August 17 of bank clearings, showed a gain for the whole Dominion of 51.2 per cent., the gain in the west being 126.1 per cent., and in the east 29.4 per cent. Large gains were again shown in the west, the city to register highest in being Winnipeg, with 203.1 per cent.; next came Edmonton with 125.1; Lethbridge 106.6; Medicine Hat 83.9; Calgary, 65.3; Brandon, 61.1; Saskatoon, 57.3; Regina, 54.1; and Moose Jaw 61.8 per cent. In the east, Peterborough led the way with a gain of 42.2, and the other cities to show substantial gains were Montreal, 33.9; Ottawa, 23.0; Toronto, 28.2; St. John 22.5; and Quebec, 20.9 per cent. For the year to date the gain for the Dominion was 44.7 per cent.

CITY WATER IS SHOWN TO BE CONTAMINATED

Following Report on Samples from Taps, Dr. Amys Advises That for Drinking Purposes it be Boiled Until Further Notice.

SOURCE OF POLLUTION

Dr. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, advises that the city water be boiled before using, until further notice.

At the Board of Health meeting, yesterday afternoon, he read a telegram from the Provincial Board of Health reporting two specimens of tap water, both showed the presence of bacteria of intestinal origin, indicating contaminated waters. It continued as follows: "As the above results stand they indicate that the city water is contaminated with dangerous organic matter and a purification process should be considered."

Naturally, the Board was considerably agitated by the alarming nature of this report, coming as it did when the citizens were confident that the city water was safe, and that an additional safeguard protected it in the new chlorination process.

But, said Dr. Amys, we have been living in a fool's paradise. On the 14th he received a first report of samples which had been taken at the public drinking fountain on Water street, and the other at a south-end factory. On Wednesday he secured two more samples, one of which was taken, under affidavit, at the pumping station in the outlet main.

Both reports were almost identical, except that the latter showed a slighly higher degree of contamination.

In view of this disclosing of the presence of colon bacilli in the water, Dr. Amys strongly advises that the tap water be boiled before it is drunk. The public drinking fountain on Water street, he said, should be closed until a more favourable report was received. The testing of the water had been carried out by Dr. John a Amyot.

This morning, Dr. Amys received a letter from Dr. Clinton, District Officer of Health, stating that he had just completed an inspection of the Kawartha Lakes hotels and cottages. It has been previously recommended that more rigorous enforcement of the Health Act be demanded, to prevent the pollution of the Trent waters. If Peterborough is compelled to expend an immense sum of money on an outfall sewer plant, it has a right to demand that the head waters of this system be similarly protected from pollution.

HEALTH DEPT. WANTS ARCADE CLEANED UP

The market arcade looks "messy" and "mucky" to the Board of Health, and Ald. Duncan's body yesterday passed a resolution that it was not kept sufficiently clean, and requesting that proper attention be given it. By this means the Board focusses attention upon a condition that wasn't a pleasing threshold of a civic market. It has been dusty and dirty and malodorous. A restaurant kitchen on one side, and a public lavatory on the other is scarcely a happy combination. But, we have grown accustomed to these conditions probably because they developed gradually. However, a people that tolerates so many nuisances may be depended upon to endure the market arcade.

HEAVY GERMAN ASSAULTS REPULSED BY FRENCH

All German Counter Attacks Are Repulsed On The Western Front

Teutonic Forces Make a Desparate Effort to Recapture Positions Recently Won by the French---Enemy Suffered Heavy Losses Under French Machine Gun Fire---Three Hundred Unwounded Prisoners Captured---French Troops Captured a Few Ruined Houses on the Outskirts of Fleury to Which the Germans Still Clung.

RUSSIANS REPULSE ENEMY ATTACKS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, Aug. 19.—(French Official)—The Germans entered a small element of French trench north of Maurepas in most violent counter attacks against all the newly won French positions north of the Somme last night, but at every other point were completely repulsed, it was officially announced to-day. On the Verdun front the French captured a few ruined houses on the outskirts of Fleury to which the Germans still clung. The German assaults north of the Somme reached their greatest violence between Maurepas and Clery. The Teutonic forces vainly attempted to expel the French from the outskirts of Maurepas and to throw back the French lines threatening to encircle the village. They suffered heavy losses under French machine gun fire. The French took fifty prisoners. South of the Somme artillery was most active in the region of Belloy-en-Santerre, where the French have recently advanced their lines. The Germans resumed fighting on the northwestern front of Verdun last night with two grenade attacks against the French salient north of Avocourt, and against Hill 304. Both attacks were completely repulsed. The Germans were driven back to their trenches after suffering heavy losses.

Artillery was most active on the whole Verdun front. In Thursday and Friday's fighting the French captured 300 unwounded prisoners. Sergeant Guynemar of the French Flying Corps, brought down two German aeroplanes yesterday, making a total of fourteen he has shot down since the beginning of the war.

Giant Guns of the Allies Play an Important Part

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 19.—Giant sixteen-inch guns, outranging the famous German 42 centimetres, are playing a most important role in the Allied advance on both banks of the Somme. Despatches from the French front to-day revealed for the first time the presence of these new artillery monsters. Capable of throwing every two minutes a shell weighing nearly a ton, the new Allied cannons are blowing great holes in the German works and systematically levelling the fortified villages. An intense artillery battle in which the Allied guns of all calibres battered away at the German lines, preceded yesterday's gains in the fighting north of the Somme.

Russians Have Captured The Town of Toboly

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 19.—Heavy fighting has broken out on the Russian front east of Kovel, after a lull of several days, while the Russians pressed their advantage in Galicia and near the Carpathians. The War Office to-day announced that stubborn fighting was taking place along the Stokhod River. The Czar's troops broke through Austro-German positions and captured the Town of Toboly. A considerable advance was scored in this fighting. Further south near Svinichi the Russians repulsed eight desperate enemy attacks that followed a heavy bombardment in the Pripet marsh district northeast of Kovel. Russians captured enemy positions west of Lake Nobel in Cherviache River region.

British Have Advanced On a Two Mile Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 19.—The British have made another advance on a two-mile front to a depth of from two hundred to six hundred yards, it is officially announced this afternoon. This gain is from Highwood to the junction of the French and British lines.

The general British advance was made at various points along a six-mile front extending from a point northwest of Ovillers to the region of Guillemont. The most decisive gains were scored between Ovillers and Thiepval, where a forward rush of British deeply into the German lines around the salient at Thiepval.

Fighting In Mesopotamia

LONDON, August 19.—A renewal of the fighting in Mesopotamia in which the British defeated Turkish irregulars is reported in an official statement given out here to-day. British naval aeroplanes raided German ammunitions stations at Lichtervelde in Belgium, thirteen miles southwest of Bruges yesterday, causing large fires, the War Office announced.

Enemy Night Attacks Repulsed

PETROGRAD, August 19.—The repulse of eight enemy night attacks in the region of Svinichi was announced by the War Office to-day. The assaults followed a heavy bombardment.

SEWER CONNECTIONS MUST BE PROVIDED

The Board of Health is preparing to make an example of some citizens who have ignored orders to provide their residences with sewer connections. Not only have they "hee-hawed" the idea, but they have gone around bragging about it, and that's where the Board's patience runs out, and it is prepared to hand out an exemplary wallop. Ten day notices were sent out to some of the negligent ones yesterday and these houses must be sewer connected within that time. To make sure of their ground, the Board yesterday decided to ask the City Solicitor for a statement of what action may be taken when citizens refuse to comply with orders issued in the interests of public health.

SERGT. KESLICK TO RECRUIT HERE FOR COBOURG BATTERY

The Cobourg Heavy Battery need only a few more men to complete their fifth overseas draft for the heavy artillery, and any men desirous of joining this branch of the service and wishing to get overseas at once, should apply to Officer Commanding, Cobourg Heavy Battery, Cobourg. Sergt. Harry Kealick of this Battery, well known to baseball and travelling men of this district, will be in Peterborough Wednesday next, Aug. 23rd, and will give any information desired to those wishing to join the "heavies."

THE WEATHER

High temperature figures have been so common this summer that they often pass almost unnoticed. Yesterday's high figure was 90 deg., and Thursday's the same. To-day the figures will be about the same. Accompanying the heat is a clammy moist atmosphere which does not improve the conditions. It will be remembered that August of last year was one of the wettest on record. Thunder storm after thunder storm succeeded one another until the ground became boggy with the excessive rain. The contrast this August is marked.

PLENTY OF APPLES AND SMALL FRUIT ON TO-DAY'S MARKET

Butter Sold at Thirty-five Cents—Late Fruits are Beginning to Come in.

EARLY PLUMS

This morning's market was fairly large, both as regards the number of rural vendors and the proportion of local buyers.

The price of butter still hovers in the vicinity of 35 cents, while eggs were selling at a trifle higher than last week, 30 and 31 cents being asked to-day.

LOOK WHO'S HERE!

Corn made its appearance this morning, not a real large quantity but just enough to make purchasing it not an extravagance. It sold at 15 cents a dozen.

Huckleberries are still to be had at 15 cents a quart. Ted Crough of Warsaw, brought in his usual heavy consignment of the favorite berry.

Apples, cooking and eating, were sold at various prices, ranging all the way from 25 to fifty-five cents a peck. Duchess, Early Augusts and Red Astrachan were upon the apple market.

A few plumbs, including Fairbanks and 'gages were also to be had upon this morning's market.

SATURDAY, AUG. 19, 1916

CONGRATULATIONS TO COL. HEMMING.

It may be that because we regard Col. Hemming as our own—belonging to our military district, and having had some pleasant and satisfactory experience, we regard his promotion to be Brigadier General, as a well-deserved tribute to his efficiency. He is one of the best of Canadian military officers, and himself, as well as his military constituency, is to be congratulated upon the recognition of his merits.

THE NEW RECRUITING POLICY.

The Toronto News seems to be rather premature in recording, through its English correspondent, the satisfaction of the "Canadian element" in England, with the new registration scheme. Are we to understand that the proposal of the military convention at Kingston has been formally adopted as the policy of the government, applicable to the whole Dominion? And has the government taken or intending to take steps to put the machinery of its application into motion? We should be glad if it should be found that the government intends putting some system into recruiting. To be sure of this we should have some more explicit official declaration than we have yet received.

SOUTHWEST TORONTO.

The curtain rises on the denouement of the by-election contest in Southwest Toronto, on Monday next—the voting. What the outcome will be seems to be doubtful. There are four candidates representing, chiefly, themselves. Distributed among the candidates and to some degree divided among them are three or four outstanding issues, which, however, seem to be more subjects of discussion or pegs for hanging personal vituperation upon, —prohibition, Hydro and nickel. If by-election results are gauged by precedent, the Conservative candidate — if he can be identified in Mr. Norris—should win hands down. In the general election of 1914, Hon. J. J. Foy was elected by a majority of 3,986 over two other candidates. One can figure out the prospects for himself.

AUGUST DAYS.

The year is growing old. It has reached the afternoon of its allotted span, and smiles benignly upon the belated affection of a world that had returned only petulant complaints and carping criticism of its every gift. Now, in the placid, post-meridian of its life, it greets with maternal complacence the tardy solicitude it has been so long denied.

It is in these languorous August days the declining year reflects its motherhood. It has given much, and its gifts have been accepted gracelessly and with slight concern for their cost. But the year that was young gave as a mother, instinctively and without thought of recognition or reward. Now in its fructescence it contemplates serenely the fulfillment of its destiny, and receives as of long wont the attentions sedulously plied and with regret that the spirit of grateful appreciation stirred so late.

The Matron August is the Maiden May in maturity. Her form has filled to a comfortable embonpoint. She has nursed the fields and the forests, and the rich colours of her youth have faded to the deeper glories of her middle age. Her voice is soft like the call of the blue bird that seems to have never known its passionate notes of Spring. Her movements are the quiet, almost hushed, stirring of the late summer zephyrs that recall by contrast the restless noisy winds of April. Yes, this is the same tumultuous, tearful April, calm and contented in the wisdom of a deep experience. Eyes that sparkled in the light of the first flushing days of Spring, now gleam, less brightly, but with a steady gaze that follows the sun in its afternoon declension comprehending the sequent shade.

WEEDS AND WEEDING.

Drouth, insect pests, smut, rust, and other things do not do more harm, do not more, if as much, decrease yield and deteriorate the product of our farms than noxious weeds.

Weeds, however, are not only injurious to field and garden crops, but, like a lame step-child, they are always in the way. They deserve the iron-cross reward for champion disfigurement of our streets, lanes and vacant lots.

Weeds are banned by law. The law requires their destruction, or their partial destruction, so that they cannot grow to seed.

But, in practice, the weeds in the streets, lanes, and vacant lots go to seed because the authorities, themselves, go to seed, or go asleep.

It is the duty of the city to enforce the law against noxious weeds, but what "cheek" it would require for the city to round up owners of private property who neglect to destroy weeds, when the city, itself, is an offender.

In the lanes of the city and on street sides there are hundreds of plantations where weeds are growing lustily in spite of the dry weather, maturing seeds to reproduce themselves another year.

On the newly-levelled boulevards on Charlotte street and Park street there are, in places, a splendid "catch" of weeds. The city seems to have sown a plentiful proportion of weed seeds with the grass seeds they placed on the boulevards for which they deserve the credit of at least good intentions.

Now the city can't consistently prosecute private offenders for harbouring weeds when they offend, themselves, in the same way.

It is the proper thing in the public interest to demand the destruction of weeds on private property, but the city should clean its streets first, and not, by prosecuting private offenders, become a reminder and example of Satan reproving sin.

Some superficial attempt is made by the city to deal with weeds on the streets. The tops are mangled off with a dull scythe and the weed plants flourish the better for the pruning.

In some streets Mr. John Adlum has done more radical work with a grubbing hoe; and his work has some effect. Root and branch removal is the only proper way to deal with street weeds. Another good way is to narrow the driving surface between curbs and metal or gravel the whole surface so that it may be used by vehicles and the traffic will keep down the weeds.

We have many beautiful tree shaded streets, and we owe it to ourselves to keep the streets as beautiful underfoot as overhead. We can't do this so long as we leave the street borders blooming with weeds and the drive-way encumbered with loose stones, in many places, forming impediments to comfortable driving or motoring.

Eternal vigilance is pronounced the price of liberty; and ceaseless attention to little things is the price of having good, smooth, clean, tidy and attractive streets.

Good street-keeping is like good house-keeping, which needs something done every day to keep the home clean and tidy.

Slatternly house-keeping is no worse than slatternly street keeping; and not so bad, for only the culprit and her few shy friends see the inside of the untidy house, but untidy, ill-kept weed-grown streets are always on view.

HOLDING WHAT WE HAVE.

There is hope for our aldermen. They are beginning to think. At the meeting of the Board of Works Ald. Weir suggested the advisability of the city doing something for street maintenance—to repair the depressions and holes that destroy the street surface for comfortable use.

Some carpers say that Alderman Weir runs a motor car, and that explains his desire for smooth streets. Well, isn't that a good reason for his desiring good streets, especially as he cannot "hog" the benefits from good streets; others can enjoy them as well as himself. It is but a variation of the Scriptural injunction — doing for himself what others should have done for themselves.

Alderman Weir is right. The city should do what it has, for the past fifty years, failed to do—provide for some systematic form of street maintenance.

Every body knows; every body acknowledges the wisdom of the proverb—"a stitch in time." It applies not only to highways, but all other things; to machinery, to buildings, as well as garments.

Why the city hasn't acted on this principle long ago it is difficult to understand. If we had done so we should have far better streets than we have to-day. Applying this principle explains why they have such splendid roads in Great Britain and France—better as a rule than the general run of streets in this or other cities of its size.

In the old countries men with carts are kept constantly employed making repairs. They go over their beat every day or two, and fill and make smooth from conveniently placed deposits of road metal, every depression or hole at once it appears.

This is done year after year, with the result that the country highways are smooth enough to play billiards on. The late John E. Belcher, C.E., who was Irish-born and reared, tells of a road-mender in Ireland, who was on his beat for years. He drove a venerable white horse that became so expert that he would stop of his own accord at a hole in the road that needed mending.

This is not a fairy tale, but a fact, that explains why they have such splendid roads in Ireland and other countries in the old world. They are good because they are kept good after being built well.

The press report says "that Ald. Weir's proposal was endorsed by the members of the committee as well as by City Engineer Parsons."

Then let them get to work. Why this has not been done before is hard to understand. At a citizens' meeting held two or three years ago at the Oriental Hotel to discuss city improvement, it was decided, among other things, that it was good business to keep the streets in good repair, Mayor Butler and Alderman Duncan, chairman of the Board of Works, cordially consenting. Accordingly a cart was procured and a man put to work, but the spurt only lasted a few days. Man, horse, cart, chairman and mayor grew weary in well-doing.

If this plan of keeping streets good is adopted it must be well done, or it will be money wasted. The man or men to do the work must be instructed, and made to conform to instructions. To get the full benefit of doing the right thing it must be done in the right way.

It is hoped that aldermanic zeal for keeping our streets smooth will not evaporate—dissolve in mere good intentions, the popular materials for pavement in a warmer climate than this.

Hundreds use our streets for business and hundreds more for pleasure. Both classes are taxpayers and have a right to have the most enjoyment from the use of our streets.

It is a matter not only of pleasure but of money. There is no doubt that the life of vehicles is greatly lessened by driving them over rough streets, subjecting them to shocks. An auto or other vehicle driven at fair speed gets more of a shock from a deep rut or a too-high crossing, and suffers more material injury than would result from driving them over ten miles of smooth road.

And all the wear and tear, all the bumping and annoyance, can be obviated by the employment of an inexpensive system of keeping the streets smooth, carefully and skilfully filling depressions and small holes before they become deep ruts.

With careful construction, with constant attention to keep them smooth, and with a dose of asphaltic oil, a gravel street can be made as comfortable for driving as an asphalt pavement costing twenty times more per mile.

The only conditions are building a gravel street right, providing proper grade and effective surface drainage, and keeping it, is good repair, by regular and systematic attention and treatment.

A good British motto is: "What we have we'll hold." We are fighting and spending millions to hold the liberties and civilization we have. We need only spend a few hundreds to keep good streets good.

In doing this, we shall in our humble way be fighting for civilisation; for good roads are the marks of the higher civilization.

Never scrape the cob when preparing corn for canning—use only the tips of the kernels.

TWO TRUE IRISHMEN.

New York Tribune: Private Patrick Moran, of the Connaught Rangers, and Private William Devlin, of the Munster Fusiliers, were prisoners in the hands of the Germans. Both were among the Irishmen whom Roger Casement tempted to gain their liberty by joining his expedition. Both refused and both were shot. The explanation given by the German authorities was that they were shot for other offenses; but when the American ambassador tried to investigate he was not permitted to interrogate witnesses except in the presence of German officers and the authorities tried to prevent him from undertaking it at all. Patrick Moran and William Devlin were true to their oaths, to their duty, and to the best interests of Ireland. Their kind of heroism is not so extravagantly praised as some other kinds of Irish heroism; but Moran and Devlin and their kind give their lives not for Ireland's past but for her future.

CANADA'S BIG PROBLEM NOW IS TO HARVEST HER GRAIN IN FINE WEATHER

Labor Situation in Western Canada is Becoming Acute—Employment of Orientals on Coast Will be One of the Furture Problems.

BY CHARLES E. COMPTON

Has Ontario and the eastern provinces of Canada enough men who can be spared to go into the great bread basket of the British Empire and put enough loaves on the shelf to provide for the coming winter? Will the western farmer be able to properly harvest his crops with the labour at his disposal? Can the railways, by inducements of cheap rates and comfortable travelling accommodation, get enough men into the prairie provinces to give the farmer adequate assistance? It is very questionable. No doubt the railways can dump enough harvesters into the country if the harvesters can be found. Although the harvest is plentiful, the reapers seem to be particularly few this year. Thus the labor problem of Canada at the present time is a most engrossing subject. The situation this year is a great contrast to that which existed some two years ago. Men were calling out for jobs; now jobs are calling out for men. Nearly all branches of trade and professions (even the clerical profession) are wanting men and more men.

THEY HAVE NO REGRETS.

The war, for the past two years, has provided work for all those who wanted it, and now it is almost an impossibility to find one man who regrets the day he enlisted. On the other hand, all those who have responded to the call of duty feel a confidence and satisfaction far greater than those who have stayed at home.

But Canada is white with harvest now, and to gather it properly is the absorbing question of the moment. The myriad fields of the great Northwest now stand laden with grain. Whether the yield will be large or small will be better known when the returns are made at threshing time. The crop is to harvest whether it is large or small and that requires men.

The countless armies on the battle fields must be fed and the wheat of the west will play an important part in the feeding of Great Britain's men. The harvest time is short and the suggestion has been made that if several thousand soldiers used to farm work were conveyed there for two or three weeks they would be a decided help in bringing in the wheat crop. Other suggestions have been made, that men in offices and like positions should spend their two weeks' vacation helping the farmers. No doubt this would be all very well but recently the Manitoba Free Press pointed out that by the time city men got used to the work, learned how to do it, and were hardened, the time would be expired, and the farmer would be no better off.

DEARTH OF HELP.

It is however an undeniable fact that there is a scarcity of men in the west this year, and although I would not like to speak authoritively, yet I believe that there is not an idle man in Western Canada, that is, a man who has no work. In Toronto, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Vancouver and Victoria recently visited, I saw lots of men, young and old, and at first it would surprise one to find that there were thousands of able-bodied men in Canada yet, but inquiries revealed the fact that they were all working, and real hard. In Winnipeg one large firm (perhaps the largest in the city) had a placard on its front door advertising the fact that any returned soldiers were requested to apply to the management for work.

Although only a short time in Prince Albert, I found that nobody need be idle in that city. While there a man asked me if I knew where he could get four men from the east. Again in Saskatoon I met one of the largest farmers in that part of the country. He had come some 70 miles in search of men to take off his crop. Discouragement was written in his face, for he had come to town in expectation of securing 30 men and had only got one. I saw him the next day, and the day after, and his luck had been no better. He only had his one man.

FOREIGN LABOUR.

To an easterner it is surprising to see the utility of Chinese and Japanese labor on the Pacific Coast. Something one never sees in Ontario is a Japanese or Chinese walking home from the sawmill with his dinner pail on his arm. It was, however, stranger still to observe a Japanese longshoreman pulling in a bow line of an approaching steamer on the docks at Victoria. In Vancouver one sees Japanese operating baggage waggons on the docks, cleaning the floors in the hotels, acting as housemaids and doing a thousand other things.

In conversation with Mr. Jas. H McVety, managing director of the Vancouver Temple Co., and a prominent laborite in Vancouver, I learned that organised labour did not worry over the foreign labour problem. While men do not bother much about the Chinese and Japs, (that is the majority of them), and do not attempt to organize them because if the foreigners were organized it would tend to bring down the wages of the whites. Whether this matter is in its infancy or not, it is hard to say, but the visitor at once makes up his mind that one of the future problems of that country is going to be the assimilation of its population.

CANADA LOYAL

Coming back from Vancouver to Edmonton on the Canadian Northern Railway, I met an old gentleman who was going to visit his nephew who lived 20 miles from Marshal in North Saskatchewan. Some two years ago the nephew with a pal had commenced to homestead. The war broke out and his pal enthused with the adventure of the battlefield enlisted leaving his mate to fight it out alone. He had a big crop to take off himself.

But let it ever be said to the glory of old dear Canada. She is loyal to the back bone. In every city, town or village one finds the soldier boy and if his body is not encased in uniform, his heart is with the cause and from general observations I have no hesitation in saying that I believe that as long as the war lasts there will always be men to fill the ranks. I found that hundreds have no enlisted because they had strong ties at home in business and valid and good excuses, but if free they would not be slow in coming forward to fight the battles of their country.

THE PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS SOCIETY COLUMN

PRISONERS OF WAR PARCELS.

We have now received particulars of Pte. W. Tootill and also of Pte. E. H. Crofts and their names are now added to the Society's list, and parcels will be sent to them regularly. We were glad to have a visit from two of the mothers whose boys are prisoners:

Both of these mothers said their sons had said in their most recent letters "for God's sake send us food." The Society is both willing and glad to undertake this work for the Peterborough men, who are prisoners. There is no fee or payment expected or asked, all we desire is that the relatives will furnish us with the particulars required, and we will do everything else.

We send no prisoners' parcels direct from Peterborough. We send the necessary money for them direct to London, England; the parcels are made up at the Civil Service stores, there, under the supervision of Canadian Red Cross workers and in the presence of a censor. When the parcels are ready, the censor puts his official stamp on them, and they go direct and quickly to the prisoner to whom they are addressed, without being opened by the Customs or any official.

The filling of these parcels has really become a science, the Department at the Civil Service Stores responsible for them, have given so much thought and study that they know the very best and most nourishing things to include, as well as what the boys like best.

GRATITUDE FOR PARCELS SENT.

Among the Canadians who arrived in England during the past week from a German prison camp is Pte. Harry James, of the Highlanders, whose residence is 403 Gault Avenue, Verdun. He was taken prisoner at Langemarck in April, 1915. He says that the sufferings and privations of the prison camp were much greater in the first few months following their capture. During this time he saw one sick English soldier sell his gold ring to a prison warder for five marks in order to purchase cool drinks.

Pte. James was shot in the leg during the fighting at Langemarck, and knew nothing more until he recovered consciousness in a German hospital in Belgium. He was later sent to Paderborn. With him in the hospital at Westminster at the present time is Pte. Ernest Ward of Moose Jaw, who was greatly relieved to get his release, as last December he was turned back at Aachen, where a final examination is made of the men. At this examination many sad disappointments occur, as nobody is allowed to pass who is not irreparably injured.

Both James and Ward spoke with gratitude of the parcels of goods and food that the Canadian Red Cross sends to the prisoners. One of them said that the hunger suffered by the prisoners was at times such they swarmed round refuse tubs to see if there were any scraps of food to be obtained there.

PARTICULARS STILL WANTED.

Would Mr. R. Powell, 465 McDonnell street, send the information required relative to Pte. W. Larkman, either to the "Examiner" Office or 207 Brock Street.

SOCKS AND GARMENTS REQUIRED.

It is a little hard to sew and knit in the hot weather, but the boys find it pretty hot and tiring work fighting these days. There has not been a drop of rain for five weeks on the Somme front, and they have had to fight under a glaring sun and the discomfort of a tremendous dust. Rain came this week and was so welcome to one and all that many lay on the ground, allowing it to fall upon them. The trenches are again very wet. Our weariness and discomfort is not to be mentioned in the same breath with that of our soldiers. It is not that we do not care so much as we did a while ago, or that we are getting better able to bear the awful "frightfulness" of this bitter struggle. It is only because we have worked so hard ever since the war began, and we think "Oh, my help won't be missed for a little while," but unfortunately, so many think the same, and so we do miss you.

But the need is greater than ever, owing to the strenuous offensive on every front, and we want our men to want for nothing that we can give them.

Many of the Canadian Red Cross Hospitals are full to overflowing, and the men want a new outfit when convalescent. We have plenty of wool for socks, and also ample materials for pyjamas, day shirts, night shirts, sheeting and pillowing.

Do not forget that Mrs. Rush and Miss Burnett are in attendance every Wednesday afternoon to give out wool and take in socks. They are to be found in the Teachers' room of the Public Library.

There is to be a "great opening day" in honour of the knitting machine, in September.

BRITAIN WILL CARE FOR SOLDIERS AFTER THE WAR.

LONDON, July 30. — Sir Hedley le Bas, Secretary of the Kitchener Memorial Fund for disabled officers and men, informs us that in explaining its objects Friday he should have stated that any overseas soldiers who find it necessary to remain in Britain after the war will be entitled to the full benefits of the fund.

"Our chief object," he said "is to provide both officers and men of the army and navy with articles with which the Statutory Committee cannot supply them. Water beds, tricycles and similar appliances will be given for use, in their own houses, so that a lot of disabled soldiers may be made as comfortable as the circumstances permit. Although the fund has only been in existence for eleven days, we are already taking measures to deal with cases that have been brought to our notice.

"No home exists for disabled officers discharged from hospital as unfit. The committee, therefore, proposes to have a kind of star garden home for officers, and within the next week or so hope to be able to announce that a building has been secured in London for the purpose. The fund has now reached $70,000."

ANOTHER BRANCH OF THE RED CROSS MAPLE LEAF CLUB.

Referring to the offers recently made by Lady Drummond, Lady Strathcona and Sir George Perley, of contributions for another branch of the Maple Leaf Club, Sir George Perley says that he is convinced of the necessity for providing additional accommodation for soldiers on leave, and he is most anxious for the success of the financial campaign inaugurated to that end.

This new branch of the Maple Leaf Club, which has proved such a boon to our Canadian boys when on leave, on account of its exceedingly moderate charges and the splendid way in which it is managed, is now in full swing. H. M. Queen Mary and Princess Mary turned up unexpectedly the other day and inspected the whole establishment.

The Queen expresse her great pleasure in her visit, and in all she had seen, and said she was sure it would answer the need as admirably as the original Maple Leaf Club had done.

MASK OF CHRISTIANITY ON GERMAN DEVILTRY.

"The Hymn of the German Sword" a twin brother to the better known "Hymn of Hate," has been termed as "naked, unashamed evil."

The translation we give is the one given by the London (Eng.) Pall Mall Gazette. It is the German Sword That Speaks:

"It is not a duty of mine to be either just or compassionate. It suffices that I am sanctioned by a mission, and that I blind the eyes of my enemies with such streams of tears as shall make the proudest of them cringe in terror.

"I have slaughtered the old and the sorrowful; I have struck off the hearts of the women; I have run through the body of children who gazed at me with the eyes of the wounded lion. It is well and right that I cry aloud in my pride, for am I not the flaming messenger of the Lord Almighty? Germany is so far above and beyond all the other nations, that all other people, be they who they may should feel themselves well done by, when they are allowed to fight with the dogs for the crumbs that fall from her table. When Germany the divine is happy, then the rest of the world basks in smiles; but when Germany suffers God in person is rent with anguish, turns all the waters into rivers of blood.'

Canon Plumptree of Toronto, in speaking of this, recently, said:

"If that is not evil, evil naked and unashamed, then no such thing as evil exists. Gladstone called the Turkish Empire the 'negation of God erected into a system.' This is simply deviltry with the mask of Christianity. It is the very breaking loose of the powers of hell, and the devil is never more dangerous than when transformed with an angel light and speaking in the accents of the Christian religion. When everything that civilization has learned to despise is glorified in the name of perverted patriotism then we must verily believe that the devil himself is making a last dapairing effort to regain the dominion of the world, which it is the purpose of Christianity to wrest from him. Thus the battle is raised, as I said, to an arena far above the ordinary wars of nations and the ambitions of scheming monarchs; it becomes in very truth Armageddon, in which God and the devil fight for mastery. 'We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against spiritual wickedness in high places.'"—Service.

KELLY APPEAL FOR NEW TRIAL REFUSED

Crown Will Move For an Immediate Sentence.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 19. — Thomas Kelly is refused a new trial. The Court of Appeal, by a majority of three to two, refused the application of the defence. Chief Justice Howell and Justices Cameron and Perdue sustained the conviction of the Parliament buildings contractor, and Justices Richards and Haggart favoured a re-hearing of the charges.

IT'S COMING!

EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY

MONEY SAVING EVENT

Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

$175.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $25.00; the second $20.00; the third $15.00, and so on.

56 CASH PRIZES

Nearest correct estimate.....1st Prize $25.00
Next nearest correct estimate, 2nd Prize $20.00

Next 10 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 10 Prizes each $2.00
Next 30 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 30 Prizes, each $1.00

As a guide in estimating the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

The Dollar Day crowd is the happiest gathering that meets in Peterboro in the year.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

SITUATION WAS SAVED BY PREMIER ASQUITH

British Parliamentary Session Instead of Losing all Vitality in its Dying Hours, Has Taken on Added Vigor— Leader Avoided All Controversy— The Net Results and the Transformation.

CRITICIZES FREELY

By T. P. O'Connor

London, August 19.—The Parliamentary session, instead of losing all vitality in its dying hours, as is frequently the case, has taken on added vigor. Some measures of importance were brought forward, such as the prolongation of Parliament and a new measure to restore registration, neglected during the two years of the war. The regular Opposition, under the leadership of Sir Edward Carson, now criticises freely every Ministerial measure and has gained strength in many parts of the House. It may in a few months time be still further strengthened by the succession of the Irish Nationalists who continue to express their disgust over the Irish settlement.

All these things led to numerous rumors that we might see a different Ministry and a reconstructed government with Lloyd George as Premier, but Asquith's extraordinary adroitness saved the situation at the last moment by avoiding all controversy. In addition to these elements there was a recrudescence of the suffragette movement demanding that if any new votes be given the men the claims of the women should be recognised. This demand was advanced at a most favorable moment, the extraordinary work of the women during the war having induced even Premier Asquith and other lifelong opponents of female suffrage to modify their views.

However, any such opening up of the waters on any such a fiercely contested ground as the matter of equal franchise must break up the Commons and perhaps even the ministry. Thus the frequent rumors of a ministerial crisis.

ESCAPED THE DANGER.

Premier Asquith escaped the danger for the moment by proposing that no change whatever in the existing franchise laws be made. The entire question however will come up at the October sitting and then the fate of the Ministry may be seriously imperilled.

The latest news from Ireland shows that while there is a temporary lull in the situation, sullen exasperation continues and though the ministry obviously is ready to re-open negotiations again, being equally as eager as the Irish leaders for a settlement, no prospect for further negotiations exists at the present time. Ireland is too exasperated, too distrustful, to entertain them. At the same time a rapid reaction is taking place with regard to Redmond and the parliamentary party.

The break down of the Irish settlement will have far-reaching consequences long after the event. Already it has produced some remarkable results. The credit of the ministry of Mr. Asquith has gone down more through this event than almost any for many months. Mesopotamia was bad; the Dardanelles was bad, but the Irish negotiations reached an even tenderer spot in the English mind. At the time of the Marconi scandals a shrewd and cynical journalist made the rmark that John Bull was a very stupid fellow, perhaps, and did not know much about high politics, but he did understand money and therefore could pronounce an opinion upon any share transaction. Similarly, there is one thing which next to money John Bull understands, and that is a bargain; and it is in the very roots of his being that a man must keep to his bargain. Now the agreement between the Irish leaders was a bargain, and a written bargain to boot; and the government according to their own avowal, have broken the bargain; hence, even the commonest man in the English street can understand and appreciate the transaction; and his verdict is strongly (even fiercely) against the government.

NET RESULTS.

The net results, therefore of the whole transaction are somewhat mixed. On the one hand it is a grievous disappointment to the Irish leaders—especially to those of the older generation—that the settlement did not go through. After all their weary years of waiting there was something very attractive in the idea of getting Home Rule at last started. Of course there was some anxiety; for the proceedings of the government in Ireland and especially the executions by General Maxwell have remarkable and profound. When Mr. government of Ireland somewhat difficult. It looks as if the government alone could clean up their own mess. But the Irish leaders were prepared to take the risk; and backed up their contract to the last word. The curious result followed accordingly when the settlement was broken down, that it was immediately more popular than ever it had been in the days of its vitality. In Ireland, though some of the revolutionaries were delighted and of course the factionists, and some of the bishops and priests—a minority but a very vocal minority—the vast mass of the sane Irish people, and after all the Irish people are for the most part sane, in all classes—were profoundly disappointed; and with them accordingly the settlement became more popular than it had been when it seemed secure.

THE TRANSFORMATION.

But the transformation of temper in the English public was even more pathetic appeal to help in settling the Asquith wound up the debate he expressed a very strong hope that the two Irish parties see their way to reaching a settlement. It was adroit rather than fair, for the break up of their settlement was not their work, but that of Mr. Asquith himself. But the House of Commons received the observation with universal and warm cheering; it was the sentiment that appealed to them rather than the facts. That night as I left the House of Commons I was approached by man after man with an almost pathetic appeal to help in settling the conflict. A more remarkable sign of the times was the meeting a day or two afterwards of a body of Tories, who expressed a strong hope that some settlement should be arrived at. What lent more significance to this meeting was the fact that it was a revolt against the Die Hard Tories who had helped to destroy the settlement. The leader of this group inside the Cabinet was of course Lord Lansdowne; but he had strong support from the outside, and this support came in a way from Lord Hugh Cecil. The Cecils play to-day a curious part in the life of the Tory party. Lord Hugh is the orator of the family; he has power equal to those of any man in the House of passionate eloquence and poetic appeal. I have seen the House thrilled into sepulchral silence simply by some passage of lofty eloquence. John Morley once said to me that a speech of Lord Hugh was equal to Gladstone at his best.

OUTLOOK TOO REMOTE.

But Lord Hugh is not the most effective member of the family. He has too remote an outlook on life. He is rather mediæval, monastic type, than the modern. I believes that he enjoys the pleasure of a dinner party as well as any man, but he always seemed to be more fitted for the ascetic monastery than for the House of Commons. Lord Robert Cecil, his brother, is very like and very unlike his brother. Like Lord Hugh, he is lean and ascetic in appearance, with the bent shoulders of the student. But unlike Lord Hugh, he has had great experience of life, of men, and of business as a practicing barrister. Unlike Lord Hugh, who has remained an obstinate bachelor, he is a married man with children. The result is that he is much more a man of the world; he is much more effective as a parliamentarian, and though he has no special pretensions to oratory, he can state a case very clearly, very tersely, in severely practical terms.

For years both the Cecils were excluded from office, even from parliament, by a little group of savage tariff reformers, who were known as the confederation, and who succeeded in knifing every free trader of their party who came as a free trade candidate before any constituency. In the end Lord Robert Cecil was able to get in for a seat in Hertfordshire, the county in which Hatfield stands, and for centuries the political appendage of a family. But he had to make some concessions to the triff reformers before he was allowed to be elected even for there. Lord Hugh had an easier task because the seat became vacant for Oxford University, and the member for Oxford University is elected in the country parsonages of England, and as a vehement, and even narrow churchman, as well as because he was so brilliant a son of the University, Lord Hugh could not be defeated.

Lord Robert got office for the first time when the Asquith Liberal Cabinet was overthrown and succeeded by the coalition ministry. He was sent to the foreign office where his father had presided with such distinction for years; he at once showed considerable business ability; he soon got promotion into the Cabinet; and people even already begin to talk of him as the future leader of the Tory party.

OPPOSED TO HOME RULE.

But the Cecils have not done themselves much good by their opposition to the Home Rule settlement. Their churchmanship belongs to the high church party; is narrow and rancorous, and sacerdotal and the modern Tory, in the great towns especially, does not love the high church party. In Liverpool, for example, they hate the ritualist a great deal more than they do the Catholic. Accordingly, the feeling towards the Cecils is curiously mixed among the Tories. The Squirearcy and the high churchmen like them; but the democratic Tory detests and distrusts them. The squirearcy may turn to Lord Robert some day or other, because they do not like Mr. Bonar Law and only accepted him in their dire hour of distress. "A nonconformist ironmonger" is their pretty and familiar description of him in their private conversation; which means that Mr. Bonar Law was not born in the purple, spent a good part of his life in the metal business, and is a Presbyterian—all faults in the eyes of the mound squirearchial church-and-state Tory.

The fact that the Tory revolt against the settlement was led by the Cecils accordingly brought many Tories around in its favor. In addition, Lord Hugh had the misfortune to come into conflict with Sir Edward Carson and the other Ulster Orangemen. In truth there never was much love lost between the two; for the Orangemen hates the high churchman of sacerdotal views qquite as much as he hates the followers of the Catholic church. It is another paradox of this strange conflict that the Ulster Irishmen grow closer to their Nationalist fellow-countrymen than to any English Tories or Liberals. Indeed nothing is more astonishing in this whole incident than the closeness of the racial tie between North and South in Ireland, and the common scorn they both displayed for the arrogant ignorance of Englishmen with regard to the realities of Irish life.

SETTLEMENT HAS FAILED.

Thus, then, the matter stands at the present moment. The settlement has failed; an yet it is alive and has wider sympathy on its behalf than ever it had before. It will probably be revived, though perhaps not in the same shape, at some other epoch of the struggle. A good deal will depend on the next eight weeks when parliament is not in session. What may happen in Ireland no one can tell. The discontent there is still very profound and it will last as long as General Maxwell and martial law are in the ascendant. Three will ot be pro-German manifestations to any large extent; for really no section of Irish opinion is favorable to Germany. It is to be hoped accordingly that no incident will occur which can further exasperate the relations between England and Ireland; and in the absence of any such incidents, the next session of parliament may bring further developments, and developments more favorable to settlement. A settlement may be approached from a wholly different angle, and many solutions are in the air—such as a coalition Irish ministry; but there is so much good will that I think some form of ultimate settlement is very probable.

Escape From Prison Farm

Police on the Lookout for John Nolan—Was Once an Artillery Officer

The police have been notified to be on the lookout for John E. Nolan, a dashing young artillery officer who visited in Brockville last winter for a time and then suddenly left town with jewelry valued at several thousand dollars, the property of his hostess, and who again emerged into the limelight by escaping from the Guelph Prison Farm. Nolan, after stealing the jewelry, went to Toronto where he disposed of some of it, then took a train for Montreal, where he was arrested, and brought back to Brockville. He was placed on trial, and pleaded guilty, received a sentence of 18 months in the Central Prison.

Circulars and photographs have been sent to the police in all parts of Canada in an effort to apprehend the fugitive.

Nola is a young man of 20, of respectable parentage in England, is nice-looking, and has had every opportunity to make good, but for an unfortunate tendency toward criminality, which has been his undoing.

A Russian salad is made from one onion, two apples and four cucumber pickles, all chopped up and seasoned with salt, cayenne and vinegar.

Enormous Increase In Grain Yield

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 19.—Enormous increase of the grain yield last year over 1915 is shown by shipments over the Canadian Pacific Railway. From September, 1914, to last September, shipments from Alberta totalled sixteen million eight hundred thousand bushels, against eighty-eight million eight hundred and ninety-two thousand from last September to Aug. 1st this year. This shows nearly five times the amount of grain shipped over the C. P. R. from the province this year. Estimates are nearly two hundred cars a day now being shipped out over the Canadian Pacific.

"Dead" Man Turns Up

John Short of Lindsay a Victim of Mistaken Identity

BINGHAMTON, N.Y., Aug. 17. — The body of a unidentified labourer was found at the Chemung County Farm on Monday, and from the description it was identified by John Short of Lindsay, Victoria County, Province of Ontario, as that of William Crofton, son of W. J. Crofton, of Lindsay, Ont. Arrangements were made and the body interred here under that name. Yesterday William Crofton, who had read the notice of his demise, called for a suitcase from which the clue to the name had been obtained.

Aeroplanes Keep The Allies Posted

Present Day Aeroplane is About as Stable as any Marine Vessel

It is probable that no one department of the military has made such strides in advances as the air service. Shortly before the war, the best of air vessels—either planes or dirigibles—were considered unstable. Shortly after the war broke out a reliable stabilizer was developed and the aeroplane has become practically as stable as any marine vessel. We hear no more of capsizing or "turning-turtle" in mid-air. In this field, just as in all other branches and departments, the ingenuity and ability of the allies, combined, has offset in two years, the accumulated flodding efforts of more than a generation on the part of the enemy.

Air Service.

On the western front, the air service of the allies is incomparably better than that general principle of the present system on the French lines is to a continuous line of anchored observation balloons distances of about a mile and extending parallel with the entire active section of the battle front. These immediately send full information of the enemy forces, dispositions, and movements. Co-operating with these are a number of fast aeroplanes which continually dart back and forth above the enemy lines and in and out between the balloons. These aeroplanes, serve both to repell attacks of enemy air craft, and to pick up information not so easily obtained by the anchored balloons. Between them, they keep the allies throughly posted as to all eventualities. The complete mastery of the air by the allies has been fully demonstrated by the extreme lack of serions contest by the enemy, in recent weeks. The enemy has hardly questioned this superiority, and now does comparatively little to hinder the operation of the allied aircraft. Thus, again, we are well ahead of the enemy in another important department. As time passes, the momentum of steadily increasing advantages will sweep us steadily on to lasting victory.

Rev. A. G. Doner Will Come To Peterboro

The Congregational call of Bethany Church to Rev. A. G. Doner, has been accepted by him. He will be inducted on September 3rd, as he is at present taking part in a large camp meeting in North Carolina.

Sunday Services.

Mr. Lewis, of Toronto, conducts both services to-morrow.

Next Tuesday, Aug. 22nd, the annual Church and Sunday School outing will be held at Hale's Bridge, leaving at 9 a.m., per Str. "Geneva."

Says She is Nineteen; Charged With Bigamy

ALICE HOGG REMANDED IN GUELPH FOR WEEK—IS UNPERTURBED.

GUELPH, Aug. 19.—Alice Hogg appeared in police court on a charge of bigamy. She elected to be tried summarily after pleading not guilty, and was remanded for a week without bail. She has been living in Hamilton, and a day or so ago returned here, where she was arrested. It is alleged that on March 17 she was married by Rev. C. H. Buckland (now overseas as chaplain), to John George Wilson of the 34th Battalion. Wilson is now overseas with that regiment. On May 17, 1916, it is charged that she was married to Arthur Chartrand, by Rev. I. Moyar of Paisley Memorial Church.

In court she gave her age as only 19, and appeared to take the situation coolly.

Germany Used Up 8,000,000 Pigs in Year

Horned Cattle Show Decrease of Million and a Half.

THE HAGUE, via London, Aug. 19.—The Berlin Deichsanzeiger, the German official organ, a copy of which has been received here, contains the final figures of the empire-wide cattle census of December 1, 1915. These, compared with the figures of the census of the same date in 1914, show decreases in all heads, especially of pigs, as follows:

"Pigs decreased by 8,054,000 to 17,287,000 and horned cattle by 1,812,000 to 20,217,000. Horses decreased by 94,000, calves 673,000, and sheep 398,000."

In Germany, according to the census of December 1, 1914, there were 3,441,37 horses, exclusive of army horses, and 5,491,870 sheep.

Blouses Resplendent With Either Gay or Gentle Colourings

No need to go to New York for styles, we have brought New York to Peterborough, especially in the Blouse Department. Myriads of Georgette Crepes, Silk Mulls and French Voiles, "the approved and fascinating materials of the season."

The models are those of reputable designers, many introducing the cascade front, with its loose pleatings falling from the shoulder, and giving that quaint and elegant fussiness that belonged to the age of our grandmothers. The shawl collar also is worthy of note and shows a marked deviation from the styles of former seasons, with its wide spread at the shoulder & gradually but gracefully tapering to the waist band with its pretty off rippling frills or cluny lace, which is so much in vogue this season.

Mother Makes a Vain Effort To Swim to Shore With Babe, Forced to Abandon Little One

SARNIA,, Aug. 19. —A distressing tragedy occurred a mile north of Froomefield when a young mother who Froomefield when a oung mother who was tryin gto save her own and her baby's life was forced to abandon her babe to the waters of the St. Clair river in order to herself escape from drowning.

Aid was close at hand when the distraught woman let her child slip from her arms, though she did not know it. Her husband a moment or two later came to the rescue from the shore side, while a lifeboat from a steamer was "making time" toward the scene from the river side.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clydesdale of Froomefield left their farm home at 4.30 p.m. in a gasoline launch and took with them their five-months'-old baby girl, Jean Wells Clydesdale. They went up the river a mile to the place of an Indian named Mamabin (meaning sucker), where Mr. Clydesdale put the launch ashore and got out to look at some cattle which he proposed to purchase.

When he had disembarked, Mrs. Clydesdale, who is only 20 years of age, started the launch running and cruised quietly up and down, about 50 feet from shore.

Soon she observed a fire had started amidships underneath a seat, presumably from the engine's exhaust. With presence of mind she stopped the engine, but, fearing that the blaze might find its way to the gasoline and cause an explosion she jumped overboard with her baby.

She could swim fairly well, but, hampered by wet garments and with only one arm free she made slow progress. When about 25 feet from the shore she felt exhausted and to keep up the struggle let go her baby.

The channel is deep at this point and is close to the bank.

A steamer out in river had observed the struggling woman and sounded its whistle in alarm, at the same time letting down a lifeboat.

The woman's husband was attracted by the steamer's whistle and rushed to the water's edge.

Mrs. Clydesdale had made progress of a few feet after abandoning her baby, but was on the point of sinking when her husband reached her.

The men in the lifeboat observing the rescue turned about and returned to the steamer, which proceeded on its way. It is likely none of the steamer's crew had observed that the struggling woman had a baby with her.

The launch drifted ashore a short way down the river. Had the woman remained in it she and the child would have been saved.

Dragging operations were begun soon after the tragedy, but when darkness came the efforts of the draggers were unrewarded. Those engaged in dragging are: Robert Gibb, Archie Gibb, James Warwick, Fred Hicks, Robert Dunker and a number of Indians.

A FANTASY

Rain again! The rain fell more heavily than ever; the cold winds nipped; the roads slopped; the birds sang melancholy notes from the dripping trees; in the fields were swathes of ungathered hay and the cattle looked hopelessly melancholy.

As I walked along, round the bend of a lonely road, I heard snatches of a tuneless song. A most disreputable old woman appeared. She wore a ragged straw hat on the back of her untidy head, her spirit dragged and splashed in the mud and she sang in her cracked voice, a melancholy tune about the cold winds and rains frightening the summer away. She tracked back and forth across the road and could not be avoided; she danced an almost drunken reel, which finally made me laugh in spite of things. "I knew you would laugh, I can always make people laugh, for million of years I have filled the world with happiness." "But who are you," I asked. "Are you a lunatic or a vagabond?"

"I'm summer,' she said simply.

"Summer!" I exclaimed in astonishment.

Then she seemed to change, her hair became golden, her face all smiles and she was tall and stately. A spell was on me. The world was not real. She sang again but this time her voice was not cracked. The sun shone out from behind the clouds and the birds chirped merrily from the sparkling trees.

"Why do you masquerade in this horrible disguise," I asked. "I am acting a part—the summer of 1916. People call me vile, but I am one of the allies. It is for the best. The spoilt crops are a hundred times worse for Germany than for you. For you the wet weather means only discomfort, but for them it is disastrous.

If your crops are spoilt you can replace them abroad. If Germany's crops are spoilt, can they replace them? No.

Suddenly she changed again. The rain came in spurts, the wind rose and moaned through the trees and again I heard the same melancholy strain.

GERMAN STEAMER SUNK.

London, Aug. 17.—The sinking of the German steamship Wesar of Hamburg, 1,626 tons gross, by a submarine a fortnight ago, is reported in an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. The crew was saved.

THE UNDERSEA SWANK

BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS

The Germans could not have discounted their own claim to victory more effectually than by the pranks of their "U" boats during July. The papers were much impressed with the voyage of the Deutschland to Baltimore. But it is not even a "record." Not only have ten British submarines come from Canada under their own power, but AE1 and 2 went to Australia and one of them returned to the Dardanelles, where it was eventually lost. Much earlier some of the older submarines went to China, under convoy, it is true. But the Deutschland also, it a ppears, was under convoy of a neutral ship.

The vessel does not seem to be of a new type of the size of a submarine cruiser, capable of transporting a large cargo, but one of the ordinary German "U" boats from which the war-like fittings had been removed.

Presumably she does not carry guns even "for defence," a limitation which seems hardly applicable to a submarine, the defence of which is in submersion. It seems too, that her torpedo tubes were removed and the ports sealed, else she would not have had the limited cargo space she seems to possess. It is quite probable that the Deutschland will be treated as a belligerent submarine, not a merchant vessel, and will be sunk at sight.

It is obvious that the British cannot be expected to stop and inquire of every submarine if she is the Deutschland.

The Germans have constantly argued that their "U" boats were justified in sinking vessels at sight because owing to their limitations, they could not stop to carry out a search. Now the argument turns against them. The British are justified in sinking the Deutschland because owing to her characteristics, she will not wait to be searched.

It is said by the Germans that eighty vessels of the same type are being built. But suppose there are eighty. The Deutschland is said to have carried 320 tons of cargo. The round trip which will apparently take her two months, will enable her to carry 2,000 tons a year, and the whole tons even if they accomplish their trips in safety. This must be cold comfort to the "Vaterland" and quite likely the carrying capacity of the Deutschland has been overrated.

The latest submarine feat was the bombardment of Seaham Harbour, with the result that a woman lost her life. This even, more than the other, ron of battle cruisers and not a single mer days it would have been a squadis a confessionof defeat. For in forsubmarine. The Germans have yet to learh the British command of the sea is not to be shaken by money tricks such as this bombardment and the voyage of the Deutschland. They serve not purpose, but to emphasise its completeness.

GIRLS TRAPPED AT MOVIE SHOWS

New Confession by the Vict Trust King Gives More Details—Automobile Rides Figure Largely in the Downfall of Many a Girl

New York, Aug. 19.—Movie houses in at least two instances, were operated in New York for the sole purpose of entrapping young school girls and inducing them to lead immoral lives. Puse Bowin, "King of the vice trust," told Assistant District Attorney Smith in a new confession furnishing more details of white slavers' operations.

By free admissions and gifts of candy the two movie houses were made centres into which young girls of the upper east side swarmed at night. Ushers introduced male companions to some of the girls and made it known that the proprietors would not object to fervent lovemaking in the dark.

From the movie houses it was a quick jump to automobile rides and Broadway resorts or roadhouses culminating in the girls' downfall.

Botwin confessed that he himself had caused the ruin of nearly one hundred young girls.

"I looked over as many as I could myself," he said, "I bought them candy, and before long I had them calling me 'Daddy.' And some of those girls, after I get 'em nice jobs in houses earning good money, go and squeal on me."

LIMITLESS ORDER FOR MUNITIONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. —On authority of one of the most important munition makers in the world, it is possible to make the statement for the first time that the allies have placed orders in this country for munitions, not in the shape of many thousand shells or guns, but for "all that can be produced." One of the leading companies has such an order, which cannot be cancelled or modified earlier than September, 1917. Although it can be modified at that time, the concern is unofficially assured limitless production will be needed well into 1918.

A Good Year For Wholesalers

There has been a steady volume of trade doing in our wholesale districts. One of the houses stated that their records this year are the best they have had for the past twenty-five years, notwithstanding the high prices which have advanced, in some lines fifty to one hundred per cent.

Wholesale dry goods houses seem very cheery about the increased volume of business, notwithstanding shortage in so many lines. There is a steady volume of business doing in the wholesale grocery trade.

There has been considerable improvement in the building trade, both in new residences and factories. Builders find it very difficult to get good labourers, although they have advanced the wages on this class of labour considerably.

The butter and cheese markets have been very nervous during the past week. Butter has gone up considerably in price, and some of our large dealers predict they are going still higher. Canadian houses have been heavy buyers of American butter for this market and the export trade. The egg market rules firm, quite a large quantity of eggs going forward to the English markets, but most of these are American hen fruit, and are shipped for Canadian account.

SOME SIMPLE AND TIMELY SUGGESTIONS REGARDING HEALTH

It costs nothing to have fresh air in your home.

It costs nothing to masticate one's food thoroughly; this insures better digestion and less of the expensive, highly flavoured food is consumed; money and health are saved.

It costs nothing to cleanse the teeth thoroughly after each meal. By so doing you may save not only dentists' bills, but surgeons' and doctors' bills.

It costs nothing to eat some crusty foods that give proper employment to the teeth and thus save dentists' bills.

It costs nothing to choose the kinds of food that the body needs.

It costs nothing to keep out of your body substances like alcohol that are known to be injurious.

It costs nothing to adjust your diet so that the more expensive flesh foods are not taken in excess.

It costs nothing to avoid eating between meals candy and sweets that have high fuel value and are liable to irritate the stomach.

Belleghem & Sons' Motor Ambulance

Vehicle Arrived Yesterday and is a Credit to the Owners—Good Service is Assured

A fine new motor ambulance, the property of Belleghem and Sons, arrived in the city yesterday and made its maiden trip along the streets of Peterborough. The new ambulance was ordered eleven months ago from the A. B. Greer Co. of London, and was driven all the way from London, Ont., yesterday, under the direction of Mr. Thos. Appelby, accompanied by Mr. Arthur Belleghem.

In general appearance the new car is one of the most up-to-date turned out by the well known London firm, its interior equipment and finish being of the very best. The chassis is of a McLaughlin special model, being specially made for ambulance bodies, and has 35 by 5 inch tires, which make the conveyance of patients as comfortable and easy as possible.

The Body.

The body of the new ambulance, which is extremely new in every detail, is of a limousine type, with Berline front. The doors and windows are of sliding glass, ensuring perfect ventilation.

Both stretchers are of the improved type, one being fitted with the Marshall sanitary mattress and the other with air cushions. Accomodation for three people besides the patient is arranged for.

The interior of this handsome new car is finished in Toona mahogany of a light touch which has a very cheery effect. Three domes in the ceiling provide plenty of light.

The car is beautifully finished in combination shades of grey and altogether presents a very attractive appearance. The new ambulance is a decided credit to its owners, Messrs. Belleghem & Sons.

In the trip from London to Peterborough the ambulance covered a distance of two hundred and seventy miles and averaged twenty miles to every gallon of gasoline. The entire trip was made on high gear, which is a remarkable performance. Mr. T. W. Appleby, who drove the car, believes that it will negotiate any hill in the city on high gear.

STANDARD IDEAL CO. IS SOLD FOR OVER A MILLION

Negotiations for the purchase of the Standard Ideal Company at Port Hope, in the early development of which Sir Max Aiken was a prominent figure, were compiled yesterday, and the plant and assets passed into the hands of a new company to be known as the Port Hope Sanitary Manufacturing Company. The vendor was the Montreal Trust Company, and the price paid for the company's assets is said to be slightly in excess of a million dollars. The new company is capitalized at $1,250,000, and its directors indicate E. (M. Wood, of J. & L. M. Wood, president; R. J. Cuff, president of the Cluff Manufacturing Company, vice-president; W. D. Rose, vice-president of the Nova Scotia Steel Company, W. J. Cluff, president of the Canada Pipe & Steel Company, and M. L. Davies, vice-president of the Standard Chemical Company, directors.

It is understood that the management of the business will be in the hands of Messrs. R. J. Cluff and W. J. Cluff, the controlling interests in the Cluff Manufacturing Company, which has been for a number of years engaged in the manufacture on a large scale of plumbing supplies. The Standard Ideal Company, which has just changed hands, has been manufacturing bath tubs and porcelain goods.

The deal was finally closed yesterday as the result of a cable from Sir Max Aitken.

HERBERT TELLS STORY OF INTERVIEW WITH DUNCAN M'DONALD

Ex-Controller, of Montreal Appearing Before Drolet Street Probe, Asks for Protection of the Court as he Relates His Story of the Deal—Court Room Crowded as Former Commissioner Begins His Evidence.

MONTREAL, Aug. 19. — Asking for the protection of the Court, which was given him generously on two occasions by Mr. Justice Penneton, E. Napoleon Hebert, a former Montreal controller, was a mere shadow of his former self, when he stepped into the witness box at the Drolet street probe, to give his version of this famous civic deal.

Mr. Hebert was called by Mr. N. K. Laflamme, K.C., counsel for the City, and looking pale and nervous, he replied in an undertone to the questions that were put to him.

The court room was crowded, and when Mr. Laflamme began his examination of the former controller a pin could be heard if it had fallen on the floor.

Mr. Laflamme began—"When were you sworn as commissioner for the City of Montreal?"

Ex-Controller Hebert replied with some hesitation—"I think it was 5th April, 1918.'

"And you resigned on what date?"

"November or December, 1918."

"Did you ever take cognizance of ex-Controller McDonald's affidavit in the Hourangeau case?"

"Yes, I saw it in the papers some time later."

"Did you have a meeting with ex-Controller McDonald on 17th June, 1918?"

"Yes, I believe so."

"Will you tell us if you were invited to go to see him?"

"Yes."

"By whom?"

"By Gustave Renaud."

"Did he tell you that Mr. McDonald would be there?"

"Yes."

"Did he tell you why you were to go?"

"Yes, Mr. McDonald was to corroborate all that Gustave Renaud had told me re autobus. He was to complete a nentente re Tramways and Autobus, between me, Ainey and McDonald."

"As to what "

"As to the guarantee of $8,000,000 of Autobus bonds by the city."

"You went to Mr. McDonald's alone"

"No; I went with Renaud."

"Did Renaud go in?"

"No."

"Why?"

"Renaud said it was better that we should be alone."

"What did McDonald say first?"

Mr. Hebert (smilingly) — "He first said, 'Good evening, Hebert,' offered me a cigar. He then asked me squarely: 'Hebert, are you with us or against us?'"

"What did he mean by 'us'?"

"The Autobus."

"What did you say?"

"I said I wished to consider all the matters from the interests of the city; that I would be with anybody, provided it was in the city's interest. He said: 'If you stay with us you will always remain, in the eyes of the public, an honest man.'"

"Did he then plunge into the heart of the question?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

Asked for Protection.

The ex-Controller asked for the protection of the court, and he was assured of it by Mr. Justice Panneton.

Mr. Guerin, K.C., raised some objection to the form of Mr. Laflamme's questions, but the questions were permitted, and the court told Mr. Hebert that he had the privilege of being represented by counsel if he wanted one.

Mr. Laflamme picked up the famous affidavit of ex-Controller McDonold, and read:—"If the Drolet street deal went through, Controller Hebert said that financial assistance for him would be forthcoming, and without it he would be a ruined man, because he said he was at the mercy of somebody, who, I understand, were the interests of the Tramways Company. He impressed me, in order to save him from this position, not to oppose the Drolet street report, which at that time he thought would have the support of the Mayor and Controller Cote."

At this stage the court adjourned.

Editor of The Examiner: Is it right for a Christian to join with the nations in their wars? No. Why not? Because God is not at war with any nation. "God is in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them." God would have all men to be saved and to that end "is preaching peace by Jesus Christ." And all Christians are "ambassadors" for Christ. Where is then the consistency in carrying a message of peace in one hand and a sword in the other? Moreover all the nations are at war with God. They are enemies of God and of Christ and need to be reconciled. And when Christ comes to judge and "make war in righteousness" does He choose His followers from any of the armies of earth? Not at all. "The armies in heaven followed Him." "They that are with Him are called and chosen and faithful." Abel and Enoch and Noah and Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and all the prophets, and the "many" from the east and west and the north and the south, who shall "sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. The great nations of earth and their rulers—"these shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them, for He is Lord of Lords and King of Kings."

"God has given to His Son this title of honour and requires all men should give him the like honour—for His name is above every name, that every knee should bow and every tongue confess that He is Lord."

Soon He will come forth in power and glory "and out of His mouth goeth a sharp sword that with it He should smite the nations," rule them with a rod of iron, dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel." And those who are with Him in spirit and object and person (His called and chosen and faithful ones) are called to echo His message of grace and warning, "Be wise now, therefore, ye kings: be instructed ye judges of the earth. And when God says "Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion," shall not we say unfeignedly "I will extol thee my God and King, and I will bless Thy name for ever and ever. Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom and Thy dominion throughout all generations."

Looks For Sudden German Collapse

In The Final Settlement Neutrals Must Stay Out—Statement From Former Assistant Attorney-General of the United States.

The Toronto Globe carried the following special to-day, being an opinion by Hon. James Montgomery Beck, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, and it is a most common sense view to take of the situation:

LONDON, Aug. 19.—I have had a most interesting visit in Britain and France in one of the atormiest crisis of human history, and I carry back to America the spirit of absolute confidence in the ultimate and not distant triumph of the allies, of which I have seen so many striking evidences.

If I were asked to state the two most impressive things I saw, I would answer: "The British fleet and the defender of Verdun.

While the latter town is sufficiently ruined to remind one of Pompeii, yet the citadel remains unimpaired, and the encircling armies of France stand like a stone wall.

Before I came I believed that Germany's internal resources were suffering from a slow disintegration, and that the war would end that way, but I am not sure now that the military power of Germany may not suddenly collapse through impaired morale and deficiency of munitions.

Neutrals Must Keep Out.

Neutral nations have for many reasons refused to participate in the war. This non-participation may in many cases be justified, but it would seem manifest to me that the failure to participate makes it most unwise that any nation should interfere by voluntary mediation or intervention whe the battle is won. It can do no possible good and may do infinite harm.

When the allies win they will have paid for the victory for an appalling cost of life and treasure, and may therefore feel justified to determine, free from any interference on the part of neutral nations, the questions between themselves and their enemies.

I venture the suggestion that when the war is ended the allied nations should select five distinguished jurists and four neutral nations, say Holland, Switzerland, Spain and the United States, each to be asked to name a jurist body thus to be formed to consider primarily what offences of the Central Powers are of such heinous character as to justify postbellum punitive action against individuals and in what manner such punitive measures could be taken.

ORGANIZE TO COMBAT GERMANS AFTER WAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—An answer to the Pan-German movement, whereby Germany hoped to gain her "place in the sun" of the commercial world, is contained in the prospectus of the British Empire Union, now bidding for 5,000,000 members throughout the British Empire, and whose avowed object is the abolition of German influence. A copy of this prospectus reached this country yesterday.

"The German civilian in the black coat," the prospectus says, "is as dangerous an enemy as the soldier in field gray. For a generation it has been the role of the Germans in our midst to grip and paralyse the arm of Britain so that in the hour of danger we should be at their mercy. We felt their grip on our financial institutions when the Stock Exchange was closed to avert panic and ruin. We felt it on our trade, on our metal markets, on our ouput of dyes, drugs, optical glasses, and those 'key industries' which are as vital to commerce as the mainspring to a watch.

"Germans and their dupes and sympathisers have sat in our Parliament, molded our legislation, spoken through our press. Under German influence our people were encouraged to deride the German war bogy, the 'Zeppelin scares,' and the 'spy mania' until war revealed the truth. Every movement of social and industrial unrest has been approved, if not actively assisted, by the Germans among us. Our national security has been menaced for more years than the war has lasted months."

"All these sacrifices will have been in vain if, after the war, Germans are allowed to gain by 'peaceful penetration' the victory denied to their arms. To make that crowning calamity impossible is the work for which the British Empire Union has been founded."

Plan For Campaign.

The plan of campaign under which the union will operate is stated as follows:

(1' To expound the folly of granting peace on terms so easy as to make it possible for the Germans again to disturb the peace of the world.

(2' To advocate that all German property throughout the Empire shall be held as security for compensating British subjects for losses caused by the war.

(3) To enforce strictly existing laws and Orders in Council for the registration of aliens, and to prohibit Germans, naturalised or otherwise, from changing their names for trade or other purposes, and to cancel all such changes made since Aug. 4, 1914.

(4) To abolish the present system of wholesale naturalisation, which has proved to be so grave a public danger in time of war.

(5) To remove from public offices, and from the enjoyment of civic or other honours or titles, all persons of German birth and sympathies.

(6) To enact that British Consuls shall in future be of British birth.

(7) To discourage, and, if possible, prevent the employment of Germans in this country, either by a tax on employers of Germans or by other suitable methods.

(8) To restrict the import of all such German goods as can be supplied equally well from British sources or from allied countries.

(9) To alter our Companies Acts so as to prevent a controlling interest in any British company being held by Germans.

(10) To prohibit the sale of land and house property to Germans; and to enforce the acts restricting alien immigration.

(11) To strengthen the hands of the Government in dealing with enemy aliens, to repatriate at once all who are unfitted for military service, instead of maintaining them, and at the end of the war all who have been interned.

(12) To advocate the formation of a register in which all traders of foreign nationality will be compelled to record their real names and nationality.

(13) To urge the Government to publish a list of interned enemy aliens as well as of German firms and of those in which enemy aliens have a controlling interest.

(14) To support a national scheme for finding occupation for able soldiers and sailors on their disbandment, as well as for those who are partially or totally disabled.

Commercial Policy.

The commercial policy proposed is outlined thus:

1. Supporting the Chambers of Commerce in their policy in regard to German attacks upon our commerce and industry after the war.

2. Advocating, and as far as possible assisting in making, arrangements whereby British banks or industrial trust companies can assist British firms to extend their businesses.

3. Forming a customs union between the British Empire and her allies, in order to cement the bond between these united countries, and to exclude from them, as far as possible, all German goods competing with their industries.

4. Giving a preference within the empire to the British dominions with a view to making the empire self-supporting.

5. Endeavouring to improve transit arrangements for agricultural and other products throughout the country, so that home-grown produce may be better able to compete with foreign, and particularly to prevent British railways from giving such preferential rates to aliens as may affect British trade.

6. Supporting the Board of Trade in obtaining:

(a) State grants for the promotion of scientific research in the interests of trade and industry.

(b) Amendments of existing laws—e.g., as to copyright, patents, trade marks, the Merchandise Marks, act &c.

(c) The promotion of trade fairs and exhibitions.

7. Advocating that the country of origin shall be marked or affixed on all foreign goods, and not only on the boxes or coverings; and also that it must appear in plain type on all advertisements of such goods.

The prospectus appeals for funds to carry on the work outlined. The officers of the Union are: E. B. Osborn, Chairman; Alexander Bethune, J. P, Treasurer; Sir George Makgill, Secretary, and Reginald Wilson, Assistant and Business Secretary.

GREAT AIRCRAFT BEING BUILT IN MONTREAL WORKS

Will Carry Twelve People and Several Machine-Guns, Fly at Ninety Miles an Hour—Canada's Great Natural Opportunities.

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—One of the largest hydro-aeroplanes in the world is being built in Montreal today, and will be ready to take the air early next year.

It is being built in the workshops of Henry Morgan & Co., Ltd., on Union Avenue, to the order and design of J. R. Booth, Jr., of the R.N.A.S., Ottawa, and H. A. Somerville, of Montreal, a journalist, who has studied aeronautics and holds a pilot's certificate.

The sections of it which are already completed give some idea of the huge dimensions of the craft.

It will be fitted with motors of 300 horse power, has a spread over all of 64 feet, a chord of 6 feet, and a gap of 6 feet 6 ins. Its weight is 2,800 pounds, and the area of the planes 720 square feet.

And it will go 90 miles an hour and lift 4,320 pounds.

It will carry very comfortably eight men, a two pounder gun and a few machine guns.

With the exception of the bottom of the "hull," where the keel would be if it had one, the whole thing is built of wood. The bottom is aluminium. The body at first sight looks something like a wooden Zeppelin. It is a wonderful contrivance. Big enough to hold twelve people and a suite of furniture, and is built to stand air pressure and to offer as little resistance as possible in moving through the air. It is made of strips of basswood, wound one over the other in spirals and fastened with thousands of copper rivets. This arrangement gives both strength and elasticity.

Wood Versus Metal.

"The great advantage of wood here," said Mr. Somerville, "is that bullets go through it." Doesn't sound much like an advantage, but it is. A metal hull might get bent up and absolutely ruined. You can empty a machine gun into this craft without hurting it much.

The planes are monsters, made up of thousands of carefully shaped strips of wood, each devised to minimize air resistance. They are to be covered with the finest, strongest Irish linen.

There are several points of difference between this and other hydro-aeroplanes, one of the main features being the well-placed cabin. In most other machines the passengers are in the cockpit, well forward; on this machine they will be the centre of gravity, which is also the centre of pressure. The machine will balance as perfectly with a dozen passengers as with one or two.

"It is our object," said Mr. Somerville, "to have a machine that will be the very last word in aircraft. Even the appearance of the thing is being studied carefully. We are going to have the body of this hydro-aeroplane finished as neatly and smoothly as the body of a limousine."

When it is finished the hydro-aeroplane is to fly over the Lake of the Two Mountains.

Great Possibilities.

Mr. Somerville has some very strong opinions concerning the neglect of the aeroplane industry in Canada.

"Canada is better equipped, by virtue of its natural resources, to undertake the construction of aircraft than any other country in the world," he told The Star. "It is a great pity to see so much money go to the United States that might have come here. Forty million dollars have been spent on aircraft in the United States in the last eighteen months, and every dollar of it could have been spent in Canada—Canadian firms could have delivered the goods.

"We have here the finest aeroplane wood in the world—the Canadian silver spruce. Breaking tests have proved it has no equal. We have also, by reason of the size of the country and the sparse population, more need of aircraft than any other country, and yet the industry has been neglected. But I think there is a good time coming pretty soon."

DUBLIN RISES FROM THE RUINS MODERN EDIFICES GOING UP

"Include Ulster or No Home Rule at Present," is the Attitude of the People—Throngs of Eligible Young Men are Not in Uniform —Khaki is Not Conspicuous.

DUBLIN, Aug. 17—A transformed place indeed is this city since the writer's last visit. Now, in place of the noise of rifle-shots, the rattle of traffic sounds in the streets and the pacific cries of newsboys and hucksters resound where in those awful days the sentry's challenge and the word of command rang out on barricaded thoroughfares. Dublin has been pretty well its old self this long time, and the ruins of Sackville street, neatly fenced off and destined for reconstruction, have lost their appalling look when smoking from the fire and cannonade.

Sentimentality aside, modern steel and concrete structures will be a vast improvement on the old buildings. Already, on side streets, neat, red brick edifices have risen from the ruins of bombarded places. "Business as usual" seems to be the motto in Dublin, and merchants say they cannot complain, though some timorous souls from the surrounding country show a disposition to send their custo,mto the north instead.

STRIKING CONTRAST.

Like the rest of Ireland, especially of the south, Dublin presents a strange aspect to the visitor from England or Scotland. The recruiting sergeant and the exhorting poster, long obsolete in the rest of the United Kingdom, are here in evidence. Hotel bars—and there are many more per capita than even in Toronto's palmiest days—keep the old hours, no Defense of the Realm Act being in force here. Lights, too, are practically unrestricted. Street lamps blaze unpreserved, blinds need not be pulled down, and railway trains rush with undimmed widows through the night. What a contrast to darken England!

KHAKI NOT CONSPICIOUS.

Excursions, long banned in Britain "carry on" over here, and swarms avail themselves of cheap trips to the seaside these sweltering dog-days. In this guise, Ireland certainly has no appearance of a country of war. Naturally, the first thing to strike a newcomer, especially a Canadian resident for some time in England is the throngs of eligible young men not in uniform. Truly khaki is not conspicious in the streets, though what soldiers there are seem popular enough. During an extended tour of the south your correspondent never heard an unfriendly word addressed to any soldier. The Green Isle, has so far, sent 60,000 of her sons to fight in the war, and many of the bravest regiments hail from the south.

ALL TALK HOME RULE

Home Rule is, of course, the topic of the hour. Practically every man or woman your correspondent met in Southern Ireland was warm for it, and for the inclusion of Ulster. A united Ireland or no Home Rule at all for the present, would seem to be the attitude of the majority in Dublin. Business men argue that even in the North did not come in at first she would be glad to do so in the end. For Southern Ireland, with three-quarters of the population, is a big market for the manufacturers of the North, and a tariff wall would course the Northern people have their side, but of that later.

A TALE MEETING

On that broiling hot Sunday appointed for the anti-partition of Ireland, meeting great crowds flocked to Phoenix Park to hear the speeches. Up on the "Nine Acres" of the beautiful "Phaynix" soon after one o'clock the Lord Mayor opened the meeting. By ardent Nationalists great hopes had been held that on this occasion a tremendous outburst of enthusiasm would ensue. Some Sinn Feiners possibly even expected something stronger. But the meeting was a fiasle. And excepting for one speech the crowd hardly evinced its enthusiasm by any cheering. It was a most pacific-looking crowd as I saw it quite similar to a multitude of 'fans' returning from a ball game on a hot afternoon at the Island Stadium. The weather was too stifling to engender much excitement. In fact, everyone seemed good-natured and indifferent only mildly interested, and in these latter respects quite unlike the onlookers at a good ball game. Men in their Sunday best preponderated, but there were some girls and women.

The girls furnished what animation there was. Two of them led a procession on the return, marching down the roadway, the one bearing a banner with the Sinn Fein colors, of yellow, white and green. They sang a song of rebel nature, and one of them bawled defiantly" Faith, I would die for ould Oireland!"

MISSING FINE CHANCE.

A small convoy of rash youths—looking like younger clerks in stores—followed, and the onlookers rather anticipated a small riot. But the inflammatory songs failed in their object, and the fine, big men of the Royal Irish Constabulary marching hard by in two squads, were not confronted with any trouble.

This parade brought cheap glory for the few youths assembled. The Sinn Fein ecorn in their button-holes conferred, a feeling of great belligerency, making heroes of them without any of the nasty, warlike risks attendant upon the donning of khaki as real soldiers.

"Ah," exclaimed one older man as he passed the writer in the crowd. "This meeting was a fine chance for a big demonstration, but no one seemed to give a d——, and now we have missed it!"

VICTIMS OF MISTAKES

Picture postcards of the rebel leaders executed or sentenced for their work in the late rising are to be seen in a few of the shops. They also adorn booklets containing official accounts of the fighting. Out at Glasnevin Cemetery I saw the grave of Sheehy Skeffington, the Sinn Fein journalist over whose summary shooting there was a lengthy investigation. His death was one of those unfortunate incidents bound to happen in such a state of chaos as prevailed in Dublin at the time, when even Lieut Lucas, the brave Canadian officer, in the execution of his duty, was the victim of tragic mistake.

On Skeffington's grave hung a small wreath of flowers "from a few Suffragettes". Close to where O'Connell, the great Irish patriot's tomb is marked by the biggest monument in this historic burying ground, a modern Irish round-tower, standing one hundred and fifty feet in height, your correspondent got into conversation with a Dublinite. The latter shook his head at memory of the rising.

SIR SAM IN FRANCE.

Minister of Militia to See Canadians at the Front.

London, Aug. 19.—Sir Sam Hughes, the Canadian Minister of Militia, crossed to France, accompanied by Lord Brooke, Lord Rothermere, Sir Max Aitken and Major Bassett. The party were carried across on a destroyer. The Minister will arrive at the front at an important moment for the Canadian corps, and he will have the opportunity of seeing the troops which were reviewed recently in England.

PROGRESS OF THE BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Doubles Will Extend Into Next Week and Will be Completed on Friday Next

The tournament doubles will extend into next week. They will be completed on Friday next.

It will be in order for all skips to acquaint themselves with the dates of their games.

The dates are posted up in the club-house. It will not be taken as an excuse that the skip was not told when he had to play.

The club considers it to be sufficient notice, when the dates are posted as above.

The schedule games played last night resulted as follows:

Wightman—2 0 0 0 2 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 (handicap 3)—10.

On the Civic holiday two local rinks visited Port Hope. Two very enjoyable games were played, with the honours equally divided. Scores:

Rev. McCulloch (Port Hope), 10; R. Elliot (Peterborough), 26.

Oke (Port Hope), 23; J. Read (Peterborough), 18.

Welsh Is Favorite Over Charley White

DENVER, Aug. 19.—Supremely confident that Charley White will win the light-weight championship title from Freddie Welsh, when the pair meet in their twenty-round fight at Colorado Springs, Labour Day, Nate Lewis, White's manager, is here to-day to take charge of White's training. Although most fight fans believe White's only chance to win is by a knockout, Lewis doesn't agree with them.

"In the last ten rounds, should Freddie stay out the first half of the go, he will be given the most terrible lacing he ever received," asserted Lewis. "If the fight goes the limit, Welsh will finish so nearly out there will be no question as to the winner."

Welsh shows great improvement after his two days' road work, and even at this stage is close to the weight limit. Freddie has engaged Benny Chaves, Denver's flashy feather-weight, as sparring partner, and will do most of his preliminary boxing with the Mexican.

Welsh has been made a 6-to-5 favourite in local betting.

Sprays of flowers are appliqued on the silk skirts of young girls' evening frocks— the silk being veiled with tulle.

When potting plants put a piece of coarse muslin over the whole in the pot before putting in the bits of stone and soil, which keeps the drainage good. The muslin prevents the earth from washing away.

BURIED IN A CHEAP COFFIN

Body of Kaiser's Nephew in Humble Cemetery at Hazebrouk.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The circumstances of the death and mysterious disappearance of the body of Prince Maximilian of Hesse, whose relatives invoked the aid of the Pope in an effort to obtain this information, are disclosed by a writer in the Petit Parisien. The writer asserts that the Prince was shot in the groin during an engagement between a Saxon detachment and an English patrol near Godewaersvelde, in northern France, early in the war.

The Prince was found by Trappist monks and taken to their monastery, where he died soon after. The monks were ordered to evacuate the monastery, and Father Bernard, visiting the cloister on the following day, found that the body of the Prince was missing.

Later the Prince's family appealed to the Pope to obtain information as to the disposition of the Prince's body, but without success. The Petit Parisien writer says the body reposes in a humble cemetery in Hazebrouck, that it was kept two days in a house there, was once interred, but exhumed at night and finally buried in a coffin costing thirty francs, which were advanced by a poor man out of pity.

Prince Maximilian was 30 years of age and the son of the youngest sister of Emperor William of Germany. Previously it had been stated that he was fatally wounded in an engagement near Mont Descats, on Oct. 12, 1914, and that the body was buried in a monastery. He was a sub-lieutenant in an infantry regiment, and was a nephew of Alexander Frederick, the Landgrave of Hesse, the second and non-reigning branch of the Hesse family.

DAVIS WAS DESPONDENT

Canadian Mining Man Committed Suicide in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Morse Davis, a mining man of Victoria, B.C., committed suicide in his hotel apartments here Aug. 9 while despondent over financial affairs, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

Davis was found dead and his wife ill in their apartments. Mrs. Davis said they had both taken a poison, mistaking it for a medicine.

Henry C. Davis, of New York, testified at the inquest that his brother, the deceased, had been despondent over financial affairs.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. FISHER.

By the death on Monday, August 7th, of Letitia Hunter, the beloved wife of William James Fisher, and daughter of the late William Hunter of Cavan, Millbrook loses one of her most highly respected residents.

The deceased lady had been in her usual health, but on the above morning, while attending her household duties, she took a weak spell, and before medical aid could be had her spirit took its flight.

She was born on the old homestead, north east of Millbrook, where she resided until her marriage to Mr. W. J. Fisher. Their union was a very happy one and those who were best acquainted with the family know that their home was a model one, each and every member of the family endeavoring to make it comfortable and pleasant.

Deceased lady was a member of the Presbyterian church, Centreville, for many years, and while she was able took an active part in the work of the church. She was a Christian lady in every sense of the term, and her many beautiful qualities of mind and heart will long be remembered.

The funeral took place on Wednesday from the family residence, Anne Street, Millbrook, to the Presbyterian cemetery. Rev. Dr. Lee conducted services on the lawn and at the grave. He spoke words of comfort to the bereaved ones, pointing out that the wife, mother and sister had only "gone before" to the better land; that they too by living as true and consistent a Christian life as the deceased, would also receive a crown of glory, and be forever with the Lord.

A very large concourse of friends and relatives attended the funeral obsequies, among those from a distance being: The brothers of deceased (excepting Rev. W. A. and Rev. R. J.), the sisters and their husbands. Mr. W. Little and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fisher, of Peterboro; Mrs. John Reynolds, and daughter, Margaret, of Toronto.

Beautiful floral tributes were placed on the casket as follows: Wreath from the family; pillow from sisters; anchor from brothers; spray from Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fisher wreath from Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, Toronto; lovely bouquets from Mr. and Mrs. A. T., and Miss Bessie Armstrong and others.

The pall bearers were: Charles Fisher, David, Alexander and Sam Hunter, John Hutchinson, and Lewis Byers.

Besides the sorrowing husband, one son, Bruce F., who is a gunner in the Reserve Battery now in England, and two daughters, Mrs. (Rev.) Finlay Matheson, of Stratford, and Miss Mamie, at home; also five brothers, David, of Peterboro; Rev. W. A., D.D., of Riverside, Cal.; Rev. R. J., D.D., of Cour d'Alene, Idaho; Alex., of Cavanville; Sam. of Cavan; and four sisters, Mrs. John Hutchinson, of Peterboro; Mrs. Dobbin, of Cavan; Mrs. Louis Byers of Bailieboro; and Mrs. Douglas Gray of Garden Hill, survive her, to all of whom this paper joins in extending sincerest sympathy.—Millbrook Reporter.

Militia Department Contradicts Statement

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—An impression which has been disseminated as the result of a news item published generally in Canadian papers from Ottawa, that a soldier could not be a deserter until his battalion went overseas, was vigorously contradicted at the Militia Department. The despatch in question was apropos of a police court case whose outcome was stated to prove this contention, an Order-in-Council governing desertion which was passed last January being cited as authority.

It was stated at the Militia Department yesterday that such is not the case, and that a soldier who absents himself for a sufficient period without leave is a deserter whether his battalion is overseas or at home.

Mr. F. B. McCurdy, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of the Department, stated yesterday that the police court case in Ottawa referred to was decided solely in the absence of proof called for by the Order-in-Council of last January. Clause 1 of this order is to the following effect:

"Every man of the active militia of Canada and every soldier of the Canadian overseas forces who absents himself from the corps or unit to which he belongs without the leave of the commanding officer, is guilty of an offence and liable upon summary conviction under the provisions of Part 15 of the Criminal Code to imprisonment with or without hard labour for a term not exceeding two years."

Power of Officers.

Some misunderstanding also appears to have arisen as regards the power of commanding officers of units to sentence men to jail for being absent without leave. This has been done in Ottawa military district and other places as well. According to the Militia Department however, no commanding officer has such power. He may give a soldier 28 days' detention for being absent without leave, but cannot imprison him. A magistrate must pass the sentence. Since war broke out special permission has been given magistrates to try cases of absence without leave.

It was also stated at the Militia Department yesterday that parents of boys who have enlisted in the expeditionary forces, who appear at the last moment and claim their offspring will not be allowed to do so in the future. The matter has been gone into and Judge Advocate-General Smith has given his decision that a boy, if regularly enlisted and in receipt of pay, cannot be withdrawn from the ranks by request of his parents or other persons. A number of cases of the kind have occurred since the war.

WEDDING BELLS

TURNER—MORRIS.

A very pretty wedding took place this morning at 6.30 at the home of Mr. W. D. Morris, 43 Lansdowne street, when his daughter, Ola, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. E. Melville, son of Mr. W. R. Turner.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. T. Crosley of Hamilton, uncle of the bride. The happy couple left on a motor trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, and on their return will reside in the city.

BIRNIE—SANDERSON.

A pretty wedding was held yesterday afternoon at the summer cottage of Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, Stoney Lake, when her daughter, Marguerite Isobel, was united in marriage to Lieut. Fred Pope Birnie. Miss Jessie Cressman acted as bridesmaid. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Finlay Matheson, of St. Andrew's church, Stratford, who is supplying the pulpit of St. Paul's church here during the absence of Rev. R. Pogue on his vacation.

STORM IN ALBERTA; OATS BADLY DAMAGED

HEAVY RAIN, LOW TEMPERATURE, BUT DANGER OF FROST NOT APPREHENDED.

Calgary, Alta., August 19.—A northeast storm, accompanied by heavy rain and a low temperature, which swept over southern Alberta yesterday, has since moderated. The wind has worked to the westward and the temperature averages 43 degrees, which is a rise of three degrees since noon. Rain is still falling but the sky is heavily overcast so that no danger of frost is apprehended. Grain has been beaten down in many places, oats particularly being badly lodged.

Reports from Banff, Cochrane and other points west are to the effect that considerable snow has fallen. Occasional snow flurries were reported from other places in the district.

THE BRITISH ADVANCE ALONG AN ELEVEN MILE FRONT

Germans Made A Desperate Effort To Regain Lost Ground

British Troops Make A Forward Thrust On Western Front

Allies Advance on an Eleven Mile Front Capturing an Important Ridge Overlooking Thiepval Together With 796 Prisoners — Germans Made Futile Efforts to Recover the Lost Ground—Canadian Artillery Active on the Ypres Front.

SUNDAY WAR DESPATCHES

LONDON, August 21.—The British have advanced along an eleven-trenches west of Highwood, taking 796 prisoners.
trenches west of Highwod, taking 796 prisoners.

The French have driven the Germans out of a portion of a trench north of Maurepas. Artillery fighting continues on the right bank of the Meuse.

Heavy fighting is reported from the British front in Flanders where the Germans made every efforts to recover the lost ground but failed. One report says that the British took several thousand prisoners.

Word received that the Canadians were again severely attacked by the Germans on the Ypres front, but held all ground. Canadian artillery was especially active.

COUNTER ATTACK REPULSED.

PARIS, August 21.—All German counter attacks to regain the ground lost were repulsed with heavy enemy losses. Details are coming in slowly of the British advance. It is characterized as a very heavy gain.

BERLIN, August 21.—War Office says that the French and British effort was "stupendous," and admits that the Allies made considerable advance.

STUBBORN FIGHTING.

LONDON, August 21.—The official communiques issued by the War Offices in London and Paris the last few days have given no indication of the stubborn twenty-four hour a day fighting which is in progress in Picardy all along the front from Pozieres to the Somme. The allied armies have been unceasing in their attacks, especially on the eastern side of the salient they have pushed into the Prussian front. But except for the engagement on Thursday, which brought into action quite large forces, the struggle has been maintained by comparatively small effectives.

The fighting centres about Guillemont, on the British front, and Maurepas, on the French front. The Prussians at Guillemont, since they recaptured the village more than a fortnight ago, have considerably strengthened the railway and the Mametz-Combles road and seem to have held up the advance from the west. Meeting this obstacle General Haig is shifting his attacks somewhat to the north and is putting his heaviest pressure on the sector between Guillemont and Ginchy. A formidable redoubt, constructed from a brickyard just south of Minchy, is the principal Prussian point of support in this region.

Attacks in force on this part of the line have been subordinated to the incessant battering of the artillery and small storming parties that give no rest to their adversaries. It is a wearing policy that is producing results, not spectacularly but steadily. Feet, rather than rods, are worn away from the opposing positions. The policy has the advantage in that while it is slower it is less expensive for the offensive.

RUSSIANS CAUGHT THE GERMANS OFF THEIR GUARD

Gen. Brusiloff Suddenly Shifted His Attack to the Stokhod River Front and His Driving Westward — Sensational Events Looked

A STRATEGIC MOVE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21.— By suddenly shifting his attack to the Stokhod river front northeast of Kovel Gen Brusiloff has caught the Germans off their guard and is driving westward for substantial gains. Realizing that Gen. Bethmer's army had been crushed the Germans began stripping their northern front of every available man and sending them southward to defend Lemberg. It was while this troop movement was under way that Brusiloff struck further north with his right wing. His flanking attack menaces both Kovel and the German army at Pinsk, Russian officers seem supremely confident things are moving in favour of the allies, warranting the belief that sensational events are due before the cold weather.

RUSSIAN TROOPS BREAK THROUGH STOKHOD LINE

Several Heights Captured in Hungary Three Miles From the Border — Austrians Compelled to Withdraw Troops.

HOLDING ALL GAINS

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21. — After breaking through the Stokhod line the Russians captured several heights. In Hungary, three miles from the border the Russians drove the enemy back and occupied positions. The Russians are holding all gains all along the line. The Germans have lost many thousand men in counter attacks during the last few days.

ADMITS WITHDRAWAL.

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—Austrians compelled to withdraw troops west of Kolomea after fierce fighting.

The Russians are concentrating for a new attack on Lemberg.

Fighting on The Saloniki Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Allied forces are in contact with the Germans and Bulgarians along the entire Saloniki front and have taken five villages.

A LATER DESPATCH.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Bulgarian troops have occupied two more forts in Greek territory.

Doubts Berlin's Ability To Conduct Underseas War

Naval Writer in the Temps Says Resumption of Submarine Campaign is Admission of Defeat in the Great Battle of Jutland—A Fair Weather Weapon—Review of the Submarine Situation Since the Commencement of the War.

TONNAGE COST

PARIS, August 21.—The naval expert of the Paris Temps, Mr. A. Rousseau, publishes a very complete analysis of Germany's submarine warfare against merchant ships. Noting that it was only in February, 1915, that submarine attacks began to be methodically organized—that is, in the seventh month of the war—he proceeds to estimate the losses caused by Prussian and Austrian submarines to the merchant ships of the Allies and to those of neutral nations. Neutral ships, he says, have been torpedoed almost as frequently as those of the Allies.

"What will be the result of the new submarine campaign?" asks the Temps' expert. "One can hardly believe it will succeed. In any case the chart of tonnage lost during the term of the first Prussian memorandum shows that the result of the submarine commercial war was 1,187,929 tons sunk during the thirteen months it lasted. Taking twelve months, the loss was 1,091,864 tons, which represents only two and one-fifth per cent. of the world's total merchant marine, both sail and steam, a very small proportion when it is considered that the ordinary loss of material due to casualties of the sea was an average of two and twelve-hundredths per cent. for the nine years preceding 1915.

"The hope of Prussians to cause a complete stoppage of British commerce therefore has met with a complete check. Nothing can demonstrate this better than the movement in British ports, which has remained undisturbed. Incoming and outgoing ships of more than three hundred tons number an average of 1,300 each week. Commercial activity continues. Prussian submarines therefore, though they have caused damage, have been without any result than can influence the decision of the war.

"On the other hand, the figures furnish valuable information not on the intrinsic value of the submarine as a weapon of war but on the regularity of its action. Statistics for fifteen months show that the activity of submarines can be measured better by the number of ships than by the tonage. The torpedo fired at a small ship requires just as much capability as if it were fired at a big ship. The working of the submarine is the same, and to have a true idea of it the number of shots reaching the target should be considered—that is, the number of ships sunk.

"There is one objection—small ships are more numerous than big ones. In the chase the big marks are rare, and a submarine which has not the luck to fall in with them may nevertheless show the same number of successful shots by sinking small ships.

FAIR WEATHER WEAPON.

"At the beginning of the marine campaign the monthly total of ships sunk increased regularly from February to June, when the nights are shorter; remained almost at a level for the next two months, in summer, when the weather is calmer, than in any other period of the year. Then when September came, with its equinoctial storms and the rapid shortening of daylight, the decline was as rapid as the rise. October corresponds almost to the preceding March.

"With fine weather the submarine war begins again in 1916 almost at the same date is in 1916, and the progress reached by the Teutons in building submarines and the professional ability of their crews are balanced by the progress made by the Allies in defences against submarines. The evidence plainly shows that the submarine is a weapon which is only fully effective when the weather is good and the sun is for a long time above the horizon. The navigation of merchant ships as well as surface war ships is continuous. Submarines therefore cannot meet the necessity of attack in all circumstances. The irregularity of their operation prevents their being substituted for war ships, the action of which is permanent. They are an element of naval equipment, but only one element.

CAUSE OF NEW CAMPAIGN.

The menace of the Prussian renewal of submarine war consists in the expression of an intention which will not be denied. The Temps, however, doubts whether the Prussian submarine fleet is in condition to resume its activities with its full intensity. It is asked why Prussia wants to renew submarine warfare now in spite of previous attempts which have had no influence on the movement in British ports, on the transportation of allied troops, on the provisioning of Britain, France or Russia or their expeditionary forces. The answer is easy, according to the Temps. It is because submarine warfare is the only way Prussia has to injure her enemy at sea and also to hurt neutrals whose partiality for her seems insufficient.

The Temps quotes the statement of Dr. Dernburg that in her note to the United States Germany reserved the right to resume submarine warfare if America did not intervene with Great Britain to stop her warfare of starvation. The Temps adds:—"The blackmail was plain and contains also the admission that Germany finds it impossible by herself alone to assure the feeding of her population. To stop the warfare of starvation would be equivalent on the part of the Allies to giving to Germany freedom of the seas, and freedom of the seas is the principal advantage of maritime warfare, an advantage which cannot be given by neutrals because it is the result of the superiority of naval armaments and of success in naval battles.

"The resumption of submarine warfare is Prussia's last card. It reveals the truth two months after the battle of Jutland, which the Prussian government and all the German writers sought to transform into a great victory for their arms. But a little in which nothing is gained is not a victory. The seas are as closed to the Prussian fleets now as they were before. The battle of Jutland was a complete check, so complete that the resumption of submarine warfare is a recognition of it as well as an avowal of the abandonment of action by the high sea fleet."

SCARCITY OF MANY HARDWARE LINES

Review of the Hardware and Metal Market for the Past Week—Labour Scarce

"Hardware and Metal" says: — From the standpoint of prices changes the past week has been one of the most important in the past two or three moths. Advances have been recorded in the prices of iron and steel, fence wire, staples, fence hooks, glass, resin, asbestos wick, revolving churns, drills, wood handles, escutcheon pins, whiting, curry combs, tacks, nails, thumb latches and other commodities. Declines have taken place in the price of white lead in oil, gasoline and benzine, one line of saws. Prices have been withdrawn, or are under revision, on cast washers, shot shells, clothes wringers, washing machines, scales. The new prices when issued will probably show advances. The declines in the price of white lead in oil, and gasoline will not come as a surprise, both have been predicted in this paper on a number of occasions during the past few weeks. All metals are firmer, and reports from most manufacturing centres indicate an improved local demand. Many buyers appear to have made up their minds that there is nothing to gain by delaying longer. There is a heavy demand for iron and steel. Recent hot weather has had a tendency to curtail the output. The advent of cool weather will no doubt help to increase production to a certain extent. The sudden revival in steel has come as a surprise to some dealers. Steel makers are again falling behind, and the demand is as insistent as ever. The Allies have placed several new large orders for large-sized shells in the United States. There is a great scarcity of many hardware lines. The labour situation is serious. Many manufacturers are badly handicapped owing to inability to secure skilled help. The freight concession, especially at Toronto, is causing great delays and inconvenience to both wholesalers and retailers. Practically all wire products have advanced here following recent advance in the United States. Wire nails have advanced 10 cents per keg. A new manufacturer of wire nails is about to enter the field in Canada. The outlook for fall trade in Ontario and the East is good. The Western outlook, although bright at present, is rather uncertain owing to the crop situation. Bookings for fall are good, indicating that merchants generally are looking for a good volume of trade. Retailers report that they are not experiencing any great difficulty in securing the advanced prices on goods made necessary by higher costs. There is a feeling, however, that prices on some lines are higher than warranted under present conditions.

GIVES UP TWILIGHT SLEEP.

Johns Hopkins Hospital Finds Dangers in Scopalomin.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 17.—Johns Hopkins Hospital has practically disapproved the "twilight sleep" method in child birth. The hospital authorities abandoned experimental use of the method more than nine months ago. The conclusion reached is that it is too perilous, that the menace to the life of the child is too grave to warrant its use except under the most favourable circumstances.

After more than a year's use of the twilight sleep drug, scopalomin, the obstetricians found that it could be safely used only under exceptional conditions because of questions regarding the proper dossage.

"Scopalomin is far from the ideal drug for child-bearing,' said Dr. Millea Tuesday. "The attendant dangers are so great that it can never come into general use."

WINDSOR, Aug. 21.—Unless her intended husband comes along with $300 and costs, Rosie Kawasolski, aged 30, of Ford City, will have to spend three months in Sandwich jail. She was fined this amount by Magistrate Leggatt after being found guilty of selling liquor without a license. She is to be married next month.

Her intended husband called on Chief Maisonville Friday morning and paid $2 towards the $300 in the hope it would stay the trip to Sandwich. The minimum fine was imposed on the woman.

No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

SPY'S FATE IN 1777.

How General Israel Putnam Disposed of Traitors.

A curious and unfamiliar page in American history shows that the treatment of the spy was as prompt and rigorous in 1777 as it is to-day among the powers of the great war. Every American schoolboy knows the fate of Major Andre, but few know of any others, with perhaps the exception of Nathan Hale, executed by the British as a spy. In the second year of the Revolutionary War General Israel Putnam caught a man lurking about his post at Peekskill, on the Hudson. A flag of truce came from Sir Henry Clinton, claiming the prisoner as Lieutenant Palmer, of the British service. The answer of the general was brief and to the point:

Headquarters, 7th August, 1777.

Edmund Palmer, an officer in the enemy's service, was taken as a spy lurking within our lines. He has been tried as a spy, condemned as a spy, and shall be executed as a spy; and the flag is ordered to depart immediately. ISRAEL PUTNAM.

P.S.—He has, accordingly, been executed.

SOAP CARDS IN BERLIN.

Government Limits Its Use Under Special Order Issued August 1.

Special soap cards were introduced in Berlin on Aug. 1, according to reports in the London press. Up to that time soap had been issued on the regular bread tickets. Under the new regulation, washing materials made of vegetable or animal oils and fats or acids derived therefrom will be issued to the personal user on the basis of not more than 50 grams, (1.76 ounces,) of toilet, or shaving soap, and 250 grams, (8 ounces,) of soap powder per month. Soap not applied for in one month cannot be demanded the next, but a two months' supply can be applied for at one time. The issue of soft soap is forbidden.

The penalty for contravening the soap ticket regulations is a term of imprisonment not exceeding three months or a fine not exceeding 3000.

MISFITS CAUSE TROUBLE.

In discussing the probability for more battalions to be authorised for the winter, a medical officer in Kingston said: "I hope the medically unfit men have sense enough to stay out of the recruiting offices and not cause any more trouble for us as well as for those in other departments."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Mr. Dingee's Dinner

Story of a Marriage Anniversary.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

The day Silas Dingee married Maud Ball he declared that never before had he known real happiness. He swore that the anniversary of that blessed day which ended his bachelor loneliness would be more to him than all the holidays in the calendar together. A cynical friend at his farewell bachelor dinner the night before had said to him:

"Si, I'm sorry for you. Tomorrow you go to serve your life long term of regulation. Farewell independence. Farewell a jolly night at the club. Farewell cocktails; they'll taint your breath. Farewell cigars; they'll make the curtains smell. Goodby, Si. The matrimonial prison doors will soon close behind you."

"You dried up old bach," was Dingee's reply, "tomorrow will be the happiest day of my life. And let me tell you whenever the anniversary of my wedding comes round I'll have some delicate memento for the dear girl who is to furnish that happiness. I shall on that day remain at home from business and devote it to celebrating my escape from such crusty old bachelorhood as you represent."

When Mr. and Mrs. Dingee were driven away after the wedding festivities, followed by showers of rice and old shoes, it looked as if his promises would be kept. If ever there was a happy man it was Silas Dingee.

One year passed. Mr. Dingee had been made over by his wife from a bachelor to a married man. He had learned to live for some one besides himself. The first anniversary of his wedding had come round, the day that he had vowed he would celebrate above all others.

As Silas Dingee shrugged on his overcoat that morning preparatory to making a dash for the nearest subway station his pretty wife spoke from the dining room door.

"If I'm not at home when you come, dear"—

"Going out this afternoon?" interrupted Dingee peevishly.

"Just to Mrs. Wright's for bridge, honey," she soothed him. "If I'm not here the moment you arrive just get a bite to eat from the refrigerator and read your paper until I come. It won't take me fifteen minutes to get dinner after I arrive—steak and mushrooms, Silas—it's Hilda's afternoon out."

"Seems to be always Hilda's afternoon out and yours, too," grumbled Dingee as he kissed his wife farewell and departed.

As he opened his newspaper on the train he was still thinking of his dislike of being alone. It was one of his peculiarities that he was a restless mortal indeed when Maud was away from the apartment. Maud was an inveterate card player and belonged to two bridge clubs and a band of pinochle enthusiasts. On the evenings when he knew Maud would be late in coming home Mr. Dingee usually went from his office to his club and remained there until his wife's frantic telephone messages assured him that she was home and that dinner was waiting.

On such occasions he usually called a taxi and sped home on the wings of love and rubber tired wheels.

Today everything went wrong. In the mail he found several misdirected letters, which had been returned to him. One of them was an important matter, which involved the loss of considerable money.

So he discharged the careless stenographer, scolded his chief clerk, schred the office boy into a state of humility and lunched at his club.

After luncheon things went better. He telephoned to Chicago and found that he wouldn't lose the money after all. When the tearful stenographer came for her money he gave her another trial, and the office boy was emboldened to ask for a raise in his pay.

Whether he received it or not is not part of this tale, but at 4:30, when Mr. Dingee closed his desk, he was feeling in high good humor with himself and the world.

He had quite forgotten all about the lonely apartment he must return to and stopped to buy some violets for Maud. While he stood there who should rush up to him with hearty greeting but Tom Finch, Maud's Boston cousin and a particular chum of Silas Dingee's.

"Just going up to your place," remarked Tom.

"Mighty glad to see you!" cried Dingee heartily. "Maud's out this afternoon at some whist bat or other, but she'll be home by 6:30. We can have a bite to eat as soon as we get there."

"Good! I'm hungry. Had a little accident coming down. The buffet car and one coach derailed. Nobody hurt. Haven't had a bite since 10 this morning."

"Man alive, hurry!" Dingee hustled Tom into a taxi, and they whirled uptown.

"It's 6 now. Maud will be home in a few minutes," said Dingee as he opened the door with his latchkey.

But the rooms were dark until he switched on the lights and revealed the warm coziness of the place.

"We'll have to forage a bit," said Dingee as they left hats and overcoats in the hall and entered the dining room. "I'll make you a cup of coffee, hey?"

"Just the thing. I'm starved, old man."

They entered Hilda's spotless kitchen and investigated the refrigerator.

"Cold chicken! Not bad for a handout," commented Tom Finch as he pounced on the platter. "What's that, Silas—makin's of a salad?"

"Yes, and here's the mayonnaise. Take 'em along. Maud certainly has got some goodies put away for me. Let's try the pantry."

The pantry gave up a remarkably dainty loaf of bread and a huge round cake thickly iced with white.

When the men had set the table in the dining room there was a feast indeed.

"This is a regular birthday party," chuckled Tom as he carved the chicken. "Maud needn't bother about getting any dinner. This is good enough for me!"

"Suits me down to the ground," agreed Silas Dingee. "I suppose Maud will scold when she finds I've treated you to a picked up meal when she likes to put on company frills when you come down."

"Humph!" sniffed Tom Finch, who was more interested in the good things before him than he was in the elaborate preparations for any meal. "Seems to me you live pretty high. Didn't I see a steak and mushrooms and some kind of pudding in the icebox?"

"You did," said Silas cheerfully. "Those are for dinner."

"What is all this food for then?"

"Search me!" retorted Silas. "Have a piece of this perfectly 'splendiferous' birthday cake?"

Tom Finch looked rather startled and laid down knife and fork. "You are sure—sure it isn't anybody's birthday?" he faltered.

Silas meditated. "Not mine or Maud's. It may be Hilda's or the cat's birthday. They don't count, though. What's that?"

"That" proved to be the buzzer from the dumbwaiter, and Silas Dingee has tossed into the kitchen and fussed around a bit. Presently he returned and sat down again.

"Ice cream," he explained. "Maud's evidently going to have it for dessert. Funny, though, she should have ordered such a quantity."

A feeling of apprehension settled over the two men as they consumed the delicious cake, which was rich with fruit.

"If ever I tasted a birthday cake"—Tom was beginning when Silas Dingee interrupted impatiently.

"Hang it all, man, can't you stop crushing? What if we have eaten every hanged thing in the house, eh? It's my house, isn't it? I'll eat the ice cream if I want to!" he ended recklessly.

"Let's save something for Maud," grinned Tom Finch as he pushed back his chair.

As he spoke the door opened hastily, and Maud Dingee, flushed and rather excited from her hurried trip home, came in, followed by a remarkably pretty girl with ermine furs snuggled around her neck.

"Tom Finch!" cried Maud, falling on her cousin's shoulder. And over his shoulder her eyes surveyed the remains of the feast.

Silas Dingee looked at his wife and saw horror in her gaze. She came forward and looked at the remains of the chicken, the evidences of salad, the bare half loaf of bread and finally the damaged cake.

The girl in the doorway looked on with friendly, amused eyes.

"Silas Dingee," shrieked Maud at last, "what have you done?"

"Had a bite to eat, as you told me to," retorted Silas defiantly.

"But—but—you've"—her voice was close to tears now—"you've eaten all the refreshments!"

"Refreshments for what?"

"For my party."

"Your party? When?"

"Tonight, goose!" she sobbed angrily. "Didn't you know that this is our wedding anniversary and it's Polly's birthday, and I was going to have the loveliest surprise for you? The Campbells are coming and the Lanes and the Treats."

Silas Dingee was pale, but he held his ground.

"How was I to know, Maud?" he explained.

"You might have remembered the day," she reproached him.

"I did," he prevaricated. "Didn't I bring you violets?" Triumphantly he produced the box of flowers.

Still Maud eyed him suspiciously. "You often bring these on ordinary occasions," she said, but her husband's chagrined face quite melted her heart so that presently she smiled and said it didn't matter and remembered to introduce Tom to the pretty Polly in the doorway.

Everything turned out beautifully, after all. Dingee frantically telephoned to a caterer and a florist, and Maud and Polly dashed around and straightened up the rooms for the expected company.

They ate a hurried meal in the kitchen, Tom Finch skillfully making sandwiches for the two girls.

It was a most delightful party. Still, Dingee saw there was one tiny cloud which even the sight of Tom's devotion to Polly could not lift from his wife's heart.

Although he did not ask for an explanation, Silas Dingee is quite sure that Maud was more hurt because he had forgotten that it was their wedding anniversary than she was over the stolen dinner.

However, to be on the safe side, he has carefully noted on his desk calendar the important date for next year, and there isn't any likelihood that he will forget it, especially as Tom and Polly have selected the same date for their own wedding.

King Doesn't Sign

Most people will tell you that the King must sign every Act of Parliament before it becomes law. It will astonish these people to know that Acts of Parliament are never signed by King George.

When Parliament passes an Act as, for example, the recent Military Service Act, which conscripted all the single men, a copy on vellum is placed in safe custody in the House of Lords and endorsed by the Clerk of Parliament. If the Act is one concerning money, as, for instance, the Budget, the vellum copy is also endorsed by the Speaker.

How does the King give his consent to an Act of Parliament then? Well, he gives it by what is known as a Royal Commission. All the various Acts that are passed at about the same time are named in this commission and the King signs this.

The King must actually sign this commission, but should he, for any reason, not be able to do so, the Royal signature may be specially stamped upon the paper. But according to the law this stamp can only be used "in his Majesty's presence and by his Majesty's command given by word of mouth." A stamp of the King's signature is always kept ready for this purpose.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR WIFE'S DEBTS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17. From across the seas comes news of domestic discord between Lieut. Winfield Burrows Sifton, now serving in France with the Canadian contingent, and Jean Donaldson Sifton, whose romantic courtship stirred society here and in Toronto.

Confirmation that all is not well with the Siftons is contained in a advertisement inserted in the newspapers by Lieut. Sifton's lawyers in which he serves notice that he is not responsible for his wife's future debts.

In July, 1913, Lieut. Sifton was married secretly to the daughter of the Andrew Donaldson, at one time vice-president of the Erie Railroad. She had been married before, to John S. Kerwin. Her marriage to him had been annulled only three months when she married Lieutenant Sifton.

Lieut. Sifton is a son of Sir Clifford Sifton.

The acquaintance of Lieut. Sifton and his bride began at the international horse show in London, where he was in charge of the Canadian military team.

Eight months after the marriage the couple were sued by Mrs. Sifton's mother, who charged that fraud had been used to persuade her to give up a deed of property. Shortly after notice of this action was served Lieut. Sifton was called to duty abroad. His wife accompanied him, and is now living in the Ritz Hotel in London.

MOMENTOUS TYPES OF GLORIES TO COME

Natural Israel Especially Typical of Blessings.

Many Significant Old Testament Pictures—Moses as Prophet and Mediator—Christ the Great Antitypical Prophet and Mediator—Law Covenant vs. New Covenant—Israel's First-Borns—Church of First-Borns—Israel's Priesthood—Melchizedek Priesthood—Day of Atonement—Antitypical Priests Now Sacrificing.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 20.—Pastor Russell delivered an address of great interest at the I. B. S. A. Convention being held in our city. His theme, The Types and the Antitypes of the Bible, was based upon the text, "Whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope." (Romans 15:4.) He said:

The Old Testament Scriptures abound in significant types. God selected the one nation of Israel, and made that nation a picture of what He is now doing, and what He purposes to do, through Christ and the Church to the whole world. From one viewpoint the twelve tribes of Natural Israel typified the twelve tribes of Spiritual Israel. (Exodus 19: 5, 6; 1 Peter 2:9; Revelation 7: 1-8.) In another picture, the Atonement Day, Israel pictured the unsaved world, while their priesthood typified the Gospel Church. In the days following the Atonement Day, Israel represented the world during Christ's Millennial Reign, under the instructions of the glorified Priesthood.

Again, Israel's first-borns, who were passed over by the destroying angel on their last night in Egypt, typified the Church of the First-borns, now being passed over because the blood of Christ has been sprinkled on their hearts, during this night of sin. The first-borns of Israel were afterward represented in the tribe of Levi, set aside for a holy purpose. This tribe represented the Household of Faith of this Gospel Age, from which the Royal Priesthood are chosen. The Christ class, the Royal Priesthood, were typified by Melchizedek, the king-priest of Salem, who lived in the days of Abraham. (Genesis 14: 17-20; Psalm 110-4; Hebrews 7-17, 21.) Melchizedek fitly represented The Christ, Head and Body, in glory; for these unite in themselves the offices of both kings and priests, Jesus being The great Chief King and High Priest.

It is very necessary, however, to keep all these various types and pictures separate and distinct; else confusion will result. The New Testament throws great light upon this subject. The Apostle Paul tells us that the Jewish Law foreshadowed good things to come, and that Israel's priests served as a type of Heavenly things.—Hebrews 8: 1-15, 10:1.

The Two Israels.

The Scriptures mention two Israels—Israel after the flesh and Israel after the Spirit. (Romans 9:8; Galatians 6:16.) In the typical pictures wherein Natural Israel represents the world during the Millennial Age; we see that all mankind will then be in covenant relationship with God, and will have His blessing as the nation of Israel. When during that Age the world shall be restored and become the people of God, they will be a part of Fleshly Israel; for only Israelites are to be saved everlastingly.

This will be a gradual work. At the beginning of the Millennial Age, the blood of the "better sacrifices" will be applied for the world, the New Covenant will be inaugurated with Natural Israel, and gradually the whole world will become attached to Israel as a part of Abraham's earthly seed. (Jeremiah 31: 31-34; Isaiah 2: 2-4; Micah 4: 1-4; Genesis 12: 3; 22: 16-18.) Spiritual Israel will then be their invisible rulers, as glorified spirit beings, reigning in the Kingdom of Messiah. His Kingdom shall be "the desire of all nations," and unto Him "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess."—Haggai 2: 7; Isaiah 46: 23-25.

As Moses was the mediator of the Old Law Covenant of Fleshly Israel so Christ will be the Mediator of the New Law Covenant, the great Prophet of whom Moses foretold, saying, "A Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you from among your brethren like unto me. Him shall ye hear in all things that He shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass that whosoever shall not hear that Prophet shall be destroyed from among the people." (Deuteronomy 18: 15, 19; Acts 3: 22, 23.) This great Mediator will be able to do for the world what Moses was unable to do for Natural Israel. Moses could not forgive their sins and lift them up to perfection, restitution. But the antitypical Mediator will do this for the world—for "whosoever will."

The Head of this great Prophet and Mediator was raised up from amongst their brethren over eighteen hundred years ago. Since then God has been raising up the Body of the Mediator. Only consecrated believers in Christ become members of this Body, the faithful ones at this time coming in as the feet members of the Body of Christ; for we are down at the end of the Gospel Age, when this great Messiah is about completed. Jesus, the Head of this Messiah, having bought the whole world with His precious blood, has imputed of His merit to His Church, in order to unite them to Himself as a part of the great Sin-Offering for the world; and as soon as the sacrificing work shall have been completed, He will begin His great work for the restoration of mankind to human perfection. In other words, as soon as all those who are to compose the spiritual phase of the Messianic Kingdom shall have passed beyond the veil of death the Kingdom work will begin.

Blood of Bulls and Goats.

The work of that glorious New Dispensation will be to re-write in the hearts of mankind the Law of God, and to bring the world back to the physical, mental, and moral perfection enjoyed by our first parents before their disobedience. Then mankind not only will be able to keep the perfect Divine Law fully, but will delight therein. Our Lord Jesus is the only One who can thus recover mankind from their "lost estate." No one else has the ability; for our Lord is Jehovah's Channel for accomplishing this stupendous work.

When Moses was preparing to mediate the Law Covenant he took the blood of bulls and of goats, and sprinkled first the tables of the Law and afterward all the people of Israel. (Exodus 24: 3-8.) Thus the Law Covenant was established, bringing the people into covenant relationship with God. This arrangement typified the establishment of the New Law Covenant by the great antitypical Moses, Christ, who first satisfies God's Justice, represented in the books of the Law, and then, during the thousand years of His Mediatorial Reign, will sprinkle "all the people," the world, with the blood of the "better sacrifices"—those of The Christ, Head and Body—thus bringing the world into covenant relationship with God.—Hebrews 9: 15-23.

It may be asked, "If the blood of these bulls and goats represented the blood of Christ and His Body members, why were many bulls and goats slain, instead of one?" We answer, As there was a great concourse of Israelites, all of whom had to be sprinkled, the blood of many bulls and goats was required to sprinkle all Israel. But this was only a necessary repetition of the same thing. It represented the sacrifice of the one antitypical Bullock, our Lord Jesus, and of the one antitypical Goat, the Body of Christ. On the Day of Atonement, only the one bullock and the one goat were used to picture the same sacrifices.

Blood Presented by High Priest.

We have noted that in the type the tribe of Levi was set apart by God to represent the first-borns of Israel. (Numbers 8: 14-19.) From this tribe the priestly class was selected—the family of Aaron. The high priest and the under priests represented the great High Priest and His under priests of this Gospel Age, the "little flock." The remainder of the tribe of Levi represented those Christian believers who fail to make their calling and election sure to the Royal Priesthood, and who are called in the Scriptures "a great multitude"—the Great Company class.—(Revelation 7: 9-17; Psalm 45: 9-14.)

The high priest was the one who offered the Day of Atonement sacrifices, and who carried the blood into the Most Holy to present it to God, upon the Mercy Seat. He presented the blood of both the bullock, representing our Lord Jesus, and the Lord's Goat, representing the Body members of Christ. (Leviticus 16: 14, 15; Hebrews 13: 11-13.) So after His ascension our Lord Jesus appeared in the antitypical Most Holy—Heaven itself—with His own blood, which He presented for those who would be of His Body. (Hebrews 9:24.) At the close of this Gospel Age, after His Body members have been offered, He will again appear before the antitypical Mercy Seat to present the blood of the Lord's Goat class, which is "for all the people," all mankind.

Work of the Mediatorial Reign.

Amongst their other duties the priests had entire charge of teaching the people. They taught the Israelites especially what was God's will, how to approach God, how to render sacrifices — whatever the people needed to know. Furthermore, they offered both gifts and sacrifices for the people, who brought their sacrifices and gifts to the priests.

This was an illustration of the arrangement in the Age to come. The people will come to The Christ, Head and Body. God will have no direct dealings with the world until the close of the Mediatorial Reign of Christ; for He has committed all judgment unto the Son, who will deal with mankind throughout their Judgment Day of a thousand years. (John 5: 22-27; Acts 17:31; 2 Peter 3: 7, 8.) The great Mediator will be the "go-between," representing God to the world, and the world to God.

When the Mediatorial work is completed, and mankind have been fully restored, then the Kingdom will be delivered over to the Father. The Christ will step out from between the world and God, and mankind will be directly in the hands of Jehovah. All who then shall prove worthy under Jehovah's testing shall be granted eternal life. Those who prove unworthy shall die the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery.—1 Corinthians 15: 24-28; Revelation 20: 7-9.

The Day of Atonement Fires.

On the Jewish Day of Atonement the bullock and the Lord's goat were used to picture the "better sacrifices" of the Gospel Age—those of The Christ. The bullock was a fitting representation of our Lord Jesus as a man; for he was perfect in mind and body, full of zeal and strength. The young bullocks of sacrifice were prime animals, with much fat. When this fat was offered, it made a great smoke, thus representing our Lord's heart devotion to the Heavenly Father.

The fat of the bullock was burned upon the Brazen Altar in the Court of the Tabernacle, in the sight of all within the Court. This typified the fact that our Lord's loving zeal and sacrifice is seen and appreciated by all within the antitypical Court—justified believers. The burning of its flesh, hide, etc., outside the camp signifies that our Lord's sacrifice is a stench in the nostrils of those outside the Court—the world of unbelievers. The third fire, burning simultaneously on the Golden Altar in the Holy, consumed the incense, from which arose a sweet odor, and represented God's appreciation of our Redeemer's sacrifice—that it was a sweet odor in Jehovah's sight.

In our Lord's case, all these fires were burning at the same time. God saw His sacrifice, the Levites—including the priests—saw it, and the people in the Camp saw it. All these fires ceased at the moment when our Lord's sacrifice was completed at Calvary. The sweet incense had already preceded Jesus into the antitypical Most Holy; for in the type it rested over the Mercy Seat when the high priest entered the Most Holy with the blood. Consequently the Father raised our Lord from the dead on the other side of the veil, as a glorious spirit being. Then, when He ascended on High He entered into the antitypical Most Holy, where He sprinkled the blood of His sacrifice before the antitypical Mercy Seat, when He "appeared in the presence for God for us"—the Church.

The Two Goats.

There were two goats tied at the door of the Tabernacle; but only one of them was chosen to be the sin-offering for the people. The Lord's Goat was given the same treatment as was the bullock. A goat fittingly represents the Body members of Christ; for the goat is a very lean, small animal as compared with a prime young bullock. Our zeal and our love are far less than are those of Jesus. We are weak and imperfect from the Adamic fall; and it is only the merit of our Saviour that gives our sacrifices any value. It was the high priest that killed both the bullock and the goat in the type. In the antitype it was our Lord Jesus who first offered Himself up, and then the Church. He, as the High Priest, first killed His human nature, represented by the bullock in the type. Then He kills the human nature of His Church. We merely present ourselves to Him for sacrifice, desiring to suffer with Him in order to reign with Him.—Romans 12: 1, 2; 2 Timothy 2: 11, 12.

The other goat, while presented for sacrifice, was not killed as a sacrifice, but was sent out into the wilderness to die, bearing the sins of the Israelites, though not as a part of the sin-offering. It typifies a class who present themselves to be sacrificed, but who fail to keep their consecration vow faithfully. Hence they fail to be of the antitypical Lord's Goat class. They will be the Great Company. Although they presented themselves for sacrifice, yet they held back, did not fulfil their Covenant of Sacrifice. All their lifetime they have been subject to bondage through fear of death—a sacrificial death with our Lord Jesus. They smell the bad odor of the burning goat without the Camp, and they wish to avoid being associated with it. But in avoiding it, they lose the privilege of becoming members of the glorified Body of Christ. They will lose the Kingdom.

Those who are faithfully following their Lord are now sacrificing priests. Our great High Priest is doing the sacrificing, and we are co-operating with Him. We are in harmony with this burning outside the Camp. The New Creature says, "Let the flesh burn." We suffer in this burning, but we do so willingly. We know that it is only if we suffer with our Lord that we shall reign with Him. We find quite a severe warfare with our fallen flesh; for the interests of the New Creature are in opposition to those of the human nature. Therefore we must bring our bodies under and keep them in subjection to the new mind. If the old creature wins in this conflict, we shall be no part of the sacrifice of Christ.

The Blessed Royal Priesthood.

The work of sacrificing is not yet entirely finished. The last members of the Body of Christ are now laying down their lives. Day by day these faithful ones are asking, "What is the Lord's will concerning me? What is the meaning of this providence?" Their wills are fully given up to the Lord's will. They realize that whatsoever they do they are to do all to the glory of God. In all their daily providences they seek to read His will. They seek to avoid whatever would incapacitate them or hinder them from doing the Lord's work. This is not a slavery to them; on the contrary, it is the most blessed freedom.

These blessed ones are daily fed with the antitypical shew-bread in the Holy. They are enlightened with the light of the antitypical Golden Candlestick. Daily they offer incense at the antitypical Golden Altar. They are children of the light; they are not of the night nor of the darkness. For all their imperfections they have an Advocate with the Father. (1 John 2: 1, 2.) They seek continually to judge themselves and to correct their shortcomings, in order that they may not be judged of the Lord for unfaithfulness. If they find that in any way they have wronged another, they make haste to right the wrong, and then go to the Throne of Grace for forgiveness and cleansing. Then they endeavor to profit by the lesson which they have learned in the School of Christ and to develop still more carefully the character likeness of Christ.

YOUTH PARTLY PARALYZED.

Overcome While Bathing at Port Stanley; Is Helpless From Waist.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 18.—William A. Smith, the seventeen-year-old son of James W. Smith of this city is lying at his home here in a partly-paralyzed state, being absolutely helpless below the waist. It was in this condition that he was taken from the water at Port Stanley Wednesday evening, where he was overcome while bathing, and rescued by companions.

BABES IN THE WOOD

How "English Swine" Escaped From the Huns

How two British prisoners of war escaped from a German camp, safely returned to England, and were presented to the King, was told by Lieut. Birley in a speech at Horley. Lieut. Birley, who was given his commission later, was holding a trench, when suddenly someone shouted, "You are surrounded. You will be taken to Germany, as prisoner of war. Put your arms down." It was a German officer who spoke.

The prisoners were afterwards marched off, said the lieutenant, under an escort to the German reserve trench. The German soldiers smiled and offered them cigarettes. Then they were sent further back to a little village, where they met the General Staff. They were asked a number of questions and one or two of the German officers were in favor of shooting them. Eventually, they were told they would be taken to Germany, and were removed to a Roman Catholic church. When the prisoners asked for food, mouldy bread and water in a bucket was given them, with the remark, "Get on with that, you swine." They gathered together 53 men, put them in one covered railway truck, and sent off on a 56 hours' journey. On the truck were written the words, "English swine," and, when the train pulled up at the stations, the doors of the truck were thrown open, and people shouted, "English swine," and threw all kinds of things at them.

Detailing the life in camp, Lieut. Birley said the British soldiers were treated far worse than the French, and he made up his mind to escape, and planned it all out with another man. On the night they got away a few of them had a little farewell supper. When they had cut through the barbed wire, and were 200 yards away from the camp, he could not describe his feelings, but he felt as if he could fly. After an adventurous journey, during which they lived in the daytime like Babes in the Wood, covering themselves with leaves and twigs, they arrived in Holland. After arriving in England, the King sent for them, and he chatted freely, and wanted to know at first hand how prisoners were treated in Germany.

SERGEANT GRAMOPHONE

Latest Method of Training at Home For Anxious Recruits.

One of the most novel methods of training recruits in their military drill is accomplished by the help of the gramophone. A captain in the army has had new records made in which a drill sergeant calls out military commands—"number off," "form fours," "form two deep," "right turn," "left turn," and so on, and Derby recruits, if there are four or five of them, can, by means of the gramophone, become quite smart in their drill. The records should be of great value in country districts for Derby men waiting for their call where there is no drill sergeant at their disposal.

This reservoir is as easy to clean as a pan

YOU would never put off cleaning the hot-water reservoir of the Pandora. It is such a simple thing to keep clean.

It is lined with clear white porcelain as hard as glass. And it can be lifted out as easily as you would lift a pan from the top of the range. You empty it out and wash and rinse it. The water is always as clear and pure in the reservoir as it is in the kettle.

This is only one of the many conveniences of the Pandora. The oven-door is glass. Think how often you open the door on bake days. You can watch the baking through the Pandora oven-door. The wash-boiler can be set the long way of the range, if you wish, leaving two of the hot front holes free for cooking. Wash-day dinners can be just as good as on other days.

You have heard about the Pandora, would you like to study out for yourself why so many women praise this range?

McClary's Pandora Range

You can learn why Pandora Ranges stay good as new—long after other ranges have to be repaired or replaced. You can see illustrated the many useful ideas to make cooking less tiring. These things are fully explained in an interesting little booklet, "The Magic of the Pandora." You are going to give some thought to the purchase of your range—surely. Then you will need a copy of this booklet. You may have yours by mailing the coupon to the factory. Why not get your copy to-day?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

CONSUMPTION.

JOHN BROWN had noticed for some time that he was not up to the mark. In the morning he felt very well, but through the day he became tired, sleepy, and a little feverish. He had had a slight tickling cough for a month or two, but did not cough up anything.

One afternoon he felt a warmth behind his breastbone, and at the same time he had a salty taste in his mouth. Following a tickling in his throat he coughed and brought up a few teaspoonfuls of bright red blood.

This alarmed his friends very much, and he turned pale, his hands were cold and perspiration broke out on his forehead. His mother sent for the doctor, who examined his nose, throat, and chest, and finally told him the blood came from his chest. He was placed in bed and told to keep quiet and that he need not have any fear for the bleeding. The physician took a sample of the material that John coughed up and found, as he suspected, that he was suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs. Consumption is the cause of spitting of blood in nine cases out of ten. Other causes are pneumonia, congestion, bronchitis, heart disease, aneurism, menstrual trouble, and scurvy. One out of every twenty-five cases of consumption starts with a slight hemorrhage. In one out of every six cases there is no other symptom. In two out of every three cases there is nothing to bring on a hemorrhage. The patient when quiet notices a salty taste, has a little tickling, coughs, and up comes the blood.

CONSUMPTION AND SPITTING BLOOD

These early hemorrhages are never fatal. But the appearance of blood frightens most people, and perhaps it is a good thing to have the hemorrhage, because it is a reliable danger signal.

A patient of this kind should be kept quiet in bed for a few days. He usually needs no medicine, except in cases where he is very much frightened or shocked, when the doctor may give him some sedative. He must not get stimulants such as whiskey, aromatic spirits of ammonia, etc. If the side from which he is bleeding can be distinguished he should lie on that side.

If there is no return of hemorrhage after a few days he may get out in the open air. Horseback riding will be good exercise for him, and he may do a little outdoor work. Outdoor air and good food are the requisites for cure.

Above all things, a patient who has had a slight hemorrhage—and every other consumptive—should avoid the use of the numerous advertised "Cures for Consumption." None of them are of any value in the treatment of this disease; some of them are positively harmful.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Answers to questions pertinent to public health will from time to time be made in this column. The questions should be short and to the point. If it is not advisable to reply through this column, answer will be made by letter if stamped envelope is enclosed.

1.—Responsibility in cases of Communicable Diseases. A.A.G., Port Colborne.

Q.—In a case of scarlet fever or other contagious disease is the local board of health obliged to take care of the patient, provide nurses, doctors, and medicine?

A.—The Public Health Act, Section 58, Sub-Section 1 and 2, refers to this question as follows:—

ISOLATION OF INFECTED PERSONS

"58.—(1) If any person coming from abroad, or residing in any municipality within Ontario, is infected, or has recently been infected with, or exposed to, any communicable disease to which this section is by the Regulations made applicable, the medical officer of health or local board shall make effective provision for the public safety by removing such person to a separate house, or by otherwise isolating him, and by providing medical attendance, medicine, nurses, and other assistance and necessaries for him.

RECOVERY OF EXPENSES

"(2) The corporation of the municipality shall be entitled to recover from such person the amount expended in providing such medical attendance, medicine, nurses, and other assistance and necessaries for him, but not the expenditure incurred in providing a separate house or in otherwise isolating him. 2 Geo. V. c.58, s.58."

The communicable diseases referred to in this sections are: Smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, chicken-pox, whooping-cough, measles, typhoid fever, cholera, bubonic plague, leprosy, epidemic anterior-polio-myelitis, and epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

AS TO YOU.

Did you give him a lift? He's a brother of man,
And bearing about all the burden he can.
Did you give him a smile? He was downcast and blue,
And the smile would have helped him to battle it through.
Did you give him your hand? He was slipping downhill,
And the world, so I fancied, was using him ill.
Did you give him a word? Did you show him the road?
Or did you just let him go on with his load?
Did you help him along? He's a sinner like you,
But the clasp of your hand might have carried him through.
Did you give him good cheer? Just a word and a smile
Were what he most needed that last weary mile.
Do you know what he bore in that burden of care
That is every man's load and that sympathy shares?
Did you try to find out what he needed from you?
Or did you just leave him to battle it through?
Do you know what it means to be losing the fight?
When a lift just in time might set everything right?
Do you know what it means, just the clasp of the hand,
When a man has been bearing just all he can stand?
Did you stop when he asked you to give him a lift?
Or were you so busy you left him to drift?
G, I know what you meant! What you say may be true,
But the test of your manhood, is, What did you do?
Did you reach out a hand? Did you find him the road?
Or did you just let him go by with his load?

STARTING IN LIFE.

You are soon to leave and break away from all the tender ties of home, and go out to seek your fortune in the world. Let us whisper a few words of counsel. We suppose you wish to be rich; most people do. We don't think riches are desirable. We should be sorry to have inherited wealth. But a competence is very desirable, is indispensible. Well, the way to get it is by forethought to plan, industry to execute and prudence to keep the earnings of your work. Get what you honestly earn, but never take more. Money is by no means the best thing in life. You are here in this world to become a good man, a wise man, a just man, an affectionate man, a religious man. Work for your manhood as much as for money; take as much pains to get, and as much to keep it. Keep clear of vice, especially intemperance, gambling and licentiousness. These three ruin thousands of young men every year. And finally, remember, though absent from the sight of the dear ones at home you will ever live in their hearts; and their highest earthly wish will be that you may prove yourself a noble man.

TRULY FARMER BOY.

"Here are two stalks of corn," remarked Sam Jordan as he talked to the fair school boys last year, "both grew side by side in the same hill. One has a fine, well developed ear, the other grew a nubbin. Now would you keep the good ear for seed?" Many of the boys, admiring the fine ear displayed asserted that it would be added to their seed corn but a little fellow in the corner piped up, "I wouldn't have that ear, Mister," he said. "Why?" shot back Uncle Sam, pointing a long forefinger at the young corn grower. "Because it grew in the hill with the nubbin," answered the boy, "and might produce nubbins instead of seed corn." "Right you are," said Sam as a slow grin spread over his face. "You can't grow prize winning corn when the parent ear has had worthless associates and prize winning boys like you chaps here must keep out of bad company if you expect to become top-notch men. Get the point, fellows?"

* * *

There is no earthly tie so strong or so sacred as that of motherhood. Society is held together by social ties. Civic societies are bound by money and oaths. These obligations are like girths of steel, let none hold like the marriage bond when inviolated and unpoluted by vile theories.

There is only villanous abominations in the doctrine that leads a creature called by courtesy a man, to announce that a transfer of his affections warrants a breach of loyalty and desertions of one who has become his wife and the mother of his children. No guise of prophecy can cover so vile a principle; no charm of poetry gild so hateful a treason, and the breath of perdition is on the lips of all such as advocate anything else than loyalty to wifehood and motherhood.

It is the mothers who hold the world in place. They are the balance wheels of the universe. They hold the scepter of power by controlling the affections of men. The hand that rocks the cradle has controlled armies. Marie Theresa quelled the tumult of a mighty army in Austria by raising her fair hand, and we are told that all was hushed in silence, as in clear, sweet tones, she spoke, "The bravest battles that ever were fought, have been fought by the mothers of men."

DELICATE YOUNG GIRLS, PALE, TIRED WOMEN

There is no beauty in pallor, but proof of plenty of weakness. Exertion makes your heart flutter, your back and limbs ache, and you sadly need something to put some ginger into your system. Try Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they make you feel alive, make you want to do things. They renew and purify the blood — then come strong nerves, rosy cheeks, laughing eyes, robust good health. You'll be helped in a hundred ways by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are an old family remedy of great renown. Thousands use no other medicine and never have a day's sickness of any kind. TO hold "its place in the sun," is the avowed purpose of a great nation's conflict. To hold "its place in the sun," is the object of every business in the great fight for industrial and commercial supremacy.

To be able to hold "its place in the sun," is the supreme test of an asphalt roof. It is the sun, not rain or snow, that plays havoc with a roof. If it can resist the drying out process of the sun beating down upon it, day after day, the rain or snow will not affect it except to wash it clean and keep it sanitary.

Certain-teed Roofing

takes "its place in the sun" and holds it longer than other similar roofing, because it is made of the very best quality roofing felt, thoroughly saturated with the correct blend of soft asphalts, and coated with a blend of harder asphalts. This outer coating keeps the inner saturation soft, and prevents the drying out process so destructive to the ordinary roof.

The blend of asphalts used by "The General" is the result of long experience. It produces a roofing more pliable than those which have less saturation, and which are, therefore, harder and drier.

At each of the General's big mills, expert chemists are constantly employed to refine, test and blend the asphalts used; also to experiment for possible improvements. Their constant endeavor is to make the best roofing still better.

The quality of CERTAIN-TEED is such that it is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply). Experience proves that it lasts longer. Behind this guarantee is the responsibility of the world's largest manufacturer of roofings and building papers.

The General makes one third of America's supply of asphalt roll roofing. His facilities are unequalled, and he is able to produce the highest quality roofing at the lowest manufacturing cost.

CERTAIN-TEED is made in rolls; also in slate covered shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roofs, from the largest sky-scraper to the smallest residence or outbuilding.

CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers all over the world, at reasonable prices. Investigate it before you decide on any type of roof.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Plantord, Man. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

The more a man knows that should be forgotten the better his memory is.

COST OF BOOKS INCREASES.

Paper Shortage and Higher Pay to Workers Affect Publishers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Some publishers have increased the prices on current publications from 5 to 25 cents, owing to the greater cost of paper and other materials, but there has been thus far no general advance on books by New York houses.

Doubleday, Page & Co., in their most recent catalogue, show a slight increase in prices almost all along the line. F. A. Stokes Company have made a slight increase on their English importations.

George P. Putnam's Cons said recently that up to the present they had made no change in prices. What they would do in the future depended upon conditions. If the increased cost of materials and labour continued they might have to put prices up, but they were going to wait to see how things turned out.

George P. Putnam's Sons said re there had been an increase of cost, especially in paper. They had not put up the prices of books except in a few cases. There was little change in their Fall charges. They said they would not make a general increase unless conditions became worse.

E. P. Dutton & Co. said that they had not made any increases except in a few sporadic instances, and would not do so unless they had to. They would dislike very much to make any increase.

A woman's inconsistency may be the greatest of her many charms.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S AND GIRL'S APRON

By Anabel Worthington

An apron is a necessary play garment for the toddler, and is not "a thing apart" for an enjoyable vacation for the schoolgirl when the restraint and control of school hours must be forgotten.

The one illustrated is an excellent example—one that may be used to "dress" the girl or protect her dress, as you may require. The design allows you to choose between making the little garment with the body and sleeve sections in one piece or making the apron without sleeves, as shown in the lower small view of the garment. The fastening is at the back, where at the waist line a button is sewed at each side to hold the belt that takes care of the back fulness.

Solid color contrasting goods for piping the square neck, finishing the sleeves and trimming the pocket in the right side relieves the plainness. Percale, chambray, Indian Head, galatea, linen, printed lawn and the like are suitable materials for an apron.

The pattern of No. 7,867 is cut in sizes 2-10 years. To make in size 8 will require 1⅞ yards of 36 inch material.

You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

Germans Made Strong Effort to Retake Lost Positions

The Village of Maurepas is now in Hands of French

French Infantry Fire Inflicted Serious Losses on The Enemy

Germans Made a Second Attempt to Recapture the Village of Fleury Northeast of Verdun---Six German Cannon Captured in the Fighting North of the Somme---Practically the Whole of the Village of Maurepas is in French Hands.

SUCCESS FOR THE RUSSIANS

PARIS, August 21.—(French Official Communique) — The Germans made a second determined attempt to capture the Village of Fleury three and one-half miles northeast of Verdun last night attacking in force after spraying the French positions with liquid fire. The War Office announced to-day that French barrage infantry fire stopped the attack short inflicting serious losses on the enemy. In yesterday's fighting north of the Somme in which the French captured a strongly fortified wood between Guillemont and Maurepas, six German cannon were captured. An active artillery duel continued on the Somme front throughout last night, but there were no infantry engagements of importance. Practically the whole of the Village of Maurepas is now in French hands as a result of Thursday's fighting, and local actions since that time. French first captured a number of strong positions at the outskirts of the town, and then drove the Germans from the remainder of the village with their artillery.

German artillery made it inadvisable for the French to occupy the remainder of Maurepas until the French lines advanced further north of the village.

Russian Troops Made Substantial Gains Yesterday

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 21.—Russians further advanced their lines in severe fighting along the Stokhod River, northeast of Kovel yesterday, it was officially announced to-day, making progress near Tobely and in the region of Rudka Czerwiecka. In Friday and Saturday's fighting on this front one thousand three hundred and eighty-six prisoners, one cannon, eighteen machine guns and other material were captured.

Germany Has Never Officially Submitted Terms of Peace

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 21.—Germany has shown no disposition toward peace, except on terms dishonourable and humiliating to some of the Allies, Premier Asquith informed the House of Commons this morning. The Prime Minister's statement was made in answer to assertions by Under-Secretary Zimmerman of the German Foreign Office, who told the Hungarian newspapers recently that it was England that was blocking peace. Zimmerman's statement that England prevented her allies from showing a disposition toward peace is untrue, Asquith said. He reminded the German Foreign Office that Germany has never submitted officially terms of peace.

Two British Cruisers Sunk in The North Sea

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 21.—The British Admiralty issued the following statement:

"Reports from our lookout squadrons and other units showed that there was considerable activity on the part of the enemy in the North Sea Saturday, the 19th.

"The German high seas fleet came out, but learning from their scouts that the British forces were in considerable strength the enemy avoided an engagement and returned to port.

"In searching for the enemy we lost two cruisers by submarine attacks —H.M.S. Nottingham, Captain C. B. Miller, and H.M.S. Falmouth, Captain John Edwards.

"All the officers of the former were saved, but thirty-eight of the crew are missing. All the officers and men of the Falmouth were saved, but one leading stoker, Norman Fry, died of injuries.

"An enemy submarine was destroyed and another rammed and possibly sunk.

"There is no truth in the German statement that a British destroyer was sunk and a British battleship damaged."

TRAWLERS SIGHTED WARSHIPS.

The presence in the North Sea of a German squadron of some fifteen warships, including large cruisers, was reported by trawlers arriving at Ymuiden, Holland, a Reuter despatch from that point says. The squadron was sighted early Saturday morning in the region of Whitebank, and was accompanied by two Zeppelins. It was taking a northwesterly course.

WHAT GERMANS CLAIM.

BERLIN, August 21.—The Admiralty statement announced yesterday:

"A German submarine off the British east coast on August 19 destroyed a small cruiser and a destroyer of the enemy. Another small cruiser and a battleship were struck by torpedoes and damaged."

The Germans Attempted a Raid on British Trenches

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, August 21.—British covering patrols withdrew before strong enemy forces northeast of the Foureaux Wood in last night's fighting, but the Germans were unable to follow up the advantage because of British artillery fire, General Haig reported this afternoon. The Germans three times attacked the British positions at Foureaux Wood after heavy bombardment but were each time repulsed. The Germans bombarded British positions near Posieres and northeast of Contalmaison with gas shells last night. In the northern fighting zone the Germans attempted a raid on British trenches northeast of Hulloch and east of Loplantin. They were driven back penetrating the British position at only one point from which they were immediately rejected.

Ducks Plentiful Near Harwood

Shooting Season Will Open on September 1st — Close Season Has Been Extended Ten Days.

NEW RESTICTION

Ducks are very plentiful at various points around Rice Lake and along the Otonabee. From present indications the shooting season, which opens on September 1st, augurs to be a good one, and a large number of the flying water fowl will likely be brought down by Rice Lake sportsmen as soon as the season opens.

The close season lasts ten days longer and will give the fowl a good chance to fatten, and thus prove easier marks for the hunter.

A new restriction has been placed on the Game Statutes this Fall, viz., that no fowl are to be sold. Thus the hunter who brings down a dozen birds or thereabouts will have to consume the same, himself, or else invite all his friends in and make a good fallow of himself.

Goose Pond, which lies opposite Harwood wharf, and the old Harwood creek, are especially plentiful with the choice fowl, which should prove some easy shots on and after September 1st.

PETERBORO BOYS APPEAR IN THE CASUALTY LISTS

Private John Smith and Private Bruce Clarke Have Been Wounded — Letters from Peterboro Soldiers.

MILITARY NEWS

The names of two Peterborough boys appear in the casualty lists this morning. They are Private John Joseph Smith and Private Bruce Clarke. The former, whose home is at 352 Simcoe street, has been admitted to Number 8 Hospital, Boulogne, suffering from slight wounds in the chest and arm. Private Bruce Clarke, whose home is at 688 Rogers street, has been admitted to Number 4 Hospital. He was accidentally wounded in the ankle.

Mrs. E. J. Downey,

158 Edinburgh Street,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Mrs. Downey, — Parcel of socks and other comforts received O.K., and on behalf of the boys, I wish to thank you and all members of "Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club," for this kind donation. All articles were very much appreciated. I can assure you all were delighted at getting these and think most of them will use the paper and pencils in thanking some of the donors personally.

On behalf of the men of the 93th, I remain.

Yours truly,
SGT.-MAJ. D. S. SMITH,
93th Battalion, France.

Gunner H. A. Le Gros.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Louis Anthony, 329 Water Street, from her son, Albert, who has been at the front doing his "little bit" since the beginning of the war, being an active member of the Cobourg Field Artillery at that time, and was one of the first to volunteer for overseas service for King and country:

From Somewhere in France,
July 20th, 1916.

Dear Mother,—I received your kind and welcome letter, and also your parcel, and was delighted to receive both the shirt, pipe and tobacco. Came just at the right time, and you cannot realize how pleased I was when I found what the parcel contained.

Well, Dear Mother, I am enjoying good health out here, and having a good time so far, and trust and pray that when this letter reaches you, that it will find you, one and all, in good health and enjoying yourselves.

I don't want you to worry about me, but let us all look forward for that "big day" to come, when this cruel war will be over. We are enjoying good weather out here at present, and we sure appreciate it, after what we went through earlier in the season.

I meet lots of our "home boys" here now, and they all talk of the good old times at home, and we all long for the war to be over, so that we may once more enjoy the pleasure and company of our dear friends at home, in good old Canada.

I suppose you heard about poor Harold, dear mother, who was killed in action. He did not have time to see much of this life out here before his time came, in doing his share in the good cause in which we are all engaged. I was looking for him for a long time, but got no chance to see him, and did not learn of his death until I was informed by one of several chums that was in the battle with him. If they have not already heard tell all his friends; also the friends of (censored) who was with him at the same time.

Don't let this worry you, dear mother, for it is all in the game, whether out here, or at home, for when our time comes, we all have to go, and no stop to it, but I know you will be pleased to learn that I go to church every Sunday.

You were asking me in your last letter if the parcels you sent me were opened before I got them. Any that I have received so far have not, but came just as you sent them.

I have been transferred from the 4th Battery to the 3rd. My address now is: Gunner H. A. Le Gros, No. 42320, Canadian C.D.A.C. Force (D Sub.), France.

Well, good-bye to all at home for this time. From your loving son,

Albert Le Gros.

P.S.—Remember me to the little ones at home.—A. G.

99 DEG. ON SUNDAY THE HOTTEST SINCE RECORD OF JULY 1911

Just When The Dog Days Were at an End Some One Added Fuel to the Fire.

NO "SPOTS" ON THE SUN

Official temperature to-day (Monday) 99 degrees in the shade.

Mr. Walter Peter's official thermometer registered 99 degrees in the shade on Sunday but some of the unofficial instruments were so affected by the heat that they will probably never be the same again.

It was the hottest day of the year, and although it is not a record registration in Peterborough it has only been exceeded once, on July 5th 1911 and then by but one degree. It might just as well have touched the century mark yesterday, for another little degree wouldn't have made an appreciable difference.

July of recent memory had ten days that saw the mercury at the ninety mark or over, and yesterday was the seventh August day to reach the Hades standard. July 30th had the previous high mark of the year when 96 degrees was reached. The almost unbroken experience of the past six weeks should have inured most people to common ordinary heat, but yesterday's variety possessed a blighting, searing quality that suggested the idea that some one had left the infernal gates ajar.

When the Examiner bulletined last night the day's record, various and divergent expressions were heard from citizens who had been through the heat. One man remarked: "99 degrees, is that all. I was sure it was 104 or more. I was never so hot in all my life". A young lady's comments were less effusive. Evidently poise was a second nature to her for she calmly commented as follows:—"Gracious, it was 99 degrees. No wonder we found it rather warm". A passing citizen remarked rather belligerently and with some disgust with conditions. "The little old winter for mine. When your cold it's easy to get hot, but you can't get away from this heat."

After yesterday's broiling experience most Peterborough citizens can qualify any time as fire breathing Salamanders. However, this topic of summer heat is almost played and frayed out. It's part of the scheme of things though it does droop the cabbage leaves, and hasten the ripening of the tomato crop.

There may have been some yesterday who recalled a few lines from Coleridge:

"All in a hot and copper sky,
The burning sun at noon;
Right up above the mast it stood,
No bigger than the moon".

Pondering over that situation on a 99 degree day is somewhat analagous to fighting fire with fire.

Another Deserter From The 93rd

Ernest Toole Was Apprehended in Keene—Was Under Age

Ernest Toole, a former ward of the Childen's Aid Society was charged with being a deserter from His Majesty's service, to wit the 93rd Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. The young fellow has been lounging around these parts for some weeks and was rounded up near Keene by members of the local recruiting office. Mr. Spence of the Children's Aid Society claims the youthful deserter is but seventeen years of age, but made himself a year older in order to get away with the soldiers. He was remanded until the arrival of the proper military escort.

C.G.E. Buildings Being Painted

The buildings, fences and other property of the C.G.E. works are being brightened by a staff of painters. The wood work of the windows are done in white with red sills and framework, and the fences are painted a bright red. On the fence work the paint is applied by compressed air providing a rapid and at the same time, a satisfactory method of facilitating the work.

WATER IS PURER THAN USUAL AT THIS SEASON

PTE. CECIL WILSON

Of the 93rd Battalion. His home is in Warsaw. A letter from Pte. Wilson appears in this issue.

Nothing Out Of The Ordinary In Advising the Boiling of Water in Summer Says Mr. C. A. G. Spence Who Tests it for Utilities Commission.

KEEP ON BOILING IT

Mr. C. A. G. Spence, who tests the city water for the Utilities Commission, has issued the following statement regarding the report and advice from Dr. Amys, M.H.O., published on Saturday:

Dear Sir,—I fully concur with the M.H.O. in recommending the boiling of the drinking water before using, though the announcement might have been made with less theatrical accompaniment. It has always been customary at this time of the year for the M. O. H. to order this as a precautionary measure, and in view of the fact that Dr. Ayms has been dissatisfied for some time with the water tests, he might have taken this action sooner. The analyses of the water at the local laboratory are always open to his inspection, and reports on the condition of the water will be always cheerfully supplied him. Even with the abnormal climatic conditions at the present time, the water supply is of a better uality than in the corresponding months of previous years, thanks to the purification process of the chlorination plant.

Yours truly,
C. A. G. Spence.

No Need For Alarm.

The record of the water tests for years were examined this morning, and clearly indicate that the months of June, July, August and September have invariably shown more or less combination. And to that extent Dr. Amys' advice to the citizens to boil the city water before using should be followed as a safeguard. Mr. Spence not only states that the existing condition is not unusual for this season of the year, but that the water is ever safer than in other summers, due to the effect of chlorination, which, by the way, was doubled in percentage about two weeks ago.

No Typhoid Cases.

Sanitary Inspector Cooper informed the Examiner that there are no cases of typhoid fever in the city, and it is this disease that breeds to a large extent from contaminated water, especially when the contamination is caused by sewage. Mr. Cooper reported one case of diphtheria and two of measles, certainly a very satisfactory condition if all cases are reported as they should be.

Boil the Water.

However, precaution is well worth while. What has been said of an ounce of prevention is decidedly applicable in the boiling of ta water for the next in the boiling of tap water for the next cold weather it never shows a trace of gas or other indications of foreign matter. Hence, boil the water, and above all, don't worry about it. This is the advise of authorities.

A Feature For The Fair

Prizes Will be Given for the Best Decorated Automobiles to be Shown on Friday September 15th

THE PRIZES

The Directors of the Peterborough Central Exhibition are giving two prizes for the best decorated automobiles to be shown at the Fair on Friday afternoon, September 15th, the second day of the Fair. Entries will be received by Mr. F. J. A. Hall up to Saturday, September 2nd, and unless there are six or more entries received at that time, the event will be called off.

With so many automobiles in the city a very interesting feature could be added to the Exhibition if a sufficient number will decorate their automobiles and parade to the grounds on Friday afternoon. Very special prizes are bein gofered. The first prize is valued at $15.00 and the second prize valued at $10.00, the articles to be selected by the winners to the above value.

Review.

Marguerite Clark, the fascinating little star of the Famous Players Film Company, who since her desertion of the stage has endowed the screen with a number of inimitable characterizations, most notable of which are her successful appearances in "Still Waters," and in the dual title roles of "The Prince and the Pauper," adds another screen achievement that surpasses all her previous triumphs in her delightful interpretation of the role of Peggy, in the photo-production of the famous romantic comedy, "Mice and Men."

With the additional interest contributed by a stirring dramatic conflict, and with the beautiful delineation of life and love as they were known in the South of a by-gone day "Mice and Men" is one of the most exquisite Paramount pictures produced.

THE WAR SITUATION.

We are nearly a month in the third year of the war and the situation from our point of regard is growingly satisfactory. We know now, what, with Germany's half century of moral and material preparations, we hardly hoped for, that Germany is not invincible, that her dream of triumphal parade over Europe is dissipated. After the first few months of initial success over unprepared countries she has met nothing but reverse and disillusion. While the first two years the strength of the Teutonic bund has been steadily waning the resources of the entente allies, in men, munitions, supplies and money have been increasing, till relative positions have been reversed. The unprepared allies of the entente are, in all these respects in a state of irresistible preparedness, while the Teutons are virtually agonizing in the throes of defeat. We must remember that up till the present month we have been holding the Teutons at bay with one hand, while with the other we have been preparing for the sledge-hammer stroke that has begun to fall upon the enemy. It is only within the present month that the allies have really begun to fight. For the past three weeks the allies have been winning on every front, pushing the enemy steadily back. Even with the present rate of progress the situation is encouraging, but if, as we are told, the allies have not yet begun their real offensive, we may look for a speedy victory, when they really do begin to fight. With the enemy weakening over day and with the allies growing stronger, and more hopeful with every success, we may look with grateful hope to a continuation and accentuation of the success we have achieved since the opening of the third year and to certain Wilhelmphant termination of the woefullest war of the world.

BALANCE THE ACCOUNT.

None of us, either persons or provinces, are perfect. We all have our faults; have our good qualities and to arrive at a just estimate of each other we must strike a balance. We are sorry to say that the Province of Quebec has not made as good a showing in the matter of recruiting as we could have wished to see; but in other respects Quebec is far ahead of this province. That province deals with the problems of its forest interests in a much more effective and business like way than Ontario.

Quebec takes not only effective action to minimize forest fires, but she adopts effective measures to perpetuate forest growth when this growth does not cover land capable of cultivation, and is, for farm purposes, not worth clearing—is of more value and public utility in its forest state than under the plough. A few years ago Quebec established a provincial nursery and this year, in addition to the young trees planted on Crown lands, 400,000 seedlings were shipped to pulp and paper companies to reforest the lands cut over and thus provide for, in time, a new crop. Even municipalities get seedlings for planting in their bounds, one this year planting 50,000 trees—being the sixth year it has successively planted forest trees in large numbers.

The importance of reforesting burnt-over areas or areas from which the timber has been cut for commercial purposes, cannot be overestimated. A departmental report states that in the years 1910 to 1915, inclusive, 2,977 square miles or 1,906,280 acres were surrendered to the Crown. Thus we have the revenue producing areas of our forests rapidly reduced. This is a very important consideration. The revenue Ontario has derived from her Crown timber resources since confederation amounts to nearly 53 million dollars, an average of about one million a year, without taking into account the billions of dollars that have been added to the national wealth by the exploitation of the lumbering industry. With the destruction of forest areas by cutting and surrender of leases, the provincial revenue for forests is bound to rapidly decrease. By neglect of the government to reforest cut-over and burn-over areas; by neglect to provide adequate protection against forest fire destruction, it is plain that our forest revenue will disappear in time. It is quite impossible to understand why our governments refuse to consider the easy problem of reforesting our lands as they are burnt or cut over, and preserving as might be done, and perpetuating our forest resources as one of our largest sources of revenue. If a million trees had been planted yearly since confederation, we should have replaced to a large extent the millions lost in cutting and forest fires; and the crops of the first few years would now have been grown into merchantable timber. There is no reason why, with proper care, with effective reproduction, the forest wealth of Ontario should not, as a revenue producing asset, last forever.

THE CITY WATER.

The report of Dr. J. A. Amyot, provincial analyst, that the water furnished to the citizens of Peterborough through the waterworks mains, is contaminated with intestinal bacilli, is disquieting, if not, alarming. It is also disillusioning. We had been led to regard our city water as practically free from pollution, and to be told that we must, in the interests of health safety, boil our water, is, at least, something new.

But, need we yet take the situation too seriously? We should have fuller details of the result of the analysis of our city water before being unduly alarmed. Was the analysis so carefully made as to leave no doubt, such as is at present, perhaps, admissable that organic matter is in our water to a degree, dangerous to health? We should not rest content with one analysis, but should demand another, or others, to check the correctness of the first analysis.

If it should be shown, as may be easily possible, that our water is contaminated, we must take measures to remove the source. If impurities injurious to health exist in our water there is little doubt that the source is in the summer population of the Kawartha Lakes and the villages of Bobcaygeon and Lakefield, and, to a small extent in lumbering operations. If the sanitary conditions in these villages and in connection with the cottages on the lakes is not satisfactory it should be made so. The owners and occupants of cottages are, ipso facto, persons of means, and can afford to take the precautions the health authorities may, and must prescribe. One does not grudge or envy the fortunate few that get their enjoyment from summer residence at the lakes, but it must be surrounded or associated with conditions that will insure, not only themselves on their return home, against health injury from polluted water, but also protect the large body of citizens that can only enjoy the waters of our lakes through the city water mains and the household tap. The steamers that ply these waters should be asked and made to provide sanitary precautions, if it can be shown that in any way they are contributory to pol luting the waters.

Rigid precautions and measures to avoid and prevent water pollution by either or any of these sources will entail a little cost and trouble; but the health authorities impose a good deal of cost and trouble upon citizens for their own protection. We have to pay for a costly garbage system; we are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars upon providing an out-fall sewer and sewage-disposal plant to prevent pollution of the river water in the interests, chiefly, of a few cows and horses that pasture along its shores. We certainly have, in turn, a right to demand that, in the interests of pure water for 20,000 human beings, some effective means be adopted to prevent, even possible, contamination of the water they use.

It is for experts and the authorities to devise, and apply, preventive measures, whether a system of garbage collection for the lake dwellers, and sewage disposal arrangements for the steamers, or some other effective way to prevent pollution of the water. A little contamination from human occupation of source waters will purify itself by aeration and the exposure to sunlight in its course from the northern lakes to the water works; but excess of contamination cannot be got rid of in this way, and effective remedies must be devised, and applied, to reduce contamination to a harmless minimum. All human interests, whether of pleasure or profit, must give way before the necessity of preserving the public health of a community of twenty, or more, thousand persons.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

In no country of the world has the part that Canada is playing in the war received more complimentary mention than in the United States, through its press and its leading citizens. Sometimes we have felt that their almost too lavish tributes were offered at the expense of the rest of the empire and our allies, but never have we doubted their sincerity. Perhaps one of the finest appreciations of our share in the war and the motives that inspired our participation appeared the other day in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It is an editorial entitled "Making The Great Canada," and says in part:—

"The sacrifices that our big sister who lives next door to us on the north is making to do her share for the Mother Country in the present war of Europeans, are so vast and inspiring that they challenge the admiration of the world. Nobody likes a fight, but everyone loves a person who fights well when called upon to put up a battle. Nobody courts trouble, but everybody feels like cheering a plucky soul, who, being in trouble, goes sturdily about the task of forcing an honorable way out of it.

"With Canada it is a simple matter of fighting from a sense of responsibility to the British Empire. Canada has not shirked that responsibility. She is not fighting because she loves war and enjoys the daily perusal of casualty lists. Her griefs are such that a people less staunch and loyal would be crushed under their weight. The war has dealt heavily with the great Dominion. She has given freely the best of her manhood to the British cause—a sublime spectacle of unselfishness and devotion to principle.

"Her reward? There must be a reward for such heroic sacrifice. It will probably come from the fact that a great sorrow binds those who feel it closer and closer together. The war is a bitter trial to the Canadian spirit, but the trial will leave the Dominion eventually a stronger, greater country than ever. Canada is suffering much, but she suffers uncomplainingly and the tempering process of affliction, added to the cohesive influence of a great cause that demands universal sacrifice on the part of her sons, will mean a country more glorious when the days of trouble are past."

These simple but transparently sincere words of appreciation cannot but touch the Canadian people. Whatever we may think of the official attitude of the United States in this war we must acknowledge and take pride in the unwavering sympathy of the overwhelming bulk of the best blood of the country with our cause. And when the drums of war are silenced and the flags of battle furled the sympathy and support they have given us will add to the good and cordial relations that have always existed between the two countries. — Ottawa Journal.

THAT CANCELLED COLONELCY.

When Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C., at a meeting of Liberals in Toronto on Saturday, accepted the Liberal nomination as a candidate in Southwest Toronto, he told the gathering how, in the absence of Sir Sam Hughes and Premier Borden, an order-in-council had been passed in Ottawa, cutting off the Honorary Colonelcy of J. Wesley Allison. He added that, from announcements in the press, he believed that His Royal Highness had signed that order, whereupon a white-haired man rose and cried: 'God save and bless the Duke.' There are many who will feel the same. And yet, but for the revelations of Mr. Kyte, real Canadian soldiers would still be expected to salute J. Wesley Allison.—Montreal Herald.

CARVING THE TEUTONIC GOOSE

The treaty recently entered into by which England and Russia settle all questions outstanding between them with regard to Persia is only one of the insurance policies written recently by the entente powers to provide against mutual dissension at the ultimate peace conference. The entente powers want to present a united front when the end comes, so they are wisely carving up the Teutonic goose now, even if they are not sure, as yet, that it will shortly be done to a turn. If all points of difference are settled beforehand, Germany will have no opportunity at any future time to take advantages of mutual suspicions and jealousies, upon which it is perfectly plain she has already been figuring. With what mockery she greeted the announcemnt in the Duma that Russia was to have the Dardanelles with England's free consent, and with what delight hailed the Russo-Japanese treaty as a slap at the Anglo-Japanese alliance! And now comes Russia quite willing to complete the international ring-around-the-rose of good-will. No doubt France has a pretty good understanding with England as to the division of Germany's African colonies, and Italy by now must know exactly what she is to expect in the way of expansion on her northern frontier. It looks very much as if the entente nations were waging a preparedness campaign in the direction of mutual good understanding that would leave the central powers face to face with a stone wall of unity on the other side of the conference table.—New York Evening Post.

THE PART BOY SCOUTS ARE PLAYING IN THE PRESENT WAR

What an important part the Boy Scouts are taking in the war is called to mind by the announcement from Rome that Boy Scouts have been called to do guard duty all over Italy, in order to relieve soldiers for the front. The necessity has not arisen for such practical duty here in Canada, but one may be quite sure that if the necessity were to arise our Boy Scouts would be second to none in readiness and helpfulness. In the United Kingdom they have been called to all sorts of duties, and have proved of inestimable value. They have been particularly helpful to the coastguards and large numbers have been utilized in the motor boat patrols around the coasts. From Canada hundreds of Scout officers and senior Scouts have gone to the war, and many others are training to go.

But, apart from practical aid in the war, the Scout movement is proving of immense service in training boys in manliness and chivalry. By placing boys upon their honour, as were the knights of old, the Scout Laws appeal to the better part of boy nature.

A Scout's sense of honour is cultivated. This training, in turn, develops truthfulness, and is the reason why the average citizen will tell you that a Scout's word can be taken.

A Boy Scout is loyal to the King, to his officers, his parents, to his country and his employers.

A Scout's duty is to be useful and to help others.

A Scout is a friend to all, and the brother to every other Scout, no matter to what social class the other belongs. In other words there is no social distinction within the ranks of the Boy Scouts Association.

Every boy is given a chance to make good in the world.

A Scout is courteous.

A Scout is a friend to animals.

A Scout obeys orders.

A Scout smiles and whistles under all circumstances.

A Scout is expected to do at least one good turn daily.

Before a Scout can pass certain tests he must have a small bank account, and it is surprising to note how many of the lads are proud and keen to see their little bank account growing; in other words, it is simply a start that the average boy requires.

A Scout is pure in thought, word and deed; as a gentleman once stated: "I can always attend a baseball game where Scouts are playing, with the knowledge that I can take along my children knowing that it will be conducted in a proper and gentlemanly manner."

Then again you may have noticed upon the arms of the lads small round khaki discs, known as badges. They may bear a red cross in the centre, a tool representing carpentry, perhaps, a bugle, or a swimmer, or a life belt. These badges denote the different subjects or activities in which a boy can qualify.

To produce clean cut, manly types of boys—the future men of our nation—that is the work of the Boy Scout movement here and elsewhere. The 16,550 Boy Scouts now in the Dominion will be a potent influence in the life of our country.

Rice Lake Resorts Quiet

Many Empty Rooms in Various Hotels Around The Lake

The tourist trade at the various pleasure resorts which dot the shores of Rice Lake has been very quiet this season and will likely continue so. In fact the number of visitors holidaying on the green shores and quiet little hamlets of the former Indian land, has sunk to a minimum, and Rice Lake hotel men report the quietest season in some time.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

In years past the quiet environment and beautiful scenic touches of Harwood and Gore's Landing have been strong incentives to many of Cobourg's summer population to spend in these towns several weeks of their summer spent on Canadian soil.

ROOMS TO LET.

The annual register of these guests has shown a decided falling off of late, however. One hotel man stated that the war was the cause of his guest chambers being deserted, and he did not expect any better conditions until things settled down and peace was declared.

Gore's Landing, being situated on the south side of the lake, is not easily reached by the Peterborough motorist, without making the trip halfway around the shores of the lake, through Bewdley.

GORE'S LANDING.

The Landing is a great favourite with Cobourg folk, especially during the week-end. Yesterday, some twenty-five cars, hailing mostly from Cobourg, were lined up along Gore's Landing main street, while the occupants spent the day boating, bathing or breathing in the crisp air from the Lake.

BEWDLEY.

Bewdley, situated at the head of the lake, and with a fine array of boarding houses, is having its usual quiet season. Bewdley, situated on the Peterborough-Cobourg road, serves as a half-way house between the two points. Most of its summer visitors, however, hail from the lake shore towns and it derives very little custom from this city.

WHAT'S THE USE, ANYWAY?

It is strange and a fact which is hard to explain that these popular summer resorts, especially Bewdley, and points along the north shore, do not prove to be any drawing card to the Peterborough motorist who, apparently, prefers to run wild, and waste his good gasoline upon dusty roads, whereas he could put in a holiday or a free afternoon in a more enjoyable manner, sitting upon the cool shores and inhaling the breezy balm of Rice Lake.

KING
Hot Water Boiler

It's economical. The King Hot Water Boiler, with King Radiators really and truly SAVES YOU MONEY. Here's why. The "water wall" surrounding the fire-pot and fire-travel, carries only about half the quantity of water in ordinary boilers, and you know that half the quantity heats twice as quick. This means your fire needs to burn a shorter time to give the water the desired heat and the shorter time your fire is at "full" the less coal you use and that SAVES MONEY. The water heats so much quicker in a King Boiler that it circulates faster and heats the house sooner. That's just what everybody wants in a boiler and that's what the King Boiler gives you. ASK YOUR ARCHITECT, YOUR HEATING ENGINEER or YOUR STEAMFITTER for prices on an installation of a "King" Hot Water Heating System in your house--or write direct to us.

The KING has the following Advantages

1. The Dustless Ash Shifting Device
2. The Tight Fitting Doors.
3. The Easily Cleaned Flues.
4. The Fire-pot with a real Corrugation, and extended Heating Surface.
5. The Ample Combustion space in Fire-pot and Flues.
6. The Large Area of Heating Surfaces, Direct, Intense and Effective.
7. The Thin Waterways and Rapid Circulation.
8. The even Metal Line, the result of using Iron patterns.
9. The Quality and Weight of Iron.
10. The Simple Method of Erection. Economical, Safe, Durable and Easy to Manage.
11. The Guaranteed Ratings.
12. Double Shaker.
13. Boltless Grates.

OLD TREACHERY OF AUSTRIANS NOW COSTS DEAR

Because They "Faked" Surrenders to Massacre Trusting Italians Earlier in War, Few are Lucky Enough Nowadays to Find Themselves Alive

With the Italian Army in the Trentino, Aug. 18.—"You did not take many prisoners," I said to-day, referring to an action of the day before in which the Italian troops were victorious. My companion was an officer of the staff of one of the generals on the first line.

"How could we?" he replied, regretfully. "It is very difficult for an Austrian to surrender."

He elucidated that statement, evidently fearing that the impression produced upon me was that the Italian soldier cold bloodedly refused quarter. I heard the same story, elsewhere, and because it led to an interesting inquiry into the character of the Austrian fighting man as seen by his adversary, I shall go somewhat into details.

"The Austrians have been treacherous," he said, "and now they are paying for it. It was their habit to send a group of men out, holding up their hands in token of surrender, while a larger body remained in ambush. When our unsuspecting men advanced to receive their submission they were shot down."

The same thing has happened repeatedly among the Germans on the French front. The consequence is that, as in the case of yesterday, "the Austrians find it very difficult to surrender." The Italians do not trust them. They take no chances. When the Austrians come out from their defences and hold up their hands and declare in their various dialects that they have had enough, and wish to quit, the Italians do not come toward them, trustfully, to be massacred by a concealed foe. Instead, they go forward as to an attack in the open, bayonets at the charge, guns loaded. There is bound to be some noise and some confusion in such an affair. Some one is apt to cheer. Perhaps a nervous Austrian fears that he is to be killed, and picks up his gun to defend himself. That settles it. What began as an attempt at surrender eventuates in a hand-to-hand fight, in which the better men win. It explains why, in such a crushing victory as that the Italians have gained from the latter part of June in the Trentino, few prisoners have been taken in proportion to the total Austrian losses.

The Austrians, as seen by his adversary, is a good fighting man, but a completely ruthless one. The spirit of the Austrian and the Italian armies is as widely different as is that of the German and the French armies. A true spirit of democracy pervades the Italian army. The discipline is sufficiently rigid, but it is not of the cold-blooded and merciless sort the Austrian officers practice. On the testimony of prisoners, the Austrian officers strike their men, shoot them for offences which are comparatively trifling, punish them out of all proportion to the gravity of the crime. The bastindo is a rather common penalty. Men are tied for hours by the thumbs, the arms extended over their heads.

"If these things are true, they are abominably cruel," was my comment.

"You must remember the task the Austrian officer confronts," was the reply of his chivalric antagonists.

DRIVE AUSTRIANS TO FIGHT.

The Austrian army is made up of scraps of perhaps twenty nationalities, man of whom are instinctively and intensely hostile to each other, and few of whom are inspired by that feeling of patriotism one encounters everywhere among the Italians. Such men cannot be led to fight, as the Italians are. They must be driven. Harsh measures must of necessity be used with men accustomed to the most extreme hardships and to whom death is a commonplace. I had never fully accepted the statement that the Austrian officers sent their men to the charge while they remained behind in comparative safety. Yet when one grasps the necessity forced upon the Austrians command of driving forward into the fight these heterogeneous racial scraps, peasant for the most part and accustomed to obeying the strong hand, and uninspired by an devotion to a common ideal, one begins to understand.

"The officers almost always remain behind," I was told. "Without the fierce vigor of the officer the Austrian unit quickly goes to pieces. The life of an Austrian officer is valued at more than the lives of hundreds of his men."

"But the men would refuse to go unless they are led," I objected. "They would resent this coldly selfish policy of sacrifice for the man and safety for the officer."

"What can they do—poor devils" was the reply. "The cannon and machine gun are turned on them if they hesitate. They are in effect caught between two fires. A slender safety may be found in going forward."

A far more brutal method is charged against the Austrian command, and the charge is so frequently repeated and with such obvious sincerity that it is hard to believe. Many times in this great Austrian retreat on the Trentino it became necessary to hold a position no matter at what cost, in order to cover the withdrawal of the main force. In the Italian or the French or the British army volunteers would be called for a forlorn hope. Among the Austrians that forlorn hope would be furnished by the number of men thought necessary to hold the post, under command of a non-commissioned officer.

"If the leave their places before the orders come to withdraw they are shelled by their own guns. If they survive the shelling, some among them are shot before their army. They must hold on. These methods account for the unparalleled savagery of the fighting."

"Why do they not surrender?" I asked

"It is very difficult for an Austrian to surrender," was the grave reply "We fear a trap."

BUT AUSTRIANS ARE BRAVE.

These things are matters of internal discipline, and seem to be well established by the evidence given by prisoners. It must be understood, however that the Italians never suggest that the Austrian soldier is anything but a desperately brave fighting man. The Hungarians and the Croats are peroof Europe. When strongly led, so are the Bosnians and the Slovaks. The troops in which Italian blood predominates were used very little on the Austrians' western front. For the most part they were sent to the eastern side. The Austrian morale was excellent up to very recently. Then the prisoners taken gave evidence of extreme fatigue.

"We are too few," they complained. "We have not men enough now to hold our line against you. We never get to see a repose camp any more. We are fighting all the time. If reinforcements are needed on one part of the front they are sent from another part where the fighting is for a moment lighter."

An offense against international law is charged against the Austrians here, as against the Germans elsewhere. It is alleged—and on what seems to be convincing authority—that they force the Russian prisoners to work on the firing line, digging trenches and doing other menial work for their captors. The fact that these things are a comparatively recent development seems to support the statement of captured Austrians that the Army of the Double Monarchy is short of men. It has become necessary to spare the soldiers as much as possible. The desperately hard physical labour of blasting out trenches in this rock-bound soil is saved them by this use of prisoners.

"A few days ago we captured a part of an Austrian trench in which were fifty Russians who had been used in this way," I was told at Monfalcone. They declared that a few days before twenty Russian prisoners had been shot for refusing to do such work.

There is no need of words to characterize this deed, it is true. It must be pointed out, however, that, while there is no question that these charges are believed by the officers of the Italian army that principally rest upon the statement of the Russians who have been victims of such oppression, and of prisoners and deserters who feel no warm affection for their own officers. The one who would deny these charges, however, is invited to explain the presence of Russian prisoners in a first line Austria trench They were there. The Italians who recaptured them have them to show.

CHOLERA IN AUSTRIAN TRENCHES.

The Austrian methods are marked by a certain subtlety as well as by harshness. It is their custom, for example, to mingle nationalities in their units, knowing that the racial antagonism which exists between these peasant peoples of Eastern Europe will prevent any coherent action against those in authority. Some one is sure to betray. Mohammedans and Catholics are similarly brigaded together. Desertions are prevented, to some extent, by the practice of shoo some extent, by the practice of shooting the under office rof an organization if its men desert.

"These men are kindhearted," urged the Italian officers hwo commented on Austrian tactics. "They do not wish to condemn to death a man who has perhaps been kind to them. Then, too, they are brave men, and they have been fighting to-gether. We are their foe. It is always the worst man of the company who deserts.

Conditions in the front line Austrian trenches can only be guessed at. A tragic glimpse was afforded the other day, when the Italians managed to tap a telephone line and for some hours before the tap was discovered, listened to the conversation that went on along the wire. One hoarse-voiced officer talked with the head of the commissary department of his sector.

"We have cholera in the trenches" said he. "Send us whisky."

"Where are your doctors?" asked the commissariat, not unnaturally.

"Working—and dying," was the brief response. "Send us whisky. No man can stay in a trench with cholera unless he can stay there drunk."

At another—and not a distant part of the trench line—the visit of some women to the officer in command was eagerly anticipated. A revel was planned—a revel to be staged within hearing of the voices of the enemy, in one of the low, foul, sunless burrows that go by the name of dug-outs at the front.

"Tell the women to bring wine," ordered the man who had planned the orgy. "Plenty of wine. The Italians may attack to-morrow. Let us have a good time to-night."

The conviction seems to be that the same discipline prevails in the entire Austrian army, but that apart from matters of discipline the conduct of affairs depends largely upon the character of the individual in command. There is in the Isonzo, for example, a cemetery in which the Italians bury their dead by night. Each night it is shelled in the hope that some of the working parties burying the heroic clay may be caught by the fire. Not far away is an Austrian commander of a different stripe. He has frequently paid high honors to the Italians dead, and has on numerous occasion acted in a most chivalrous manner to the living. His guns never fire on the brancardiers who are bringing in the Italian wounded, and he has carefully avoided shelling in the neighborhood of the dressing stations.

After all, apart from the severity of the discipline, which is perhaps not matched, and from the policy of calculated ruthlessness which seems to mark the conduct of the war on the Teutonic side, the individual Austrian seems to be about the same sort of man the rest of us are. He does the sort of thing you would expect and then he upsets calculations by doing the sort of thing no one could anticipate.

"The other day," I was told at Monfalcone, "one of our men caught two Austrians outside their trench and made them prisoners. He was moving back to his own lines with them, slowly and cautiously, when an Austrian officer appeared. Before the Italian could swing his gun to position the Austrian had drawn his revolver and shot him dead."

"And then?"

"Then the Austrian officer ran into our lines and gave himself up."

IT'S COMING!
EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY
MONEY SAVING EVENT
Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

As a guide in estimating the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

The Dollar Day crowd is the happiest gathering that meets in Peterboro in the year.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

TALES FROM FRANCE

BATTLE OF THE SOMME—By Canadian Overseas

BATTLE OF THE SOMME.

At Southampton the hospital trains roll slowly in one behind the other to take up the wounded brought in from the front. These men are invariably cheery and greet you with a smile. They consider it quite worth while, and are satisfied. Then there is the merry throng of lightly wounded; here there is no depression or melancholy.

Two men who landed presented a strange contrast: a white haired man, very stardy, sinewy and hard, and a smooth faced laughing boy, a second lieutenant who was chaffing his senior unmercifully because he was wearing a private soldier's "slack," with one leg torn up the side, a sleeve jacket with one sleeve in ribbons. He had had a machine gun bullet through the left arm and the right leg, both clean punctures.

The boy was, though he had been in command of a company, just a merry laughing boy, but as strong as a horse, and thoughtful, too.

"The way some of them talk, you might think the Boches were all baby-killers, ravishers and rank curs. There are some like that, a good many, in fact; and in all the British army I don't believe that there is one. Anyhow, I have never seen or heard of a British soldier running out with hands up, calling for mercy, and giving himself up, and I saw Boches doing it, saw a Boches officer doing it. But the fellows we were up against on July 1st fought like tigers. We were between Fricourt and Mametz, and when we had the Boche with his back to the wall he fought like a tiger cat. No "Kamerad" business about that. Why they were shying bombs in our faces at point blank range, when our bayonets were absolutely touching them. They were the Prussian Guard, or Grand Reserve, I think they call it. We got very few prisoners from them, I can assure you. The only trouble with our men was to keep them back long enough to take any ordinary care of themselves. Me—I was 17 in August, 1914. I was in Gallipoli, in May, 1915, and got to France in November, 1915, and have been wounded in both places. It's a great game."

Then the white haired major told about his men. He said: "They were absolutely perfection. (No veterans could have been finer. They jumped into the hail of lead as though it were water, and they wanted to swim. Positively they rushed into the thick of it, laughing and cheering, and singing like boys bathing on the sea on a hot day. I am sorry to say I accomplished nothing at all. I was knocked out just as we got to the front of the Boches' parapet first line; so I was no good to our boys at all. But my second in command was magnificent. He should be here to-night or to-morrow. He was wounded much later on after he had done perfectly splendid work at Mametz. He killed one Boche machine gunner with his own hands when he lost his revolver; broke the fellow's back, I am told; left him dead anyhow; and he had wounded a rare lot of our chaps, that same gunner. But he struck a snag when my second in command got hold of him, for he was quite a well known wrestler up north, and his hands and arms are better than most men's bayonets and daggers."

To all who come to Southampton, Britons from all over the world, the landing is "Coming home." "Yes, I am for London," said one infantry man, whose right arm and neck were bandaged. "I hail from near by the other London—Ontario, you know—but this is coming home for me, I guess I've stacks of friends in this London, too. Oh, this——. The neck is nothing; only skin deep, and the arm will be all right in a week or two. Just a splinter of shrap., hardly worth talking about. I want to get back and see this push out. I tell you it's too good to miss."

"The confidence of our chaps—all ranks—is quite splendid," said a grey-haired subaltern of the Royal Engineers, "and very inspiring."

The definiteness of all the arrangements largely accounts for that I fancy. Knowing previously what he has to do, every man is busy doing it with an easy mind. Of course we know very little there in the first line. It's the big men behind who really know, and jolly well they have used their knowledge this time. Our part is just to carry on, a comparatively simple job, and I think our men are doing it as well as it can be done."

"It's all very different from last year's show," said a smooth-faced lad. "Yes, I was in the Loos show—we've learnt a whole lot since then, and I think we are applying it now. Everything is beautifully definite—no loose ends hanging out. I think you will find that all our casualties (whatever they may be) will be well paid for—nothing wasted or chucked away. It's too well planned for that."

I could give you many other stories I heard while these men were waiting for the trains to take them to London. They all have the same story to tell, how well prepared the allies now are and what splendid work every man is doing.

To these stories of the Somme fighting I am going to add another I have since heard.

It was told by an officer who saw severe fighting there; he vividly tells of his experiences and of the great devotion of his orderly.

This officer in company with his orderly and two other men passed through a littered hole where a small house had stood. The four of them were hit by bursting shrapnel and all fell. Almost immediately four gas shells burst in succession near them, and the fumes rolled down and filled the sunken place they were in.

Two of the men had been only slightly wounded and they quickly crawled out to safety on higher ground. The officer was too badly hurt to move. He said:

"I tried to move, but couldn't. The gas rolled in upon me and it was like struggling against chloroform; the last thing I remember was feeling that sleep and stillness was best. I should have slept all right, and been dead in a few minutes but for my orderly.

When I came to I found myself wedged in the forked branches of a little tree on the highest ground near and on the ground below me was my orderly, unconscious and bleeding a good deal from flesh wounds in his arms an shoulders.

He had carried me over 300 yards, over the roughtest sort of going, with any number of bullets flying round, and himself bleeding from half a dozen flesh wounds. He had been taught to make for high ground when gas was about so he wedged me in a tree.

He came with me to France in May of 1915 and has been once home on leave. All the rest of the time he has been in and out of the trenches with me, and under fire most of the time. He was due for leave before this push, in fact was recalled from the railway station, but no one heard him with a word of complaint. At two in the morning or two in the afternoon he is always the same—a cheery, willing soldier."

The new army is composed of such men as this. They want no praise; they are just doing their job as they will tell you. It makes one think a bit when one realises that none of them knew anything about soldiering two years ago, and one wonders what these men think out there in France when they read in the newspapers about "conscientious objectors"—or objectors who haven't any consciences. The blessing is that they haven't much time to think.

CLEARING THE BATTLEFIELD PRESENTS MANY DIFFICULTIES

W. Beach Thomas Says It is the Worst Job—He, too, Tells of German Machine Gunners Chained to Their Guns

W. Beach Thomas, one of the British correspondents on the west front, writes:

The clearance work is a business that surpasses imagination. Much time and labor have already been spent in burying the enemy's dead. An attack to-day means so much more than an attack. First behind the attacking force in this war come the "cleaners," as the French call them, who follow into the trenches and dug outs and rage out the hiders and the ambuscaders who lie in wait in holes and earths. After those who look after the remnants of the living come the men whose work it is to look after the dead. But a wood surpasses a trench, and in this great rectangle was no end to the strange discoveries, from the short-necked howitzer which could not be pulled from its lair, to all the pitiful litter of retreat and defeat.

THIRST MADDENED GERMANS.

Like other captured woods it contained near the northern end a huge dump for food, letters and ammunition. Prisoners surrendering here and in other places speak with peculiar horror of the thirst they suffered. In Fricourt wood men were saved from something near madness by the thunderstorm that made pools in their trenches. Water is almost always the hardest of supplies to send through a barrage. Imagine the position of a German soldier, shackled by foot and waist to his machine gun when the water carriers failed; and other soldiers as tied by discipline as he is by chains, fare little better. A letter found on one of the prisoners said: "We are shut out from the rest of the world. Nothing comes to us. No letters. The enemy keeps such a barrage on all the communications. It's terrible." So, too, felt the men in Mametz.

It was as bad in Contalmaison. Close by that upstanding chateau, whose progressive decline I have watched daily, was a great pit, only less huge than those quarries which still house and protect the enemy in Beaumont-Hamel. Many emerged when the final charge carried us through the village, in a state of utter prostration, due in this case to shock rather than any starvation. Almost all of the 500 and more captured in the fighting were broken by one form or another of exhaustion. Even to our own attackers, whether they succeeded or whether they failed, mere common tiredness has been almost the chief enemy. Physical fitness alone has rendered possible the clinching of the advance.

Let anyone who sees war rose-colored imagine the strain. The ground is everywhere pitted. Every new device of modern warfare means a greater burden on the infantry. Not less than a sixth of the men are "carriers." That is their proper word. Besides the bombs, and weapons, and food and equipment — of which not least is the iron hat — spades and other tools, machine guns, mortars and all other paraphernalia of defence and organisation must move with the attack.

TOUGHEST DEFENCES GAINED

To my mind the crowning quality of the new army, though it may be inferior in this to the original professional army, is its physical fitness, to which great attention has been paid by the officers. In this fighting, which is like nothing else experienced, since the Aisne at any rate, any want of training in a unit has been instantly penalised in the form of loss as well as failure. No one at any time in this war, or any other, has crossed so wide a stretch of ground so intensively fortified.

Market Situation For The Week

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

The event of paramount importance to grocers this week was the nation-wide advance in the price of flour. Sixty cents is an important upward move. Chiefly it has been the result of the bad crop reports which have exercised a bullish influence upon wheat values with a corresponding strengthening of flour. At moment of writing wheat has settled somewhat, and flour values are high. This is particularly true when the amount of business passing is taken into consideration. This is barely moderate, both export and domestic account not taking much. Millers hesitate to say anything as to immediate flour levels, though one or two are rather expecting to see a substantial drop.

Gaspe salmon is to be scarce this year. Supplies are small and price is consequently stiffish. Fraser River salmon is also higher in price. Small catches, due, in their turn, to a scarcity of labour, seem to be the main reason.

BEAN CROP.

Black peppers, which have done little else but soar for the last two years, have dropped this week, and a much easier feeling is abroad in regard to them. Trade seems well stocked, and no heavy buying movement is noticeable. Sicily filberts are up, as buying commences to assume fair proportions. There is to be a large bean crop in Quebec, for which the Saints be praised! Grocers have had ample evidence of the stringency in beans for many months past. It is felt sharply at present. The better crop that is coming will be welcome, although it will probably be late in arriving and the period between the last clean-up of present stocks and the new crop will be one of exceptional tightness.

Sugar values were down in New York this week. Canadian refiners did not follow suit, there being no need so to do. When New York advanced recently Canadians did not advance. Now New York is down the refiners here may be said to be in the position of anticipating the decline. Business in sugar is fair to middling.

Reception to Capt. Pearson

The Chemong Park cottagers provided a cordial welcome on Friday night to Capt. H. A. Pearson, who has returned from the front, where he spent twenty months in Y.M.C.A. service. All the Park colony assembled around the Pearson cottage. Mr. W. J. Hopwood delivered an address of welcome making a congratulatory reference to the sacrifice Captain Pearson had made in going over before the first division, having given up a good position to do so. He made a neat reply thanking the old summer crowd of which he has long been a member for the cordial reception.

A musical programme was much enjoyed, as was the marshmallow roast, the bon fires, and the summer evening. Among those contributing to the programme of music were: Mrs. W. J. Hopwood, Mrs. Roper, Miss Lillian Hill, Miss Isobel Morphet, Miss Jewett, Mr. G. W. Gilman, Mr. Meserve, Mrs. W. H. Waram, Mr. W. J. Thompson. Mr. Bert Roper and Mr. Jack Patte assisted materially in making the evening a most enjoyable one.

GRAND LARCENY CHARGE.

Head of Allies Hospital Relief Commission in New York Indicted.

New York, Aug. 19. — The Rev. Chas. T. Baylis, head of the Allies Hospital Relief Commission, was indicted by the Grand Jury charged with grand larceny. The indictment grew out of an investigation into the disposition of a fund of about $7,000 collected by Dr. Baylis from wealthy persons and which, it was alleged by the district attorney, was not used for the purpose for which it was intended.

TEMPERATURE WORKS NEAR FREEZING POINT IN SOUTHERN ALBERTA

CALGARY, Aug 21.—A northeast storm, accompanied by heavy rain and low temperature, which swept over Southern Alberta, Friday moderated Saturday. The wind has worked to westward, and the temperature averages 43 degrees which is a rise of three degrees since noon. Rain is still falling, but the sky is heavily overcast, so that no danger of frost is apprehended. Grain has been beaten down in many places, oats particularly being badly lodged.

Reports from Banff, Cochrane and points west are to the effect that considerable snow has fallen. Occasional snow flurries were reported from other places in the district.

Listens at Grave 40 Days As Will Asked

DECEASED HAD A TERROR OF BEING BURIED ALIVE.

East Orange, August 21.—Mrs. Johanna Mitchell Thompson, who died on April 14, had a terror of being buried alive, so in her will she directed that a friend, Stephen Baldwin, inspect her body daily for 40 days after her supposed death to make sure no sign of life returned.

The health authorities and the management of Rosedale cemetery objected, but the body after unusual precautions to make sure that death really had ensued, was hermetically sealed in a casket and buried in a concrete grave. Each day for 40 days Baldwin sat beside the grave, with his ear close to the ground, listening for a sound from within.

For this under the terms of the will filed for probate, he will receive $800, if it be decided that by so doing he carried out the instructions of the testatrix.

Costs $150 to Break Paralysis Quarantine

MOTOR BOAT CHASE ACROSS THE HUDSON FOLLOWS ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE.

Albany, August 21—A public health nurse arriving here related the unusual measures taken at East Kingston to enforce a quarantine to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis. The head of the local board of health there also is foreman in a brick yard and a justice of the peace.

A girl who had been exposed to the disease was placed under quarantine and when this official heard that she had broken quarantine and had started across the Hudson on board of a ferryboat he seized a power yacht in the harbor and started in pursuit.

Overtaking the ferryboat, the justice of the peace took off the girl, returned with her to East Kingston, held court and sentenced her to 100 days in jail. Later her parents were permitted to obtain her release by the payment of a fine of $150.

Store Of Better Values — The GRESSMAN Company Limited — The Store Accomodating

STORES WILL CLOSE ON DOLLAR DAY AT SIX O'CLOCK

This Arrangement is Mutual Among The Merchants of the City—Thursday Next Will be at the Disposal of the Clerks Instead of One Half Day.

$ DAY ANNOUNCEMENT

By mutual consent among the merchants, it has been arranged that the stores will only remain open on Wednesday, Dollar Day, until 6 o'clock A further arrangement has also been made that Thursday next, instead of being a half holiday, an entire day will be at the disposal of the clerks, and the stores will remain closed all day.

A FULL HOLIDAY.

In consideration in giving the full day's holiday on this Thursday, the last weekly half holiday on the following week, will be cancelled.

It is felt that this arrangement will be much more satisfactory to the employees of the stores, who will thus have a whole day to devote to whatever purpose they wish, and Labor Day following so quickly makes it more hardship to forfeit the final half holiday for the last week in August.

Annual Outing Of Lock Works

Another boat load of excursionists left the new George Street wharf at 8 o'clock this morning en route to Harwood, to spend the day as guests of the Peterborough Lock Works. Practically all the employees and friends of the Simcoe Street establishment took in the outing, and the steamer Stoney Lake had a real boat load when she cast off her snubbings at 8 o'clock and turned her nose in Rice Lake directio.

SIMILAR CONDITIONS PREVAIL IN PETERBORO

WILMERDING, Pa., Aug. 21.—Councilman Bishop brought to the attention of the Wilmerding Council the danger caused by the big crop of weeds on Air Brake Avenue. The danger lay in the fact that someone was liable to step out of the weeds in front of a fast moving automobile. The matter was referred to the street committee for action.

SHOULD EXTEND ALBERT ST. TO MONAGHAN ROAD

There's a little matter that may interest Alderman Edgar and win his support. Albert street, instead of cutting through to the Monaghan Road, turns into Alfred street. Hitherto the residents beyond Monaghan Road have enjoyed the privilege of us an old pathway from the end of Albert street through private property, thus avoiding the longer and unnecessary walk around Chamberlain street. But lately this property, or at least the lot on Monaghan Road has been closed and now bears a crop of corn. The lack of direct communication between Albert street and Monaghan Road is a decided inconvenience to many persons living in Byersville, and while it might be argued that the city does not need to consult their comfort, the fact is that all that western section will be annexed to the city some day. Hence, the present is the proper time to take up this matter, and deal with it on the basis of the future and the possible development of the city in that direction. The Brewer property at the immediate end of Albert street is built on at both ends, but immediately south of it are two lots now without houses, which would be wide enough for a roadway, and which could be bought at a comparatively reasonable figure. It is understood that this property belongs to ex-Ald. G. Walter Green.

Local Motorist Receives Warning

This Morning's Police Court—Offence Against the Motor Vehicles Act

For leaving his cart stand on George street between dusk and dawn, without carrying a lamp so as to light up conspicuously his rear number, C. B. Coones, a local sewing machine agent was given a warning by Mr. Henry Rush, J. P. at this morning's police court.

The offence is one against the Motor Vehicle Act and the safety of the public demands its strict enforcement. Considering the circumstances of this morning's case, the Magistrate judged that a warning would have the same effect as a fine.

"Soon We Will Hear The Crack"

LLOYD GEORGE SAYS THE ALLIES' NIPPERS ARE GRIPPING THE TEUTON POWER.

CRICCIETH, WALES, Aug. 21.—In a speech to his fellow-townsmen here, David Lloyd George, Minister of War, said:—

"I am satisfied with the way things are going. I feel for the first time in two years that the nippers are gripping and before long we will hear the crack. Then we will be able to extract the kernel.

"I say at once that we shall see that there will not be another war in our day. The British people have greater sacrifices than we ever thought possible. Three years ago nobody dreamed that Great Britain would pour millions of young manhood into the battle-front. The vigor of our demand must be according to the measure of our sacrifices."

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I see by the report of Dr. Amys, our Medical Health Officer, that the water which we are using, after being subjected to an official analysis, is found to be contaminated and unfit for use. The situation is serious and something must be done at once for the preservation of the health and lives of our citizens before it is too late. Our water supply for drinking purposes never was above suspicion, and now that the actual danger is borne in upon us with all the force of an official report it behooves us to sit up and face the difficulty with all the wisdom at our command. What shall the remedy be? Let us have an expression from all who are qualified to speak. Years ago I advocated on different occasions the propriety of sinking artesian wells at certain points in the city for the purpose of securing pure water and by that means avert the danger that is now staring us in the face. There are such wells already in the city, the property of private owners, and I am told they are inexpensive and give entire satisfaction. Let our Council follow suit at once and, by way of experiment, sink three or four such wells in the central part of the city, and if found satisfactory, then increase the number in other parts, as may be found necessary. Let them sink one, say, at Central Park, one at the corner of George and Hunter streets and one at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, as a commencement, or wherever they may deem advisable. I believe that the Calcutt Malting and Brewing Co. have such a well, and upon submitting a sample of the water, for analysis at Toronto, they received an official report that the water was absolutely pure, although I am informed that 95 per cent. purity is all that is required for safety.

Yours truly,
PURE WATER.

C. W. Turner's Death Occurs Suddenly

Prominent Campbellford Man Taken Ill While Fishing on the Trent—Was a Brother-in-law of Judge Huycke

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 21.—C. W. Turner, a prominent resident of this town, passed away very suddenly at Trent River, where his family had been camping for a couple of weeks. He was a brother-in-law of Judge E. C. S. Huycke of Peterborough. He was out fishing with his son, Earl, when he was taken suddenly ill, and was removed to his cottage as speedily as possible. Medical aid was at once summoned, but he passed away a few hours later. Mr. Turner was born at Belleville in 1858. With his father, the late J. B. Turner, he entered the hardware business, here and later carried it on himself retiring in 1898. He held the offices of Treasurer, member of the Trustee Board, and choir leader of the Campbellford Methodist Church. He married first a daughter of the late Rev. Arthur Browning, and after her death Miss Huycke of Percy township. Two sons, Harry, a missionary in South America ,and Earl, at home, and three daughters survive.

Services Conducted By Mr. Spence

Mr. C. A. G. Spence yesterday conducted services at the following Anglican churches: St. John's, Emily in the morning; St. James, Emily in the afternoon, and Christ Church Omemee in the evening. At each of these churches he delivered addresses on behalf of the Children's Aid Society.

Spent The Night Alone on Wharf At Gore's Landing

Expecting the mosquitos' parade, the vigil of two Peterborough young men on the dock at Gore's Landing, last night, was not devoid of certain compensation. They had been left stranded on the Harwood wharf when the launch, with a numerous party which was their's, pulled out and left them, nor missed them until halfway home. The two youths returned to the wharf from an expedition of some sort in what's left of the Harwood of better days, arriving at the water's edge for the unusual pleasure of realising that they were far from home and mother. The launch was away off, puffing toward the mouth of the river, and it was a fine summer evening, with the stars and the hungry village mosquitos coming out after a scorching day.

Whether to spend the night with Jack Gilman and get up at 4 or 5 o'clock to catch the Geneva, over at Gore's Landing, or to trudge to Gore's and take a chance on the night passage, was decided in favour of the latter, and the two young men hacked their way through the gravel and the mosquito clouds along th road that fringes picturesquely the lake from Harwood to the Landing. Worst of all, the contingent conditions was the fact that there was no place in the inn, neither the white one, nor the red brick nearer the lake. Nor was there hospitality otherwise but the open sky, the church steps up in the grove, a questionable stable and the open dock, swept by the night breese, the glow of the waning harvest moon and the mosquitos that had whetted their appetites on Cobourg and Pittsburg girls all afternoon, and had spent the early evening resting in their surfeit.

Well, the two lads were around in time to help stoke up the Geneva for the Peterborough trip, and with the expanding day they soon forgot the long night at the Landing and on the landing, for that's where they counted the hours, in active solitude, in the dinky little pavilion that in the day time attracts the visiting youth and beauty far out on the wharf. Gore's Landing is a delightful resting place under most conditions, but thrown to the mosquitos on a night out where they can get you from all sides, it's not the end of a perfect day.

FIREMEN FOUGHT A GRASS FIRE ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

A grass fire on the back lots of the C.G.E. property gave Chief Howard's men a warm engagement on Sunday afternoon from 2.55 o'clock until 4.07. It had apparently started from a smouldering blaze of burned rubbish, caught the grass, and, for a time, assumed rather threatening proportions. A pile of ties was ignited, contributing to the heat and to the work of subduing the blaze. There was no material damage, but the firemen were literlly out of the frying men were literally out of the frying test part of the afternoon.

Private Cecil Wilson, a Warsaw member of the 93rd Battalion, C.E.F., writes the following interesting letter to his parents:

Somewhere on the Atlantic.

Dear Father and Mother,—Just a line to let you know I am well and hoping you are the same; I am feeling tip-top. Max Tucker was sick ever since we left Kingston. We left Kingston on the 12th of July at 8 o'clock at night and landed at Halifax on Saturday and we got on the boat on Saturday night and sailed on Sunday. We were on the train all the way till we got to a little French town. I could not tell on the name of it, for it was a French name, and I can't talk French yet, but I expect to before I come back. We got out and had a route march around the village and then we got on the train again and went on till we came to Moncton and they took us out for another route march. They had two bands there for to meet us and the bands led us around the town. I would think that it was about half as big as Peterborough. Say when we were at Brockville we stopped there for about 15 or 20 minutes and the station was just jammed with girls to bid us good-bye. When we were coming through Quebec we saw a farmer shaking hay and cutting it with oxen and it looked too odd for anything—the first time I ever saw oxen used on the farm. We had a route march around Halifax on Saturday before dinner and it is the dirtiest place I ever saw for the size of it, and the streets are as crooked as a dog's hind leg, and it seems to be built on the side of a hill. There are two boats with us, one named the Lapland. She has a load of troops and we have a war vessel to guard us. It is called the Drake. I got the picture of both of them. We have over four thousand soldiers on board our ship. There is the 93rd, the 106th and the 105th, and two batteries. The battery that Bessie Longsdale's brother is in is on this boat with us. I have seen him every day. The boat we are on is called the Empress of Britain. I have two pictures of it and I am sending them to you. How did Ada get along with her Entrance? Did she get through or not. How is George getting along? It is just dark now and I thought I would write a little bit more to this letter. The submarine destroyers have just come to meet us before we cross the Irish sea. There are lots of them. I will send you a snapshot of them as soon as I get them developed. There has not been any out of our battalion seasick yet. I have not been sick or don't intend to. We sleep in hammocks. We hook them to hooks in the ceiling and they are all right to sleep in. Well, I have reached our camp grounds, but we are not going to stay here long. It is just an inspection camp and we are going to move to Shorncliffe camp. I suppose you heard that the boat was sunk. But we got over here safe and is well. Oh gee, but they have dandy roads over here. We landed at Liverpool on Monday night and we stayed on the boat all night. There were boats by the hundred came out for to meet us and they gave us a great reception, for they are always glad to see the Canadians, and we got off the boat on Tuesday morning and got on the train. The cars are much smaller over here than they are in Canada and they go much faster. Oh, but it is funny to see the women out working in the field cutting oats and stacking them, and little boys about 13 or 14 helping them, and old men that are hardly able to work out in the fields working. You don't know what England is doing till you see it and then you would have pity on them. If some of the sore heads that are out there only saw those poor women working, taking the men's places, and they are fighting for their country. Everybody cheered us when we passed, and when we were going through London. They have some lovely places in London, and we went through it, and some tunnels that the train goes through for miles. And there are aeroplanes going over our head here all the time. But don't think they are German, for they are English aeroplanes and they are dandies. When you are eating your supper over there we are in bed sleeping, for there are between five and six hours difference in the time. This is a good camp here. They have the tents painted so the Germans can't see them. Well, I can't think of much more just now, but will write more the next time. Hope that you are all well and not worrying over me for I am all right. How is little George getting along. I hope that he is all right, and how is the baby? I suppose it is growing every day. I won't be able to see grandma for a couple of weeks. We can get a box of cigarettes for 4 pence, that is 8c. in Canadian money. I don't know now my right address, but this is the camp where we are now, and if we move why we will get it anyway, for they will forward it anyway. This is all for this time, so good-bye. From your son Cecil. This is my address: Pte. Cecil Wilson No. 195834.

Grand Trunk Railway's Exhibit

This year the Grand Trunk are having a more than usually effective and interesting exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. The exhibit is installed in the Grand Trunk's own building on one of the main thoroughfares in the Exhibition Grounds, and covers the territory served by this great system, including the Transcontinental Line between Toronto and Winnipeg, Grand Trunk Pacific between Winnipeg and the Pacific Coast, the Grand Trunk Pacific Coastal service from Seattle, Vancouver and Victoria to Alaska, the Highlands of Ontario, and the many other districts that are of interest to the travelling public. In addition to a series of enlargements from direct photographic negatives there will be a series of beautiful paintings in the Canadian Rockies, Yellowhead Pass Route, (through which the Grand Trunk lines have been laid.) Model of the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamships, Mounted fish and game; Topographical map; Effective Grain Displays from Western Canada, all go to make up a most interesting tout ensemble that will be extremely attractive. The Exhibit covers 5,000 feet wall space.

*In 1908 Criss, playing with the St. Louis Browns, led Cobb by 17 points, but played in only 64 games.

(NOTE—These figures do not include 1916 averages.)

What was the greatest offensive player the diamond game has produced? Was it the fiery, whirlwind Cobb, the wonderfully scientific Keeler, the slugging Lajoie, the amazing Wagner, or that first real star—Anson?

Below is a table showing what each of the quintet has done on the attack. Probably it will help to answer the question. The figures show many things. They establish the fact that Keeler, playing with Baltimore in 1879, compiled a batting average of .432—a mark beyond that of any of his four rivals. They show also that Keeler, in 18 years as a big leaguer assembled a grand clubbing record second only to Cobb's 10-year mark.

Wonderful as Lajoie, Anson and Keeler were, they did not win many batting championships. Anson led only four times in 22 years. Keeler twice in 18, and Lajoie only four times over a 20-year sweep.

Cobb and Wagner are tied as concerns pilfering. Each has led in stealing on four occasions. Wagner led his league in batting eight times. Cobb in 10 years as a big leaguer, has been the real leader on eight occasions. In 1908 Dode Criss, of the Browns, outbatted Cobb 17 points, playing in 64 games, but Cobb has been voted the championship for that year.

The five men who have made baseball history were unlike in their methods.

Keeler never was a slugger, nor was he anything remarkable in the base-running line. But he never had an equal in scientific hitting. He placed practically every one of his hits. He always knew just where he wanted to drop the ball—and he dropped it there.

Lajoie, on the other hand, was a slugger, but oddly enough, not of the long distance type. With a perfect judgment eyes and a mighty pair of shoulders, he was able to drive the ball through the infield so fast and so hard that none of the players cared to chance a broken hand in trying to intercept it. Lajoie never tried to break the fences. His hitting, in the main was the rifle-bullet shot through the diamond.

Cobb combines speed with great batting power. But Cobb is not of the real slugging type. Several times he has led his league in extra base hits, but it was due more to his whirlwind gait on the sacks than to the great distance of his drive. That same speed has enabled Cobb to take rank among the greatest swatsmen of all because of its use he has annually converted at least 40 infield taps into hits.

Anson was a slugger of the long distance type so rare in baseball. Old Cap used to aim his drives for a spot beyond the fence and when the ball didn't clear it the chances were it would slam up against the wall for an extra base or two. Speed never was one of "Ol' Cap's" assets. Unless he laced the ball to the far corners of the frolicking field it was pretty certain that he wouldn't reach first.

Wagner, however, was different from all the others. He could slug to the far corners like Anson; could drive through the infield like Lajoie and beat out taps like Cobb. Wagner also was a pretty good place hitter in his day. He never ranked in Keeler's class, but he was more scientific in his swatting than Lajoie, Cobb or Anson.

Who was greatest! Well answer it yourself. The table above tells the story.

Motor-Cycle Broke Down

Interesting events transpired at the home of Mr. James Fairley, 480 Bolivar street last Saturday, occasioned by the unexpected visit of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Terrell, two deaf mutes from Toronto On Indian motor cycle and side car. Mr. and Mrs. Terrell struck the city via Port Hope, at 1.30 on Saturday afternoon, intending after the week-end with their uncle to resume their journey today. But owing to the unfortunate losing of an important piece of the mechanism of the machine, their hopes were disappointed. Local help was soon acquired, but with little success. Mr. Crowe, the well known local mute, was soon on the scene to render "first-aid" but his efforts were to no avail, and after vain endeavours to secure a duplicatee of the required part at local garages and machine shops, much to the dismay and disgust of the silent travellers, vividly expressed by signs and gestures, the chase had to be abandoned and a more fortunate individual came to the rescue by volunteering to 'phone to Toronto for the "missing link."

This has been done with hopes that the adjusting screw will be on hand this evening. The unexpected visit seemed to be "a calling of the clans," as local people with similar afflictions seemed to flock from all quarters to the house, indulging in conversation best known to themselves over the stalled engine in the rear of the premises and on the front lawn, much to the interest and amusement of their more fortunate neighbours. All parties interested have high hopes that the "undaunted pair" will be able to resume their quiet journey in the Rice Lake district, where they contemplate spending the remainder of Mr. Terrell's vacation.—Com.

THE INVENTOR OF CIRCUS STUFF PASSES AWAY

Tody Hamilton, Barnum's Famed Writer, Originated the Big Poster and Alliterative Phrases.

A MASTER OF WORDS

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 18.—Richard F. Hamilton, better known as "Tody" Hamilton, veteran newspaperman and for many years press agent for the Barnum and Bailey circus, died at the home of his brother-in-law, W. Howard Gibson, 3,628 Old York Road on Wednesday. Death was due to heart disease. He had been confined to his bed for the last week and up to Tuesday, when his condition became worse, the family entertained hopes of his recovery. He was 60 years old. His only survivor is his wife, Mrs. Emmma E. Hamilton. The funeral will take place from the residence of his brother-in-law Saturday afternoon. Interment will be in Western Cemetery.

Several years ago, while in Baltimore, Tody was attracted to the Walbrook Hills, a beautiful suburb. He told friends here that he loved Maryland and the Chesapeake Bay oysters and crabs and fish. He was very fond of fishing, so he located in Baltimore to enjoy his favourite sport. He built himself a big roomy cottage on a hill on Clifton Avenue, Wallbrook. Sometimes he called this his "erie." After living here a few years Mr. Hamilton sold the property, which had cost him a large sum, and returned to New York.

"Tody" Hamilton had no rivals for the reputation of the greatest press agent that ever lived. The free space he got for Barnum & Bailey's circus ran into miles. He invented the modern circus poster, and founded a school of alliteration all his own. He put the Cardiff Giant and the sacred white elephant of Siam over on the great American public. He was the first to discover the resources of the English language in Gargantuan epithets, and to match them like bells in a melodious series. Literary critics have given him the credit for the abandonment of the alliteration by poets of the present day, who concede that since Hamilton's time, verbal tintinnabulations of all kinds belong exclusively to the circus.

Only a short time before he died "Tod" Hamilton said that during all the years of his connection with Barnum & Bailey's he had never seen their incomparable show. He would not allow his conception of it to be distorted by contact with the details.

When Hamilton first began to compose the posters for the big show his work was criticised as too florid and efforts were made to cheapen his style by extravagant imitations of it. His reply was a new series beside which his first efforts were reserved and monosyllabic. His style survived satirical imitations, as did Dr Samuel Johnston's, and is the foundation of the circus literature of today.

Hamilton is noted as a press agent to-day, not only because he enriched the language of the common people, but also because he was fertile in producing genuine news stories which no office rules against press agent yarns could keep out of newspapers, and because he educated the editors in most of the large cities in Europe to what the reading public was entitled to expect in the way of advance information about circuses. When he was once asked what the best story he had ever landed he said:

"I think it was the one about the protest of the freaks. We were in London at the time, and I heard that the woman who molded statues out of butter objected to being classed as a freak, although she was in that department of the show. She was a respectable little body, very fussy about the respect which should be accorded her as a solid member of the lower middle class. I learned that others were dissatisfied, too, and I thought that Mr. Barnum should be apprised of the fact.

"I encouraged the freaks to protest as a matter of fair play. I communicated the state of their feelings to the London newspapers. The freaks held a meeting and protested once more that they were being unjustly looked down on.

"We appealed to the British people for a better name than freak, and finally a Canon of the English church suggested prodigy. It was accepted although he must have failed to see that I had already referred to the wonders of the 'peerless prodigees of physical phenomenons.' The freak of the protest spread all over England and the Continent and was cabled to this side of the water. It awakened interest in the breasts of all who thought that they were not receiving the respect due their station."

Mr. Hamilton's faith in publicity was so great that when P. T. Barnum lay dying he decided that a gang of press comp would brave up the old man, and he encouraged The Evening Sun to print his obituary in advance. Mr. Hamilton took the paper with four columns of reading matter and a number of pictures to the bed of the aged showman. It revived him after oxygen had failed. Four days later he died, but his physicians agreed that the premature obituary had prolonged his life for that period.

On March 2, 1907, on his retirement, a unique dinner in honour of Tody Hamilton was held at the Waldorf-Astoria. Charles E. Hughes, then Governor of the State, was one of the guests and speakers. In his speech on that occasion the press agent said:

"In my long, useful, truthful, faithful, funny and fashionable career as circus press agent I have no vain regrets and cankering remorse to keep me awake nights. I can lie down with the clear conscience of a man who has done his duty. I have grabbed more space for nothing than any other man you know. Therefore you are, as representative newspapermen and future publishers, abundantly justified in gathering here to-night to eat, drink and be merry over the event of my retirement from business.

"I have been on Park Row now for forty-five years. My father was a reporter and newspaper proprietor, as was also my grandfather. And I, alas, have owned four publications, but I kept out of jail. In the first stages of my wild reportorial career, I did work on The New York Sun. I look back now on that early reportorial training as the firm foundation of my subsequent successful career as press agent."

Mr. Hamilton was born in this city on June 23, 1847, and educated at St. Francis Xavier and Fordham University. After doing newspaper work for several years he made a fortune of $500,000 in real estate and stock speculation, but later lost it. In 1876 he became press agent and general manager of the New York Aquarium. In 1881 he found his true vocation when the took his part with Barnum & Bailey.

RUSSIANS TOOK 358,000 TEUTONS SINCE JUNE 4

Petrograd, Aug. 16. — Between June 4, when the Russian offensive was inaugurated, and Aug 12, General Brussiloff's forces captured more than 358,000 men, the War Office announced to-day.

Great numbers of guns also were captured, says the report, which gives the following figures:

Officers	7,757
Men	350,845
Cannon	405
Machine guns	1,326
Mine and bomb-throwers	338
Powder carts	292

In addition there were taken a large number of rifles, 30 versts of small gauge railways, telegraphic materials, and several depots of ammunition and engineering materials.

Ultra-smart Paris modistes have put out satin in black, beige and sand colour as a substitute for cloth and Jersey.

Drowned Man's Body Found Standing Upright

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—Caught in weeds while bathing from the Canadian shore of the Detroit River on Saturday, Harry Johnson, aged 35, a waiter at the Island View Hotel, Sandwich East, was drowned.

Johnson had been warned not to risk bathing, but he took no heed. Two other men who went with Johnson narrowly escaped the same fate, being unable to see the buoys that marked the channel.

Five hours after Johnson was drowned his body was recovered in an upright position with the feet entangled in weeds.

GERMAN SUB CAPTURED?

American Passengers on Alaunia Say They Saw It.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Passengers on the Cunarder Alaunia, which arrived here from London, told of being held in port at Deal while destroyers were active outside, and later of seeing a damaged British destroyer enter, followed by a British cruiser, against whose freeboard was lashed a shell-torn German submarine. The destroyer, the pasengers said, evidently had suffered from shellfire. The submarine appeared to be one of the larger class, and evidently had been completely disabled and rendered unseaworthy. None of the passengers learned the particulars of the action or the fate of the submarine's crew.

OBITUARY

JOHN SHEEHAN.

The death occurred in Peterborough yesterday of Mr. John Sheehan, aged 80 years. The funeral on Tuesday morning, August 22, at 9 o'clock from his sister's residence, 352 Mark street, to the Church of The Immaculate Conception, thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

ELIZABETH HARRINGTON.

Th death occurred in Ennismore, yesterday, of Mrs. Elizabeth Harrington, widow of the late Wm. Harrington, who predeceased her by 11 years. She is survived by five dauzhters, Mrs. Wm. Hogan, Maple Lake, Minn.; Mrs. Thos. Dorris, Bannbrook, B.C; Mrs. Wm. Curtin, Emily; Mrs. Jas. McGuire, and Mrs. Dan. Holland of Ennismore. There are four sons, Cornelius, Edward, William and Bernard.

The funeral took place this morning from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Daniel Holland to St. Martin's Church and St. Martin's cemetery.

MRS. JOHN C. KEMP.

On Saturday afternoon death came suddenly to Jemina Northcotte, wife of John C. Kemp, at her home, 595 Division street. Deceased was stricken shortly after dinner and despite the efforts of two physicians, never regained consciousness. She was 62 years of age and is survived by her husband. One daughter predeceased her some years ago. Mrs. T. E. Pratt, Water street, is a sister, while Wesley Northcotte of Lakefield, and Saul Northcott of Smith Township, are brothers.

The late Mrs. Kemp was born in Peterborough county and has resided here all her life. She was well known and highly respected. Her demise will occasion widespread regret. She was a member of George Street Methodist Church.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery.

WEDDING BELLS

CURRAN—LA JEUNESSE

A very quiet wedding took place at 6 o'clock this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Rev. J. J. Phelan, united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Tille Orina, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adrien La Jeunesse to Mr. J. W. Curran of Toronto. After the ceremony the bridal party adjourned to the bride's home, where a dainty dejeuner was served, after which the bride and groom left on the 7.35 C.P.R. train for Toronto where they will take up their future residence.

STONEL LAKE NEWS

At Belmont, her summer home, on Friday, August 18th, Marguerite Isobel, the charming young daughter of the late Mr. W. A. Sanderson, and Mrs. Sanderson, was married to Lieut. John F. P. Birnie, C.F.A., son of Mr. John Birnie, K.C., and Mrs. Birnie of Collingwood.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Finlay Matheson of Stratford in the living-room, which was beautifully decorated. Flags, green boughs, ferns and goldenrod gave a woodland setting for the occasion and a profusion of garden-flowers added to the attractiveness of the scene.

At 3 o'clock the guests had motored from Peterborough, and those from the nearby cottages for the ceremony. Mr. Renwick played the wedding march. The winsome bride, dressed in an exquisite gown of Georgette crepe with a handsome bertha of Rose Irish Point lace and carrying Killarney roses was given away by her mother. Miss Jessie Cressman the bridesmaid, was most becomingly gowned in white crepe de chine, and carried pale pink roses. Miss Helen Willoughby, dressed in an embroidered frock of white was flower-girl and carried a basket of white water-lillies.

After congratulations, the large dining-room was the scene of much festivity. Amid a shower of rice and confetti, the happy couple were accompanied to the dock, where Dr. Willoughby's suitably decorated launch, awaited them.

The bride's going-away suit was of taffeta.

The Bulgars Are Within Ten Miles of Kavala

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ATHENS, August 21.—Bulgarian troops are reported within ten miles of the Greek port of Kavala in their advance to attack the Allies' right wing. The Greek Cabinet has been called into special session because of the Bulgarian advance into Greek territory. Generals Moschopoulos, Sottilis and Ghenadis are attending the conference.

Kavala, a port of about five thousand population, has long been coveted by the Bulgars. The Government is watching the Bulgarian invasion of Greek territory with the greatest interest. From the military standpoint the Bulgarian advance is considered unimportant so far as the Allies are concerned. The British and French Ministers conferred with Premier Zamis, who immediately afterward summoned the Chief of Staff of the Greek army.

Large forces of Italians have landed at Salonika to take part in the Allies' Balkan offensive.

ON THE CAUCASIAN FRONT.

PETROGRAD, August 21.—On the Caucasian front the Russians have captured a series of heights and taken prisoner a large number of Turks, it was announced officially here to-day.

PENALTY MUST BE PAID.

LONDON, August 21.—"The sinking of two such valuable British light cruisers as the Falmouth and Notingham Saturday in the first North Sea naval fight since the Jutland battle, is distinctly unfortunate." The naval expert of the Daily News asserted to-day. "But is the penalty that must be paid by a fleet commanding the seas."

HEAVY FIGHTING IN THE BALKANS.

LONDON, August 21.—The Bulgarians have opened heavy attacks on both wings of the Allied armies in Greece, and serious fighting is going on at both ends of the one hundred and fifty mile battle front. The German War Office this afternoon announced that the Bulgars have captured Vichill, southeast of the Greek town of Florina, whose capture was officially announced Friday, and have taken other Serbian positions.

Voting in South West Toronto is Very Light—Many Issues Involved

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—Voting is very light to-day in the four-cornered bye-election in South-west Toronto, where the Ontario nickel and prohibition issues are very much mixed up in the campaign. It is of course naturally a Conservative constituency, and the government candidate, James A. Norris, is a favourite in the betting, if any. Owing to the smallness of the vote and variety of the candidates and platforms, Conservatives, themselves, at this hour admit it is anybody's election.

General Hughes On Somme Front

PARIS, Aug. 21.—General Sir Sam Hughes, the Canadian War Minister, arrived in Paris from a week's inspection of the British front of the Somme. He stated to your correspondent:

"No easy task nor a spectacular rush forward must be expected, but the unrelenting pressure of the Allies' armies is bound to break the enemy's resistance.

"I cannot prophecy the exact date of the end of the war, but it is certain that it will end with a complete victory of the allies' armies. Already our artillery equipment has reached a degree of excellence, and everywhere in Canada we are working double time to increase the supply of shells.

"As the general feeling in Canada and the enthusiasm everywhere is increasing, the ever limited number of German residents deplore Germany's conduct, and are openly against the Kaiser's militarism."

LIGHT WEIGHT BREAD CONFISCATED

LINDSAY, Aug. 22.—A Lindsay baker got a light-weight bread scrape yesterday morning, when Chief Constable Short, held up the baker's delivery rig on Kent street. About sixty loaves of bread were taken from the waggon and weighed on a Kent street grocer's scales all of which were found to lack an ounce or more of being up to the three-pound standard. The bread will be confiscated.

KELLEY WANTS TO FINISH THE WORK

THOMAS KELLY & SONS DESIRE TO COMPLETE MANITOBA PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 22.—On the occasion of the opening of tenders yesterday for the completion of the Manitoba parliament buildings, a letter was written by Thomas Kelly & Sons to T. H. Johnson, Minister of Public Works, expressing the company's desire to complete work started three years ago.

Charles B. Kelly, writing for the firm, said they wished again to put themselves on record as "ready, willing, and anxious to complete all our contracts on the parliament buildings and we hereby offer to do so."

They agreed to allow the Government for work done on buildings by other firms. The company maintained that all the extra contracts granted them were reasonable and they agreed to submit them to arbitration.

The one bulk tender received was that of J. McDiarmid Company, Limited, for $3,128,018, a sum equal to the total original successful tender for the entire work. A number of tenders were put in for parts of the contract and all were referred to F. W. Simon, the architect, for report.

Overheated Cannon Sizzle in Rain During British Attacks on Powerful Leipsic Redoubt

One Hundred Cannon Make Curtain of Fire on Front of Two Battalions Which Charge Formidable Position and Catch Garrison in Dugouts —Food Supply Brought Through a Subway—The Struggle Was Carried on in Freakish Weather.

PRUSSIANS HELD ON

....WITH BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, LONDON, August 22. — What two battalions did and how they did it was the most stirring incident of the last twenty-four hours of sensational fighting from the Ancre to the Somme. The struggle went on in freakish August weather, with alternate cloudbursts and flashes of lightning, rainbows and sunshine.

All along the line from the south of the Ancre the British left their trenches while the French were hard at it on their right. The time chosen was five o'clock Sunday afternoon, while the big attacks of July 1 and 14 were in the early morning.

Two battalions were on the left with more guns to help them, probably, than any two battalions that ever made a charge. One hundred cannon were engaged in making a curtain of fire on their front while others were busy with other details of the staff plan. Nothing in the whole offensive was so dramatically staged or came off with greater success.

The Prussians still held on in their old first line trenches, where their machine guns, brought up from undestroyed dugouts, held up the British on July 1, while the British right swung on this section as a pivot through Contalmaison and Pozieres to the summit of the ridge, burrowing forward as the guns blasted away.

Sharper and sharper grew the angle of the new British line to the old Prussian first line, until on the map it looked impossible for troops to survive in such a salient. Nevertheless, the Prussians stuck to those elaborate defences of nearly two years' preparation, with dugouts thirty or forty feet under ground, reverted traverses and every other detail of protection against all kinds of fire which army staffs can devise or labour build. .....

FOOD BROUGHT THROUGH SUBWAY.

Through galleries running from dugout to dugout the Prussians had a subway for bringing up reliefs and food. They led a regular life. At night those not on guard went to bed in their cellar banks as comfortably as in Pulmana, and durig the day they played cards if not sent out into shell craters to snipe Britishers. They had their machine guns ready as before, should the British attempt to rush their homes.

Saturday afternoon the British guns were pounding away as usual at this sector, which is called the Leipsic redoubt, when the British, thanks to a new system for taking care of machine guns and with a quick burst of artillery preparation covering their charge, appeared on the jump through the doors of their dugouts.

Through glasses they were visible to observers running about the maze of traverses like terriers searching for rat holes, their bayonets gleaming and puffs of smoke rising as they threw bombs.

In one capacious dugout, equipped with beds, tables and cupboards, six officers and 170 men surrendered in a body and were marched out after the manner of a crowd caught in a gambling house raided by the police. Some managed to escape from their dugouts by underground galleries. Others who could not escape, though surrounded, tried to man their machine guns and were shot down. Still others fought to the death with bayonets and bombs. It is estimated the 2,800 Prussians caught in this trap by less than their own number were accounted for.

When the correspondent left Corps Headquarters twelve officers and 600 men had been brought in as prisoners, while more were being unearthed from their hiding places. The last of the small parties which held out with a ring of British around them in brief but ferocious sieges were surrendering. They had hoped for a counter-attack to rescue them, but the British had foreseen this and met it with blasts from artillery and machine-guns they had immediately put in position for that purpose.

Teutons Are Very Active

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Teutons were very active on all fronts yesterday, but maintained no ground. The French resumed the offensive on the Western front, last night, with a smashing attack on the Somme River. The battle is still raging. The Russians are pressing the Austrians back in the Carpathians.

BULGARS SEEK TO ANTICIPATE GREAT ATTACK BY ALLIES

GENERAL SERRAIL IN SUPREME COMMAND OF ANGLO-FRENCH OPERATIONS FROM SALONICA BASE.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Reports received here from Salonica show that the general engagement which began on Friday is continuing with intensity over an extended front, running from Florina, near Monastir, to the River Struma. This represents an irregular line measuring upward of 150 miles.

General Sarrail is directing the united operations of the Allies, with General Cordonnier commanding the French troops. The operations have been long expected as a part of the co-ordinated offensive of the Allies on all fronts. Its opening follows the arrival of General Cordonnier after extended conferences with officials here.

The advices received in Paris indicate that the Prussians and Bulgarians are seeking to anticipate the movement by taking the offensive on the left, where the Serbians had moved up to within twenty-five miles of Monastir, holding Florina as an observation post. Their orders were not to attempt to retain Florina if they were attacked. The Serbian War Office says the Bulgarians were repulsed and thrown back on their old positions, but that later the Serbians, following their instructions, evacuated Florina. Thereupon the town and the station of Florina were occupied by the Bulgarians.

The Serbians retired slowly and later delivered a heavy counter attack against a large Bulgarian force which was debouching from Florina toward Banica. Fighting continues in this region.

In the centre French and British forces near Lake Doiran followed an intense bombardment with infantry attacks, in which the British contingent occupied the strategic point of Dolsall. Further east the French right stormed a series of small villages in much the same manner as the French right carried the villages on the Somme front.

Reports in general show a condition of affairs along the whole line which is regarded here as satisfactory for the Allies. There is every indication that the preliminary operations are extending rapidly.

Overcome at The Lindsay Cold Storage Plant

LINDSAY, Aug. 22.—Mr. Abe Hartley, day engineer at Flavelles Ltd., cold storage plant, to use a slang saying, came near "passing in his cheques" Sunday afternoon. It appears there was a small leak in some of the ammonia pipes and before they could be tightened up the injector blew out, flooding the engine room with pungent volatile gas. Before the engineer could reach the open air he was overcome and lay prostrate on the floor.

Fortunately two workmen were passing the door and discovered Mr. Hartley's condition. They carried him out and succeeded in reviving him. It was a narrow escape from the deadly gas.

A FAMOUS REGIMENT.

The Connaught Rangers First Fought in Flanders in 1794.

The Connaught Rangers, since the opening of hostilities, have been in the thick of the fighting in Flanders, and along with other Irish regiments have received the highest praise from Sir John French. The Rangers' battle-cry, "Erin-go-Bragh," was first heard in Flanders in 1794, when the regiment received its baptism of fire at Alost, where a formidable French force was defeated. Since then the "Devil's Own" have figured in every important British campaign as indicated by the regiment's long list of battle honors.

During the Peninsular War the Connaught Rangers won high distinction, and at the conclusion of the Battle of Busaco Wellington bestowed the warmest praise on the Irishmen. Riding up to Colonel Wallace, he said, "Wallace, I never saw a more gallant charge than that made by your regiment." The best soldiers of France fled before the bayonets of the Rangers at Fuentes d'Onoro, whilst the Irishmen greatly distinguished themselves in the terrible breach at Badajoz, when they formed the forlorn hope which paved the way to victory. On this occasion a bugler boy of the regiment named White was severely wounded, but he heroically continued to sound the "Advance."

With characteristic Irish dash the Connaughts forced back the Russian army at Alma, and at Inkermann and Sebastopol they fought with dogged determination, though exposed to the rigours of bitter wintry weather.

From the frost-bitten Crimea the Connaught Rankers were dispatched to the sun-baked plains of India to aid in the quelling of the Indian Mutiny. Under Sir Hugh Rose the regiment fought with its usual dariing, and the natives had cause to remember the whirlwind charges of the "Irish Devils."

During the Kaffir War Major Moore, of the Connaughts, obtained the V.C. With his regiment he figured in the fiercest fighting of the campaign. On one occasion he had his horse shot under him three times in one day. He won the V.C. for endeavoring to rescue a wounded private from the Kaffirs, when he shot two natives and received an assegai through his arm during the gallant attempt.

The Connaught Rangers served in both South African Wars and won many honors. In the campaign of 1899-1902 a gallant feat of the Irishmen opened up the way to the Relief of Ladysmith. Under a deadly fire 1,200 Rangers charged the Boer trenches at the famous Battle of the Tugela Heights. Only 600 survived, but they formed up behind a fringe of rocks, and held the enemy in their trenches whilst Sir Redvers Buller swung his army round on the left wing; and trapped his opponents.

Tact is not the quality by which you often please, but by which you seldom offend.—Alice Wellington Rollins.

Strange Pets.

The chameleon belongs to the lizard family, and is a slow, ugly creature, and the last thing on earth you would think of making a pet of, yet in spite of its appearance it is quite gentle and harmless. British soldiers in Egypt keep these little creatures in their tents and make pets of them. They have the appearance of a kind of lizard, only longer in body. The claws or digits have each five toes, three extended in one direction and two in another, by which it grasps the branches of trees, but when these are too thick it has recourse to its tail, which it coils round them while it forces its claws into the bark.

They are veritable quick-change artistes in the way in which they repeatedly change color according to the surroundings. For instance, when climbing the trunk of a tree they turn the same color as the bark, and when among leaves they turn a vivid green, but what amuses our soldiers most is the adroit and expeditious manner in which they dispose of flies, and this is mainly what they keep them for.

Steel Output for 1916.

The biggest year in the history of steel production in Canada was in 1913, when the total output of steel ingots from Canadian mills amounted to 1,168,000 tons. That record figure was due to the demands for construction work at home, which reached its height in that year. In 1914 the total output of steel ingots was 814,000 tons, and in 1915 it increased to 975,000 tons. The war and the foreign business were responsible for the increase last year, but the output of 975,000 tons was fifteen per cent. below capacity. Giving a maximum estimate of the probable output of steel ingots and castings for 1916, Canadian mills will produce 1,350,000 tons. This record output from the mills of Canada is now in the process of being produced, and the greater part of it is going into the manufacture of munitions.

The New Earl Grey.

The Greys of Northumberland are a long-lived family. Earl Grey of Falloden, as we may assume the new peer will be titled, is the third baronet of the line. The first—a captain in the navy—was born in 1767. Earl Grey of Howick, the Foreign Secretary's kinsman, is the fourth earl, and the first was born in 1729. He was a famous soldier who distinguished himself in the first American War, and afterwards in the French Wars. His third son was the navy captain, who became a baronet. The new Earl Grey and the old one share the same motto, "De bon voloir servir le roy" (to serve the King with good-will).—London Chronicle.

Australia's Navy.

Australia is working out a policy which by 1933 will give her a fleet of fifty vessels, eight of them predreadnoughts, and involving an annual expenditure of at least $25,000,000, a member of an Australian commission, P. M. Glynn, stated on a recent visit to England.

ARMY BANDS.

They Are the Best Agency for Bringing in Recruits.

Almost from time immemorial British soldiers have marched to battle to the tune of the drum or the skirling of the pipes. Perhaps, however, the most interesting of the early records of martial music is that concerning an episode in 1333, the date of the Battle of Halidon Hill, when "the Englysche mynstrelles beaten their tabors and blewen their trompes, and pipers pipedene loud and made a great schowte upon the Skottes."

The earliest date at which drums were carried on horseback in England appears to be 1542, when Henry VIII. sent to Vienna for kettle-drums that could be played on horseback "after the Hungarian manner." Mounted bands were in vogue in the last decade of the eighteenth century, the two regiments of Life Guards having them in 1796.

Regimental kettle-drums are usually draped in beautifully-worked drum banners, which often display great artistic taste, and are inscribed with the regimental honors. The Royal Horse Guards have a pair of silver drums which were presented by King George III. in 1805.

Fifes also have a claim to notice. They were in favor before the reign of James I., when they were withdrawn, to be restored by the Duke of Cumberland in 1745, who reintroduced them into the Guards. Thereafter the drums and fifes took their place as a recognized body, distinct from the band generally speaking, but a valuable asset for marching purposes.

Marches, properly so called, are believed by some authorities, says The Windsor Magazine, to have originated in the Thirty Years' War between 1618 and 1648, when Germany indeed was the battlefield of Europe.

An epoch in the history of military music was the adoption of wooden instruments with keys. This enabled melodies to be played long before the brass instruments could do more than sound their "open" notes. Until near the end of the eighteenth century the Guards' regiments were content each with a band of eight—two hautboys, two clarionets, two horns, and two bassoons.

One of the most famous bands is that of the Royal Artillery. Many persons who have attained distinction in the musical world have been connected with the Royal Artillery or its band. Among them was Sims Reeves, who was the son of a bandsman, and who, in his boyhood, sang in the military choir at Woolwich. It is, perhaps, not well known that the Royal Artillery band is fifty years older than the Philharmonic Society, having been formed in 1762. It has done much for the advancement of music in England, and has always enjoyed the advantage of having a succession of eminent musicians as bandmasters. It has always been double-handed; that is to say, the players are as proficient on stringed instruments as on wind, and can at any time assume the character of an orchestra.

Flower Names.

Camellia was named from a missionary in the orient, Kamel. On his return to France he brought with him some gorgeous specimens of a flower which he called the rose of Japan. His friends, however, gave it his name, Camellia.

Dahlias were brought from Peru by one Andre Dahl.

Fuchsias were named for their discoverer, Leonard Fuchs.

Magnolias received the name of Professor Magnol de Montpellier, who first brought the beautiful trees from Asia and America to France.

Anemone means to tremble with the wind.

Lavender, so called because the Romans put a spray of them in the water to perfume the hands. The Latin word to wash is lavare.

Strange Engagement Rings.

Girls becoming engaged to soldiers make a special point of acquiring out-of-the-common engagement rings. These have been very successfully and artistically made from the bands of shells melted down and inset with the prospective wearer's favorite stone. On the inside is inscribed the day on which the fragment was originally picked up, and a few particulars. Shell bands are also made up into brooches and bracelets. War brides have a fancy for rather wide wedding rings, and for the moment the smaller size, the popular one before last August, is in the background.

GIRL MAKES FURNITURE.

Tables, China Closet, Shaving Cabinet Some of Her Work.

When anything is needed in the furniture line in the Von Manderscheid home in Alameda, Cal., they call in Florita, the daughter, and say: "Father needs a shaving cabinet," or "mother needs a mahogany bedroom set," or "little sister needs a high chair." Florita goes out to her workshop, and with hammer, saw and chisel the need is supplied, and the family hasn't been out a cent except for the lumber.

Miss Florita Von Manderscheid is an expert carpenter and joiner. She takes to tools as the ordinary girl takes to curling irons. She has been hammering away for several years now and has never so much as knocked the beauty parlour finish off her thumb nail.

She made a mahogany library table of such craftsmanship that Principal George C. Thompson, of the Alameda High School, threw out the one he already had and bought Florita's.

Florita has made, among other articles, two large mahogany library tables, a walnut china closet, a shaving cabinet, equipped with a bevel mirror; a gun rack which looks like a china closet, piano bench, taboret, cosy corner seat and a doll's chair. She is her own designer.

La Jerz is a new striped tub silk, in a weave reminiscent of jersey, though firmir, which has met with prompt success, and will apparently be much in vogue for blouses of the plainly tailored sports type.

A bore is a person who has nothing to do but sit around and visit.

Edward McQuade Leaps From Bridge on United States Side.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 21.—After removing his coat and hat, Edward McQuade, who resided on Bridge street and is employed by McRae & Campaigne, contractors, committed suicide by jumping from the lower steel arch bridge into the Niagara river. The identity of the suicide was established by articles of clothing. He made the jump from the north side of the American portion of the bridge.

Summer Complaint
Was So Bad
He Could Not Work

DR. FOWLER'S
Extract of Wild Strawberry
Cured Him

Mr. Stephen H. Shaw, Fairmount, Sask., writes: "I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and must say it is a fine medicine for Summer complaint. We have so much alkali water here in the west that last harvest time I had summer complaint, and became so weak I could not work. I was advised to try "Dr. Fowler's," so got a bottle, and in a few days I was as well as ever.'

"Dr. Fowler's" is the original "Wild Strawberry." It has been on the market for the past 70 years.

There are a number of preparations on the market to-day, claiming the same curative powers, called similar names, and trying to trade on the reputation of this wonderful bowel remedy.

There is nothing can take the place of

"DR. FOWLER'S"

There is nothing "Just as Good."

Insist on getting it when you ask for it.

The price at all dealers is 35c. per bottle. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CROWN PRINCE'S ORGY AROUSED HIS FATHER

Kaiser Had to Banish the Fool of Verdun From Berlin After One Escapade

Startling revelations regarding the real character of the Crown Prince of Germany are provided by Miss Edith Keen, for several years the companion of Princess Victoria of Prussia. Miss Keen's reminiscences, giving the most intimate account ever written of the life of the inner circle of the Hohenzollerns appeared in one English Magazine. On his marriage in 1905 the Crown Prince had $175,000 of his wife's fortune settled upon him, the greater part of which he had squandered in a few years. He is not only terribly extravagant, however, but, to quote Miss Keen's words, he is "one of the most dissolute Princes in Europe. His supper parties to actresses, which used to be given in the rooms of a bachelor member of his own household in Berlin, a Count Brendorf, were the wildest and most extravagant orgies."

One Supper Party

One of these supper parties led to a tremendous quarrel between the Emperor and the Crown Prince. There was at the time in Berlin a certain actress who had been received by the German Empress—a sure guarantee that her reputation was of the highest. Under the impression that she was to meet the Crown Princess, this actress was induced to accept an invitation to one of the Crown Prince's supper parties. On arrival, however, she found there was no hostess, but only a number of chorus girls and half a dozen boon companions of the Prince. She wanted to leave, but was persuaded by the Crown Prince to stay.

The Gay Scene

Someone told the Emperor that night that this actress had gone to supper in Count Berndorf's rooms, and at midnight the Kaiser, in a tearing rage, went off to see if the rumor were true. When the Emperor burst into the room, the sprightly lady was standing on the table holding a half-filled wine glass towards the Crown Prince, on whose head was a garland of flowers, and standing round the table a group of chorus girls and young officers of the Prussian Guard. They were all joining in the chorus which the lady on the table was leading. The Kaiser's entrance at once put a stop to these festive proceedings. Very little passed between them at the moment, but the next day the Crown Prince was sent off on military duty to Breslau, where he was situated for three months, while the lady left Berlin at the same time, never to return.

LOVE BRITISH DOCTORS

Army Surgeon Help French Civilians Whenever Needed

Frederick Palmer writes as follows: British Headquarters in France: A bundle of reports which throw interesting light on the work of peace the British army is doing in France was collected at Headquarters. They came from army medical officers all the way from the fighting line back to the hospitals at the bases far from the zone of shell fire, and told of the service which the army doctors have been rendering to the civil population. France itself has been depleted of doctors. The young ones who did not go to the front as medical officers or to the army hospitals went to fight. In many villages any British army doctor who happened to be stationed there took the place of the local practitioner.

These simple reports reveal the sufferings and the sacrifices of the French population who have received free medical service from the allies. Surgeons go from the operating table to set the broken leg of a boy who has fallen out of a tree or to lance a fetor from the clearing station where the white bandaged wounded from the trenches pass through to look at the baby with the colic in a neighboring peasant's cottage. There are many records of shell wounds both to women and children who have gone on living and working in danger zone. His numerous patients became so fond of one British doctor, who refused to take any pay as all do, that the children called him "Papa Anglais," and when he was transferred to another post they took up a subscription and made him a present.

Joke on Lord Beresford

They are still laughing over an accident which occurred to Lord Beresford at a tea for wounded soldiers at Buckingham. His lordship was pouring out tea, when the King and Queen entered the marquee. Lord Beresford hastily and absent-mindedly tucked the teapot under his arm and stood at the salute. The boiling tea, of course, trickled down his leg, and the soldiers laughed, while Lord Beresford made a hasty exit.

A London bride introduced a novel feature at her wedding, when her two bridesmaids carried garlands of pink roses which they later attached to the bride's pink chiffon train and carried it thus with much effect.

DOES THIS MEAN YOU?

Are you one of the many who are suffering with eczema, obstinate sores, ulcers or any other skin trouble? If so, lose no time in trying Zam-Buk, and you will be amazed at its curative powers.

The healing power of any ointment is in proportion to its medicinal ingredients. Ordinary ointments being composed chiefly of animal fats, with only a small percentage of medicinal ingredients, have not sufficient healing power to overcome a bad case of skin trouble. Zam-Buk, on the contrary, is purely herbal, and is all medicine, which explains its superiority over other ointments, and its many marvellous cures.

Besides being best for eczema, ulcers, and skin diseases of all kinds, it is equally good for blood-poisoning, piles, burns, cuts, heat rashes, sore and blistered feet, insect bites and sunburn. 50c. box all druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send 1c. stamp for postage on free trial box.

WHY YOU HANG STOCKINGS

Popular Christmas Custom Said to Have Come Down to Us From Old Italian Practice.

There is a story from Italy which some suppose to be the beginning of the present idea of the Christmas stocking. Years ago good old St. Nicholas of Padua used to throw knitted purses with money in them in at the windows of the poor. These knitted purses were not unlike a stocking without a foot, and later it became the custom of the people to hang this knitted sack just inside the window that St. Nicholas might put something in as he passed. When these purses went out of use the stockings were substituted. In the northern part of Italy it was a little too chilly to leave the windows open and the stockings were hung by the mantel place so that they might be filled from the chimney.

IRISH IN TRENCHES DEFY SINN FEINERS

With Sixteenth Division Enlisted Since War—English Officers Prize Irish as Fighters

Frederick Palmer writes from British Headquarters in France as follows: There is a town at the British front which is the centre of an Irish world. It is the headquarters town of the sixteenth, or Irish, division. Irish voices are heard from the doorways of the houses. Flower pots of shamrock are on the mess tables of officers who gather for their meals in the modest sitting room of the local grocer or butcher where they are billeted.

In his office a general who is Irish to the finger-tips talks about his troops, who were fighting hard against the Germans during the Dublin riots. If he is asked if there are any Sinn Feiners among them he will refer the inquirer to the men themselves. They enlisted in the Irish new army battalions in face of the influence which produced Sinn Feinism. This gave them a distinction of character to start with, their officers say.

Like Veterans

Sturdy middle-aged men, with stripes of color won in campaigns in India and South Africa while serving with regular Irish regiments, some still sergeants, some promoted to commissions, have been the drill masters of vigorous youth from Mayo or Kilkenny or Clare or Cork. But most of the officers in common with most of the men had never been in uniform when the war began.

That major, over six feet and broad in proportion, standing stiff as a ramrod in salute who looks as if he had been soldiering all his life, was a farmer in Waterford. He recruited a company from the surrounding countryside and was given command. Promotion followed as it has for other beginners. Those captains who are members of Parliament will get their turn unless they are among the casualties which makes room for others to rise. They say that they thought they could do better work for Home Rule at the front than in the Commons.

"We wanted to draft the Irishmen who were in English and Scotch battalions into ours so we should have all the Irish at the front under one command," said the General, "but we could not make the arrangement. The other commanders would not part with their Irishmen. British battalions like to have a sprinkling of Irish among their numbers. My men have had every test of trench fighting, gas and shells and sniping—and they've disproved any idea that the Irish were not as good at sticking as in a charge. They've stuck like veterans. Native Irish good humor relieves the grim monotony of the trenches.

Discipline and Humor

"As for discipline—there's the record of courts-martial"—the general indicated some blank spaces opposite the names of battalions on the wall. "Everybody prophecied that we would have heavy drinking on St. Patrick's day, because a lot of people think the Irish have a weakness for drink. I appealed to the men to be on their good behavior, with the result that we did not have a single case of intoxication."

Up in the trenches held by the Irish stories abound. When a big high explosive German shell tore a hole in the parapet, a soldier who was set to shovelling away the earth that had filled the trench had only fairly got started when another shell struck just behind him tearing another section of trench and half burying him.

Having crawled out and looked around, he saluted his captain and said: "Sir, I have to report that at the present rate I can't finish this job without help. They're gaining on me."

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

TROUBLESOME GIRL LET GO.

But Men Fined Who Aided Her to Escape.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 18.—Mabel Dell, who escaped from the Children's Shelter here two years ago and joined her mother in Detroit, arrived back in the city a few days ago, and was apprehended by the police.

She was handed over to the Children's Aid Society, and on her first night there stole a number of articles and made her second escape. She was captured in a wood shanty in Deersham, and was brought before the Magistrate. He allowed her to go, but fined three men who aided her to escape $5 and costs each.

IT'S COMING!
EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY
MONEY SAVING EVENT
Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

$175.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $25.00; the second $20.00; the third $15.00, and so on.

Next 10 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 10 Prizes each $2.00
Next 30 nearest CORRECT ESTIMATE 30 Prizes, each $1.00

As a guide in estimasting the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

The Dollar Day crowd is the happiest gathering that meets in Peterboro in the year.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

Donington Hall Shown Not To Be a Place of Luxury

Inspection of Interniment Quarters for Germans in England Proves That Stories Commonly Circulated About It Are Untrue—Life of Inmates Detailed.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Saturday.

England has been accused of being foolish in many matters connected with the war, none of her follies being greater than her treatment of German military prisoners, so it is said, and especially of German officers. "Look," you hear nearly every day—"look at Donington Hall!"

Well, some privileged callers have just been having a look at Donington Hall, and Colonel Picot, the commandant there, gave the death blow to the stories of luxury that have caused so many questions in Parliament and at least one notable libel suit.

"The system now in force here," he said, "has been in existence ever since February, 1915, though I never enter a railway carriage without overhearing the usual fables."

Having seen Donington Hall, I can truthfully testify to the fact that it is the hardest place to get into, or get out of, that I know of. After a tour of these internment camps barbed wire obsesses the mind. There is at Donington Hall the usual generous entanglement. The gates are of mighty iron, but they are never opened. It is only through a tiny wicket that you can get through. Twice, under the eyes of sentries, you must stoop and stumble through these posterns—appreciating the sensations of the camel in the eye of the needle—before you reach the fabled mansion.

It is an ill looking place. It was built about a century and a half ago. "Utility" Brown, the misguided man who built it, chose the worst site he could find. He had nine hundred acres of charming country to choose from, a park made up of the best of Midland scenery, turf studded with noble old trees, and he planted the house in a big hole, from which you can see nothing.

When the War Office took over the place it had all the inconveniences of the eighteenth century. It had no bathrooms, and was ill lit. Bathrooms and electric light were installed. But the house was cheap enough. Originally the rent was $3,500 a year. This has been reduced to $1,750. For this own six acres of ground also are rented, and the owner of the property, Mr. Fred Gretton, allows the prisoners to go walking in the remaining nine hundred acres of the park. As accommodation is provided at Donington Hall for 300 officers and 88 servants, it is obvious that the government has made a very good bargain.

In each room Colonel Picot has placed a copy of his Lager Ordnung, or code of discipline for the camp. The routine is that the prisoners rise at seven o'clock. Between seven and nine o'clock they must have breakfast, and after nine the bedrooms must be left empty. At ten they parade, and between ten and eleven the commandant can be seen by those who wish to speak to him. Lunch is at one, tea at four, dinner at seven. Except at meal times the dining room must be empty. By ten o'clock at night all officers must be in their bedrooms.

The roll is called five times a day. Several times a week the guard goes round the bedrooms between midnight and four o'clock in the morning and checks the prisoners. There is not much opportunity for escape at Donington Hall. Every day, indeed, parties of prisoners are allowed to go out walking beyond the wire fences, but only in a body accompanied by an English officer, and only after giving parole. The German regulations do not permit a general parole to be given. Therefore, on each expedition officers must sign a special parole not to escape nor to make any arrangements for escape. Even so, they are not allowed to go into towns or villages, and as a rule their walks do not extend beyond the nine hundred acres of the park, which, with its pleasant, rolling ground, its noble trees and its red and fallow deer, offers as pretty strolls as a man need want.

It is fair to say that in no case have these paroles been broken in letter or spirit; in no case has any party given the least trouble to the English officer in charge. Other opportunities of exercise are provided by the tennis courts within the camp precincts.

The prisoners are under military law and offences are tried by a military court. Only two civilians are in the camp, one the brother of Prince von Bulow, who was the Krupp agent in London, the other Baron von Campe. The officers come from both army and navy, though the army furnishes the great majority. All must wear uniform.

The splendors of Donington Hall cost the British government nothing. The German officers receive pay which, when the war is over, will be collected from the German government. The rates are:—For officers up to the rank of captain, $1 a day; for higher ranks, $1.25. Out of this sum they pay for their own keep, the precise cost of which is equal to a little more than sixty cents a day. For this they receive three meals. Here is the bill of fare on the day of this particular visit:—

Breakfast:—Porridge, bread and margarine; tea.

Lunch:—Soup, cold meat, boiled potatoes.

Dinner:—Roast mutton, potatoes and cabbages; jam pancake.

Such is the "Lucullan luxury" of Donington Hall. The food is ample in quantity. Light wines and beers are allowed, but no man must spend more than an average of twenty-five cents a day on liquor. Spirits are not allowed. The wines include nothing stronger than hock or claret, and the most expensive on the list are Hochheimer and Moreastle, at eighty-five cents a bottle. Such is the regimen at Donington Hall.

SOME VITAL STATISTICS ON THE WAR

By JAMES J. WALSH, M.D., Ph. D.

In spite of some rather pessimistic prophecies as to the very unfortunate effect which this war was to have upon the population of Europe by depleting it of its best young blood, there are some very interesting vital statistics from practically all the warring countries which contradict many of the worst portents. The facts that have been gathered by various government bureaus serve to show how well human nature reacts favorably even against the most serious physical conditions. The recent report of the English Registrar General for England and Wales is especially significant in this regard, though it only confirms in detail reports of similar character from other countries at war. It illustrates the moral aspects of nature's many compensations for the physical defects and losses of life.

Increase in the Marriage Rate.

Probably the most notable feature of this latest Registrar General's report is a distinct increase in the marriage rate during the last two years. The marriage rate had been going down for years in England, and the first part of 1914 indicated that that decrease was to be maintained for that year also. Then came the war, with a prompt rise in the rate, which continued to be felt till the end of the year, so that the marriage rate was the highest recorded since 1907. There was actually about one more marriage to every thousand of population than the average marriage rate of the decade from 1901-1910. During 1914, as a consequence of this increase, very nearly sixteen persons out of every thousand of population entered the marriage state.

Recent American Experience.

It might well be thought that this notable increase in the marriage rate in Great Britain commencing just after the outbreak of hostilities, making that year the banner marriage year of the twentieth century in England and Wales up to that time, was only the result of troops leaving, causing the anticipation of many marriages which would otherwise have been delayed so as to fall into the subsequent year's statistics. This would be only robbing Peter to pay Paul then, and the subsequent year's statistics might be expected to show a distinct decline even below the constantly decreasing figures of recent years.

In the United States as the result of the mobilization of the militia of the various States we have had a similar anticipation of marriages that undoubtedly will add not a little to our marriage rate for this year, though nothing like the same extent as in England and Wales. There the slogan "England expects every able bodied man to do his duty" gradually led to the enlistment of by far the greater portion of the men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, which is especially the period of marriage, and brought off many matches that were hanging fire. In England, ashers, doubtless many couples whose thoughts had only been vaguely turned in the direction of matrimony found themselves pressed urgently to it by the impending leaving home of young men who might not have married for several years only for the special conditions created by the war.

Mars and Cupid seem to have much more close relationship to each other than merely the enforced rapprochement of the early part of the war, when impending but as yet apparently distant marriages were brought to a head, for the marriage rate of England and Wales has continued high all during the progress of the war. The English Registrar General's formal report for 1915 is not yet available, but he has published the provisional figures, which show a further rise of 2.5 per thousand, that is to say some seven more persons out of every 2,000 of the population got married in 1915 than in 1914, and the total number of marriages was a record for the country.

Fewer Unmarried Women.

The women in Great Britain, as indeed in all the civilized countries, greatly outnumber the men. At the beginning of the war the registrar estimates that out of a total of almost exactly thirty-seven millions of people in England and Wales there were slightly more than nineteen millions of females and somewhat less than eighteen millions of males. There was an actual excess of females of a little more than one million two hundred thousand. The improvements in sanitary affairs in recent years has preserved many more females to the child bearing and marrying age than before. In the last four decades this factor has added one in a hundred to the marriageable females of England, but the number of them actually married has fallen very nearly two per cent in the same time, from 49.6 per cent to 47.7 per cent. There used to be about one husband for one out of every two marriageable women, which seems little enough, but even this ratio was falling, until now the war has given a husband to a little more than one out of every two of the women of child bearing age.

The increase in the whole number of marriageable women alive, which has been making itself felt for more than a generation now, without a corresponding increase in the number of marriages, so that the number of old maids was constantly growing and more and more women could not find an available husband, is now at last met by the effect produced in the minds of the men and women of the country by the war.

Psychology of the Increase.

There has been no little discussion as to the reason for this greater frequency of marriages in war time, which has been noted before this present conflict. Some have been flippant and have suggested that more men and women are willing to marry provided they do not have to live together. Others have been sentimental and have suggested that it is the emotional state of mind produced by the war flowing over into other activities that has increased the number of marriages. But generally it is felt that the seriousness of life, as emphasized by the war and its dangers, has reacted to make men and women readier to face the serious side of life and its duties and hence be willing to take on themselves its earnest obligations. Some phases of the marriage question as seen in war time illustrate this suggestion very strikingly.

Probably the most interesting feature of the marriage situation in England, with its decided increase in the percentage of marriages to the whole number of the population, is the very large number of crippled men who have found wives ready and willing to take them. This fact has also been noted in all the countries at war. Not only have men who went away to the war already engaged to be married found that when they returned even sadly crippled for the future struggle for existence their fiancées were almost without an exception ready to marry them, apparently without a thought of their handicap, but a great many crippled soldiers, nursed back to health and strength of body as far as their injuries would permit, have encountered among their volunteer nurses or among those who were trying to be of assistance to the wounded soldiers noble women who were ready to be of help for all their after life.

The women, and above all is this most noteworthy among the younger women, have felt that the sacrifices made for country and the common good by the soldiers deserved corresponding sacrifices on the part of those who really sympathized with the cause for which the soldiers had been so ready to pay the full measure of devotion. Even the helpless, for whom the outlook of taking any active part in life is distant or out of the question, have often found women ready to bind themselves for life to the task of being helpmates. The blind have been particularly fortunate in this regard and some of those who in addition to the loss of sight have suffered from serious disfiguring wounds of the face, which might have been expected to prove almost surely deterrent and above all preclude all question of matrimony, have sometimes found themselves taken up by affectionate women who hoped to make life easier for them.

The maxim "pity is akin to love" is very old, but it has had abundant exemplification in this latest of wars. The maimed, the halt and the blind and even the sadly disfigured have been consoled by the presence of a pity that they saw grow and deepen into love. The French will have their joke and, daring so nobly and wholeheartedly as they have, it comes with all the better grace from them. Even with regard to their wounded soldiers they have not felt it necessary to preserve an invariably solemn mien. They have spoken of putting legless men on their feet again by teaching them new trades, and they have declared that these half portions of humanity, the cripples, may well prove satisfying marriage dishes for devoted women.

Male Births Predominate.

As is well known at all times as if to compensates for the higher death rate among males because of the dangers of their occupations and their exposure to fatal accidents of many kinds, the male birth rate is always considerably above that of females. War adds to this always, though it is not quite clear why it should. The influence of the war in this regard was noted at once in England. The total number of births recorded in England in 1914 was 479,688. Of these 447,134 were of males and only 451,913 were of females.

Procession of Mangled Men Through German Hospital on Verdun Front

Scenes in Way Station for Wounded Who Are on Their Way to Fatherland—Roar of the Guns Punctuates the Groans of Pain Wracked Soldiers.

(Special Dispatch.)
BERLIN, Saturday.

A German correspondent with the army of the Crown Prince near Verdun sends a graphic description to his newspaper of scenes in a little French village where the wounded are brought in and taken care of.

"The songs of the German soldiers who are on leave in this village," he writes, "become softer as the gray hospital wagon appears in the dusty street. Two men are severely wounded and are unable to sit up. They are lying on their narrow stretchers. Some are ill and others are only slightly wounded. The wounded now and then look sadly at the bindings of their wounds. They tell of their sufferings. One of them was wounded by shrapnel during an attack by the enemy. He was able to crawl to the rear, and while his wounds were being dressed a shell exploded nearby and he was wounded a second time. But now we are all moving to the rear—to Germany.

"It is getting quite dark. The croaking of frogs comes from a pond not far away. The roar of guns is no longer deafening. The hospital wagon slowly moves up the street and stops before the barracks. Those who are able at once alight. One, who received a rifle ball in his leg, jumps to the ground with his good leg and hobbles off. Another takes an ill soldier on his back and carries him to the barracks. The physician meets us, glances at our papers and asks us to sit on the nearest bench while the severely wounded are at once taken care of by other physicians. All around the room are beds occupied by wounded soldiers who are in no condition to be sent back to Germany for the present. In one bed lies a man whose head is all tied up; another has had his arm amputated, another his leg. All are asleep, and some are smiling, laughing and talking in their dreams—what sweet dreams they must be!—golden dreams. The man with his head all bound up is talking softly. The physician says that he had the worst wounds that he has yet seen during the war. It was a question whether he could live, but the physicians brought him around all right, and to-day, when the wounded man asked for something to eat, they were so delighted they treated everyone with cigars.

"We are waiting for the automobile which is to take us to the nearest field hospital. No one says a word. The guns are again roaring. Looking out of the window we can see the clear starlight blue sky now and then vividly illuminated by the fierce glare from exploding shells. Here and there is seen the searchlight on the watch for hostile aviators. One of the wounded remarks:—

"It would just be my luck to have some aviator drop a bomb on me now after all I have gone through."

"The door is opened suddenly, and a soldier stumbles in. He is holding his head with both hands and the blood is streaming down his face. He quietly tells the physician that he would like to have his wounds dressed. He adds that he was driving an ammunition wagon when he was wounded. As the attendant examines his wounds the soldier remarks that he has not much time to spare, as the ammunition wagon is awaiting outside and it is his duty to deliver the ammunition promptly. He tells the physician simply to wash his wounds and let him be off. The physician tells him quietly and firmly that that is impossible. He must remain; his wounds are more serious than he imagines.

"Everything is quiet again and nothing is heard except the deep breathing of the sleeping wounded. Near me one man awakens and sits up in his bed. He looks at me with two staring, feverish eyes:—

"'How is it with the French?' he asks me. I notice that his wounds are in the chest.

"What a question to ask, I said to myself. Here is a man seriously wounded, and from a deep sleep he suddenly awakes and all he asks is about the enemy. Not a word about his mother or his home, not a word of complaint about his sufferings.

"'The French are worse off than we are,' I answered him.

"That seemed to satisfy him, and then he asked for a drink of water.

"Just then the automobile stops in front of the door and those of us not severely wounded are escorted outside and placed in the machine. 'Adieu! you wounded. You have our best wishes. And the automobile starts on its journey to that beloved place where clean beds and loving hands await to nurse us."

CRIPPLED SOLDIERS PROBLEM TO GERMANY

(Special Dispatch).
BERLIN, Saturday.

To provide a comfortable future for the blinded and crippled German soldiers has become a difficult problem in Germany and is causing considerable discussion in the press. The suggestion that the government provide means for teaching music to these soldiers was at first well received but consideration of the matter resulted in much criticism.

In this connection the Turner says that it was a happy thought to teach music to the blind soldiers, and the response was most gratifying. All through the Empire musical instruments were gathered for their use, and in order to demonstrate to the crippled soldiers that they were not without a bright future Count Zichy, who himself has only one arm, visited the hospitals and played for them.

"But," says the Turner, "this is very well for those crippled soldiers who were formerly musicians, but with those who never had any musical education or training it is quite a different matter. Let us not delude ourselves. Musicians in modern times must be of the best in order to earn a decent living, and what chance would these poor, crippled soldiers have in competing with them unless we want to make mere beggars out of them. That would not only be a disgrace for them but would also mean a decided step backward socially for the professional musicians. The latter have at much sacrifice of time and labor reached their present state of ability in their profession.

"Of course, both the State and the public will do all possible for these crippled soldiers, but our duty is first to the crippled professional musicians. In cases where violinists or pianists have lost the use of either arm, everything should be done to train them to the use of some other musical instrument, such as a horn, cornet or trombone. For this purpose an organization has been started which will no doubt do everything possible to make the future of the blind and crippled musicians as bright as possible."

DAIRY TEST

DIRECTOR IN CHARGE
Mr. G. A. Gillespie

1. All animals competing in the Pure Bred Class must be recorded in the Canadian or American Records.
2. At the time of making entry, the number of days in milk must be given.
3. All awards in the Dairy Test shall be made by the following scale:
   - 25 points for each pound of butter fat.
   - 3 points for each pound of solids not fat.
   - 1 point for each 10 days in milk after the first 30 days. Limited to 5 points.
4. The Milking Competition shall extend over 48 hours. Rations of cows will not be considered. Cows may be milked three times per day.
5. They shall be milked dry in the presence of the judges at 6 p.m., on evening of day preceding Fair, and test concluded at 6 p.m. on the evening of the second day of the Fair. The percentage of Fat to be determined by the Babcock Tester, and the Solids by ascertaining the specific gravity of the milk, then estimating the amount of solids by the use of authorized formula for that purpose.
6. To qualify for a prize, a cow must give at least 20 pounds of milk in the 24 hours.
7. All cows entering this contest must be on the grounds by 3 p.m. on the first day of the Fair.
8. Exhibitors will be responsible for the safe-keeping of their cows during the test.

Entry fee, 75c.

A Valuable Silver Cup will be donated by the International Stock Food Co. of Toronto, for the Pure-Bred Cow, any age or breed, scoring the highest number of points in the Dairy Test. This cup to be won three times, when it becomes the property of the winner.

AVIATOR AS PEASANT FOOLED THE PRUSSIANS

Mapplebeck, a Nervy Hero, Rode Into Lille With Hun Officers—Read His Obituary

It was a wet day, when flying was almost impossible and a number of British air pilots were gathered around a blazing fire. "I'll tell you a true story," said one man. "It's about an R.F.C. man named Mapplebeck, a fine fellow; he's dead now, though. It all happened one very misty morning. Mapplebeck was up on a reconnaissance trip; his engine went wrong, and down he had to come a good ten miles behind the German lines. He landed safely and had just burned his machine, when he saw three dark figures coming up out of the fog. He fled and hid himself in a ditch hard by. He was in it for the whole of a blessed day and a blessed night. We've since heard that there were close on 5,000 Boches searching for him the whole time. When he found the coast was clear he crept out of the ditch and marched off boldly down the road until he met a friendly Belgian peasant, from whom he wheedled an old suit of clothes, and thus dressed he walked on nearly to Lille.

Needed His Wits Here

"Here he did a silly thing. He got on board a tramway car bound for the city. The car was full of Prussian officers, and when the conductor came for his fare he was startled. Then he had a brain wave; remembering that every town in Belgium possesses a glorified market square, he said, 'A la grande place, s'l vous plait,' and showed a handful of silver coins to pay the man. Such a thing as a silver coin hadn't been seen in Lille for months, ever since the Germans had captured it, in fact; but, fortunately, the Prussians were too much occupied in their own conversation to take any notice of 'ein Schweinhund' of a Belgian peasant.

"Arrived in the city luck again favored him, and he obtained shelter in a garret for three weeks. From the window of the garret he was able to make notes of the movements of enemy guns, ammunition columns, supply wagons, troop trains, troops, air-craft, everything in fact. The police grew suspicious and he was forced to clear out hurriedly late one night. After leaving the city he had a terrible time. Right across Belgium he tramped, always at night and every moment in fear of his life, feeding on anything he could find—refuse thrown to the pigs and stale bread thrown away by the soldiers. Footsore and hungry, he at last arrived at the Dutch frontier, where he had another agonizing wait for a day and a night in a ditch.

The Tobacco Evil

"Late in the evening the sentry passed on his beat to light his pipe; this was Mapplebeck's opportunity. He dashed across the frontier. It was a moonlight night and the sentry fired three shots, missing each time. He crossed Holland, Heaven only knows how; reached a seaport town, stowed himself aboard a fishing smack to England, and reported himself to the astonished officials at the War Office. His death had been announced three weeks before."

NEW BULLET EXTRACTOR

An ingenious instrument has been invented to aid surgeons in extracting bullets from wounds. The bullet is located by means of X-rays and a pair of forceps. A very powerful pair of forceps is necessary to grip and extract a bullet, and a great deal of damage might be done if something that was not seen, perhaps an artery or a nerve, was picked up along with the bullet. Accordingly, the blades of the forceps are attached to an electric bell which only rings when both the blades are touching the bullet. Therefore, if the bell is made to ring while the blades are being opened to grasp the bullet, and if the bell continues to ring when the bullet is seized, nothing else can have been picked up beside the bullet, and there is no danger in pulling it out. The surgeon using this instrument can therefore not only see what he is doing, but, by means of the bell, he has a very accurate sense of touch for any piece of metal that he is watching the points of his forceps attempting to pick up from among the structures deep down below the skin.

INDIA'S SURE LOYALTY

Military Exploits One Sure Indication of Existing Feeling

"India, instead of proving a source of weakness to the Empire, as Germany fondly believed she would, has been a tower of strength," said Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for India, in discussing with a group of correspondents the present state of the Indian Empire. The Secretary continued: "Instead of showing, under the encouragement of a great European war, any desire to revolt, the people of India have never been more loyal to the British Empire than to-day. Whatever agitation there may be in India for a greater share in the Government, there is certainly no lack of appreciation of the advantage of the British system of Colonial Government over the German.

"As to the military assistance given by the Indians, I need mention only two facts as their efforts on all fronts are so well known. The first is the number of military honors won by Indians. Before this war the highest military honor, the Victoria Cross, was not open to the Indian army, but since this rule was abrogated five V.C.'s and twenty-five Military Crosses have been won by Indian soldiers. The second is just one incident of their gallantry in action. In Gallipoli the 14th Sikhs went into action with fifteen British officers, fourteen Indian officers and 914 rank and file. The next day there were three British officers, three Indian officers and 134 rank and file. I do not think you could ask more of any army than that it should face and make sacrifices of this kind."

IF YOUR THROAT IS HUSKY CATARRH MAY BE STARTING

A weak or irritated throat is the first step towards Catarrh. Everything depends on your remedy. A cough mixture slips quickly over the weak spots, drops into the stomach and does little but harm digestion. It's altogether different with Catarrhozone—it cures because it gets right at the trouble. You inhale Catarrhozone, breathe in the vapor of healing balsams that strengthen and restore the weak throat tissues. You'll never have colds or coughs. Throat trouble and catarrh will disappear with the use of Catarrhozone. Get the large dollar outfit which includes the inhaler, it lasts two months and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c, sold everywhere.

"MACREADY THE READY"

Brave Soldier and Brilliant Organizer —Britain's Adjutant-General

Beyond the official announcement that he had been appointed Adjutant-General of the Forces at the War Council, in order that he might be in the closest touch with the late Lord Kitchener and Lord French, little notice seems to have been taken of the distinction conferred upon Major-General Sir Cecil Frederick Nevil Macready. A descendant of the great Shakespearian actor, Sir Cecil is young as great military leaders go, having been born in 1862. He has been in the army since he was eighteen, and is yet another of the famous soldiers whom the Gordon Highlanders have produced. He became a lieutenant in that regiment at nineteen, and before he had been a year with the "Gordons" made that famous night march across the Egyptian desert which was terminated at daybreak by the storming of the Egyptian rebels' lines at Tel-el-Kebir.

It was not until the South African War that Sir Cecil saw service again; but the Boer War gave him the opportunity he had been awaiting. He was early in the field, being present at the first battle of the war, namely Elandslaagte. After this he was shut up with Sir George White at the siege of Ladysmith, and when relief came fought at Laing's Nek, Belfast, and Lyndenberg, as well as in many another action during the campaign.

Honors and decorations were showered upon him, and so highly were his services thought of that at the end of the war he was retained on the staff in South Africa. It was during the South African War, by the way, that he won the title of "Macready the Always Ready"; for no matter what fighting or work there was to be done, he never failed his leaders. Again, when the Great War broke out, he was one of the few who were ready, and as Adjutant-General to the Expeditionary Force he earned the unstinted praise of Lord French in those early, anxious days of the war when the Huns seemed likely to march triumphantly upon Paris.

Asked on one occasion what his favorite relaxation was, Sir Cecil replied curtly, "Work." The passion of his life is the service. Like Lord Kitchener, Sir Cecil repelled at first those with whom he came into contact by reason of his cold, sphinx-like manner. Really, he is a man of rare tact and courtesy, and it will be remembered that before the war he was entrusted with the most difficult task of controlling the troubles when the big labor outbreaks occurred in Liverpool and Manchester, and when a revolution threatened in Ulster.

Little seven-year-old Dorothy Klump set the record for children's long-distance swimming, when she crossed and recrossed the Schuylkill river, a distance of 880 yards, in 17 minutes with her hands and feet tied.

STORY OF FRENCH HERO.

The recent death of the Duke de Hohan in the Somme offensive recalls the story of how one of France's heroes won the medal of the Legion of Honor by a daring ruse.

At the beginning of the war the duke and his orderly rode, unaccompanied, to a French farmhouse which had ben occupied by one hundred Prussians. A peasant warned them that the enemy was in possession, but the duke hoped that a squadron of French cavalry would soon reinforce him.

The duke left his orderly in the stone-paved court of the farm with orders to gallop his horse back and forth and make as much noise as possible. He then pressed on into the house.

The Prussians were refreshing themselves in the dining-room. The duke strode in boldly, crying: "You are surrounded. Surrender at once.'

The Prussians leaped to their feet in alarm and surrendered their arms, herding them into a corner of the room. Fortunately for the Duke de Hohan, the squadron of cavalry soon appeared to make good his bluff.

URGING PARLIAMENTS TO WIN WORLD-WAR

Russian and France Give Legislators More Power—Britain's Representatives Were Repressed

W. M. R. Pringle, a British Liberal M.P., writes: Those who are engaged in the silly campaign to disparage Parliament are also singularly blind to the teachings of experience, both among our Allies and at home. The internal affairs of France and Russia receive but scanty attention in our Press. But the brief censored messages which have appeared have disclosed, both in France and Russia, parallel movements which are highly instructive to the people of Great Britain.

In the early days of the war that we would call a Coalition Ministry was formed in France, to which the Chambers granted nearly dictatorial powers. There is no suggestion that these have been abused, or that the Government has been guilty of slackness or inefficiency, but a desire has sprung up for greater control on the part of the Chambers. The Ministry have welcomed this manifestation of a desire on the part of the Chambers to share in their responsibilities, and check and control their actions. The result has been an arrangement whereby control and criticism are to be secured by committees, which are the recognised machinery of the French Parliament.

Russian Duma Busy

More surprising is the development in Russia. The manifesto to the Poles at the beginning of the war threw a new light on the present tendencies of the Russian Government, hitherto regarded as an anti-popular autocracy. More recently the Duma has been magnified and its importance enhanced. Thus, instead of repressing discussion, the Imperial Government, in its desire to enlist popular sympathy and popular co-operation, has given the representative body a larger share of the Government's confidence and a greater influence on its decisions than it has ever enjoyed in the past.

Mistakes of Cabinet

If such tendencies prevail both in Republican France and in Imperial Russia, what lessons can we draw from our own experience of the first years of the war? During the first period of the war the Government was practically free from criticism, both in respect of War Office administration and in respect of what is called emergency legislation. Bills were passed at a breakneck pace of whose provisions the House as a whole was completely ignorant, with the result that the legislation dealing with such subjects as the Defence of the Realm and Trading with the Enemy has been proved in practice to be miserably inadequate. Had Parliament made it a duty not only to understand, but to criticise, such measures, we should have seen less of these hand-to-mouth methods. The path of the critic of War Office administration was even harder. To hint a fault was held to betoken not only want of patriotism, but want of sanity.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington

On many a hot afternoon a little dress like the one illustrated will be most comfortable and tidy for the small girl.

The design shown gives a choice of long or short sleeves and of square or V-neck—the low neck is, of course, a summertime necessity and the short sleeve, as a rule, goes with it. The only decoration is an overbinding of wash braid or preferred trimming, in solid color contrasting. It is used to mark a cuff on the short sleeve as well as to finish the neck; a wide band of self material forms the sleeve cuff.

At a lowered waist line a belt takes care of the fulness, passing through straps of material at the sides, either a separate belt of patent leather or one of material with the edges piped to match the neck and sleeve trimming will be suitable. The dress closes at the back.

This is a good style for gingham checked in bright colors, for children are always happy in vivid colors. Other fabrics are linen, chambray, galatea, Indian Head, lawn and percale.

The pattern of No. 7,874 is cut in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. To make in the medium size will require 1¾ yards 36 inch material and 1⅛ yards braid.

You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

2,000,000 Workers Now Labour in Britain's Big Munitions Plants

Factories Now Turn Out in Week More Shells Than Were Used in Battle of Loos, for Which Army Economized for More Than a Month—Heavy Gun Production Fifty Times That of 1914-1915

LONDON, Aug. 18.—When the British forces in France began their great offensive bombardment June 27 and for days hurled into the German lines such an avalanche of steel and lead as the world had never known before even the people of England expressed wonder that it should have been possible to assemble so vast a store of munitions. The story of how these supplies were created constitutes one of the most important chapters in the history of British achievement during the war.

At the beginning of hostilities, two years ago, there were only three important government munitions factories in the British Isles. To-day, some four thousand government controlled firms, employing more than two million workers, are turning out virtually all the tremendous amount of war materials which have gone to equip the British soldiers in the field.

The organization of this great industry has been accomplished in a little more than one year by the Ministry of Munitions, which was established in May, 1915, under the leadership of Mr. David Lloyd George. In that time every available resource of the country has been built for the production of munitions. Some idea of the scale upon which this organization has been carried out may be gathered from the statement that the largest of the new plan covers an area nine miles long and from three to four miles wide.

A staff of 5,000 has been required to supervise the work. At the head of this staff, and responsible only to the Minister of Munitions, has been a man whose organizing ability has been accorded widespread recognition. He is Dr. Christopher Addison, internationally known for his medical research work. For some years he has devoted his attention to politics, and besides holding a seat in the House of Commons had been Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education before entering on his present duties as Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Munitions. Every detail of the munitions production is known to Dr. Addison, and he has told as much of the story of the creation of this industry as could be made public at this time.

At the outset he disposed of the statement which has been made in America to the effect that if it were not for munitions furnished by the United States Great Britain would have to quit the war.

AMERICAN SHELL PRODUCTION

"I have heard that statement made" said Dr. Addison, "an it is preposterous of course. The United States has furnished and is furnishing many raw materials which we are axious to get for the manufacture of munitions, but so far as the actual production of shells goes America has provided us with only a very small percentage of those which we have used."

Turning to the manufacture of munitions in this country, he continued:

"At the beginning of the war there were only three important munition factories in the United States. In addition there were a number of large private munitions and armament firms. At the start reliance was placed mainly in these national factories and experienced firms, and at that time they were full of orders.

"In the early stages of the conflict more attention was paid to field guns and their equipment than to heavy guns, but as time went on the requirements for heavy shells greatly increased. In June, 1915, we made an inventory of all the available machinery in the country and it was evident that it was entirely inadequate to meet the demands. There were, however, a great many private firms which could be brought in to make munitions, and it was decided to mobilize them for national service. In order to do this we created an organization embracing the entire country. The country was divided into districts, in each of which a working board of management was set up. By means of this scheme of local organization thousands of firms have been brought in many of which had never seen a shell body or fuse or a grenade or a bomb before, much less than made them. Now munition making in some form or other has extended well-nigh to every considerable town—indeed, to large numbers of villages.

HORRIFYING APOSTLES OF ORTHODXY.

"An earnest desire to help, an adaptability and eagerness to learn how, brought into munition making the most remarkable assortment imaginable of shops and factories. In one era alone shell bodies or the components of shells are being made not only by engineering works but in confectionery works, by a music roll manufacturer, by an infant's food maker, by a candle maker, by a flour miller, by a tobacco merchant, by an advertising agent, in several breweries, by some job masters, by a glazier, by syphon manufacturers, and so on. Shells, and good shells, have been turned out by machines and methods which would be horrifying to the apostles of orthodoxy.

"What all this amounts to in the aggregate you can form some conception of when I tell you that a calculation made three weeks ago showed that there were being turned out weekly by firms which a year ago had not been engaged in munition work sixteen times as many heavy shells as were being produced a year ago by all the national plants and private armament firms put together. Of course, the big armament firms have been greatly extended since then and that figure does not apply to their present output.

"Numbers of manufacturers who hitherto have been engaged in producing quite different goods have sacrificed their business and good will in order to take up the manufacture of munitions. They have done it for the asking and ungrudgingly. Many of them will find themselves at the end of the war with a great part of their good will jeopardized or lost.

"Coincidentally with this programme of bringing in private firms it became evident that even with their help the output still would be insufficient, so the Ministry of Munitions proceeded to provide a large number of "single purpose" factories —that is, plants where the work could be specialized. Skilled engineers divided the work up into a number of repetition operations such as could be done with a few weeks' training by woman or unskilled labour. There are now in the country fifty-three national shell factories of this kind, all of which either have been built or reconstructed by the government. Of these, thirty-eight are under the management of the boards previously referred to. Others are managed for the Ministry by experienced munitions firms.

NEW EXPLOSIVE WORKS.

"Just as the output of shells, shell bodies, etc., had to be augmented, so similarly we had to provide explosives and filling factories. As a result of this, apart from the enormous extensions of existing factories, nineteen special explosives works have been provided. This has practically doubled the whole previous output of the country. Similarly there had to be built fourteen filling factories, each of which has been provided since last August. Altogether there are now ninety national factories, which have been equipped with machinery and in most cases built during the last twelve months.

"We can now produce in less than a month as many of the lighter shells as could have been turned out in the whole year of 1914-15. In less than a fortnight we can make more heavy shells than we could have done in the year of 1914-15. We can now turn out in a week far more shells, filled and complete, than were used in the whole battle of Loos, which extended over a fortnight, and they had been saving ammunition for that battle for a month. We could have a battle of Loos every week now and it would not touch the shell reserve stock.

"The manufacture of guns, which did not lend itself to the process of sub-division like ammunition, has had to be concentrated largely in the hands of experienced firms but new factories under the direction of these firms have been made for 'single purpose' work.

"Regarding our present capacity for gun production as compared with the capacity in June, 1914, before the war, we are now making in the case of the lightest guns more than ten times what we were then; in the case of medium weight guns more than twenty times, and in the case of heavy guns more than forty times.

"The production of trench warfare supplies has meant the creation of an industry of which there was practically no experience in this country. Now, grenades are being made in the back yards and in all sorts of small shops as well as in the big factories, an hundreds of thousands are being produced weekly. In the early days of the war the trench mortar was a weapon which had received little attention and undergone little development and there was a mere handful of these weapons in existence. They are now being produced in immensely improved types in hundreds where they were previously in units. And the output of their heavy ammunition has had to keep pace. The output of bombs, where it previously was reckoned in hundreds, has now reached a total of scores of thousands weekly. The production of trench warfare munitions in a most miscellaneous collection of workshops, of course, has necessitated the provision of many assembly and inspection stations.

CONTROL OF TOOL MAKERS.

"One of the earliest steps the Ministry of Munitions had to take was to acquire control of every machine tool maker in the United Kingdom and also to bring in the manufacturers of machine tools. Every machine-tool made during the last 12 months has been disposed of as directed by the Ministry of Munitions. The tools have been sent where they were most needed for the making of munitions.

"One of our most anxious problems has been the supply and the distribution of skilled labor. There was not enough skilled labor to go around. This fact was recognized by the trades unions and the government has received their hearty assistance throughout the distribution of skilled labor with unskilled. The introduction of unskilled labor into the field of skilled labor is a sacrifice of skilled labor to which no too high tribute can be paid. Skilled men have trained and instructed unskilled workers; and in thousands of cases have willingly been moved from piece work to day wages with the result that they have earned smaller wages than the people that they have trained have received at piece work.

"This position was rendered more difficult by the fact that many skilled workmen crowded into the army. More than 43,000 highly skilled workmen have since been withdrawn for munitions work. They go where they are sent. This has given to the Ministry of Munitions control of a large body of workmen who can be moved as required.

"Apart from the manufacture of ships, aeroplanes, etc., which do not fall under the charge of the Ministry of Munitions, there are now employed about two million persons of whom several hundred thousands are women. It follows that there has been much labor expended in housing the munitions workers. Whole villages have been built and we have provided accommodations for sixty thousand persons in 12 months.

EARL'S DAUGHTER A LATHE HAND.

"Persons from all classes of society have joined in the manufacture of munitions. There is for example, on the staff of the Ministry of Munitions the daughter of an earl, who worked for nine months as a lathe hand in a munitions factory. Large numbers of the best known families have devoted themselves to work in the canteens and to other work in connection with the factories. There is a department in the Ministry which is solely concerned with the provision of canteens for munition workers and these canteens meals for 500,000 persons daily. This enables them to get their food under decent conditions. Charges are made to cover the cost."

Dr. Addison said it had been necessary to interfere arbitrarily in private industry in order to carry on the munitions work. Private and public building has been stopped in many cases in order to move the labor elsewhere or to economise material. What applies to the building trade, holds good with many others. However, this interference has been cheerfully borne, he declared.

He stated that as a result of the demands upon the Ministry of Munitions the formulæ for many chemicals and instruments which formerly had been made by the Germans, had been discovered by the English scientists and that these things were now being manufactured here. In conclusion he said:

"When the Ministry of Munitions is no more the equipment of the factories and works extensions all over the country, with power and plant on up to date systems, accurate and modern machine tools, will add enormously to our industrial strength in the markets of the world."

It is stated that the heads of the different departments of the Ministry of Munitions are largely directors and managers of great industries who have volunteered their services, and have given up the whole of their private work to work for the country without remuneration. As one has put it, "The Ministry of Munitions is, in fact, the general staff of British industry, organised for the war." To an American who has volunteered his services is given the credit for effecting reductions in shell contract prices which saved the government 400,000 pounds ($2,000,000) a week.

STORES WILL CLOSE ON DOLLAR DAY AT SIX O'CLOCK

This Arrangement is Mutual Among The Merchants of the City—Thursday Next Will be at the Disposal of the Clerks Instead of One Half Day.

$ DAY ANNOUNCEMENT

By mutual consent among the merchants, it has been arranged that the stores will only remain open on Wednesday, Dollar Day, until 6 o'clock A further arrangement has also been made that Thursday next, instead of being a half holiday, an entire day will be at the disposal of the clerks, and the stores will remain closed all day.

A FULL HOLIDAY.

In consideration in giving the full day's holiday on this Thursday, the last weekly half holiday on the following week, will be cancelled.

It is felt that this arrangement will be much more satisfactory to the employees of the stores, who will thus have a whole day to devote to whatever purpose they wish, and Labor Day following so quickly makes it more hardship to forfeit the final half holiday for the last week in August.

PERONNE PROMINENT IN FRENCH HISTORY

Peronne, the first important objective of the French and English forces when the allies' "big push" was inaugurated, is described in a war geography bulletin of the National Geographic society as follows:

"The important railway centre of Peronne, rich with historic associations of ancient and medieval France, was a town of less tha 5000 people at the outbreak of the war, and it had little industrial or commercial significance, but for nearly 300 years it bore an honoured nom-de ueggre, La Pucelle (The Impregnable), this distinction having been accorded it in 1536 when the courageous woman, Marie Foure, also known as Cathrine de Poix, successfully defended it against the imperial forces of Charles commanded by the Court of Nassau. The title 'impregnable' was dropped by the city in 1815, however, for in that year it was captured by the Duke of Wellington. Its name stands high among the cities in courage in the Franco-German war, during which it withstood a destructive bombardment of 12 days and only capitulated because the civil population was being decimated by an epidemic of smallpox.

'The French maintained Peronne as a small military stroghold until 10 years ago when its fortifications were razed, but up to the time of the onward sweep of the Germans toward Paris in the summer of 1914, the four-towered castle was still standing and visitors were shown the cell in which in the tenth century, the unhappy French king, Charles the Simple, posthumous son of Louis the Stammerer, was starved to death. Charles was kept a prisoner here by the treacherous Herbert Count of Vermandois, who had promised to aid the sovereign against Rudolph, Duke of Burgundy.

"Peronne was the scene of another act of treachery against a French ruler 500 years later, when the bourgeois King, Louis XI, arrived in Peronne on a mission of conciliation, theer came the news o fa supposed massacre of the bishop and ducal governor of Liege. The rumour was false, but Charles, suspecting Louis of double-dealing, threw the king in prison and kept him in a cell until he consented to sign the 'Treaty of Peronne,' insuring all Flanders freedom from the jurisdiction of the parliament in Paris. This treaty was the most humiliatig episode in Louis' life for the people of Picardy taught their tame jays and magpies to cry 'Peronne' and 'Peronette' in derision of the sovereign. Thoroughly mortified, Louis determined to find a scapgoat and Cardinal Jean Balue was the unhappy victim. Balue fled and joined Harancourt, bishop of Verdun, in revolt. Both were captured, and Balue was kept a prisoner for 11 years while Harancourt was confined in an iron cage like a wild beast, for 13 years.

"The history of Peronne goes back to the days of the Frankish king Clovis II, who owned a villa here and who gave it to his mayor of the palace, Erchinoaldus, founder of the monastery of St. Fursy in the seventh century. It received its charter from the French crown in 1209.

"The town is situated on the Somme river, 94 miles by rail north of Paris, and 35 miles east of Amiens. It is 20 miles by rail east of Fricourt, one of the first villazes taken by the British in their offensive which began on the first day of July."

The charm of transparent black frocks, especially when enriched by a touch of black velvet, is more than ever noticeable this season.

The daughter of a Chinese restaurant keeper in California was recently sold as a bride to a wealthy San Francisco Chinese merchant for $1,100.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Mr. Buddington's Fortune

It Was Bestowed Where It Would Do the Most Good

By ETHEL HOLMES

Young Mrs. Buddington was a model bride. Perhaps the word "enduring" would better describe her. She had married a man's man, and a man's man, especially when very young, is easily drawn from his home. Tom Buddington had scarcely returned from his wedding journey before he was waylaid by his former associates and induced to spend an evening with them, leaving his wife at home alone.

Tom knew this was all wrong. At midnight he succeeded in tearing himself away from his companions and went home. The house was dark and without sound. He put his latchkey into the lock very quietly and went upstairs softly. This was not because he feared to awaken his wife, for he didn't believe she was asleep. It was rather the result of a guilty conscience. He would have liked to hear a sweet voice say: "That you, dearie? Had a good time?" But he entered the dressing room next the bedroom without any greeting. Looking in where Bess was sleeping, by the light turned low he saw her peacefully slumbering.

Tom was both relieved and disappointed. He was pleased that his bride had not lain awake waiting for him, but he would have liked a brief chat with her before going to sleep himself. The lady was not asleep; she was pretending. She was a wise woman. If she cheerfully received her husband after his return from his bachelor friends she would have encouraged him to go to them again. If she upbraided him it would have a tendency to drive him away from her. Tom went to sleep ungreeted and unreproached. He resolved that he would not do so any more.

But Tom's effort to be good proved a failure. A young man, especially a man's man, needs relaxation. His error was not in this; it was in failing to provide his wife with relaxation also, or, rather, in forcing her to spend a considerable number of evenings alone. If it was not practicable to furnish her with company he should have remained with her, even if he did need relaxation, for she needed it as much as he did, probably more, since her place during the day was at home, and it was natural that in the evening she should need change of scene. Unfortunately Tom's income was not sufficient to enable them to go out to theaters or such other places of amusement.

"Just you wait, dearie," Tom said to his wife one evening when he was going out with a couple of men friends, "till Uncle Alec shuffles off this mortal coil, and I'll stop this going out without you. You shall have all the opera and the other amusements you like."

Now, Uncle Alec was a childless bachelor, who had worked and saved, never having married because he thought he couldn't afford to marry, till he had come to old age and a fortune without any one except his nephew to inherit his money. He had therefore pitched upon Tom for the purpose, and it was all settled that the young man was to have $100,000 after the old man's death.

Tom, being sensible of this prospective advantage, aimed to show his uncle proper attention. Since both were engaged during the day, the evening was the only time that the dutiful young man could pay his respects to the old gentleman. Bess understood that one night every week was to be devoted to this purpose. Tom went to see his uncle with tolerable regularity, and when he omitted to do so his wife understood that he had made the visit, though on such omissions Tom was enjoying his bachelor friends. Sometimes on his regular nights for visiting his uncle he would take Bess with him. She was a great favorite with the elder Buddington, which pleased Tom very much, for it strengthened the younger in the matter of his prospective fortune.

When the Buddingtons had been married a decade the wife did not need her husband's companionship so much as at first because she was taken up with several little children who had come to her in the meanwhile. Tom continued still to be a man's man and found a good deal to take him out. Indeed, there was more to absorb his attention every year. He dabbled in a small way in politics, having some taste for wire pulling, and was a member of various associations. He needed no excuses for going out evenings, for there was always a committee meeting or something of the kind that served the purpose. None of these engagements brought in any money, and the practical Mrs. Buddington was not made the better satisfied with her husband's absences by pecuniary gain.

But she did not complain. Tom said that it was the duty of a citizen to take an interest in the government of his country, his state or his city, as each needed his attention. There was no gainsaying this, and Bess was not the woman to interfere with whatever her husband considered his duty. She made the monthly stipend go as far as it was possible to make it go, patched the children's clothes and pinched in every way. The elder Buddington might have helped the family, but men who devote their lives to piling up money usually do their giving in a way that will afford a return, even if that return is merely a higher standing in the community in which they live. They are not likely to hide their lights under a bushel. Buddington senior held on to every cent he had and only arranged for the disposition of his fortune after his death because he could not take it with him.

But for this reason and because it had absorbed his whole life he was much concerned as to its going where he wished to have it go when he could no longer use it himself.

One evening he sent for Tom to come and see him. Tom was away from home and had told his wife that he was going to a meeting of householders of his ward to select a candidate for councilman. Bess sent word to Mr. Buddington to that effect, giving the place of the committee meeting. He telephoned there and was told that Tom had just left for his club. Mr. Buddington had not been aware that his nephew was a member of a club. He had never considered that he could afford such a luxury himself and could not see how Tom with his limited income and a family could do so. The old gentleman did not send to the club for Tom, but he did send to his home after 12 o'clock for him, to learn that his nephew had not yet returned.

When Tom came in at 1 o'clock in the morning and learned that his uncle had sent for him he was troubled. He knew the old gentleman's proclivities well and had not informed him of any expense that he incurred that his uncle would consider he should avoid. He went to see his uncle the next evening, but the old man merely said that he had wanted him to witness an important document and, not reaching him, had called in some one else.

This lulled Tom's fears, and he did not know that the wily old man, through parties unknown to him or Bess, had made inquiries which had put him in possession of the situation of affairs in their household. He also by similar indirect means learned that Tom was inclined to take an interest in unprofitable affairs and spent very little of his time at home. But the uncle made no mention to any one of his discoveries. He did a job of thinking over the matter and came to some conclusions that would have caused his nephew to open his eyes had he been aware of the fact.

For awhile after his uncle had sent for him—not to find him—Tom was uneasy about going out. But his uneasiness did not last long. His uncle's manner was the same that it had been, and there was no indication that there had been any unfavorable turn. But Bess, who had been for a long while striving to make ends meet, had been unable to do so, and the family financial affairs were on the ragged edge. Bess had been ill on several occasions, and a doctor's bill to a considerable amount had accumulated.

Perhaps if they had applied to Mr. Buddington he might have helped them out. Perhaps he might have told them that if they had lived within their income they would have provided for the doctor's bills as they occurred. But they did not dare inform the old man of their condition. He was getting feeble and might drop off any day. If they could worry along till he had passed away they could pay all their bills a hundred times over. So they concluded to endure the situation. But Tom as his uncle's feebleness increased, rather increased than diminished his personal expenditures, banking on his soon possessing a fortune.

When Mr. Buddington passed from earth he did so without warning. He died so suddenly that his nephew did not have time to reach him to bid him goodby and receive his blessing. When he reached the house where the rich man lay he received something that he did not appreciate as he would have appreciated a blessing. The housekeeper handed him a note written by the deceased shortly before his death, which read as follows:

My Dear Nephew—I have led you to believe that at my death you would inherit what I have been a lifetime in accumulating. During the last few years I have concluded that you are not a safe person to be intrusted with a fortune. I have therefore decided to place my estate in other hands. Don't feel hard toward me for this. I have always been very fond of you and am fond of you still. Goodby.
Your affectionate UNCLE.

Tom staggered under the blow. His wife, who was with him and read the letter over his shoulder, took him in her arms. She was too disappointed to speak encouragingly to him, but spoke no word of reproach. Sadly they left the house, the wife looking the future in the face resolutely, the husband limp as a cloth.

When the will was opened Tom and his wife were present more out of curiosity than anything else, though they thought that some memento might be left them. The will was very short, reading as follows:

"I give and bequeath to Elizabeth Buddington, wife of my nephew Thomas R. Buddington, all my property, real and personal."

Tom looked at Bess, and Bess looked at Tom. Then the woman took the man's hand in hers, and what she felt was indicated by a pressure.

It was evident that Mr Buddington had noted the difference between the two—that the wife was fitted to dispense an income and that the husband was not. During the years that they enjoyed their inheritance Bess conscientiously carried out the intent of the will and resisted all attempts of her husband to induce her to turn the fortune over to him or to permit him to have anything to say in its management or the disposition of the income.

But she was very liberal with him not grudging him any reasonable sum, making sure, however, that it was spent for a legitimate purpose.

Women as Brave As the Men

THEIR STRUGGLE SHOWS A REMARKABLE SPIRIT.

Talk of the bravery of men, but where can you find a finer spirit than among the half-sick women who are fighting and struggling to do their duty against the terrible odds of ill-health, and who will not give up.

One woman in every three is struggling against weakness. Most of them are not exactly sick, but, oh, how miserable!

The burden and misery of it all has its foundation in the blood which is thin and watery. The red cells are too few. The very stream of life is reduced in vitality. Weakness and inevitable ill-health are the certain result.

Every ailing or weak woman can quickly regain her health in this very simple way. By filling the system with the nutrition that comes from rich red blood, a quick change for the better will result. To accomplish this, take two chocolate-coated Ferrosone Tablets after each meal. You'll feel better immediately for the simple reason that Ferrosone renews the blood. It gives you vim, vigor, endurance, restores a tired, worn-out system very quickly.

You'll feel like new all over once you get Ferrosone working through your blood. It puts color into faded cheeks, brightens the eye, quickens the step, brings back that wonderful feeling of youth.

One of the finest things Ferrosone does is to bake you eat lots and digest it as well. With keen appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves and lots of nourishing blood you're bound to regain robust health. Any sickly girl or ailing woman that Ferrosone won't make well must be incurable. There is a secret power in Ferrosone and it is worth a trial at all events. Fifty cents per box, six for $2.50. At all dealers in medicine, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Before some preachers condemn a sin they investigate its financial standing.

WATCHING GREAT ARTILLERY BATTLE FROM BOX SEAT

(By Herbert Corey, B.F.C.)

IN THE ARGONNE—"We must hurry," said the general officer who accompanied us. "At 4 o'clock the guns begin."

We squashed breathlessly through wet and muddy woods, on paths that wound painstakingly behind hillocks and clumps of bushes. Sometimes an open glade presented itself. Then we turned in our tracks and circumnavigated the opening. The verb has been carefully chosen. Walking in the forest of the Argonne closely resembles navigation. One does by compass and the stars and fixed points on the horizon. Underfoot the forest is loose and sloppy. The soupy mud spurted under our boots.

Completely Lost.

In ten minutes the civilian members of the expedition were completely lost. Sometimes we walked boldly across wide spaces. Then we descend into trenches. One road we encountered was labeled quite safe. The next road — an equally wide, equally wet road, running in the same apparent direction—was out of use. By some legerdemain the Germans were able to see stretches of it. The shelling of these stretches impaired its efficiency. We panted loudly behind the officers. The Russian correspondent took off his cap and perspired shamelessly. His head is large and very bald.

"Down here," said the genral officer.

Fifty years old, this general officer, and as lively as a boy. More lively than most boys. His eyes shone and he crinkled his face in the most friendly way when he laughed, which was often. His cap perched jauntily on one side of his head and he switched at weeds with his cane. A tremendous walker, this general officer. He would pause to tell us a story and we would thankfully stop and listen to it. Then he would be off at full speed. We splashed after him, out feet slipping on things that turned in the

What he called "down here" was the line of communication trenches. They were very narrow and at times very deep. Sometimes they burrowed through the shoulder of a hill and sometimes it was 20 feet to sunlight and sometimes we stooped as we walked, lest the alert German see our caps above the battlements. All the trenches were muddy. When we met soldiers coming out we passed them by a half-turn motion. We climbed up a slimy cleft in the hill by putting our hands on either side. That climb would have bothered a goat, it was so sleep and slippery.

War From Box Seat.

"Here is the balcony," said the general officer. "The box seat. You shall see the fight from here."

We had been invited to watch the French shell the German trenches. We do not know that the shelling was arranged for our especial benefit. We preferred not to ask. All we knew was that the shelling would begin at 4 o'clock, and that if we were in our seats we would see it. The "balcony" to which the general officer referred was an artillery observation post. We raised a curtain of sacking and stepped into a cell cut in the side of the hill. A narrow slit ran across it horison ways, and there was a rough bench and a place on which to rest our elbows. The curtain behind us was pinned tight shut. If it had been raised some German watcher might have seen the light shine through the cell from the trench behind. Then—

The trenches in one angle of which we sat ran along the fact of a shallow hill. Across the valley was another hill, identical in slope. Both slopes were bare and brown, with blackened patches here and there. Once they had been well wooded, but the shells had cut down the trees. For the most part the persisted only as shredded and shattered trunks.

No Tree Remains.

No whole tree remained on either slope. Across the valley was a heap of broken stone in which it was quite impossible to recognize what had been a pretty village before the Germans came. Under "cut-banks" in the bottom of the valley men walked, wearing blue uniforms. They were French soldiers. Sometimes they came to open places, where the slope of the hill was not broken by any inequality. Across these places the ran. The Germans fired at them, down the hill.

"How far are the German trenches?" we asked.

"Perhaps 1000 yards," was the reply.

They were so near that the binoculars were not needed. We sat there, at our ease in the dark cell on the hillside, and traced the German trenches on the other slope. The lowest line was French. There the invader was being slowly pushed back. Very slowly. These trenches had not changed a material foot in months. Farther up the hill the German trenches ran zigzag and kindly. Not two feet of open trench was presented to the fire of the French guns, so artfully were they hooked and angled. Yet they were as plain to the vision as though they had been drawn with pen and ink. Some difference in the subsoil accounted for this.

"Do you see where we have belled?" asked an oncer.

Then the Chorus.

That whole slope of the other hill was covered with pockmarks where shells had exploded. Between them a faint tracery of spring green was beginning to show. Not a sound could be heard in this forest of the Argonne except a venturesome bird that whistled as it brought straw for a nest it had blithely located in the fork of a shattered tree. Some one, somewhere gave a signal. Perhaps it was only that the long hand of the watch had crossed the mark of the hour. On either side —back of us—guns began to thump. On the other hillside bursts of earth and smoke told where the shells were landing.

At first the sounds of the guns seemed scattered, methodical, precise. It seemed the French were firing very slowly. I was thoroughly surprised when I found my hands cupped about Washburne's ear, and realized that unless I shouted he could not understand me. The snapping of the guns had mounted into a roar. We knew that the Germans were firing back because we could hear shells whistle overhead and see them burst near us. But we could not hear their guns. We did not even hear a shell that burst 30 feet from us. We only knew of it when an officer spoke.

Ten For One.

The distant slope of the hill was disappearing from sight under a cloud of dust and smoke. The afternoon sun shone full on it, so that we could plainly see the clean-cut belt picked out by the French shells. At first we had been able to see them strike on the lips of the German trenches. Sometimes it seemed as though they went in, from the nature of the explosion. Later there was just a dull band of tan and black drawn across the hill. It mounted higher as more shells fell. Then the French guns stopped short. It was not a silence that followed, for the German shells were still breaking near us. But it was almost silence. After a moment we stopped shouting. We were abashed, as people are who are talking in church during a pause in the hymn.

"We can give the Germans 10 shells to one," said the general officer, as we splashed out of the trenches. "No matter how many they send us we can send them 10 for one."

The dust and smoke had settled almost to earth when we reached the last point from which we could see the other slope of that Argonne hill. Through the film that remained we could see the lines of the trenches. It seemed as though these lines were no longer clean cut and precise, but as though they had been smeared upon the hillside as a boy's hand dulls the drawing on his slate. There were holes and pits near them.

"Before the day is over the Germans will shell us," said the general officer. "Just now he is too busy in his trenches. He is carrying out his dead."

Tin Mugs Have Been Abolished

AN INSTANCE OF GENERAL BRUSILOFF'S THOROUGHNESS

Early in the war General Brusiloff discovered that the tin drinking vessels, or canteen, carried by the soldiers glinted in the sun, and so revealed the presence of the wearers, and drawing the enemy's fire. So he sent to Petrograd for half a million yards of grey felt, and in less than forty-eight hours every canteen was covered in it, and rendered from the military point of view, invisible.

There are plenty of men now serving in the British Army who remember when our canteens were carried on the packs uncovered. Moreover, the rule was that they had to be polished to the brightness of burnished silver. A more tempting mark, or one more likely to attract the roving eye of an enemy sniper, it would be almost impossible to conceive.

For instance, at Loos a British soldier fired at a round shining object which showed itself for a few moments above the edge of a German trench without, however, in the least knowing what it was. A little while afterwards the trench was taken by assault, and the soldier went to see what he had fired at.

He found a German lying there dead, shot through the brain, and clenched tightly in his hand was his little tin drinking cup, the bottom holed by a bullet. The unhappy man had incautiously raised the cup in drinking, and his head with it, and the same missle had pierced them both.

In the Boer War, again, a marksman on the British side was responsible for an even more extraordinary eventuality of the kind. Firing at the glint of a tin canteen at something over eight hundred yards range, he hit it.

the owner of the canteen who, like the German mentioned above, was in the act of raising it to his lips at the time, was wounded. But the impact of the bullet drove the food it contained into his gullet with such unexpected force and suddness that he was choked to death by a piece of meat—some accounts say a crust of bread—which became fixed in his windpipe.—Pearson's Weekly.

NO NEW BATTALIONS TILL NEXT MONTH.

The Kingston Whig says:

It is learned on excellent authority that no new battalions are to be authorized until September. In this district there will be Lindsay, Belleville, Kingston, and possibly Brockville districts to be alloted battalions for overseas. From this source it is learned no announcements may be expected for the next four or five weeks at least. The reason may possibly be the revision of the recruiting system which is now being worked out.

BIG ONE CAUGHT NEAR SOUTH BEACH

"The early bird catches the worm" and when Messrs. W. E. Brooks of South Beach and Wm. Pimmeth of Young's Point pushed their canoe out at five o'clock this morning upon the smooth surface of Clear Lake there was nothing to it, but that something should come their way.

It came alright and came in the form of a 25 pound lunge, with a length of forty-seven inches and a girth of twenty inches.

"Some fish" you will remark and in this you are quite right. Young's Point folk are unanimous in their belief that it is one of the finest specimens ever landed up the lakes.

The catch took place in Fiddler's Bay and there may be more left there still.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

YOUNG GIRL ATTEMPTS TO COMMIT SUICIDE

CLAIMS SHE WAS REFUSED ADMISSION TO HOME OF HER PARENTS.

WINDSOR, Aug. 21.—Margaret Crews, nineteen years old, a Windsor girl, who was detained in the County Jail, Detroit, for two months and recently deported to Windsor, made an attempt to end her life early yesterday morning in Windsor Jail. Sergeant Giles, attracted to her cell by choking sounds, found her hanging from the top bars by a rope fashioned out of her clothes. After being cut down the girl sobbed that she would rather die than be sent to Sandwich Jail on a charge of vagrancy.

Margaret was deported from Detroit last week. After being taken to the Children's Aid Society here she was refused admission to her parents' home, she said, and compelled to sleep on a bench at Riverside Park, Walkerville, where she was found and arrested as a vagrant. She was removed to Sandwich Jail after being remanded for sentence.

Discovering New Use for Submarines

Simon Lake of Connecticut, builder of submarines, is constructing a new type of submarine which will be used to recover articles from sunken ships.

The new submersible, Mr. Lake says, will enable divers to work at the bottom of the sea for as many hours as may be necessary. He and his associates have organized the Argonaut Salvage corporation. The following account is from the current Popular Science Monthly.

If it were only possible to run the blockade in and out of Germany, what a fortune could be made by selling coal-tar products to the United States and food in Germany! Now it is obvious that the only successful way of escaping the blockade is to travel either above or below the vigilant British cruisers — travel in the air or travel below the surface of the water. To carry even a few hundred pounds of freight through the air is out of the question. Neither the dirigible airship nor the aeroplane could ever make much money as a blockade runner, simply because of its limited carrying capacity.

But what of the submarine? What are the possibilities of carrying fairly large and extremely valuable cargoes in undersea craft?

At least one submarine designer apparently believes in the possibility. He is Simon Lake, one of the foremost authorities on submarine boat construction in this country. A few months ago he patented a cargo-carrying submarine, the inspiration of which was probably given by the present war situation; for he says in his patent, "I provide an exceedingly novel construction of submarine or submergible boat particularly designed for carrying cargoes of various descriptions and which will be found of inestimable advantage in supplying blockaded countries with foodstuffs or war material during hostilities, and which may be readily submerged, when upon the high seas, in the event of interception by an enemy's fleet."

The construction of this cargo-carrying submarine of Mr. Lake's is utterly different from that of the familiar destroyer of battleships. Its external appearance is perhaps not so widely at variance with the accepted type but its interior arrangements are in every way remarkable. The vessel would be at least 350 feet, and possibly 400 feet long, and would be able to carry about 5000 tons of cargo.

To carry 5000 tons at the surface the vessel must be extraordinarily buoyant.

To attain that buoyancy is the chief problem of the designer of a cargo-carrying submarine. Let us see how Mr. Lake has solved this problem.

Mr. Lake's blockade runner consists of an outer hull and an inner hull. The outer hull resembles that of the ordinary surface vessel in all essentials. The inner hull is a long cylinder divided into compartments to provide sleeping quarters, a mess room, a navigating cabin, a galley, an engine room and the like. The cylindrical inner hull is air-tight and water-tight.

The cargo is disposed in vertical tanks between the outer and inner hulls. The cargo tanks are air-tight and water-tight and are filled from the top. Air-tight and water-tight closures are provided.

The spaces formed between the outer hull and the inner hull are to be filled with sea water when the vessel is to be submerged. When the vessel is to rise, the sea water is pumped out. When the vessel is submerged, the cargo-carrying tanks are entirely surrounded by water.

For the Housekeeper.

If the brass polish gives out do not worry, but instead go to work at the brass with lemon juice.

To keep meringue from falling, beat a saltspoonful of baking powder into it just before putting it on the pie.

If you would have your summer supply of white silk stockings remain white, always see to it that they are dried in the shade and washed in lukewarm water, as heat turns them yellow.

If a casserole or other cooking dish becomes brown or discoloured on the inside, let it stand for three days filled with buttermilk, which will, by its acid, remove all the stain.

For clams baked in shells it is best to use the large "hard" clams.

Most of the budding geniuses get nipped in the bud.

The Perfect Corn Flakes

New Post Toasties are not only inexpensive but they have a new delicioueness, produced by a new process of cookery—the first to produce corn flakes with the self-developed true corn flavour.

So fine is this flavour that New Post Toasties are wonderfully good eaten dry. Try some that way—you'll appreciate the point, though they're even better served with cream or good milk.

These New Post Toasties don't mush down in milk or cream, and they are not chaffy in the package like common flakes. They're new in form, new in flavour and new in appearance. Note the tiny "bubbles" on each flake— an identifying feature.

Put up in wax-sealed packages, New Post Toasties retain their ovencrispness and flavour until served at your table.

Have your grocer deliver a package for to-morrow's breakfast.

Advance Made By French At Several Points On The Somme

On Both Sides of The River French Troops Have Scored Splendid Gains---Allied Aviators and Heavy Artillery Doing Grand Work --- Berlin Claims Successes for Teutons and Bulgars in Balkans Fighting---Russians Armies at Saloniki to Assist Allies.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS (French Official Communique), August 22.—French troops advanced their lines on both sides of the River Somme last night, making progress toward Clery on the north bank, and capturing several French elements southwest of Estrees and east of Bayecourt, it was officially announced to-day. In the fighting north of the Somme the French captured two more German cannon south of Guillemont, making a total of eight captured there. A number of prisoners were taken in the operations south of the river. Northwest of Soissons a French surprise attack drove the Germans from a trench on the Cingre Plateau. A French air squadron hurled seventy-five bombs at the railway stations at Noyons and Tergnier. A French pilot brought down an Alabatross machine near Nesles. In the same region a French squadron drove back four German biplanes attempting a raid over the French lines.

Bulgarians And Greeks in Clash

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 22.—Greek and Bulgarian forces have clashed in the region of Serres, and fighting has been going on since Monday morning, said a Exchange Telegraph despatch from Athens to-day. A number of Greeks have been killed. The Greek commander is summoning all neighbouring reserves.

Allied Aviators Damage Railways

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

THE HAGUE, August 22.—Raids of Allied aviators have destroyed long sections of the Bapaume-Peronne Railway considerably embarrassing the German communications behind the Somme front, it was learned here today. The French long range guns are playing havoc with the German transport service near Combles. The highways leading into Combles are under a steady fire, making it most difficult for the Germans to supply their forces fighting in the Clery and Guillemont salients. The German rear lines in the rear of Combles have suffered heavily.

Russian Troops To Assist In Balkans

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ATHENS, August 22.—Russian troops have landed at Salonika to join in the Allied offensive. Despatches from Salonika to-day reported that Allied transports arrived with the Russians as the first Italian contingent was disembarking. For the first time since the beginning of the war the troops of six Allied nations will be fighting side by side. Serbians, Montenegrins, French and British are already engaged on the Balkan front, and the Italians and Russians probably will be seen in action within a short time. It is not likely that any large body of Russians will be transported to the Balkan front.

The appearance of the Russians is probably for the purpose of demonstrating the unity of the Allies.

Russia Is To Abolish The Pale

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 22.—A bill to abolish the Pale and give to Jews the same rights as other Russian subjects, will be introduced in the Imperial Duma here when that body convenes in November.

British Troops Advance On a Half Mile Front

LONDON, August 22.—British troops advanced on a half-mile front north of the Somme last night, and established themselves at the highway junction outside the Mouquet Farm northwest of Posieres, General Haig reported this afternoon. Other detachments moved forward on the height to the Posieres-Miraumont Road. In the Leipsic redoubt salient northwest of Posieres the British extended their gains to within one thousand yards of Thiepval, gaining one thousand prisoners.

German Battleship Sunk By a British Submarine

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 22.—The British submarine E-23 made a successful torpedo attack on a German battleship of the Nassau class Saturday, the Admiralty announced to-day. It is believed the battleship was sunk. She was first attacked by the submarine and damaged. Five destroyers came to her rescue and were escorting her back to harbour when the British E-boat broke through their line and again attacked the battleship. Battleships of the Nassau class displace 18,602 tons each, were built nine years ago, and carry crew of about 960. The principal battery consists of twelve 11-inch guns.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—Bulgarian and German forces defeated the Allied troops on both wings in the Balkans, capturing positions from both the Serbs and the French, it was officially announced this afternoon.

CHARGED WITH HARBORING A LOCAL DESERTER

Interesting Case in Which an East City Couple Appear on a Charge That is Unusual in Local Police Court Circles.

CASE IS ADJOURNED

An interesting case and one deviating from the usual routine of Police Court charges, was heard before Magistrate Dumble this morning, when an East City resident and his wife were charged with concealing and aiding to escape a deserter from His Majesty's service, from the 74th Battalion, C.E.F., with full knowledge that the lad was a deserter, contrary to Section 84 of the Criminal Code.

The husband was arrested on a warrant on August 15th, while the wife was served with a summons, appearing together this morning to answer the joint charge. After Crown Attorney Hatton and Mr. G. N. Gordon, counsel for the defence, had plowed through formidable looking statute volumes, criminal codes, etc., in order to find an amendment to the Act, the case was adjourned until to-morrow.

The deserter, who also appeared before the Magistrate this morning, enlisted with the 74th Battalion. The local police got wind that the lad was stopping in East City, but the prisoner got away from the local peace guardians, making his escape through an upstairs window. He was arrested last Saturday by County Constable Archie Moore, near Keene, having been seen by the station-master near the Keene woods.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, who is defending the young deserter, claims he is under eighteen years of age, and is communicating with the lad's mother who lives in Norwood, in order to get her consent to let the prisoner proceed to military headquarters and stand trial.

Meanwhile the case against the East City couple for harbouring the lad will be proceeded with, and will be resumed to-morrow.

ALL STORES WILL NOT CLOSE

Some Will Remain Open on Thursday Morning

A number of the stores along George Street have found it impossible to fall in line with the stores which are to close all day on Thursday, instead of the afternoon only, and will remain open for the morning, as usual. It was found inadvisable for all businesses to upset previous arrangements, and the morning will not be generally observed as a holiday, only the stores whose arrangements will allow it, being closed all day.

247TH BATTALION NOW READY TO TAKE ON RECRUITS

Ambitious Men who Join New Battalion Now Will Have Best Chance for Promotion--.A Number Will be Sent to Attend the School of Infantry at Kingston in Short Time ---Lt. Col. Johnston's Plan---General Military News.

The 247th Battalion, the new overseas unit of which Peterborough is to be the headquarters, is now ready to take on recruits. Lt.-Col. W. D. Johnston, the commanding officer, is at the armouries to-day and he or some other representative of the 247th will be found there during each day from now on.

Speaking to representatives of local newspapers to-day, Lt.-Col. Johnston outlined his plans as far as they have at present been formulated. He proposes to establish local recruiting headquarters in all parts of the district and to endeavour as far as possible to raise platoons at these points, enlarging the plan adopted by the 93rd Battalion last winter. A full staff of officers will not be appointed at the start. Lt.-Col. Johnston will recommend the appointment of some ten officers, the majority of them lieutenants, who will assist in the recruiting. When drilling commences more officers will be added as required. Lieut. Theodore Quinn, who spent over a year in the trenches as a private in the fighting with the 2nd Battalion, will be one of the officers in the new battalion, and is already in uniform.

The 247th opens the way to ambitious men who wish to become non-commissioned officers. By joining now a golden chance for advancement is offered, inasmuch as it is proposed to send ten men from the 247th, in the near future, to attend the School of Infantry, at Barriefield, while it is also probable that a school will be authorized here. This means that the men who join now will get in on the ground floor and have a splendid opportunity.

The territory for the new battalion will include Peterborough County, North Hastings and Cavan Township, although in the case of the latter the 247th will not have exclusive rights but will have to compete with other units there.

Majors Eastwood and Cameron will carry on the examination work in connection with the new battalion as they have with other units in the past.

Recruits will be taken on at any time from now on at the Armouries.

Pte. E. G. Avery, of the 93rd Battalion, and brother of Mrs. Post, 240 Dalhousie street, in an interesting letter to his mother, tells something of his impressions of England. He says in part:

Well mother, I have heard a lot about England, and what a country it was, but never at any time did I ever fully realize what it is really like. Beautiful is no name for it. It is most wonderful with its old buildings and its scenery. From Liverpool to where we are camped in Kent we had to cross over a great part of the country, and had a good chance to see it, but here the effects of the war are to be seen all over. Canada as compared with England does not know anything about it. Here as we passed through I saw women in grist mills, out in the hayfields, almost every place you would expect to find men working there are women. All the way across the country we were cheered by the people who crowded out every place to wave at and cheer on the Canadians, the ones who had travelled so far to fight for the Empire. But nearly all the people were women. One thing I will never forget. I saw as we passed through a station a young widow with a little fair-haired girl of about six I would judge, and a still younger boy. The little girl had her face crying in her mother's dress, while her mother with tears running down her face shouted "Go on, Canadians, go on." It was no trouble to guess her story, but her heroism is the kind of thing you meet every place in England. Hardly a home but what can tell of some one who has gone, but that case struck me above all others and it certainly made those of us who saw it clench our hands and shut our teeth down hard as we went on with a firmer resolve than ever.

We are in comfortable quarters and like the country fine. We used to think that Englishmen were a little too proud of their country, and did a little too much boasting about it, but I for one will never accuse and person again of anything like that, for any man might be proud to own this country as his home, and I am sure that I were English I would be stuck up about it. Anyway, I believe I am merely because I am subject to her. She is certainly well worth fighting for.

Lieut. MattheWs Off to France

Younger Brother of Lieut. Harold Matthews Has Gone to Front

Mr. T. F. Matthews has received a cable from his son, Lieut. Gordon Matthews, to the effect that he is leaving immediately for France. Lieut. Matthews, who was attached to the 93rd Battalion for some time last winter, went overseas with a draft from the C.A.E.C. On hearing that his elder brother, Lieut. Harold Matthews was missing, he immediately applied for a transfer to the Field Artillery in order to get to the front. That he has succeeded in his aim is evident from the cable received by his father.

THE BARBERS' EXCURSION

It's to be a Merry Trip—And a Full Muster of the Razor Pushers is Expected

It's to be a family gathering of all the city barbers, and it is understood that the barber shops will all be closed on Thursday afternoon, so that all the bosses and their men can attend their first annual excursion to Harwood on Thursday afternoon, August 24th.

No member of the tonsorial profession need stay away. All are invited and will be welcomed. The committee are hopeful that every man holding a chair will show up on the 24th.

IRISH QUESTION SUBJECT OF DEBATE

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Leaders among the Irish radicals attacked the government's policy toward Ireland again this afternoon during a debate in the House of Commons, when the government stated that Irish editors had been warned not to print matter likely to cause disaffection in Ireland.

2559 OFFICER CASUALTIES IS ONE WEEK'S RECORD

Last Seven Days of July Showed British Losses Among Officers The Heaviest Since the Great Conflict Began.

TOTAL NOW IS 36,416

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Casualties among British officers for the last seven days of July were heavier than in any previous of the war, again showing the effects of the present offensive on the western front. Casualty lists include 737 killed, 1,692 wounded and 134 missing, a total of 2,559. They bring the aggregate losses since the beginning of the war to 36,416, of whom 10,842 have been killed or have been wounded and 2,596 are missing.

The heaviest sufferers in the seven days were the Yorkshires, with sixty-two killed, ninety-seven wounded and two missing; Field Artillery, twenty-nine killed, 120 wounded; Lancashires, thirty killed, seventy-nine wounded, eight missing; South Africans, twenty-seven killed, sixty wounded, eight missing; Machine Gun Corps, twenty-one killed, sixty-one wounded Welsh Regiments, thirty-three killed, one hundred and six wounded.

Among officers of high rank, Major General Ingouville-Williams was killed, three Brigadier-Generals were wounded and one Colonel and nine Lieut.-Colonels were killed.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION BABY SHOW

It is the intention of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition to put on a baby show as one of the practical attractions at the fair this year. Liberal prizes will be offered for the winners and it is hoped the Health Association, Mothers' Club and Women's Council will be induced to give their support to the project. At this time when the conservation of human life is very essential, owing to the unprecedented loss of life in the war, it is hoped that the contest will have the effect of stimulating a proper care of babies in this district, that will give them a better start in life and allow them to grow up to be healthy boys and girls and men and women.

Mr. Hartley B. Dewart Carries South West Toronto by Substantial Majority—Another Slap at Sleepers in Queen's Park.

THE PEOPLE'S VICTORY

Majority of Dewart over Norris	643
Majority of Dewart over the vote of all three opponents combined	67

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—By the substantial majority of 643 Mr. Hartley Dewart, K.C., Liberal, defeated Mr. James A. Norris, Conservative, in yesterday's bye-election in Southwest Toronto. The polling took place to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General in the Whitney Administration. The Conservative majority for the seat at the last election was 3,768.

Mr. Dewart is the first Liberal elected to represent a Toronto seat in the Legislature in twenty-six years. In 1890 Mr. Joseph Tait, Liberal, was elected with Messrs. E. F. and H. E. Clarke, Conservatives. Mr. Tait sat only for one term. At that time the city voted as a whole, and Mr. Tait was the third of the successful candidates. The nearest the Liberals ever came to electing a member since that time was in 1901, when M. H. H. Dewart, who now goes to the Legislature, was defeated by the late G. F. Marter in North Toronto by a majority of 34.

BLOW AT GOVERNMENT.

The immense turnover, coming as it does from the largest and most cosmopolitan riding in "Tory Toronto," is regarded as a crushing blow to the Hearst administration, following on the heels of the turnover in North Perth. The condemnation of the Government by the electors is made more direct and emphatic by the active and nightly participation of Cabinet Ministers in the campaign.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson undertook to handle the whole platform campaign, and brought to his assistance the Attorney-General, Hon. I. B. Lucas, and the Provincial Treasurer, Hon. T. W. McGarry, as well as some six or seven Legislative members. Mr. Dewart, the Liberal candidate, conducted his platform campaign practically unaided, but in the nightly debate made a sorry spectacle of the Ministers of the Crown.

WARNING TO TORY FORCES.

There were no two opinions on the streets last night as to the significance of the result. "The Hearst Government is gone," said a former President of a Ward Conservative Association, frankly, "and, unless the Camp Borden and Hughes-Allison mess is cleaned up, the Borden Government will go after it." The people have lost confidence in the Government, and several Conservative workers were outspoken in their demand for a speedy reconstruction. It was noticeable that no Conservative blamed the candidate, Mr. James A. Norris. In fact they commiserated with him. His personal popularity was expected, they claimed, to pull the Government through. There were, however, many bitter party recriminations against Hon. Messrs. Ferguson and Lucas for the language and the character of the appeals they had made, and the feeling was general in the disappointed Conservative ranks that the manner in which these Ministers had dealt with Sir Adam Beck and the Hydro-electric enterprise had much to do with the result. Conservative canvassers in the residential districts also complained that, while they were not Provincial matters, Camp Borden and the Hughes-Allison Borden association at Ottawa proved a heavy load to carry.

MR. DEWART'S CAMPAIGN.

Mr. Hartley Dewart, the successful Liberal candidate, entered the contest but eight days ago. He instituted a whirlwind campaign on the Hydro-electric and nickel issues, and succeeded in showing the defences of Hon. Messrs. Lucas and Ferguson to be ridiculous. At his first meeting Mr. Dewart declared himself to be the people's Liberal candidate on an advanced progressive platform. He rallied round him hundreds of younger workers in the Liberal party, and made a frank bid for the support of independent Conservatives desirous

THE BABY SHOW.

Mention of a baby show, like a story of falling in love and matrimony, strikes the popular chord of jocularity. But neither of these is a joke. Marriage is one of the most serious of human undertakings and as an institution involves the perpetuation of the race and the highest interests of humanity. A baby show, likewise, has a more momentous meaning than any other form of exhibition. Agricultural exhibitions are held to compare the results of varying methods of cultivation, care, breeding and feeding. A baby show, while not lending itself so directly to rivalry, involves something far more important. It involves the question of the health of the country. We cannot expect a robust population, unless we succeed in laying the foundation in sound, well-nourished and robust babyhood. A baby show will give prominence to the question of the proper care and feeding of infants, and it is a lack of this or of knowledge of this, that results in so many prospective men and women dying in the first year of life. If we can get interest aroused in the proper methods of making babies healthy, we shall not only save life and add to the strength of surviving babies, but we shall set the public to thinking of what is involved in the perpetuation of humanity, in the way of ensuring sound physical health—in taking the proper view of marriage, whose divinely devised, supreme and fundamental function is the reproduction of the race. A baby show will help, and it is our duty to help the baby show, not only as an exhibition feature, but as the outward and visible expression of one of the infinitely most momentous of human interests.

CHURCH UNION.

Church union seems to be as promising a blend as oil and water. The decision of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in its favour, by no mean expresses the sentiments of all Presbyterians. Instead it has developed well organised and pretty wide-spread resistance to the decree of the Assembly. The latest evidence of recalcitrance in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Arnprior. At a regularly constituted meeting of the congregation, called to take a definite stand upon the church union question, a divided pronouciation—by a vote of 87 to 3—was made against the dictum of the General Assembly. A pledge was involved in the resolution to fight for continuance of the historic Presbyterian church. Here, perhaps, lies the basis of the opposition to church union. An assertion of individuality of existence, individuality being the essence of democratic freedom, seems to be the foundational thing. It may be that the opponents of union have the feeling, though it may not find concrete expression in so many words, that church union imperils the individuality of their church. In a similar way that the German system of autocratic authority subordinates individual liberty, individual existence to the state. It may be held that the problematical benefits of church union will not compensate for the obliteration of historic landmarks, and church custom endeared by centuries of possession and enjoyment. Religion, as associated with ecclesiastical organization, may be regarded as a business; but above all, religion is a sentiment in which endeared association plays a large part. Such a sentiment dies hard. Church organization is an adjuvant to personal salvation, and shares its individuality of character. One of the strongest constituents of the natural fear of death is the obsessing, unformulated dread of individual extinction—passing out of human fellowships and relations. It is only natural, then, that many members of a church with a strong individuality of organization, methods of government and historic continuity, should dread change and loss of identity.

THE MEANING AND MANIFESTATION OF GERMAN "KULTUR"

What on earth is this Kultur of which the Germans are so inordinately proud? What relationship does it bear, if any, to culture as understood in civilized society all over the world? One of the Standard Dictionary's definitions of "culture" is: "The training, development or strengthening of the powers mental or physical, or the condition thus produced; improvement or refinement of mind, morals or taste; enlightenment or civilization." "Kulturkampf" was a word invented by Virchow to designate the conflict between the Roman Catholic Church and the Prussian Government concerning church polity and education.

In Germany the most typical product of Kultur would appear to be the prize-fighter or bully, the kind of prize-fighter who is not too scrupulous to strike below the belt, the embodiment of ruffianism, treachery and bestiality. German Kultur is the apotheosis of brute force. It has not a trace of improvement or refinement of mind, morals or taste; of enlightenment, or of civilization. There must be some Germans who have escaped the blighting effects of German "Kultur" and still betray signs of refinement of mind, morals or taste, but they are not to be found in appreciable numbers in the upper circles of German society. In those circles are to be found the greatest liars of modern times. The greatest German that ever lived, or never lived, as the case may be, was Baron Munchausen, and modern German society from the Kaiser down is moulding itself on him.

Six of the officers of the Kronprinz Wilhelm, interned at Norfolk, Va., gave their parole and were permitted to go ashore on October 10th upon promising to return by 8 a.m. on October 11th. They have not been seen since, and are supposed to have sailed on a yacht bought by one of them shortly before. On September 20 three officers of the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich were allowed to go ashore on parole to visit Niagara Falls, with a promise to return to their ship by October 16th. The fascination of the Falls was so great they have not returned yet. The second officer left the ship on parole and is now serving on the cruiser Lutzow at Dantzig. Other German officers interned have broken their parole, and in consequence the United States Government has forbidden the acceptance of any more German paroles.

The German Foreign Office explains that the expression "pledge" does not conform absolutely to the idea of "the word of honour." The American Government replies "that these officers were ignorant of the principles of international law cannot be assumed. Promises were given in writing by the captains of the two vessels, for themselves, the officers and the crews, that they would in no way violate American neutrality during their internment." Under the circumstances the United States Government would have been justified in refusing to continue its hospitality and protection to the tremendous fleet of German ships which ran away from the British cruisers and took shelter in American ports.

The German Foreign Office is to be congratulated upon the distinction it makes between the "pledge" of a German officer and the "word of honour of an officer and a gentleman." In the British army or navy, or in British civil life, no difference would be recognized; and it takes Kultur to see the distinction. The cads who broke their parole may actually be honoured for it in Berlin. In London British officers guilty of similar despicable conduct would be sent to Coventry. They would be dismissed from the service and expelled from their clubs. No decent society would receive them. But what can you expect? England is short on Kultur.—Montreal Herald.

THE LOOSE SCREW.

There is at present a conference of municipalities sitting in Montreal to help solve municipal problems, to devise some means to prevent and offset the prevailing insufficiency and inefficiency of municipal government as generally applied throughout the country. Of course there will be a great deal of talk, and some high-sounding resolutions set up on stilted verbiage. Of this we have a plentiful superfluity in every municipal council, year after year, and the results promise to be as fruitful, or unfruitful of good. Effective municipal administration is not necessarily a complicated and difficult thing. In essence, it is as simple as running a corner grocery shop. Apply business principles to either and there will be satisfactory results. The great cause of municipal failure is lack of system; that is, lack of the application of business principles, whose success depend upon organization and system. Every private or corporate business that succeeds has strict system as the foundation of its success. If the average city council would get its heads together, get at work in the right way, with the preliminary of a little hard thinking, it could devise a system of civic administration that would solve the problem of municipal government. The secret of the success the British army is now achieving at present is, outside the question of human courage and fitness, organization and system. If the same happy-go-lucky way of doing things that obtains in the average municipality obtained in the British War Office and the national organization for war, the Germans would long ago have been "shooting up" England from Calais. In a great many human affairs things go wrong because people will not see and appreciate and take advantage of the obvious; they look for some great manifestation for delivery, when things are wrong from so simple a thing as a screw loose somewhere. The loose screw in municipal machinery is the failure to devise, and employ, organization that will permit of the application of system. If the municipal conference in Montreal does not lead up to more than high-sounding phraseology of set speeches and ore rotundo resolutions will be as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal.

SOUTH-WEST TORONTO.

The result of the bye-election in South-west Toronto yesterday was the return of the nominal Liberal candidate and the rejection of the Conservative candidate, formally and effusively endorsed by Premier Hearst. Whatever the election shows, and there were several cross currents of issues and interests, that affected the outcome, it remains a body blow to the prestige and strength of the Conservative government. Prohibition may have had a considerable influence, but the temperance issue does not seem to have been a determining factor, for both the straight-out prohibition candidate and the declared anti-prohibition candidate were snowed under, if such a form of metaphore is allowable in this weather. Whatever may been been the various influencing factors, the result is a condemnation of the Hearst government, and following on other adverse by-elections which have gone either strongly against the government or showed a weakening of its hold on the electors, it may be regarded, not exactly as the handwriting on the wall, but as a searchlight bringing into prominence the warning inscriptions of previous by-elections. Whatever the minor causes operating the result is a distinct blow to the government. The Conservative candidate was endorsed by the Premier, the whole force of the government exercised in his favour. Three or four ministers took the stump and made frantic appeals for support of the government and its policy, yet in the face of all this the government candidate suffered humiliating defeat. Government organs claim that Norris' defeat was due to apathy of the Conservative electors. No doubt. But why the apathy? This was a crucial contest. Coming after the disasters of other by-elections, if the Conservative electors had any interest in strengthening the goverment they would have rallied to the polls to avoid a new humiliation, to avert a defeat, that forecasts wholesale disaster when a general appeal shall be made to the country. A defeat that represents a turnover of nearly four and a half thousand votes, has a significance which the Hearst government cannot ignore or explain away.

PUBLIC RESOURCES FOR THE PEOPLE.

The hysterical controversy over nickel at least emphasizes and supports the policy for which The Daily News has always contended. We have always argued that the natural resources of Canada should be preserved as the heritage of the Canadian people. So far as possible the manufacture of these metals should be carried to the last processes within the Dominion. They should be made the basis of home industry, affording labour for Canadian workmen, business for Canadian merchants and traffic for Canadian ships and railways.—Toronto News.

AGAINST CHURCH UNION

Decisive Vote in St. Andrew's Church, Arnprior

At a regular constituted congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Arnprior, called to take up a definite stand on the question of Church Union, it was resolved by 87 votes to 3 that the congregation put itself on record as resolutely declining to concur in, or submit to the decision of the Assembly on this question, and assuring the leaders who are contending for the preservation and continuance of the Presbyterian Church of their most efficient sympathy, co-operation and financial assistance.

"A Sleeping Beauty" Is Hamburg Harbor

Bitter Commentary on Germany's Loss of Her Great Marine Trade.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Daily Mail quotes from The Berliner Tageblatt's description of Hamburg written by a recent visitor to that port. "If any one wants to realize the picture of Hamburg as a sleeping beauty he need only take a run round the docks. The sound of sirens, the groaning of cranes, the clanking of anchor chains is heard no more. Only from the shipbuilding yards come occasional sounds of blows of hammers. Through the silence of the quays and ships everything is completely still. Before the war boats made an uninterrupted chain right to the mouth of the Elbe, but now the tenants of the villas on Blankenese tell me they rush to the window every time a ship goes by. The whole place is deserted excepting for some warehouse caretakers, a sentinel guarding the margarine depot and a few women packing salted codfish. The Imperator lay empty in the docks. Strange to say the brass porthole fittings of this ship are untouched. The ship has 2,000 portholes and the weight of brass is seventy-five tons, but it is too much trouble to remove it."

NOT ALARMED SAYS FERGUSON

Blames Liquor Interests for Defeat of Conservative Candidate

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—In the absence of Premier Hearst and Acting Premier Lucas from the city, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson gave out what might be considered the official statement of the Ontario Government regarding the Southwest Toronto result.

He said he did not think the result indicated in any way the general feeling of the province in respect to the policy of the Government. He said it was the "wettest" riding in the Province, and it was evident the liquor interests there had tied themselves up strongly with the Liberal party. He did not think the nickel policy had anything to do with it, neither did he consider that the Ontario Government should be at all alarmed over it, or depart from the even tenor of their way as a result.

U-BOATS' WORK IN JULY.

BERLIN, Aug. 22. — An official statement, issued last week, says that during July seventy-four merchantmen belong to the Entente Allies were sunk by German and Austrian submarines and mines. The ships had a total tonage of 103,000 tons.

MILK FAMINE NOT PROBABLE

Local Dairymen do Not Think There Will Be Any Shortage in Supply

Owing to the prolonged spell of hot and dry weather experienced during the past six weeks, as well as to the prevalence of flies and similar pests, it has been feared in many parts that a general famine of milk might ensue in Ontario. A more hopeful outlook is taken by the majority of local dairymen, who express their belief that matters will not reach that stage. While the prolonged drought and the other troubles have of necessity had their effect upon the quantity of milk supplied by the cows, it is felt that there is as yet no danger of a famine, although the season is rather a bad one, and that if rain is obtained soon in order to improve the pasturing lands, all will come through well. It is admitted that the weather has exercised a bad effect upon the milk supply, but not yet to such an extent as to create what might in any way be termed a famine.

FARMERS EVIDENTLY NOT IN NEED OF MEN

It is one of the rural laments that farm help is scarce. When the farmers had nothing else to grouch about they told you in their most doleful tones that there would be no grain planted or harvested and all that sort of thing because the farms had been stripped of their men. You would imagine from this supposed general condition that it would be a simple matter to get work on a farm, simply selecting the farm and saying, "Here I am, when do I begin work and how much." But there is one man, experienced, too, who has been awhole week trying to join up with a farmer, but from last reports he was still free lancing with not an opening in site.

ARTILLERY UNITS WILL SOON LEAVE PETTAWAWA CAMP

One of the Best Trained Divisions Will Go Overseas in Short Time

WARNED FOR SERVICE

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—The whole 4th Artillery Division of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, comprising units from all over the Dominion and now at Petawawa Camp, will move from Petawawa at short notice and has been warned for service. Never before has there been such an artillery course in Canada as that conducted by the officers in charge of this division. All the former divisions went to England without firing any "live" shells. This division has already fired about 4,000 shells across the ravines of Petawawa. Every morning 400 rounds are fired. Each battery has to go into action, make a reconnaissance, fire 25 rounds and return in an hour. Another battery follows immediately. Four batteries are fired at once. That comprises a complete brigade.

The brigades have fired some with the 18-pounder guns, but most of the ammunition for this sized gun is being hurried overseas, so that the practice is chiefly done with the less expensive 12-pounder size. After becoming efficient in this, it does not take long to get the training in the 18-pounder shooting.

The division represents a fighting strength of 64 guns. It is composed of the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th Brigades and Divisional Ammunition Column. As soon as the 4th Division leaves its place at Petawawa will be taken by the new brigades. One from Toronto will move in very soon, as it is up to strength. Another from the West is also up to strength. The Kingston brigade is little over half-strength and Lieut.-Col. Arnoldi is in Ottawa to-day making arrangement for a more vigorous recruiting campaign here to bring the brigade up to strength with as little delay as possible. The other brigade is being recruited throughout Quebec and the Maritime Provinces and is up to strength. Accordingly, there will be practically a complete division ready to move into Petawawa to take the place of the 4th.

REPAIRING THE CITY'S STREETS

Part of Board of Works Appropriation Will be Used for This Purpose

At the last meeting of the Board of Works Committee of the City Council the suggestion was made by Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Board, that a patrol system of repairing the public streets of the city be inaugurated. This would require the services of a couple of men in each ward, together with a horse and vehicle and the necessary small equipment to undertake minor repairs to the road surface such as the removal of stones, levelling up manhole covers, etc. Since the meeting an attempt has been made to give this suggestion effect. Some five or six thousand dollars of the Board of Works appropriation remains and a part of this will be used in making minor repairs to the road surface wherever needed. Some of the larger works will be closed down, and an effort made to conserve a substantial amount for the use outlined by Ald. McIntyre.

Voice of The People

THE PLUMBING SCARE

Editor of the Examiner:

Mr. Editor,—I have read some statements about the plumbing work in our city. Also, about the plumbing Inspector that your plumbing work, soil pipe drains, would not stand inspection. What does this mean? Is the toil pipe put upside down or put together with sawdust? I think, by the way those men speak there is something in that.

Now, Mr. Editor, you have had the same inspector for a number of years and how is it that those men are finding fault with the plumbing inspection at the present time?

I do not understand all the wrangling in your paper, and only by one master plumber's employees. It seems to me there is something underneath all "this confusion". Did not the man that is making all the trouble in the papers about the plumbing inspection, did he, or did he not, send in an application for the plumbing inspectors job? I do not think that is doing justice to the plumbing inspector or to the master plumbers, when there are several master plumbers in our city.

Why not call a meeting of master plumbers; then, if they think that man is not fit for the business of plumbing inspector, why then report to the City Council. I do not think it is right for one individual man to have all to say in this matter. Let other plumbers give their opinions and see that justice is done to the citizens of Peterborough, also to the Plumbing Inspector.

Yours truly,

A PLUMBER.

Dollar Days

At No Time During the Past Year Have We Been Able to Demonstrate Our Value-Giving Ability as During This Special Dollar Day

Shrewd buyers have come to know that a Dollar Day event at this store means saving opportunities not to be overlooked. We do not make the claim that during these days we will give you five dollar's worth of merchandise for one dollar; but we have no hesitancy in saying that this Dollar Day provides you with the opportunity of buying more for one dollar than is ordinarily possible. Another big important point is that these Dollar Days help you save enough to meet the increasing cost of eatables and necessities of all kinds. Note carefully the special items below:

DOLLAR SALE OF WAISTS AND MIDDIES

We make it a point to provide the best waists possible at $1.00, but for Dollar Day a bigger value than usual will be offered. There are waists that have sold for two dollars or more in the lot, also some of the biggest values in Middies we have, regardless of price. Only a limited quantity to sell at the price.

DOLLAR DAY SALE OF CORSETS

Need not tell you that a good Corset at a dollar has been a very hard thing to find of late. We're going to centre interest in our Corset Department; and these Corsets at a dollar will do it. They are extra value and the latest styles we could procure. Two models to choose from.

CHILDREN'S DRESSES, TWO FOR $1

Sizes 2 to 6 years. Made of good washable material, in plaids, checks, or solid colours. We'll let you judge the extraordinary value when you examine them for yourself.

4 PAIRS CASHMERE HOSE FOR A DOLLAR

A fine good quality plain Cashmere Hose for Ladies, new in for fall. Sizes 8½ to 10. No seams whatever. We consider this an extra leader this season, as it was only by scouring the country that we were able to get any.

$1.00 HOUSE DRESSES

You cannot buy the materials alone for a dollar. Made of Ginghams and Prints. Good styles, well made. Special for Dollar Day only.

3 PAIR OF MEN'S CASHMERE SOX, $1.00

We shall be compelled to limit the quantity to three pairs to one customer. Good 50c value. Fine, soft and good quality. Quite seamless. For To-morrow only.

NEW FLANNELETTE GOWNS, $1.00

The quality of Flannelette this year is so light compared to last year. It is one of the hardest things we know to get a full size nicely made gown for $1.00. We have just 100 of them specially for To-morrow and they are rare value.

HOLEPROOF HOSE 3 FOR $1.00

A fine evenly stitched Lisle Hose, with the full guarantee for a month's wear behind them. It is just as easy to insure your hose.

6 LBS. THE BEST SCOTCH WOOL, $3.00

Here is the way to buy Wool. By the pound it is $2.00. This 6-lb. spindle gives you enough for 12 pair of sox, and brings the price down to $1.25. Any shade you wish and the best quality. A limited supply.

MATCHES ARE VERY SCARCE

Extensive Heat of Summer Said to Be Responsible

Local grocers are complaining that they are unable to secure an adequate number of cases of matches. It was learned this morning that one of the largest companies which manufacture matches solely are very much behind with their orders. The reason for this shortage in the match supply is due to the extreme heat of this summer. It is practically impossible to work among the chemicals used in the manufacture of matches during the heat of the day. In other years it was customary to work during the night, but this year the nights were almost as hot as the days, and very little work was done even then. The result has been that there is a decided scarcity of matches in the city at the present time. Weather conditions are now improving, and manufacturers state that they expect to catch up with their orders in a few weeks.

COMING!

Miss Florence Johnstone and Company, Grand Opera House, Aug. 28th—All Week

On Monday evening, Aug. 28th, Miss Florence Johnstone, the English actress, supported by a particularly brilliant ensemble of players, begins an engagement at the Grand Opera House, opening in the big success, "The Lion and The Mouse," a big throbbing drama with a thrill and a punch, and just enough delightful comedy to relieve the more tense situations.

Miss Johnstone has exception support, and "The Lion and the Mouse," as well as other plays presented are embellished with a complete scenic production, which could not possibly be carried by a travelling company, playing the "One night stands." Other plays which Miss Johnstone offers are: "Madame X," "Within the Law," Alias Jimmie Valentine," "Kindling," etc. Just the mention of plays of this calibre gives one an insight that this is a company above the average, and their plays are those which usually command $1.50 and $2.00 prices, but the management of the Grand announces "War Time Prices" for this engagement.

Seats on sale Friday morning at 9 a.m. for "The Lion and the Mouse," for Monday evening, at The Grand, and the prices are 10c, 20c and 30c. Book your seats now.

Liberal Successful In Tory Toronto

of improved conditions. Mr. Dewart declined to make prohibition an issue, as a result of which the brewing interests allied themselves with the Conservative candidate on his beer-and-wine declaration of policy. The hotel interests it said to have been divided among Messrs. Dewart, Norris and Waldron.

HOPED TO SPLIT THE VOTE.

The presence of Mr. Gordon Waldron in the field as an Independent Liberal and of Mr. McA. Conner, the Social-Democrat, as a straight prohibitionist, was counted upon by the Conservative organization to hopelessly split the opposition vote and insure the election of Norris. Mr. Dewart, however, polled a larger vote than that of his three opponents combined.

The street scenes when the result became known were picturesque and enthusiastic. A huge procession of thousands escorted the new member round the principal down-town streets and to various newspaper offices. There was a band, a big torch-light procession, and with horns and flags the paraders gave vent to their joy.

LIBERAL ENTHUSIASM SWELLS AS RETURNS COME

"It is not my victory," said Mr. Hartley Dewart, K.C., M.P.P., when interviewed by the Globe after the results had been announced. "It is the people's victory. I am proud to have been chosen by the people themselves. I only want to add this: If there are any cynical politicians who still think I am not in earnest in the matters I placed before the electors, let me ask them to follow my course and see. I intend to fight with Sir Adam Beck for municipal control of the great Hydro-electric enterprise through Sir Adam and a Commission, and I intend to continue the fight for Canadian rights in respect of Ontario's nickel production. The people elected me to serve them. I intend to the utmost of my ability, to do so."

Was Entitled To Holidays

HAMILTON, Aug. 22.—Police Magistrate Jelfs, of Hamilton, gave an interesting decision in a wages case. Joseph Parr, who had worked for the Hydro department for seven months, left the service after taking two weeks' holidays. The department held that since he had not been employed for a year he was not entitled to holidays and withheld a week's wages. The magistrate ruled that Parr was entitled to the vacation, and gave him judgment against the department for his week's wages.

"MOUNTIES" CAPTURE ESKIMO MURDERERS

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—The relentless Royal Northwest Mounted Police, who have a reputation of never letting up in their pursuit of western criminals, have captured after a three years' chase in the Arctic regions, the Eskimo murderers of Fathers Leroux and Rouvier.

These two Roman Catholic missionaries were murdered in November, 1913, by Eskimos and their belongings stolen. Ever since then patrols of the red-coated guardians of the North, have been pursuing the murderers. The long arm of the law has been at last successful.

Word has been received at the mounted police headquarters here via Nome, Alaska, that a patrol headed by inspector Lanase has succeeded in apprehending the guilty Eskimos. They are now at Herschell Island at the mouth of the Mackensie river, and will be brought down overland to Regina for trial.

CHARLOTTE STREET WEEDS WERE BURNING

The crop of weeds on the lot at the corner of Charlotte street and Pearl avenue looked due for harvesting to Chief Thompson and he accordingly ordered Mr. J. A. G. Goulet to apply a scythe or cradle. But Mr. Goulet saw an easier way out and applied a torch. All would have been well except that Charlotte residents objected to the dense, acrid smoke of the weeds and called out Chief Howard's brigade last night at 7.37 o'clock extinguishing the effective method that was operating only too well.

Smells Are Complained of

Inspector Cooper Has a Busy Time Chasing Up Complaints

The prolonged hot spell has increased the work of the Sanitary Inspector's department. People in all parts of the city are complaining of smells of various kinds, and it keep Inspector Cooper busy appeasing the demands that are made upon him from time to time. The olfactory nerves of some of the ratepayers is developed to an astonishing degree with the result that it sometimes requires more than ordinary diplomacy to deal with some of the situations that arise.

Investigation of Fire Insurance Will Be Important

Chief Howard is Chairman of Special Committee That Will Assist in Forthcoming Provincial Investigation by Judge Masten.

At a recent convention of Dominion Fire Chiefs at Windsor a special committee was appointed to assist the Government's commission which will investigate the fire insurance business as it is carried on in Ontario. Chief Howard is chairman of this committee of which the other members are Chief Keyes of Galt, Chief Ten Eyck of Hamilton and Chief Smith of Toronto.

This investigation developed out of a suggestion from Sir Adam Beck, and the Hon. Cornelius A Masten of the Supreme Court was appointed commissioner by the Government. So important did the movement appear to the Fire Chiefs of the Dominion that they decided to offer whatever assistance in their power to facilitate the work of the investigator. Hence Chief Howard's committee will be prepared to offer their experience to whatever extent it is required in the work of the investigation.

Sir Adam Beck has already acknowledged and expressed his hearty approval of the action of the Fire Chiefs in a letter to Chief Howard who will go to Toronto on August 29th and be introduced by Kirs Marshall Heaton to Judge Masten for an interview regarding the extent of the co-operation of the special committee of Fire Chiefs. Following that the committee will convene in Toronto and prepare the data which they will subsequently have available for the commissioner.

The question of Fire Insurance throughout the provinces is a decidedly important one, and to the average citizen the scope and possible fruits of this investigation may not be immediately apparent. It is claimed that the Fire Underwriters' Association have thus far had a free hand in their control of insurance questions, and that their operations have not been without certain abuses. For example, the fire loss in Galt one year was only $45, and in spite of this condition the Underwriters announced and made effective increased rates in that town in the following year. In other words it is claimed that the insurance companies received aggregate premiums of $175,000 from Galt in one year and paid only $45 in fire loss. And following that showing the rates were increased. This is one of the alleged abuses arising from the secure and practically dominant position the Underwriters' Association have hitherto occupied. Mention is also made of the requirements that exact from civic and other corporations, exactions that are often regarded as onerous and unnecessary.

It will be seen, therefore, that the Beck idea may result in more favourable conditions, in many respects for those who pay fire insurance, and that the extensive knowledge of the Fire Chiefs should be a material assistance to the Commissioner.

Lock Works Hold Enjoyable Outing

The annual excursion of the Peterborough Lock Works took place yesterday to Harwood by the steamer Stoney Lake. The Company very kindly put up for the expense incurred in the hiring of the steamer for the day and the Lock Works employees supplied the rest.

A full boat-load of employees and friends took in the outing and an enjoyable day was put in by all. The energetic excursion committee made sure in the morning to smuggle on board a few musicians and the result was plenty of music and dancing, especially on the way home, when the twilight shadows were stealing over the banks of the Otonabee and putting nature away to her rest. The party arrived back at 7.30 p.m.

INDUSTRIAL STRUGGLE HANGS IN BALANCE

Railway Interests Fail to Reach a Decision in the Negotiations for an Eight Hour Day

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22. — The greatest industrial struggle in the history of the country hangs in the balance to-day. As the situation stands this afternoon the railway employees have put their demands for an eight hour day and time and a half overtime in the hands of President Wilson. He has put this up to the heads of the great systems and they in turn have passed it on to the directors. After an all night session a select committee of "big barons" appointed by the two-score executives failed to reach any decision early to-day.

Sudden Death of Mrs. Achison

Smith Woman Fatally Stricken When Consulting Doctor

Suddenly stricken ill while waiting to see her doctor concerning her health, Lavina Maud Mahood, fourth daughter of Mr. Robert Mahood, Otonabee, and wife of Mr. John James Ackison of Smith, died yesterday a short while after taking ill. Death occurred yesterday afternoon at 4:30.

Besides her husband she leaves six daughters and two sons: Ethel, Maude, Florence, Hazel, Gladys, Clover, and Archie and Jack. Eight sisters are Mrs. George Maskie and Mrs. David Jordan, Peterborough; Mrs. Oswald Cragg, Saskatchewan; Mrs. Jos. Newman, Kingston; Mrs. James Simpson, Bobcaygeon; Mrs. Norman Smart, Fort William; Mrs. Arthur Hunter, Smith, and Miss Rose Mahood, Toronto. The brothers are Robert, who is on overseas service at Shorncliffe, and Harvey, Fred, Ernest and Stanley, Otonabee.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, Lot 6, Concession 2, Smith Township, on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery.

NO MOVIES FOR CABINET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The British Cabinet won't appear in the "movies" after all, Premier Asquith announced this afternoon. Mrs. Asquith, wife of the Prime Minister, conceived the idea of filming the ministers, the proceeds to go to a war charity. The fact that President Wilson had posed for the "movies" was used as an argument. But the plan shocked the Commons and brought down a storm of talk that it was a most undignified thing to do. The newspapers say it is all over.

There were fewer fatalities than were feared. The exact location of the disaster has not been revealed.

SUGGESTS REFERENDUM

Kingston Standard on the South West Toronto Result

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 22.—The Daily Standard (Independent Conservative), which on July 11, the day following the North Perth election, suggested a house-cleaning in the Ontario Government lest the tide should run even more strongly than ever against the Government, sees little that is encouraging from a Conservative standpoint in the Southwest Toronto election, and in its editorial of to-day again urges that the Cabinet be strengthened and incidentally suggests a referendum to the people on the temperance question.

Several German Counter Attacks Repulsed Near Soyecourt

SEVERE FIGHTING REPORTED NORTHEAST OF VERDUN

French Repulse Two German Counter Attacks

Enemy Attempts to Recover Lost Ground Preceded by Intense Artillery Fire---Germans Bombarded Positions Recently Captured by the French on the Verdun Front Two Hundred and Fifty Prisoners Captured.

SURPRISE ATTACKS REPULSED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, August 24.—Two German attacks near Soyecourt, south of the Somme, preceded by intense artillery fire, were completely repulsed by the French in last night's fighting, it was officially announced to-day. The first attack by German grenade parties was repulsed by machine gun and infantry fire. The Germans retired while their artillery prepared the way for a second attempt southeast of Soyecourt. French gunners laid a steady barrage fire across the intervening ground and prevented the Germans from leaving their trenches.

In the Champagne region the French repulsed several surprise attacks On the right bank of the Meuse northeast of Verdun the Germans bombarded positions recently captured by the French on the Fleury-Thiaumont front. The French took five officers and two hundred and fifty men prisoners on this sector. French aviators brought down four German planes during the day.

Zeppelin Raided The East Coast of England Last Night

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 24.—A Zeppelin raided the east coast shortly before midnight last night the War Office announced to-day. No damage was done and no casualties resulted. Last night's Zeppelin visit, and others of the past few weeks, are believed to have been reconnoitring flights for the purpose of testing out England's new air defenses in preparation for a great aerial attack.

For the last fortnight, word has been coming from Germany of the construction of huge Zeppelins capable of carrying several tons of explosives.

The German correspondents hinted that these new sky dreadnoughts would move against London and Paris during September and October, when weather conditions are apt to be favourable. During September of last year they made five raids on England.

Bulgarian Offensive Has Been Brought to a Standstill

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ATHENS, August 24.—On practically every sector of the Balkan front the Bulgarians' offensive has been brought to a standstill. The Bulgarian drive southwards against Seres, the Grecian city of thirty-five thousand inhabitants, has created a new and more critical situation at Athens. If Seres falls the Bulgars will have practically cut off all the Greek troops operating in Eastern Macedonia.

Winners in The Estimating Contest

The winners in the copper estimating contest are R. K. Bongard and Mrs. P. S. White, both of this city, who divide first and second prizes. The former made an estimate of 591 and the latter 593, while the actual number of coppers in the jar was 592. Two prizes went outside of the city, one to Mrs. J. P. Andress, R.R. No. 3, Peterborough, who won the seventh prize of one dollar. Her estimate was 587. The eleventh prize went to Mrs. Duffus, Monaghan Road. Her estimate was 600.

The complete list of prize-winners will be found in the second section of to-day's issue.

Allies Continue To Advance

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ATHENS, Aug. 24.—The allied armies continue to advance in the Balkans.

Canada's Huge Wheat Crop

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

MONTREAL, Aug. 24.— The wheat crop of Canada this year is estimated at one hundred and sixty-five million bushels.

Russians Are Invading Hungary

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, Aug. 24.—The Russians occupied and mounted long range guns on two parts of the Kovarla mountain overlooking Hungaria.

"Good, Isn't it, Grandpa?"

"Yes, Sonny, Postum is good, and much better for you than tea or coffee—you'll know why, sometime. In fact, children should never drink tea or coffee—and most grown-ups would be better off without either.

"In tea and coffee there's a drug that is harmful, especially to children, and it often causes troublesome conditions in older folks.

POSTUM

is fine for both children and grown-ups. It is made from good wheat, roasted with a little wholesome molasses—nothing to hurt anyone.

There's a delightful flavor in Postum—the pure food-drink for those who want to be healthy and happy.

Thrilling Story of Taking of Thiepval Ridge Post By British

Frederick Palmer, the British Correspondent at the Front Sends an Unasually Graphic Report Visualizing the Tremendous Artillery and Infantry Attack By Which General Haig's Men Bombed and Bayonetted Themselves Into Possession of Trenches on This Great German Barrier Position---Mid Niagara of Shells the British Drove Forward and stormed the Enemy Ridge.

NOT A GERMAM GUNNER LEFT

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, August 24.—The artillery commander drew his patent curtain of fire, and never in all the seven weeks of the Somme battle has the correspondent witnessed anything equal to the "show," as the officers call every action, in the taking of one of the spurs of Thiepval ridge.

Ever since July 1, when the British failed in their effort to storm it, Thiepval ridge has glared at the British, who had kept hammering it with gunfire. The Germans have set great store on this position. In front of the position conquered the British infantry had been decimated in several attacks. The trenches were just as strong as then, with deep dugouts the result of two years' building. Prisoners taken early in the offensive said the British never could obtain a foothold on that ridge.

Those taken who had been at Verdun said they suffered nothing there at all equivalent to the deluge of British shells, and that it was impossible for human beings to endure such a tornado. Both the first German line and the support trenches were taken. One pair of eyes could not see more detail than the correspondent saw. The British and Germans engaged were outlined clearly as a play around the second base could be seen from a grand stand. A home company of the National Guard, doing skirmish drill in camp, could not be more distinct when seen from the side lines. It was the very finesse of war. With the clear air of a bright afternoon sun over his shoulder, one looked across the tiny valley toward a slope. There the bare ground was cut with the slash of a new British trench, and beyond, that, across an area of dead grass and wavy maize, was the old first line German trench.

A Niagara rush of whishing screams from capsules of concentrated hell tore through the air and began bursting over the trench. Their flashes hugged it in an infernal ecstasy, sweeping it with myriads of bullets and fragments, shooting forked tongues of death into its burrows.

To show a head and escape being hit and hit more than once was as hopeless as to stand up in a thick hailstorm without being hit by an icy pellet. Some Germans who had trusted in flight rather than sticking to a dugout, when the first dash of projectiles came, were seen running toward the open away from this swath of destruction.

BRITISH BEGIN A CHARGE.

Now, out of the British trench appeared a row of khaki-tinted mushrooms, the steel helmets the British soldiers wear, then their heads and shoulders and full forms as the charge went over the parapet. Every man was in full equipment with all its details visible; every figure uniform with all others to the last item, as they moved across the field of dead grass briskly and steadily. The ominous, wicked staccato of the machine guns from the Germans coming into action was heard. But no machine gunner could live at his post. The British line opened to go around shell craters or other obstacles and then closed up. Occasionally a shell dropped and was left in the grass.

Right into the face of that curtain of death from shells going only a few feet over their heads, they were moving. Then, suddenly, as it was late, the curtain of shell-fire lifted. Not a single shell out of the thousands had burst short.

Now the British were going over the German parapet, their bayonets glistening in the sun. As they descended into the trench the earth seemed to have swallowed them up. Little clouds of smoke from bursting bombs rose from the trench. There was hot work proceeding out of sight in the burrows.

One after another, as though they were coming to the top of stairs, heads and shoulders appeared out of the trench. Each German had his hands up and in file the prisoners moved past a Briton standing on the parapet. Those Germans, who had not waited to be bombed out of their dugouts but had surrendered, came legging it at top speed back toward the British first line trenches.

THOSE WHO FLED DIED.

What about the Germans who had fled back towards the German support trench? A fight machine-gun the British had put up rattled into their backs. Ahead of them was the British curtain of fire, now lifted on to the German support trench. They seemed to disappear into the earth, some port trench? A light machine-gun the British had put up rattled into their will survive. One figure alone holds the stage for a fraction of a minute there in the lifeless space around them. Tall and bold, a German officer stands upon the edge of a communication trench and looks around. He goes down abruptly as if he had been hit a hard blow back of the knees.

Now, British helmets rise from the German first line and start on with another charge to the German support trench. They will clean up any Germans lying in shell craters, on their way. They grow dim with distance and in the fading light but they get there. They have the support trench, their signals say. And that bunch of running German prisoners coming toward the British rear as fast as they can is enveloped in some shell bursts. The German curtain of fire is now being laid on the old first line British trench area, which explains why all the prisoners taken do not reach the collection stations alive.

Those seen fairly out of range of shell-fire were smiling and seemed much relieved. "They will have a good square meal over in the camp by that clump of trees to-night," said the General, "and they have been under fire for the last time in this war."

Bit by bit, gains are made between big attacks. The British now are within one thousand yards of Thiepval, maintain their positions in the Guillemont, and are within three hundred yards of Ginchy and of Martinpuich.

Toronto Markets Yesterday For Stock

Quotations Yesterday at the Union Stock Yard—Grain Dealers' Quotation

Cooler weather, combined with a medium run of cattle tended to steady the market at the Union Stock Yards to-day. Cows were fairly easy, and bulls were steady, though the number of poorer quality animals accounted, for a fairly low average price. Butcher cattle were poor in tone, and choice steers were in good demand. Light sheep were good, while heavy were in slow demand. Spring lambs were stronger, selling mostly at 12c. There was a large number of hogs, which sold down another 25 cents:

IRRITABLE NERVES RESTORED AND HEALTH REGAINED IN A SIMPLE WAY

The man or woman who is rundown, not feeling up to the mark, perhaps, irritable, nervous or sleepless can well afford to learn about the wonderful results the newly discovered blood-food is giving to folks that use it.

There is wonderful power in this new blood-food, and every weak, pallid person can be quickly nourished back to health that uses it as directed.

After each meal, with a sip or two of water, you simply take two little chocolate-coated tablets, sold in all drug stores under the name of "FERROZONE."

The effect is noticeable at once. You feel happier, brighter, more contented. That old-time feeling of weariness departs—you forget your "nerves" and no longer get irritable or cross over trifling annoyances.

There is a reason for this change and that reason consists of the fact that Ferrozone contains blood-making materials you can get in no other way.

Ferrozone makes the blood tingle and sing with new vitality. This ensures loss of nourishment and strength being supplied to every part of the body.

No wonder the eyes brighten and the cheeks raniate color and happiness: With abundance of strength, a keen appetite, good digestion and plenty of sound sleep—all the result of Ferrozone—you quickly feel as if life held new charms and pleasures.

News Paragraphs From Hastings

A Wedding of Local Interest — Memorial Service in Honor of Private Powers

HASTINGS, Aug. 23.—The funeral of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Coveney was held on Thursday morning, service being held in the R. C. church.

Wedding Bells.

A wedding of interest locally was solemnized on Wednesday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tate, when their only daughter, Edna Margaret became the bride of Mr. John Staples of Bethany.

Promptly at twelve o'clock the bride entered the parlour leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by her brother, Willie.

The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Isaac Snell, in the presence of only the immediate relatives and friends. The bride was tastefully attired in a dainty dress of white silk crepe de chene over a slip of taffeta and wore the customary veil and blossoms, and carried a beautiful sheaf of roses and fern.

At the close of the ceremony, Miss Lily Tate, aunt of the bride sang, "Love's Old Sweet Song."

Congratulations were extended and the bride led the way to the dining room, which looked beautiful with its profuse decorations of sweet peas, hydrangea, etc.

Dinner being ended the happy young couple motored to Norwood and boarded the 3.10 C. P. R. for a short honeymoon trip, and on their return will take up residence in Hastings. The bride travelled in a pretty suit of navy blue taffeta and pale green hat, and is followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

Memorial Service.

The memorial service which was held in the town hall on Sunday night in honour of Pte. W. Powers, was very largely attended and was addressed by the resident ministers.

Miss Nora Doherty has been removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, for treatment. She was accompanied by Dr. Sweeney and her nurse, Miss McGee. Her friends are hoping for her recovery.

Quite a crowd collected at the water front on Friday night to enjoy the fireworks donated by Dr. King, of Toronto, who makes this an annual affair, and which is much appreciated by the citizens.

Rev. Isaac and Mrs. Snell left on Wednesday for a month's holiday with their friends.

Horses Ran Away.

Excitement prevailed for a short time on Thursday last when a team of horses hitched to a waggon took fright at an automobile and started at runaway speed down the railway track. However, not much damage had been done when they were captured by the section men and restored to their owner.

A number of our people motored to Trent Bridge on Friday and enjoyed the regatta. We are informed that there was a very large crowd in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Greenley have received the pleasing intimation that their son Allan, who is in the hospital in St. Catharines with typhoid fever, is in a fair way to recovery. His many friends here are hoping that it may be permanent.

Mr. and Mrs. V. German took a trip to Peterborough on Tuesday last.

Mr. Reg. Plant of Roseneath, is home for a few days. His friends are congratulating him on his fine appearance dressed in khaki.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fowlds and party motored to Toronto during the week and spent a few days with friends.

Mr. J. Pringle of Westwood, is the guest of friends here.

Dr. and Mrs. Hess spent Sunday in Campbellford.

Mr. Andrew Humphries of Colorado, is visiting his brother, Mr. A. Humphries.

Extreme Heat.

The extreme heat still continues and rain is much needed.

Mrs. Huycke, Sr., is visiting friends in Campbellford.

Miss Hermiston has improved the appearance of her house by new coveside ing

The fire brigade were called out for practice on Thursday evening and made a creditable showing.

Miss Olive Snowden of Peterborough, is visiting Hastings friends.

Miss Stinson of Cobourg, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stinson.

Miss E. Innes has returned to her home in Campbellford, after spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. W. Tate.

Miss Maggie Stevenson has returned to Toronto after a short visit here.

Mr. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. McAllister and family, of South Monaghan, motored here on Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Fife.

Harvesting is well advanced and threshing is the order of the day.

A WEAK HEART.
When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery remember the blood forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by its use feed the system with rich, red vitalizing blood. This is nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to secure lasting benefits.

A Frightful Death Suffocated In Asthma Attack

Every sufferer from asthma knows the terror, the abject fear that overcomes them when struggling for breath. The old fashioned remedies may relieve, but never cure. Best results come from Catarrhozone, which cures asthma after hope is abandoned. It's because Catarrhozone kills the asthma germ that it cures. Choking spells and laboured breathing are relieved, suffocating sensations and loss of breath are cured. Every trace of asthma is driven from the system, and even old chronics experience immediate relief and lasting cure. Equally good for bronchitis, throat trouble and catarrh. The large one dollar outfit includes the inhaler and lasts two months. Sold by all dealers or from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

WAR PROFITEES THRIVE.

Dye Makers Among Business Men Who Reaped Largely.

An English newspaper lists war profits as follows: Button making continues to be one of the most profitable war time industries. A Birmingham company which makes a specialty of these articles paid a dividend of 25 per cent., the net profit for 1915 being $325,885, compared with $194,400 in 1914. The Barrow Hæmatite Steel Company, like other undertakings of its kind, had a good account to give of itself for the year 1915. Whereas the net earnings of the previous year were only $8,310, the profits for 1915 work out at no less than $298,410. In the dyeing industry extraordinary profits have also been made. One Manchester firm of dye makers has in a year made a profit of $400,000 on a capital of $450,000, enabling it to distribute a dividend of 30 per cent. on its ordinary shares. Another Yorkshire

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

It Was Very Plain to Her

By SADIE OLCOTT

I am an American girl and, what's more, if there is anything stirring I want to be in it. When the pan-European war broke out I was traveling in the Balkan states and made the acquaintance of the wife of one of the chief diplomats. I don't specify because there is a lot in this story that it wouldn't do for me to reveal. Indeed, I shall endeavor to tell it in a way that my own identity shall not be known.

From my friend the diplomat's wife I heard a great deal about the struggle between the entente and the central powers to secure the adhesion of the different Balkan states. I was impressed with the fact that there was a lot of chicanery going on and was seized with a desire to take a hand in it, for the representatives of each side were ready to pay any price for information as to what the other side was going to do. I dropped a hint to the diplomat's wife that I would like to try my hand at diplomacy, which she understood to mean spying.

The very next day I received an invitation to call at a certain embassy. I was received by the secretary of legation. He was the most clean cut man I had ever met, very handsome, with a certain impressiveness about him that is indescribable. I made up my mind then and there that whether or no I succeeded in a diplomatic mission I would bend all my energies to securing him for my own sweet self.

Mr. Fauntleroy—so I will call him—told me that the entente allies were in great doubt which way the Bulgarian cat would jump. He expressed the idea in the choicest language, but I don't remember his words. He wished me to go to Sofia and gain the confidence of some Bulgarian magnate and worm out of him which side King Ferdinand was going to declare for. I prolonged the interview with Mr. Fauntleroy as long as possible, all the while giving him such little hints to attract him to myself as a woman keeps ready for the purpose. When, however, I could think of no more points on which to ask instructions I bade him goodby and set out for Sofia.

I was some time getting the information I desired, for there was only one person who knew what the king had decided to do, and that was the King himself. Indeed, I got the information, not from a person, but from my own observation. Sometimes the plainest thing to a woman is that for which she can give no reason. I soon knew that King Ferdinand would take the German side. How I knew it I cannot tell you, though it was as plain as the nose of the king's face, and every one who has seen him or his picture knows that his nose is not to be mistaken for any other nose.

Returning to Mr. Fauntleroy, I told him that the king would jump toward Berlin. When I was asked the source of my information I said that I had succeeded in making a hiding in a room where the king had received a deputation of Bulgarian magnates, who had come to protest against his majesty's taking sides with Germany, and I was convinced that he was fooling them. Mr. Fauntleroy asked me how I knew the king was fooling them, and I replied, "Just as any woman knows when a man is not to be trusted."

Mr. Fauntleroy said he reckoned I was not cut out for a spy, though he offered to pay me for my work. I declined to take anything.

"But," I added, "Mr. Fauntleroy, if you act on what I tell you you will gain credit in your profession."

I gave him a pleading look, as though I was awfully interested in his success, and I really think he believed I was interested for him and not myself. He endeavored to persuade his superior and other diplomats to send word to London and Paris that King Ferdinand was about to declare for the central powers. But none of those great men could see what was A B C to me, and when the king did join the Germans they were all very much astonished, and the powers they represented were caught in a position for which they were by no means prepared.

There was one, however, who could say, "I told you so." That was Mr. Fauntleroy. He had taken the precaution to enter a protest to his government against trusting King Ferdinand and recommending certain movements of troops in view of Bulgaria's action. It was risky for him to do this, for it must be done over his chief's head. Judge of the secretary's delight when his chief was ordered home and he (Fauntleroy) was made ambassador. He sent for me, and the moment I entered the room, in his ecstatic condition, he took me in his arms and kissed me.

Of course by that action he put himself in my power, but he never realized that it was the turning point between us. When he introduces me now he does it with intended facetiousness.

"This is my wife," he says. "We work very well together. My diplomacy is founded on reason, hers on instinct. I would give fifty of my reasons for one of her instincts."

Be this as it may, his start as a diplomat was entirely due to me. And yet I take no credit to myself for what occurred. How so many diplomatic thunderers can fail to see what was so plain to a woman with no education in diplomacy whatever is unintelligible to me.

6 Months Old Baby CURED OF DIARRHOEA

During the hot weather young children are very much subject to diarrhoea, in fact, more so than adults, on account of the more delicate construction of their constitution. It behoves every mother to look after her children on the first sign of any looseness of the bowels, for if they do not some serious bowel trouble such as diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, Summer complaint, etc., is liable to follow, and they will, perhaps, loose their little one by not taking the precaution to check this looseness of the bowels by using Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mrs. Chas. Monck, Marlbank, Ont., writes: "When my little girl was about six months old she took a severe attack of diarrhoea. I tried castor oil, daudanum and other treatments, but they were of no use. A neighbour told me about Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I tried it, and after giving my baby two doses I could see a great change for the better. I have always proised "Dr. Fowler's" since then."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is the original. See you get it when you ask for it.

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 25c.

The dancing pavilion was open afternoon and evening and proved a great attraction to young and old.

Many a Southern darky's mind is stored with bits of philosophy that are frequently as true as they are quaint. Here is an instance:—

"One wintry day," says a Washington man, "I met an old darky in rags plodding along. The cold wind beat through many holes in his tattered garments. Yet, despite his evident poverty, he was carrying a whole side of bacon on his shoulder.

"'Uncle,' I asked, 'why didn't you spend your money on a warm coat instead of on all that bacon?'

"'Well, suh,' said the old man, gravely, 'when I asks my back for credit, I gits it.' Then, patting his stomach, he added:—

"'But dis hear, sah, dis heah always calls for cash.'"

It is a good idea to reduce the week-end work by preparing early in the week a large cake of the kind that will keep and a jar of cookies.

A little jar of salad helps out a school child's lunch greatly. Choose the jars with covers that screw on.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "run-downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy cheeked people every where.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimetary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S YOKE SKIRT

By Anabel Worthington

Attention continues to focus on the yoke effect in skirts and it promises to remain a smart feature throughout the fall. This is due chiefly to the fact that women demand a readjustment of the garment with extreme fulness over the hips, and which is now bowing itself out.

A natty skirt of linen or other warm weather fabric is ever a welcome addition to the summer wardrobe, and we illustrate a style that cannot escape the notice of the woman who likes the yoke effect in a novel way. The picture shows a garment for practical wear. There are four gores in this design. Their arrangement gives a broad panel front that is clearly defined by stitched seams. At back the skirt is gathered to a yoke in curved outline—one side overlapping the other and ornamented with a single button.

The full flare at the lower edge, which measures 2¾ yards in size 24, is popular and attractive.

The design features the prominence of stripes, but other effects may be employed in either wash fabrics or material such as serge, tweed and the mixtures.

The pattern, No. 7,872, is cut in sizes 22-32 waist measure. To make in size 24 will require 3¾ yards of 36 inch material. You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

STRENUOUS GERMAN ATTACKS ARE STOPPED

RUSSIANS WIN GREAT BATTLE FROM TURKS

GERMANS FAIL IN ATTEMPTS TO REGAIN THEIR LOST POSITIONS

Strenuous Attempts Carried the Foe to the Parapets of the British Trenches at Some Points But They Were Repelled Afterward Suffering Heavy Losses --- Russian Troops Defeat Four Turkish Divisions, Scoring a Big Victory.

GREEK TROOPS RETIRE BEFORE BULGARIANS

LONDON, August 24.—The Germans made strenuous efforts last night to regain lost ground between Guillemont Station and the quarry and succeeded in reaching the parapet of the British trenches at some points, General Haig reported to the War Office this afternoon. They were repelled afterward suffering heavy losses.

At Hohenzollern redoubt position near Hulluch the Germans shelled the British positions heavily and then attempted a raid. They were stopped before they reached the British trenches.

Deutschland Carried A Valuable Cargo

Special to The Examiner.

THE HAGUE, August 24.—The Bremen despatches in regard to the arrival of the Deutschland carried the statement that the submarine Bremen, sister ship of the Deutschland, only left for America a few days ago. She was held in port until the Deutschland owners received positive information that the Deutschland had eluded the British patrol. Captain Koenig is being lionized by the Breman crowds as a national hero. The Deutschland brought three bags of mail from Ambassador Bernstorff and a cargo of rubber and nickel valued at a million dollars.

Greek Troops Are Retiring Under Orders

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 24.—Greek troops around the ancient City of Seres are evacuating their positions and retiring southward under orders from the Greek Government, said an Athens despatch this afternoon. The retirement was ordered after the Greek positions had been heavily bombarded by the Bulgarians for several hours.

Hamburg in a State of Revolution

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

AMSTERDAM, August 24.—For a week past the Port of Hamburg has been in a state of revolution. One man who has just escaped as he expressed it, tells an extraordinary story of the gradually rising exasperation of the population until early last week they broke out into open hunger riots and peace demonstrations. Only vigorous military measures were able to restore order and the utmost severity was shown.

Russians Badly Defeat Turks'

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 24.—Russian troops have defeated four Turkish divisions (80,000 men) in a great battle near the Village of Rachta, near Mosul, capturing two entire Turkish regiments, it was officially announced to-day. Much cannon and other booty was taken.

If the Russians are really "near" Mosul as the despatch is translated, the news is of the utmost importance. They had previously reached Rowandiz, seventy-five miles distant, in a thrust across the Persian border. Mosul is not only an important city of sixty thousand still retaining some of its ancient commercial supremacy, but it is on the Tigris River and the route of the Bagdad Railway. It is about two hundred and twenty miles north of Bagdad. The Russian capture of that place would indicate the cutting off of an immense Turkish army.

German Public Opinion Weakens

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 24.—Friederich Naumann publishes in the current number of his weekly paper, German Diehlife, an extraordinary article on the weakening of German popular opinion about the war and the need of counteracting the present tendency. Herr Naumann writes: "To-day there are people enough who no longer rightly know why we are still fighting."

Another Victory In German East Africa

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 24.—British troops under Lieutenant-Colonel Vanderventer on August 22, entered the Town of Kilossa near the Wami River, in German East Africa. The British sustained few casualties.

Berlin Admits The Bulgars Are Checked

Special to The Examiner:

BERLIN, August 24.—The German War Office admitted that on the Allies' left wing in the Balkans the Serbians have checked t heBulgars' advance by obstinate resistance. An official statement from the French War Office reported the Serbians pushing back the Bulgars at some points.

PTE. SMYTH OF MOUNTED RIFLES DIES FOR EMPIRE

WAS REPORTED MISSING

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle of The De Laval Supply Company, has received a letter from Miss Lela Smyth who is employed with The De Laval to the effect that her father, Mr. J. C. Smyth, of Mohawk, Ontario, and formerly Principal of the Central School of this city, has received from the front the wallet belonging to his son, Pte. Sidney Smyth, which was picked up by his chum from his dead body on the battlefield. They were able to identify it as it contained the identification card and signature of Pte. Sidney Smyth. The young man was formerly in the Cost Department of The De Laval, and enlisted here with B Squadron, 8th C.M.R., early in January, going overseas with the 8th. He had a host of friends in Peterborough who will regret to learn of his death. The notice sent out from Ottawa, some time ago, stated that Pte. Smyth had been officially reported missing.

STILL A CHANCE TO BE FIRST RECRUIT FOR 247TH BATTALION

Although a Number of Candidates Have Presented Themselves no One Has Yet Been Attested---New Battalions For No. 3 Military District---- Good Opportunities For Ambitious Young Men in Local Unit---To-day's Military News.

The announcement in another local paper last night in regard to the first recruit for the 247th Battalion was a little premature. So far no one has been attested, and the honour of being the first recruit for the new unit is still available, although it is not likely to be so long, as a number of candidates have presented themselves and will be taken on the strength in the near future.

Lt.-Col. Johnston is preparing to take a tour throughout his recruiting district next week in order to survey the ground thoroughly and to make arrangements for his recruiting campaign. In the meantime the subalterns, Lieuts. Quinn and Dunsford, who have reported for duty, are on recruiting work in the city. Just now their hope is to secure a number of bright young men for non-commissioned officers, and these will be sent to the School of Infantry at Kingston.

The best opportunities for advancement since the war began are offered in the 247th, inasmuch as the crop of available non-coms. from the 57th Regiment and other militia units, as well as the many old soldiers who were living in the city, have practically all enlisted, leaving the field open for new-comers.

New Units.

Kingston Standard: There is considerable speculation about the movement of units already in existence in the Third Military District, and of troops that were recruited here, who are now in other camps. An early move for all troops in the district seems to be the thought of all who are watching the trend of Canadian military matters, and the question naturally follows, if the troops at present in this district who are fit for overseas service, are to go soon, will others take their place? and if so, what battalions are liable to come into existence in the Third Military District for training during the coming winter?

It is pretty certain that this district will have four more battalions for the winter, and that these battalions will all be under way before the first of November, and while the work of recruiting these battalions to strength may be a strenous task, it is firmly believed that the task will be carried out faithfully and satisfactorily.

A HIGHLAND BATTALION.

Kingston and Frontenac county will undoubtedly be given a highland battalion, as The Standard has claimed for several weeks. It looks beyond doubt that the battalion will be commanded by Lt.-Col. Ferguson, with Major R. D. Sutherland as second in command. With the use of Highland uniform, everybody feels satisfied the home battalion would recruit rapidly, and with such officers in charge, the young men of the city and county would join quickly.

ANOTHER FOR BROCKVILLE.

Brockville, with Leeds and Grenville will have another battalion, and it looks as though Major Rowlands, now junior Major of the 156th battalion, would be given command of this new unit. Major Newman is a most capable officer, and is known to all in the 156th as "Kitchener." In the area in which the new battalion will be raised he is well known, liked by all and has a host of friends.

DUNDAS AND STORMONT.

Dundas, Stormont, and Glengarry will also be given another battalion, and dame rumor says that it will be commanded by Major Cameron, now junior Major of the 154th battalion. The Major is an old cavalry officer, with an abundance of energy and ability, a large circle of friends, and a love for military matters. Under him it is felt that another battalion is a possibility in this area.

ANOTHER FOR HASTINGS.

Hastings and Prince Edward counties will also have another battalion, and it is believed that this one will be commanded by Major Allen, now junior Major of the 155th battalion at Barriefield camp. The Major has large business interests in Belleville, is popular with all classes, and all who know him feel confident that his ability will give Belleville and vicinity another good battalion.

Three out of the four mentioned for command of new battalions are now junior majors of overseas units

7054 ESTIMATES MADE YESTERDAY

LIEUT. J. A. McNAB, with the 93rd Battalion at Otterpool Camp, England.

Four Contestants Were Only Four Away From the Correct Number And the First Four Prizes Will be Divided Among the Quartette.

LIST OF THE WINNERS

7,054 was the correct number of the estimates dropped into the box in front of the Examiner Office during Dollar Day, yesterday, indicating that the merchants of Peterborough had done a splendid day's business, especially considering the season of the year. Naturally the results of the estimating contest, which are given below will be looked for with interest. No fewer than four persons were only four away from the correct figures, and, as a result, the first four prizes were divided among the four, giving each $17.50. Mrs. J. S. McNeil, of Keene, although not among the first four, was the biggest winner of the day, as she won no fewer than nine prizes.

Here are the results:

Tie for first, second, third, and fourth prizes (7,050)—Miss Jennie Jarvis, 340 Charlotte street; John Best, 426 Donegal street; Miss Rita Pengelly, Bailieboro; Mrs. J. Sargent 524 Charlotte street, $17.50 each.

Tie for fifth and sixth prizes—Mrs. J. S. McNeil, Keene, 7,060; Mr. Sullivan, 11 Park street, 7,060—$7.50 each.

Seventh prize, $5.00—Miss Winnie Saunders, Romaine street, 7,061.

Eighth prize, $5.00—Miss Laura Graham, Lakefield, 7,065.

Tie for ninth and tenth prizes—Mrs. J. S. McNeil, Keene, 7,041; Mrs. Parnall, 789 Water street, 7,067—$5.00 each.
